WOMEN'S LEAGUE REPLIES TO MILLER; PUSHES PROGRAM

Enrolled Republican Members, in Letter, Resent Charges and Explain Their Motives.

DENY HOSTILITY TO PARTIES

They Ask if Republicans Oppose Their Educating Voters and Studying Issues.

EXPECT ATTACK TO AID THEM

They Proceed With Work by Attacking Plan to End Primary and Endorsing Eight-Hour Day.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The 300 delegates to the Convention of the New York State League of Women Voters recovered today from the temporary stupefaction caused by the speech of Governor Miller at their dinner at the Hotel Ten Eyck last night, and took steps to meet the Governor's charge that the league had no reason for existence and was a menace to orderly government.

The reply took the form of a letter to the Governor, signed by most of the Republican delegates present, including Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Chairman of the New York State League; Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the New York City League; Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Regional Director; Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, and Dr. Katherine B. Davis.

The Governor's speech caused intense excitement among the women and conferences as to what should be done to answer it began immediately after the dinner, continued until an early hour this morning and were resumed today. It was finally decided that the Republican delegates, being of the same party as the Governor, should make the reply instead of individual members of the League.

The letter denied hostility on the part of the league to any party, resented the Governor's charge that it had not been honest in pushing its welfare bills and asked if the Republican Party did not want an intelligent electorate.

Text of Women's Reply.

The letter follows:

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28, 1921.

To His Excellency Governor of the State of New York Hon. Nathan L. Miller, Albany.

Dear Governor Miller: We the undersigned, enrolled Republicans of the League of Women Voters, wish to thank you for coming to speak at our banquet last evening and to express to you our appreciation of the frankness and courage with which you addressed us.

There were certain misapprehensions on which you based your statement which you will undoubtedly wish to have corrected. The League of Women Voters is not a woman's party, nor is it a political party in any sense of the word. It lacks the chief element of a political party, as it does not want anything for itself or for any of its members. It is not fighting either political party. Most of its members belong to one of the two dominant parties, and the league urges party allegiance.

Our experience within the organization of the parties, however, is a humiliating one. It has taught us that there is as yet no real equality in the management of party affairs, nor in the choice of delegates or candidates. We are forbidden to exercise independence or judgment, and are openly advised that there is no place in the party except for those who take orders.

You deny our right to work as a group outside the political party for political measures, and you say that all non-partisan groups which seek to affect legislation and the choice of candidates are a menace to the welfare of the country. Do you include in this such groups as the State Charities Aid, the Dairymen's League, the Grange, the Citizens' Union, the Bar Association, the American Legion and the Manufacturers' Association, or are we a menace because we are women? We believe that such associations are only dangerous if they are secret and offer secret rewards.

Our chief point of difference is in the way we regard party allegiance. In joining a political party we do not feel that we must give our conscience into its keeping.

Resent Welfare Bills Charge.

We deeply resent the charge made in two of your public addresses that our motive in pushing the welfare bills was not honest and we are amazed that you should not know that they were initiated not by us but by the organized working women of the State. You have made your own position on welfare legislation perfectly clear, and we respect your convictions. You owe us the same respect.

Since you, the leader of our party and its spokesman in the State, publicly denounce our work, we beg to submit the following questions:

The chief work of the League of Women Voters is educating voters, especially women. Does not the Republican Party want an intelligent electorate?

We believe that voters should study public questions in an unprejudiced way. Therefore, we offer a non-partisan platform for their discussion. Does the Republican Party prefer that the voters should accept a partisan

Army to 'Gas' the Boll Weevil In Cotton Fields of the South

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Chemical Warfare Service of the Army, in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture, is preparing to lay down a barrage of poison gas in the cotton district of the South calculated to exterminate the boll weevil. Brig. Gen. Amos Fries, Chief of the service, said today that experiments already conducted promised success.

Military gas has already been used against rats in seaport cities, he added, a fifteen-minute application along wharves and under waterfront buildings killing every rat in the area. The army is "gassing" locusts in the Philippines, he added.

ROADS FOR WAGE CUT OF HALF A BILLION

Executives Would Save Part by Ending Shop Agreements, Rest by Straight Cuts.

MAY APPEAL TO WORKERS

Or Go to Labor Board and Public With Plea—No Separate Parleys, Say Union Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Representatives of several large railroads and the Labor Committee of the American Association of Railway Executives held a six hours' session today discussing the question whether the public would support the railroads in a movement to readjust wages and working conditions, with a view to cutting $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 off the payroll of the railroads of the United States.

At sundown the committee had not decided whether to demand that the men accept a wage cut or face the greatest general layoff in the history of American railroads or to submit the case to the Railway Labor Wage Board and continue losing money during the months which it is believed will be required for the board to make a decision.

The conference will be resumed tomorrow and may continue over Sunday. No formal announcement was made, but it was intimated that by Monday "an important decision" would probably be made public.

It was learned that the executives had agreed on these points:

That the operating expenses of the roads must be reduced $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 a year.

That $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 of present expense can be eliminated by the abrogation of the national shop agreements which the roads are now asking the Federal Board to annul.

That the rest of the desired saving must come from the payrolls by reductions in wages.

That an arbitrary percentage reduction cannot be made, but that the entire railroad scale must be readjusted to eliminate inequalities which crept in under Federal administration and were not entirely wiped out by the latest award of the Federal Board.

That the railroads have gained little or no advantage from the rate increases thus far granted, and that a lowering of rates and commensurate lowering of wages is to be preferred to an increase in rates in an attempt to continue the present high scale of wages in force.

That the railway brotherhoods will resist any attempt to reduce wages, regardless of the necessity of such reduction from the standpoint of railway management.

That public support will be necessary if the roads are to succeed in getting back to normal conditions.

Some members of the committee are said to have favored "putting it straight up" to the Railway Brotherhoods to agree to the wage cut within thirty days, and in the event of failure to obtain their consent to bring the case immediately before the Railway Wage Board by an appeal for "emergency relief," which was the ground for the union's plea for the last wage increase.

Others counselled taking the public into the confidence of the managements by broadcast publication of payroll secrets, and making public the "secret diplomacy" said to have been used in the passage of the Adamson law and the resultant pyramiding of railroad wages.

To requests for details of the meeting members of the committee had only one answer:

"We can say nothing until we reach a decision. That decision will take the form of a recommendation to the standing committee of the association, which will accept or reject it—most probably will accept it."

In an informal way, however, the one impression gained from all was this: Railroad wages will be cut down, probably by half a billion dollars, if the

LEGISLATORS PLAN MASS MEETING HERE AGAINST 8-CENT FARE

Democratic Senators and Assemblymen from the City to Organize Monday.

LAGUARDIA TO CO-OPERATE

Miller's Proposal for Up-State Commission to Fix Lighting Rates Also Attacked.

DENOUNCED BY TAMMANY

Executive Committee Adopts Resolution—Livingston First Local Republican Leader to Back Governor.

An effort to bring together at a public mass meeting the opponents of the plan of Governor Nathan L. Miller for the solution of New York City's traction problem was started yesterday. After a conference with Mayor Hylan, State Senator James J. Walker, minority leader, announced that the Democratic Senators and Assemblymen from New York City would meet next Monday in the Aldermanic Chamber at City Hall to organize and map out a program to combat any fare increase.

Aldermanic President F. H. LaGuardia, a prospective Republican candidate for Mayor, assured the Democrats of his co-operation and granted them the use of the Aldermanic chamber. The Republican legislators from the city will be welcomed to the Monday gathering and later formally invited to attend the mass meeting which will be held the latter part of next week, probably in Madison Square Garden. Civic organizations and other bodies who are opposed to the Governor's plan also will be invited to attend the mass meeting. The Democratic leaders hope to convince the Governor that the opposition to his program is not confined to their party, but embraces all elements of metropolitan activity.

Senator Walker, after his talk with the Mayor, said that other matters besides traction would be discussed on Monday. Greater danger to the city's interest, he said, was to be found in the Governor's proposal to give to an up-State Public Service Commission power to fix gas and electric light rates in the city. He pointed out that under Section 4, Chapter 48 of the Consolidated Laws of the State, Public Service Commissioners must be appointed from districts in which they live, and with an up-State commission having full power over all public utilities besides traction, New York City would not be represented in rate-making cases.

To Organize All Opposition.

"At the meeting of the Democratic legislators from this city on Monday at City Hall," said Senator Walker, "we expect to organize all the elements opposed to Governor Miller's extraordinary plan. As the minority party in the Legislature, of course the Democratic members cannot hope to defeat the measure, but we can show the Governor that there are others besides Democrats who are opposed to sacrificing their precious heritage of home rule and to giving the city over to the traction companies.

"It has been suggested that the city have representation on the directorate of the transit companies and in this way have an equal voice with the companies. That's a great scheme, but just try it. A representative of the city on that directorate would have about as much say about anything as would an individual in the affairs of the United States Steel Corporation who owned three shares of steel stock.

"Monday's meeting will not be a partisan affair. Everybody is invited to be present and voice their protest. We expect to arrange for a monster mass meeting to be held later in the week."

While the Democratic Legislators were planning to fight the Governor's proposed traction bill in the Legislature, local Democrats took measures to have an increased fare issue brought to the front for use in the coming Mayoralty campaign. The Tammany Hall Executive Committee adopted a resolution condemning any interference with home rule and declaring that the Governor's plan meant an eight-cent fare for New York City.

Tammany Hall's Attack.

This resolution was presented by George W. Olvany, Chairman of the Tammany Law Committee, and was seconded by Leader Charles F. Murphy. The resolution read:

The Executive Committee of the County Committee of the Democratic Party of New York County condemns the message of Governor Nathan L. Miller submitted to the Legislature on the night of Jan. 24.

Because it means the destruction of the little measure of home rule now remaining with the people of the city

Einstein Startles Berlin by Suggesting A Possibility of Measuring the Universe

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Professor Einstein has again startled the scientific world by an argument that it will be possible to prove the universe finite and even to estimate its size in space.

Lecturing to the Prussian Academy of Science, he said that the question of the infinity or otherwise of the universe was a quite sensible one to propound if considered in the light of practical geometry. One possibility of deciding the question, he said, lay in applying the relativity theory to the Newtonian law of reckoning the average velocity of stars as that which they must have to prevent the Milky Way from collapsing on itself through reciprocal action.

Applying certain results of the relativity theory, he came to the following conclusion: If the real velocities of stars (the measurement of which could be carried out) were less than the calculated velocities, then it was proved that real gravitations' great distances were smaller than the gravitational distances demanded by the law of Newton.

From such divergence the finiteness of the universe could be proved indirectly and it was even permitted to estimate its size.

Letter Travels 19 Years Before It Is Delivered

DEDHAM, Mass., Jan. 28.—A letter that had been 19 years on the way, part of the time traveling through the war capitals of Europe, was delivered today to Mrs. Fred I. Pratt of this town. It looked like a futuristic conception of the international postal system gone mad, with more than a score of foreign postmarks cutting curlqiues with domestic marks.

London, Petrograd, Berlin and other far places were registered check by jowl with the little station of City Mills from which the letter was sent on Feb. 3, 1902. Some of the dates indicated that the letter at times was within a day or two of overtaking Mrs. Pratt, at others it was years behind, and oddly it found her today within a few miles of its starting place.

CHEMICAL BANK BUYS BROADWAY CORNER

Acquires the 13-Story Shoe & Leather Bank Building Next Door in a Deal in Millions.

DEAL PENDING FOR MONTHS

Seller Has Leased Citizens' National Quarters at 320 Broadway.

The Chemical National Bank, through its First Vice President, Edwin S. Schenck, it was learned yesterday, has signed contracts for the purchase of the thirteen-story building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Chambers Street, now owned and occupied by the Shoe and Leather Bank, a branch of the Metropolitan Bank. Henry Ollesheimer signed the contracts as President of the latter bank. Joseph P. Day was the broker in the transaction.

The Chemical National Bank occupies an imposing structure fronting on both Broadway and Chambers Street, adjoining on the south and west and practically surrounding the property just acquired. The bank now controls a valuable corner plot, with a frontage of 50.2 feet on Broadway and 192.8 feet on Chambers Street.

Speaking of the transaction, the bank's officers said yesterday that they had no plans for the immediate improvement of the property. The institution has been somewhat cramped for room since its merger with the Citizens' National Bank, and this was one of the reasons for purchasing the corner property.

Mr. Day said that the signing of the contracts closed a series of negotiations which have extended over about eighteen months. At the time these were started Mr. Ollesheimer of the Shoe and Leather Branch of the Metropolitan Bank wanted to make the sale but could not find suitable accommodations for his institution. When the Citizens' National Bank was merged with the Chemical National, however, the banking space at 320 Broadway became available for the Shoe and Leather Bank, and this hastened the closing of the deal. A long term lease of banking space in 320 Broadway to the Metropolitan Bank, Shoe and Leather Branch, has been negotiated by Mr. Day, and the branch will occupy these premises on its removal from Chambers Street.

The deal is one of the largest closed in this section of the city for a long time. No hint of the price involved could be obtained, however, from the parties in the transaction. It is the second sale made by Mr. Day to the Chemical National Bank. In 1910 he sold to the bank at an auction for the Bruce estate, Nos. 84 and 86 Chambers Street, which still forms part of the premises now occupied by the institution.

The Chemical National Bank is one of the oldest and most prominent financial institutions in the city. Its history dates back beyond the Civil War days, when it was a State bank and its record in the panic days of the late '50s was one of the best. It was one of a very few banks, if not, in fact, the only one, which maintained specie payments in 1857 and 1858 when the whole banking system was in a more or less chaotic state.

In the late '90s and the early years of the present century, the Chemical National was generally known as "Hetty Green's bank" and as such it wielded a powerful influence in the financial community.

In recent years it has been recognized as one of the great commercial banks of the city. Last year, in May, it absorbed the Citizens National Bank, thereby becoming seventh among all the banks in New York. Herbert K. Twitchell is Chairman of its Board of Directors and Percy H. Johnston is President.

John A. Garver, senior member of the firm of Shearman & Sterling, represented the Chemical National Bank in the present transaction, and David F. Butcher of the firm of Butcher, Tanner & Foster represented the Metropolitan Bank.

Managers and Workers of Newport, Ky., Mills to Confer.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 28.—Announcement was made today by the management of the big Andrews Steel Mills and the Newport (Ky) Rolling Mills, affiliated corporations, that a Golden Rule conference had been agreed upon by the officials of those corporations and representatives of labor organizations having members at work in the extensive Newport plants of the two corporations, to arrange "Golden Rule scales" of wages and hours graded in such a way as to admit of continuous operation and readjustment in competition with like plants.

The Andrews Steel Mills and Newport Rolling Mills managements have long been on notably friendly terms with the labor union membership.

BROADWAY ROBBERS HOLD UP A JEWELER, GET $8,000 IN LOOT

Diamonds and Watches Taken from Second-Floor Office at 37th Street Corner.

THINK THEY FLED IN AUTO

Two Men Reconnoitred Other Shops Before Demanding Valuables at Pistol Point.

NO POLICEMAN NEAR SCENE

Fifteen Minutes Before Officer Appeared—All Trace of Thieves Lost in the Crowd.

Two well dressed robbers shortly before 6 o'clock last evening walked into the factory of the Geiger Watch Case Corporation on the second floor of the building at the southeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street, and, after pointing pistols at Joachim Geiger, President, and Leon Rommel, an employe, scooped $8,000 in diamonds, watches and platinum watch cases into a woman's black silk handbag and escaped in the Broadway crowd.

It was the second daring hold-up in the building in the last ten months, the first robbery taking place in the jewelry store of Schwartz Brothers on the ground floor, when three men smashed the window in the view of hundreds and escaped with thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry.

During the few minutes required for the thieves to effect the robbery yesterday they talked to Mr. Geiger in a friendly way.

It was not until both robbers had made their escape to the street, after they had warned Mr. Geiger and his employe that they would shoot to kill if either attempted to follow them, that news of the hold-up spread among the other manufacturing jewelers in the building. For the next half hour Broadway was a scene of excitement.

Jewelers Take Up Pursuit.

Half a dozen jewelers, attracted by the cries of the victims, seized pistols and ran down the stairs causing passers-by to flee. Not a policeman appeared for more than fifteen minutes. Nobody could be found who saw the men leave the building, but it was believed that they stepped into an automobile which drew away from the entrance on the Broadway side a few minutes before the jewelers dashed into the crowd.

When detectives from the West Thirtieth Street Station arrived, long after the hold-up, they warned all of the jewelers not to reveal any information. Some of the latter expressed indignation over the manner in which the detectives questioned Mr. Geiger and his employe.

"From the manner in which they questioned Mr. Geiger," said one of them, "you would have thought that he had committed the crime, instead of being the victim."

The building in which the robbery took place runs back about 125 feet on the south side of West Thirty-seventh Street. The Geiger factory is on the top floor of a two-story brick extension which juts into the courtyard.

Wanted Catch Fixed.

A few minutes before the robbers entered the small reception room one of them—described as French or Italian, about 35 years old, with black hair and mustache and wearing an expensive overcoat—entered the office of Irving Bloom, a jewelry manufacturer on the Broadway end of the hall leading back to the Geiger plant, and, presenting the handbag, requested that the silver catch be repaired.

"I have no time for a small job like that," replied Mr. Bloom. "Take it down to Samuel Palatnik in Room 8 on this floor."

A few seconds later the stranger appeared in Palatnik's office, and after showing him the handbag, inquired if he could repair it at once. Mr. Palatnik told him he could not, and the man left.

The plant of the watch case corporation consists of one large room, but a partition to the ceiling divides the workshop from a small room at the entrance.

"I was standing near the safe inside the door on the right side of the partition a few minutes before 6 o'clock," Mr. Geiger said, "when the first man entered and said: 'Hello, you remember me, don't you? I use to buy watch cases from you when you had your place in West Forty-fifth Street. I have an order for a platinum watch, and I think you have the kind I want in stock.'

Man's Face Familiar.

"The man's face seemed familiar to me," explained Mr. Geiger, "and he was such an affable fellow that it never occurred to me that he could be a holdup man. I invited him inside, opened the safe and drew two trays from the interior, which contained thirty-five platinum watches and watchcases, some of them studded with diamonds; a considerable quantity of loose platinum and a small box holding about two dozen small diamonds.

"As I laid the trays on the top of the desk the man pulled from his overcoat pocket a black silk handbag, then, reaching into his hip-pocket, smilingly drew out a pistol. 'Now, don't get excited,' he said in a pleasant way. 'Just throw up your hands, and I'll put all the stuff in this bag.'

"'Why, you're not a robber, are you?' I asked him. 'Well, what do I act like?' he replied, as he picked up

FIX GERMAN INDEMNITY AT $55,500,000,000, IN GRADED ANNUAL PAYMENTS FOR 42 YEARS, PLUS 12½ PER CENT. TAX ON GERMAN EXPORTS

Lloyd George Sees Indemnity Complicated By Anxiety of All Nations to Protect Their Trade

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Mr. Lloyd George was smoking his long, mild after dinner cigar and toying with a liqueur glass he did not empty. It was at the end of a strenuous day in which he had driven home at the Allied Conference his theme that the time had come "to write the balance sheet of Europe." The doughty Welshman was weary, and what man would not be who bore upon his shoulders not only the troubles of the British Empire but a goodly share of those of all Europe?

As one of his guests at dinner, I was listening to him soliloquize on the after-war trials of the world, as he is wont to do at times.

"What is the hardest problem of the reparations situation?" I asked.

"It is this," the Premier replied. "All the allied nations are agreed that Germany must pay her indemnity by exports. All the allied nations are agreed they do not want German exports.

"France thinks England should take German exports and enable Germany to pay the reparations with what we would owe. We think France stands much more in need of German exports than we do. And your own Mr. Harding said he was determined on one thing—that Europe should not pay her debts to America by sending goods.

"Every nation wants to protect its own industries. Every nation wants to collect its debts. Germany has not gold enough to pay the Allies. The Allies have not gold enough to pay America. And everybody wants to be paid in gold.

"To find the answer to this situation is not only the hardest reparation problem, it is the hardest problem of the whole world today."

And it may be added that of 1,500,000,000 marks' worth of goods Germany offered France in 1920, France accepted 20,000,000 marks' worth.

FAMOUS AIRSHIP R-34 HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Smashes Engines, Is Blown Out Over North Sea and Fights Her Way Back.

TOSSED ABOUT AT HANGAR

Ship That Crossed the Atlantic Damaged by High Wind—Crew Unhurt in Long Struggle.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The airship R-34, which made the transatlantic journey, returned to Howden in Yorkshire this afternoon badly crippled, after an exciting adventure. She had just been refitted and converted to use for commercial flying and last night went out with the R-33 for a series of manoeuvres. The R-23 returned to the airdrome at the scheduled time, but no news came of the R-34. Signals were sent up and wireless communication opened, and word was then received that she had bumped into the land, damaged two engines and was drifting astern toward the sea. It is believed she collided with a hill. A strong wind was against her, and this added to her peril. In that neighborhood in the early morning the wind had a speed of 40 miles an hour. The big airship drifted out over the North Sea east of Spurn Head, and before the engineers could temporarily rectify the damage and enable the vessel to make any headway she was fifteen to twenty miles out at sea. She slowly battled her way inland and reached Howden at 4:30, with only two propellers working, after her unexpected voyage of nearly twenty-four hours. Her front car was seen to be badly damaged and the fore-and-aft propellers broken.

Just as the airship was nearing her shed with more than a thousand persons tugging at her ropes a gust of wind caused the fore cabin to bump against the ground. Those of the crew who were in the cabin jumped clear before the impact. After striking the ground the airship rebounded and bumped a second time, more heavily than before. The fore cabin was smashed and the structure above was badly damaged. Fortunately no one was hurt. With a wind of thirty miles an hour blowing attempts to tow the R-34 into her shed failed, and it was decided to leave the airship in the open for the night. She was moored to a concrete pile specially prepared for such an emergency.

'LOVE, HONOR AND OBEY' STAYS AS NUPTIAL VOW

Is Left Unamended in the Revised Anglican Book of Common Prayer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Although there will be many revisions in the new Book of Common Prayer, which will be issued after legal enactment has been obtained, THE NEW YORK TIMES representative was informed today that the point in the marriage service about a wife having to love, honor and obey her husband will remain.

Not since 1662 has there been a revision of the Prayer Book. Ten years ago the King issued what are known as "letters of business," requesting the Convocation to consider revision of the Book of Common Prayer, and after much discussion the Convocation presented a report suggesting a very large number of alterations, some substantial and drastic and others of a minor character. This report is now in the hands of some office and the method of giving it legal form is under consideration. It is expected that some time will elapse before legal sanction is obtained for publication, and further revision is likely before this takes place.

AIR SERVICE PLEA FAILS TO GET FUNDS

House Committee Hears Gen. Mitchell, but Gives Only a Third of $60,000,000 Asked.

HE URGES DEFENSE FLEETS

Says Air Navies Can Defeat Sea Navies—Tells How Our Cities Could Be Assailed With Gas.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. — Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the Army Air Service, made a plea before the House Committee on Appropriations today for adequate funds to develop aviation as a means of military defense, especially of the coast cities. The committee in the Army bill which was reported today, however, recommends the appropriation of only $19,200,000 instead of the $60,000,000 which had been asked.

General Mitchell insisted that the airplane had become so much superior to the battleship that a well-balanced military program must include a large aerial force to be effective in the next war. He said that a sufficiently large force could be formed and equipped in three years at a cost of $45,000,000, which represented no more than the cost of a battle cruiser.

General Mitchell wanted the committee to recommend the use of the former German liners, Leviathan, Von Steuben and Agamemnon as airplane carriers. With these fast ships carrying an air force, he said, they could be quickly carried to any zone of operations. With these ships equipped the entire Atlantic Coast could be well protected, he said.

"The vulnerable part of our country is from the Chesapeake Bay up to Boston, and from New York to Chicago," said the General. "By having an air force ready for action somewhere in New Jersey you can reach any part of that area within two or three hours, whereas you could not do it in less than a day or two with railway guns, and then they could have little effect. You must remember that it takes an hour at least to put railway guns into firing position and we can go 110 miles an hour with our bombardment airplanes, much more with our pursuit. We can shirt our air forces within twenty-five to thirty flying hours from the East to the West Coast, and from the North to the South in the same proportion of time.

"You must remember, also, that battleships cost $45,000,000 each, and we can build a thousand airplanes for the cost of each battleship.

"The whole training of the navy is that the armored ship is mistress of the sea, whereas actually it is just as helpless as the armored knight was when firearms were brought against him."

General Mitchell said that 600 airplanes—20 per cent. pursuit, 20 per cent. attack, and 30 per cent. bombing—would be sufficient to protect the Atlantic coast, while the Pacific should have the same number. As a protection for the land, 1,200 other planes were needed, he said.

The officer asserted that, with the improvements in aviation and bombing, "any ship in existence can be destroyed today." He told how in a test attack with bombs on the old battleship Indiana aircraft 5,000 feet up made 11 per cent. of hits.

Explaining the use of gas against cities, General Mitchell said:

"We believe that in the next war gas might be used by a barbarous foe on the centres of communication. We know just how much gas has to be put down on these centres to interrupt communication. Take New York and an area in the vicinity ten miles by ten miles. If two tons of crying gas are dropped by airplanes or airships there once in eight days, it will make everybody wear gas masks and suspend.

"If we want to keep that place covered with mustard gas, we can put down seventy tons once in eight days and everybody will have to protect themselves against mustard gas in that area. If we want to kill everybody in that area and use phosgene, we have to put down 200 tons of phosgene once in eight days and it will keep that area covered. All you have to do is to go over that area once every eight days and peep it inundated with gas. The only protection against such a procedure is protection in the air."

EXPERTS REACH AGREEMENT

PENALTIES NOT YET FIXED

Accord Arrived At After Dramatic Negotiations, Lloyd George Sending Ultimatum to Briand.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Coached by the Premiers, the allied experts tonight agreed on a plan for payment of the German war reparations.

This plan has two features:

First, Germany shall pay over forty-two years a series of annuities ranging from 2,000,000,000 gold marks to 6,000,000,000 gold marks.

Second, Germany shall pay to the Allies for forty-two years a 12½ per cent. tax on the sum total of her export trade.

There are two important observations to make of this plan; First, it does not fix the definite total Germany must pay, and, second, it is not effective without German consent.

The plan will be submitted to the full allied conference tomorrow morning, and unless something goes wrong meanwhile it will be adopted.

Tonight the experts are working out a scale for the payment of the annuities, the Premiers having agreed on the principle. I am informed that the scale which will probably be adopted is this following: Two billion marks gold for the next five years, 4,000,000,000 for the following five years and thereafter 6,000,000,000 for thirty-two years. This would make a grand total of 252,000,000,000 gold marks.

Of course no one can tell what the 12½ per cent. tax on Germany's exports will be twenty years from now. In 1913 her exports totaled 10,000,000,000 gold marks. Twelve and a half per cent. of this sum for forty-two years would be $2,500,000,000 gold marks. But naturally estimating the sum total on this basis is like shooting at the moon.

Agreement Reached by Compromise.

This agreement was shaped partly by political considerations. Mr. Lloyd George had stood fast for the Boulogne agreement, which provided a payment of 269,000,000,000 in forty-two years, while M. Briand had stood out for his policy on which he received the confidence of the French Chamber of not fixing the sum now, but arranging that France should profit by German prosperity. What happened was that M. Briand accepted the Boulogne system with the figures reduced and in return got a tax on exports which allows for France participating in German prosperity.

It must be stated that tonight's agreement does not settle the reparations question. Not only is the total not fixed, but inasmuch as the treaty provides for thirty years' payment and does not mention a tax on exports Germany's consent must be gained. And for that Mr. Lloyd George will arrange a conference.

Those who would place great confidence in the carrying out of tonight's agreement as it stands would exhibit marked lack of knowledge of the ear-gaining skill of the German diplomats as witnessed at Spa. Furthermore, the Allies must get the agreement of the Germans to any plan of collecting outside Germany on German exports. One may naturally assume that the Germans will seek and gain concessions in the new-born plan.

Furthermore, it has got to be approved by the French Parliament and that means a considerable barrier, for already the friends of former President Poincaré are saying that Briand has not won success this week.

Thus tonight's step may not be as long as it seems at first glance.

It is understood that tonight's agreement leaves entirely open the question of penalties, which will be discussed when the Allies meet the Germans.

Day of Dramatic Negotiations.

Today's negotiations were dramatic in the extreme. Last night Mr. Lloyd George said after the question had been referred to the experts that he would attend no more Supreme Council meetings until the experts had brought forward a definite proposal.

At noon today the experts sent a proposal for the Boulogne agreement as it stood, plus an export tax. At the same time came a request from M. Briand to Mr. Lloyd George to attend a Council meeting to consider the report. The British Premier refused, remaining in the Hotel Crillon and giving instructions to his experts. In the interim M. Briand called on him, and later M. Loucheur, Minister of Liberated Regions.

At 7 o'clock tonight Mr. Lloyd George sent his revision of the plan to the French with the word that they could take it or leave it. They took it. A few moments later Marshal Foch, accompanied the Cvrilles, and went in the home of Prime Minister a courtyard.

This plan is a step, but it looks like a long way from "writing the balance

Briand Predicts Decision.

PARIS, Saturday, Jan. 29 (Associated Press)—The session of the committee of experts of the Allied Supreme Council ended at 12:20 o'clock this morning after having reached a complete agreement on the system of annual payments of reparations by Germany and annuities on Germany's foreign trade.

It now remains only for the plenary sitting of the Supreme Council today to endorse the agreement, draw up instructions for the Brussels experts and fix penalties for defaults by Germany.

Premier Briand declared as he came out from the meeting early this morning that the conference of the Supreme Council would not break up without having reached a definite decision.

It is considered extremely improbable that the Council will be able to take any effective action regarding Austria at this meeting, as most of the members appointed to study the question have been busy on reparations. Of the suggestions made, the proposal of M. Loucheur, French Minister of the Liberated Regions, that an effort be made to finance Austria through bankers is receiving the most favor.

The Supreme Council may adopt M. Loucheur's suggestion, but it is believed it will be unable to take steps to realize it before adjournment is taken.

GERMANY'S ABILITY TO PAY.

Huge Saving Effected by Passing of Imperial and Royal Families.

The total of $55,500,000,000 which Germany may be asked to pay in the next forty-two years can, in large measure, be met by the reduction of the national expenses made possible by the passing of the Empire and the Imperial and Royal families. Germany's pre-war expenses in those departments which have now been entirely wiped out or function at a much lower expense were:

Army	$194,000,000
Navy	43,800,000
Imperial functions, &c	10,120,000
Imperial and royal stipends	29,600,000
Total	$278,420,000

Thus more than half of the annual payment of $500,000,000 for the first five years of the indemnity period is met by the wiping out of the foregoing imperial expenses. As to the balance, how easily that may be obtained can be gathered from Germany's present trade status, which is relatively better than it was before the war, except for the enormous debt incurred by the Government to the Germans themselves.

In pre-war times the total revenue from all sources, but principally from imports, the posts and telegraphs, and the railways amounted to $925,000,000 a year. The largest item on the revenue schedule was that derived from the imports and railways, amounting to nearly $400,000,000.

The imports of Germany in 1914 were valued at $2,600,000,000, and the exports at $2,325,000,000.

For the first five months of 1920 the imports were valued at $444,100,000, and the exports at $383,848,000. And in April and May the exports exceeded the imports for the first time, the respective values being $199,553,000 for imports and $[illegible],296,000 for exports, which showed rapid strides toward the pre-war status and with a favorable trade balance for the first time in modern German history.

GEDDES WAITS IN PARIS.

Has Had Scant Opportunity Yet of Conferring With Lloyd George.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to Washington, who arrived recently in London from the United States and came to Paris to confer with the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, is experiencing some difficulty in finding an opportunity to discuss American affairs fully with Mr. Lloyd George owing to the latter's preoccupation with Supreme Council business.

He has had one long talk with the Prime Minister and is remaining in Paris until he can have others, although it seems likely these will have to be deferred until the council has ended its labors.

Sir Auckland is holding resolutely to his determination not to receive newspaper correspondents.

CALL TO CONFERENCE WORRIES GREEKS

Venizelos Urged as Man of the Situation—Turks Accept Allied Invitation.

ATHENS, Jan. 28.—The decision of the Supreme Council in Paris regarding the Greek and Turkish question continues to occupy the attention of the Government, the press and political circles, to the exclusion of almost every other subject of news.

That the country's status will hang in the balance for another month has created disappointment and apprehension, although some of the Royalist newspapers assert that they see a hopeful sign in the attitude of the Allies.

M. Stratos, leader of the National Conservative Party, points out that the communication of the allied representatives to the Greek Government does not refer to Greece as an ally, but merely invites Greece and Turkey to send delegates to London. The Cabinet has been holding meetings nightly, but no decision has yet been reached regarding the sending of delegates to the London conference.

The opposition and independent newspapers declare that the only man capable of handling the delicate situation is former Premier Venizelos. The Patris calls upon the National Assembly, which is to meet Monday, to name Venizelos as Greece's representative.

This newspaper takes a grave view of the situation. It says it is the duty of all Greeks to make every sacrifice in the interest of their country. It declares that, if it is necessary, King Constantine should relinquish the throne in favor of Crown Prince George in order to save the situation, and that it is his duty to make that sacrifice.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 27.—Acceptance of the invitation from the Supreme Allied Council to send Turkish representatives to a conference in London beginning Feb. 21, at which a revision of the Sevres treaty will be considered, was announced by the Sultan's Government today. In its reply to the Council the Government promised to transmit a most urgent invitation to Angora, asking Mustapha Kemal Pasha, or some other representative of the Turkish Nationalist Government, to participate in the conference.

PLANS APPEAL TO COUNTRY.

Lloyd George to Precipitate General Election in May or June.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Premier Lloyd George, says The London Times, has sent instructions from Paris for the coalition party machinery to be ready for a general election in May or June, after introduction of the budget early in April.

It appears, the newspaper comments, that the Premier and Chancellor of the Exchequer have decided it is possible to introduce a budget of £950,000,000, which would allow considerable remission of taxation, and thus afford a favorable opportunity for appealing to the country.

Famous Chateau Burned in Spain.

CORDOBA, Spain, Jan. 27.—Fire almost completely destroyed the famous château at La Albaida, near here, early today. The fire brigade of this city was summoned to the scene, but could do little toward checking the flames. Countess Hornachuelos, her children and several guests had narrow escapes from the flames, and many historic treasures were lost.

Quebec Moves to Limit Rent Rise.

QUEBEC, Jan. 28.—A bill was introduced today in the Quebec Provincial Legislature to prevent landlords from increasing rents more than 25 per cent. each year.

HASTY DEFLATION

Ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer Warns British of Premature Reduction of Currency.

URGES ECONOMY AND WORK

Declares That Dear Money and Restricted Credit Would Stagnate Business.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The perils of premature deflation of the currency were emphasized today by Reginald McKenna, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his annual statement as Chairman of the London Joint Stock and Midland Bank. Great interest was taken by financial circles in his address, as it was considered to be almost an official announcement of British bankers' views, which would be bound to influence the Treasury's policy.

He began by differentiating between inflation due to loans required for trade or manufacture and loans granted merely to increase the consumers' power of purchase. Periods of trade prosperity, he said, nearly always culminated in overtrading and speculation, but these could be checked by a high bank rate. Unfortunately, today the world was confronted with a new type of inflation, monetary inflation, which must be regarded as more or less permanent.

"Rigid restriction of credit," he said, "so far from proving an effective method of restoring trade to a wholesome condition, can only aggravate our evils. This policy of gradual monetary deflation, but deflation so guarded as not to interfere with production, is a policy impossible of execution. Trade is never good when prices are declining and the consequence of a continuous fall in prices entailed by dear money and a restriction of credit and accentuated by heavy taxation must be a complete stagnation of business.

"A fall in wholesale prices will follow, due to goods being thrown upon the market by traders who are unable to carry their stocks or have failed in business. There will be a diminution in production, profits will be greatly lessened and unemployment will grow. This will in turn lead to reduced power on the part of wage earners to spend on consumption, and to a further fall in both wholesale and retail prices."

Moreover, Mr. McKenna argued, the fall in prices would be only temporary. The purchasing power resulting from the great war loans remains and will be exercised as soon as prices reach bottom, so a new period of inflation will begin.

"If permanent monetary deflation is to be accomplished," he continued, "it can only be by a reduction of the purchasing power brought into existence by the great war loans, a reduction which can only be effected by paying off part of the national debt. But there is no means of doing this by the imposition of additional taxation without bringing immediate ruin upon our commerce and manufacture. The only source from which funds can be obtained for the repayment of the national debt is by economy in expenditure, and by this means alone can monetary deflation be effected or even attempted without permanent injury to our trade."

Mr. McKenna, however, suggested that there was one other method of successful deflation, an increase in the commodities available for purchase without increase of purchasing power.

"The fall in prices," he said, "will be very gradual and though a less rate of profit will be made than if prices were stable, it will be on a larger quantity and there can still be room for a fair return on capital and a fair reward for labor. This is the kind of deflation which we ought to aim for, a deflation which will be brought about by a larger supply of the commodities we all need, a greater surplus for foreign export and a larger total of real wealth."

MORE JOBLESS IN BRITAIN.

Labor Exchanges Report Additional 60,000 in Last Week.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The tide of unemployment is still flowing, the names of those without work registered at the labor exchanges throughout the Kingdom, which were close to 1,000,000 on Jan. 21, having increased by 60,000 in the course of the week just past. These figures are exclusive of those who are working on short time, and it is known that large numbers have not registered at the exchanges.

As many of the South Wales mines are closing down owing to virtual cessation of coal exports to France and elsewhere, the labor situation is bound to become worse.

After hearing proposals by mine owners and the men for future regulation of wages, the Miners' Federation Conference sent proposals to the coal districts for local consideration. The Federation announces its intention to fight any arrangement for reduced wages on the ground of reduction of output, maintaining that the miners have no control over the circumstances arising out of the Spa agreements, which resulted in France becoming flooded with coal, while German industries are denuded and British export trade has stopped.

The Federation will urge pooling of profits for stabilization of the industry.

CHURCHILL HEIR TO FORTUNE

Inherits Tempest Estate and May Aspire to Premiership.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, will inherit the estate of Lord Herbert Vane Tempest, his cousin, who died from injuries received in the railroad collision near Abermule, Wales, Jan. 26, according to The Daily Mail. The estate, Garron Tower, Antrim, is said to yield £8,000 annually.

Political circles, says The Daily Mail, are eagerly discussing the possibility that Mr. Churchill will now aspire to become the leader of a political party and ultimately Prime Minister.

CLEAR UP ENEMY ESTATES.

Allied Obstacles to Liquidation of Property Held Here Are Removed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Almost all obstacles in the way of liquidation of claims held by nationals of countries associated with the United States in the European war against estates held by the Alien Property Custodian have been removed, it was learned today at the State Department. Formal assurances have been received from Great Britain and other allied Governments of the adoption of measures designed to be reciprocal in such cases, and notification has been given to the Attorney General's office.

The correspondence was begun shortly after the passage of an act on June 5 last providing that claims of all those not of enemy origin would be considered if reciprocal action were taken by their own Governments.

The adjustment of such claims has been cause for informal inquiry at the State Department by different diplomatic representatives, notably the British Embassy. The British Government was the last to reply to the American note asking if such reciprocity would be granted.

Senator Says He Found Europe's Leaders Friendly to Principles of "Association" Idea.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—Before President-elect Harding left Palm Beach this morning Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois gave the President-elect an outline of his observations derived from his recent European tour, which included a visit to Geneva during the session of the League Assembly and trips to Berlin and Vienna.

The meeting between Senator Harding and McCormick was not prearranged. Mr. McCormick, who had not seen the President-elect since the day after election, was visiting his mother at Palm Beach, and his presence there was not known by Mr. Harding until late yesterday afternoon, when he returned to the houseboat Victoria after a round of golf. A conference between the two was arranged for that evening.

Senator McCormick said that he found European statesmen friendly to the principles of the Harding plan for a modified association of nations. It is understood that he assured Mr. Harding that he was not responsible for the impression that appeared to prevail in some European capitals that he was the personal representative of the President-elect.

When Mr. Harding arrive sat Miami it is thought that he may hold other conferences on the Victoria. Fred M. Upham, Treasurer of the National Committee, has been here several days and it is understood that he will see the President-elect before he leaves for St. Augustine.

The presence here of William J. Bryan and Edward Hurley, former head of the Shipping Board, leads to the belief that they also will meet Mr. Harding.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—The houseboat Victoria, on which President-elect Harding is cruising down the Florida coast, tied up tonight at Fort Lauderdale, about thirty miles above here, and is expected to complete her southward voyage to this port tomorrow.

Miami is the southernmost point on the houseboat's schedule, but after a short stop here Mr. Harding will transfer to a faster boat for a trip to a fishing ground to the southwest. He will remain there in virtual seclusion several days before beginning his return cruise to St. Augustine.

While sailing today through the tortuous passages of the lower Indian River the Victoria got into trouble several times with obstructions in the channel, and once had to wait more than an hour while a big dredge backed out of her way. With her arrival at Fort Lauderdale, however, her troubles were practically over, and she will probably dock here about noon tomorrow to put her guests ashore for golf.

MANY SEEK IN VAIN TO SAIL FOR AMERICA

Hundreds of Would-be Emigrants Rejected by Ships' Doctors at Hamburg and Danzig.

BREMEN, Jan. 10.—Hundreds of emigrants who come to Bremen, Hamburg and Danzig to seek new homes in America are rejected before they can embark for what to them is the land of plenty and promise. Tragic scenes are numerous when the ships' physicians announce the list of those barred because of signs of disease or disability which would prevent their admission to the United States.

One hundred home-seekers were rejected out of 600 who attempted to leave Bremen on one steamer recently. Not all of these unfortunates were defective, but the rejection of one member of a family in many cases prevented the entire group from sailing for America.

Typhus, trachoma and favus, an affection of the scalp, are the three diseases for which ships' physicians seek above all others in examining emigrants from Poland and other war areas destined for the United States.

Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Poland are pouring streams of prospective emigrants into these three ports, and the steamer lines are forced to exert every effort to prevent them from congregating in Hamburg and Bremen in larger numbers than can be accommodated. Model sanitary quarters are available in these two ports for emigrants, but the conditions are far less satisfactory in Danzig, where many complaints are made concerning the emigrant quarters.

The refugees who flock into Danzig are generally in a wretched state when they arrive from the devastated parts of Poland and the Baltic States. Their accommodations there are old and insanitary. Political cross-currents and divided authority keep shipping in Danzig in a constant state of uncertainty, with the result that emigrants cannot get proper attention.

Steerage passage from German ports to America this Winter has been exactly three times the rate charged before the war, or the equivalent of $110, while a second-class passage has cost $[illegible].

In spite of the increased expense of transatlantic travel, every steamer leaving for America has every berth taken, and reservations are booked for months in advance. It is expected here that this situation may be relieved by the gradually increasing number of ships entering the German-American service and possibly by immigration legislation now pending in the United States Congress.

SIR RALPH ASHTON SHOT.

Found Dead in His Bathroom With Rifle Beside Him.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Sir Ralph Percy Ashton was found dead today in the bathroom of his home, Beechwood, Reigate with a bullet wound in his head. A rifle was lying at his side.

Sir Ralph Percy Ashton for some time was connected with Indian affairs, having been a member of the Legislative Council of India, 1901-2; Trustee for the Port of Calcutta, for the Victoria Memorial of India, and for the Indian Museum. In 1911 he was President of the Mining and Geological Institute of India.

Sir Ralph was born in 1860 and was created a Knight in 1911. He was a retired Major.

TWO ROYAL WEDDINGS SOON.

Houses at Athens and Bucharest to Be United by Double Bonds.

ATHENS, Jan. 27.—Prince George of Greece and Princess Elisabeth of Rumania will be married at Bucharest between Feb. 10 and Feb. 15, according to present plans. King Constantine will be represented by Prince and Princess Nicholas of Greece, who will leave here on Feb. 1.

After the ceremony the royal party, accompanied by Princess Marie of Rumania, will return to Athens for the marriage of Prince Carol of Rumania and Princess Helene of Greece, which will take place late in February. King Ferdinand of Rumania will not attend this ceremony.

German Lines to Extend Trade.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Beginning March 5, the Kosmos Line of Hamburg and the Roland Line, Bremen, will inaugurate a monthly service to Chile and Peru by way of the Panama Canal. Regular service between the Baltic and South American ports from Copenhagen, Hamburg, and Rotterdam to the River Plate, it is announced, will be opened next month.

MIXED JURY DEBATE

Lawyer Complains Bitterly That He Could Not Present Divorce Evidence Before Women.

G. B. SHAW CRITICISES HIM

Asks Why He Did Not Offer Apologies to Men as Well as Women on the Jury.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The first divorce petition to be heard before a mixed jury in an English court has ended not only in the disagreement of that jury as to its verdict but in a chorus of varying opinions as to the wisdom and propriety of having women in the jury box at all for such cases.

Sir Edward Marshall Hall, one of the counsel, protested several times during the hearing of the case in question that he was at a great disadvantage since much of relevant evidence consisted of indecent letters and obscene pictures. The reading of some of these letters, he said, had made him ill, and he would not sully his lips by repeating them in court. He expressed the fervent hope he would never have to deal with such another case before a mixed jury.

Among the contributors to the discussion of the case is George Bernard Shaw, who, as a member of the male sex, protests indignantly in a letter to The Daily News against the decision of the court to spare jurywomen some of the unsavory details of the case. He writes:

"The conclusion arrived at seems to have been that as all men are familiar with abominable and beastly letters and obscene picture cards they should examine these documents and tell innocent women what they thought of them. Now, I am a married man, in my sixty-fifth year, and I solemnly protest that I am entirely guiltless of this alleged male habit of reading abominable and beastly letters and gloating over pornographic pictures.

"Sir Edward Marshall Hall's assumption that my sensibilities in this matter are less delicate than those of women is not only unfounded, but extremely offensive. It was part of his case that these exhibits had passed between a man and a woman. Then why in the name of common sense did this blushing barrister exclude the six jurymen from the apology which he thought necessary to make for presenting them to the six jury women?"

Lady Violet Markham, who is a magistrate, writing to the same paper, says:

"Up to the present, women have appeared in court as prisoners, as witnesses, and as spectators. There is not a redeeming feature about the curiosity which leads a certain type of women to frequent law courts and follow with greedy interest the prurient details of divorce or murder cases, yet such women have attended without apparent detriment to the delicate susceptibilities of counsel or the higher moral sense of male jurors. Why, then, should the presence of responsible women citizens in the jury box prove suddenly so afflicting to the masculine sense of propriety? The sin, and crime, and folly of the world concern both sexes alike. The most squalid and degraded cases which it is my lot as a Magistrate to hear are cases in which women play the leading part."

Mrs. Seaton Tiedman, Secretary of the Divorce Law Reform Union, in an interview, said nowhere were women more needed than in the courts, and she hoped that a strong stand would be made by women when the question of mixed juries was reconsidered by Parliament. Women jurors must stay and do their duty, however unpleasant, and examine every detail of evidence. She added, however, that in her opinion not only unmarried women but unmarried men should not serve on juries in divorce cases.

HAYES REMAINS IN NAPLES.

New York Archbishop Will Proceed to Rome Next Wednesday.

NAPLES, Jan. 27.—Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes of New York, who arrived here on Wednesday on the steamer Pesaro, is spending several days here sightseeing. He expects to leave for Rome next Wednesday, where he will present to the Pope a report on his diocese.

The Archbishop, who is a Knight Commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy, is the object of most cordial courtesies.

CUBAN FINANCE BILL SIGNED.

Menocal Approves Liquidation Scale—Port Congestion Lessened.

HAVANA, Jan. 28.—The Senate bill providing for a sliding scale of liquidation of banking and commercial obligations covered by the moratorium now in effect, was signed by President Menocal today. It was published in the Official Gazette this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—A favorable outlook for conditions in Havana Harbor, where the congestion has been serious, was reported today to the Department of Commerce by Consul General Hurst.

There are seventy American vessels at Havana, as compared with seventy-eight the previous week. During the last week forty-seven American vessels and ten foreign vessels cleared from the port, and the customs authorities state that 480,000 packages were dispatched, as compared with 455,000 the week previous.

According to a report from the special supervisor of port congestion, thirty private warehouses are bonded now, and several additional applications have been received. Owing to the complete clearance of the Government wharf, merchandise which has long been held on lighters in the harbor is being received there. Should the merchandise not be removed, it will be carried away from port to Government storage and held for about ten days (the length of time depending on the kind of goods), after which it will be auctioned off.

The situation at the Paula wharf, where the congestion has been the most serious, has greatly improved, and it is thought that by the end of the week, it will be entirely cleared.

Breshkovskaya Fully Recovered.

PARIS, Jan. 28 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Mme. Catherine Breshkovskaya, "Grandmother of the Russian Revolution," has fully recovered from the illness which has confined her to the Russian hospital at Boulogne more than a week. She came to Paris from Ruthenia to attend the conference of the remnant of the old Russian Duma, and it is said that she now purposes to return to Russia. Mme. Breshkovskaya is in her seventy-seventh year, forty-four of them having been spent in prison and exile.

Mishap to the President Grant.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—A special dispatch from Danzig reports that the American steamer President Grant, which was to have taken to the United States 1,400 Americans of the demobilized Polish Army, went adrift in a heavy gale and is now blocking up the harbor.

Nationalists Resolved to Make Her Pay for Wanton Ruin Wrought During War.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Feeling in French Nationalist circles is running high and strong. Lloyd George, already severely criticised for his attitude toward Foch on Monday, earned further condemnation by his attempts to make Finance Minister Doumer see that Germany couldn't possibly pay 12,000,000,000 gold marks annually for a whole generation.

M. Doumer's statement yesterday was exactly representative of the Nationalist viewpoint, which, after all, on any save economic grounds is reasonable enough. He said that France demanded 112,000,000,000 gold marks from Germany, and then went on to tell in passionate language the tale of France's sacrifices in the cause of humanity against unprovoked aggression.

"For pensions only," he declared, "France must pay a total of 54,000,000,000. That money is a sacred trust. It is due to maimed and sick soldiers and to widows and orphans of men who died that France might live. Then the work of restoring the devastated regions is already being hampered by lack of funds, but it must be carried out. France cannot pay these two huge items. If she tries to she will be ruined. But they must be paid. Therefore Germany shall pay them."

When one puts to a French Nationalist Lloyd George's question as to how Germany is going to pay, he generally replies:

"By compulsion if need be. We know that Germany is rich, even if she has deliberately emptied her national coffers to try to deceive us. We know that Germany's business is booming, that her industries are paying higher dividends than ever before. We know that Berlin is wallowing in an orgy of luxury and gambling, while the inhabitants of our invaded regions are living like foxes in holes. There are diamonds and rich furs on the backs of German women, while our women and children have neither coats nor shelter. You ask how. Now, then, did not Germany get those millions from the cities and towns, and even from villages, in the territory she ravaged? Do you imagine that when the life of France is at stake we are willing to be put off with statistics or interested British sophistries about the folly of ruining Germany's trade?"

The Nationalists are determined to accept no compromise. They already are declaring that Briand will have to explain before the Chamber just what has been accomplished for France. If he does not make good, they say, they will oust him.

ITALIANS ANXIOUS ON AUSTRIA'S FUTURE

Fear Is Expressed That She Will Be Swung Toward Germany or Hungary.

ROME, Jan. 28.—Miserable conditions in Austria are causing a good deal of anxiety here. The Tribuna says:

"What do the efforts we are making today to keep Austria alive signify—this Austria which is a monster, all mouth and stomach, without backbone, without limbs, without brain? How can such a monster possibly continue to live on the few mouthfuls which the Allies more or less generously give her?

"Austria as she is, without organism, without capacity to work, cannot exist, and must either be unmade or remade, unmade to incorporate her in other States or remade with elements taken from other States which can assure her an autonomous life, albeit poor, but at least autonomous. Today this apparent State, this likeness of a ruined gentleman crouching under the portico of a convent awaiting soup of the friars of the Entente, is simply a diplomatic shame and nothing else. One must decide either to remove him from circulation or give him the necessary limbs to make him an independent body.

"It is not possible to leave 5,000,000 men on the banks of the Danube to die of idleness and want. This disbanded mass will inevitably, necessarily have to gravitate either toward Germany or Hungary. Instead of excogitating financial projects which, after all, are nothing but charity projects, would it not be better to solve the essential problem, namely, the constitutional problem?"

SHOT AS DESERTERS, DEFENDED AS HEROES

Case of Six French Soldiers Offers a Moving Story in Paris Court.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—In the Paris Supreme Court this afternoon was told one of the most moving stories of the war. It was of six French soldiers condemned to death by court-martial and shot in December, 1914, on the charge of desertion in the face of the enemy. Only one favor was granted them, that of writing their families in the short hour that separated the judgment and their execution.

"I am condemned for a reason I don't know," wrote one. "I shall be buried at Vingre. After the war come and seek my body," wrote another to his wife.

All six, of whom one was a Corporal, protested their innocence in the moment of death, but those were days of hurry and iron discipline. The men should have been at one place when they were at another. They were charged with having voluntarily left the line and fled, and the sentence was carried out.

Possibly nothing more would have been heard of the matter and the families of the dead men would have lived in the shadow of shame had not a Lieutenant of the same regiment written to the Corporal's brother protesting against the execution, which he considered "a crime." His explanation was that the Corporal and his men, instead of deserting, had held on after being ordered to retire and so eventually missed their company.

That was the story told today in court, where one of the widows is bringing action to get the innocence of her husband and comrades declared and at the same time recover damages from the State.

TAMMANY'S YOUNGEST.

Edward J. Ahearn Chosen to Succeed His Father as Leader.

Edward J. Ahearn of 290 East Broadway, elected executive member of the Democratic organization in the Fourth Assembly District, at a meeting of the County Committee held last night, is the youngest leader in the history of Tammany Hall.

Ahearn, who is 30 years old, was unanimously chosen by the association to succeed his late father, John F. Ahearn, who died a few weeks ago. He is a clerk in the Second District Municipal Court.

WARNING TO NATIONS

Conference in Paris Won't Recognize Treaties Made or Concessions Granted by Soviet.

GOLD RESERVE WAS LOOTED

Removal of All Artificial Barriers in Way of Resuming Trade With Russia Is Urged.

A manifesto asserting that "the peoples of Free Russia" cannot be bound by agreements concluded by the Bolsheviki and repudiating concessions granted to foreigners, which was adopted at a conference now being held in Paris of all Russian democratic elements opposed to Bolshevism, was made public here last night by A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau.

Attending the conference are former Premier Kerensky; Miliukov, former Minister of Foreign Affairs; Boris A. Bakhmeteff, former Russian Ambassador at Washington; N. D. Avksentiev, a leader of the party of Socialists-Revolutionists and Minister of the Interior in the Russian Provincial Government, who is presiding, and members of the All-Russian Constituent Assembly which convened in Petrograd for one day in 1918 before it was dispersed by the Bolsheviki.

The declaration issued by the conference stated that "Russia can never recognize any despotism as a legal authority, particularly the Bolshevist brute force of bayonets and ruthless tyranny, which repudiates the most elementary principles of popular rule and civil liberties, and leans only upon the terror."

It adds that "the peoples of free Russia cannot hold themselves bound to respect any agreements and contracts whatsoever which may be concluded by the Bolsheviki supposedly in the name of the Russian States, and declared that the conference repudiates the binding force of the concessions that are being given away to foreigners by the Soviet power."

The conference "considers the illegal squandering of the Russian gold reserve by the Bolshevist power as a looting of the State." While opposing any endeavor to recognize the Bolshevist Government, the conference considers it necessary to remove all artificial barriers in the way of resuming the economic contact of Russia with the rest of the world and to terminate the blockade in all its forms.

WATCH BRITAIN'S DEAL WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

Italy, Holland and Sweden Said to Be Ready to Trade if Parley Succeeds.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—It is learned that if negotiations for the resumption of commercial relations between England and Soviet Russia succeed Italy will proceed to negotiate a similar agreement with Moscow. Pourparlers to this end have already taken place.

Krassin is now at Moscow with the latest draft of the British agreement. London entirely agreed to this text and Krassin is expected back in England within five weeks with the Soviet reply.

It is reported that Holland and Sweden will follow suit if England and Russia agree on a plan.

The fact that the tentative agreement between England and Russia provides for recognition by Russia of responsibility for the debts of the former Russian régime to England to the extent that Moscow agrees to negotiate on the basis of a "reasonable" settlement is causing some uneasiness in Paris, since the French Republic is the biggest creditor of the Czar's régime, having claims of some 27,000,000,000 francs gold against Russia.

A rumor which lacks official confirmation says that the Soviets will propose to France similar recognition of the French debt if France will agree to the same de facto recognition England would be giving them by signing the commercial agreement.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 29.—The draft of the Anglo-Russian trade agreement which Leonid Krassin submitted to the Soviet Executive at Moscow is encountering strong opposition on the part of M. Tchitcherin, M. Litvinoff and their associates, The London Times says it learns.

The extremists, The Times adds, insist that full recognition of the Soviet Government first must be forthcoming, but that Krassin does not lack support. He always has been friendly with Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevist Premier, and if he is beaten it will be proof that Lenin's power is waning.

RUSSIAN PRINCE DIES IN POVERTY ABROAD

Loubanof Had Tried to Support Himself and Daughter by Peddling in Geneva.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 28.—Prince Loubanof, who was a Senator in the Russian Duma and who escaped from Russia to Switzerland when the Bolshevist terror began, has just died suddenly in Geneva. The cause of his death is vaguely stated as apoplexy. Prince Loubanof's large fortune was entirely lost in Russia and he had been for some time trying to support himself by peddling from house to house and, like so many former aristocrats from Russia who have taken refuge here, was in increasingly miserable circumstances.

Last July found him and his daughter living in a small country inn near Geneva, where they could afford to pay only 15 francs daily for both. A year ago Loubanof's sister's jewels were sold in Switzerland for several million francs, but none of this money came to him. He was always liberal minded and never supported the Czarist system of government.

Only little more than a fortnight ago M. de Mereschovsky, formerly a professor in Petrograd University and a distinguished scientist, committed suicide in Geneva because, he said, he was too proud to ask help and too old to earn anything.

TROOPS TO CURB STRIKERS.

Argentine Cavalry Going to Scene of Ranch Depredations.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 28.—The Government, it was announced today, will send a regiment of cavalry to the territory of Santa Cruz, in Southern Argentina, where the depredations of striking ranch workers, who virtually control the territory, are reported to be continuing unchecked.

Agricultural work and business in the territory have been paralyzed, according to dispatches received here.

Burial Beneath the Arc de Triomphe Is Completed With Simple Ceremony.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—At sunrise this morning the body of France's unknown soldier was finally laid to rest below the great vault of the Arc de Triomphe. The ceremony was one of the utmost simplicity. As six soldiers bore the coffin from the chamber within the arc in which it has lain since Nov. 11, a single bugle blew the call "Aux champs."

There was only one speech, that of M. Barthou, Minister of War. On the coffin he laid a blue velvet cushion on which were pinned the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the War Cross and the Military Medal.

"In the name of the Government of the Republic," he said, "piously and with gratitude, I salute the glorious remains of the unknown soldier. These decorations are more than a symbol, they are homage to all those who gave their lives for the country. The hero who rests here and all those dead whom he represents bid us who remain to make of our France a country united, heroic, confidant and strong."

Beside the grave stood with M. Barthou, Mr. Lloyd George and the American Ambassador, Hugh C. Wallace, Count Sforza and all the members of the Supreme Allied Council now in Paris. The body was lowered into the cement grave which had been prepared near one of the great pillars of the arc and a great granite stone was swung slowly over it. On the stone is engraved the epitaph:

"Here Rests a French Soldier Who Died for His Country."

On two plaques on the side of the great stone, which measures over nine feet long, are the significant dates: "Sept. 4, 1870, Proclamation of the Republic," "Nov. 11, 1918, Restoration of Alsace and Lorraine to France."

Mr. Lloyd George was among those who laid wreaths on the tomb. On a card he had written "Personal homage to the unknown French soldier."

When the cordon of soldiers around the arch was withdrawn at the end of the little ceremony, the crowd poured in and every one threw flowers on the tomb. Poor women sobbing bitterly laid bunches of violets, and rich women, united with them in the memory of war's griefs, kissing their flowers, laid them beside them. Soon the whole great space below the arch seemed filled with blossoms. Into the tomb, still open at one end, men who had fought beside the unknown threw the decorations they had won for their gallantry. It was an absolutely silent crowd, in which most of the people wept.

Then Minister Barthou, who himself lost his only son in the war, stood forward once more, and bareheaded, cried in a loud voice: "Vive la France!" The cry was taken up and sobbed out by thousands of voices. It gave relief at the moment of the most poignant emotion, and slowly the crowd began to melt away in the silver morning light.

REGRET FRENCH WIRE DELAY

Paris Paper Joins in American Correspondents' Complaint.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The effort of the Paris correspondents of American newspapers to obtain better transmission of news dispatches from Paris to New York is having an echo in the French press. For instance, the Matin will publish an editorial tomorrow morning saying that instead of complaining about the lack of presentation abroad of the French case in international affairs, Government officials would do well to improve the service over the telegraph lines between Paris and the cable heads.

"Events of world importance take place in Paris," says the Matin. "But the dispatches of our American confrères are submitted to nauseating delays. That puts the American journalist in a bad humor and our telegraph service makes them feel like turning their backs on us. From Berlin press dispatches for America get away in a hurry. Here they do not.

"The wireless station at Bordeaux was made available for American news dispatches. Very good. But unfortunately it is necessary for those dispatches to get to Bordeaux. To traverse the Atlantic takes but a moment. To get from Paris to Bordeaux is an interminable undertaking.

"If we want good propaganda, it is absolutely essential that press dispatches be transmitted more quickly and that they be handled by a better personnel, who shall not boast of their ignorance."

DUTCH FORBID KAISER TO GO TO WIFE'S BURIAL

Barred From Returning to Holland if He Leaves in the Event of Her Expected Death.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—I have just received information from a Dutchman, who is here as an observer for The Hague at the Supreme Council's Conference, to the effect that former Kaiser William will not be permitted to attend the funeral of the former Kaiserin, whose death is considered to be imminent owing to the condition of her heart.

From this same source I was informed that arrangements are already being prepared for her demise, and I also obtained the details of the plans for her funeral.

German undertakers will go to Doorn from Berlin to embalm the body, which will then be placed in a steel coffin already manufactured and embossed with the Imperial coat of arms. The Dutch and German Governments have agreed to permit the passage of a special train from Doorn to Charlottenburg, where the former Kaiserin will be interred in the Royal Cemetery.

A specially built closed automobile, which is now in Doorn, will carry the coffin to the railway station, which is three miles from the former Kaiser's castle. He will be permitted to enter the train carrying the coffin and will ride to the first stop, where an automobile will be waiting to carry him back to Doorn.

Members of the royal family and suite will proceed to Charlottenburg, where the former Kaiserin's family and one of her sons have arranged the plans for the interment.

The former Kaiser is reported to be heartbroken because he cannot accompany the body. He has been warned by the Dutch Government that if he leaves Holland he will not be allowed to return.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 28.—Ex-Emperor Wilhelm, who yesterday celebrated his sixty-third birthday, received 336 letters and telegrams from Germany and his presents included sixty-four baskets of flowers from, among others, the ex-Kings of Wurttemberg, Bavaria and Saxony.

There was a big dinner party in the evening, the ex-Kaiser wearing a general's uniform.

IN JAPANESE NOTE

Reply on Langdon Deals With Killing of Lieutenant as a Detached Incident.

REPARATION IS PROMISED

Tokio Denies Closer Watch on Americans, Saying Vigilance Is Against Reds.

TOKIO, Jan. 27 (Associated Press).—The Japanese answer to the note of the United States Government concerning the recent killing of Lieutenant Warren H. Langdon in Vladivostok has been forwarded to Washington.

According to information available here, the reply does not discuss the question of Japanese occupation of Siberia. It reiterates the regret of the Government over the shooting of Lieutenant Langdon, which has already been voiced by its official representatives in Vladivostok and Washington, and calls attention to the measures adopted to prevent the recurrence of such an unfortunate incident.

The communication emphasizes the completeness and impartiality of the investigation of the shooting now in progress, which it says will be followed by such reparation as the circumstances call for.

Although the shooting of Lieutenant Langdon was an outgrowth of the presence of Japanese troops in Vladivostok, the Japanese apparently think that it should be treated as a separate and distinct question, not connected with Japan's policy with regard to Russia.

The authorities today denied the statement published yesterday by the Asahi Shimbun that the police had decided to exercise greater surveillance over American visitors to Japan, who, the newspaper asserted, were "busily engaged in investigating industrial and military conditions." American visitors, the authorities declared, were welcome in Japan and would not be molested. They explained that such surveillance over foreigners as exists is due to the desire of the police to keep out Bolsheviki.

Believed to Be a New Note.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (Associated Press).—The reply of Japan to the American Government's Langdon note, announced in a Tokio dispatch of yesterday's date as having been forwarded to Washington, is regarded by officials here as a new communication and not the brief reply received by the State Department through the Japanese Embassy on Wednesday.

The note mentioned in the Tokio dispatch, if it be a new communication, had not been received tonight when the State Department offices closed. The one received on Wednesday was very brief and State Department officials at that time said it amounted to little more than an acknowledgement of the receipt of the American communication.

The United States in its note concerning the killing at Vladivostok of Lieutenant Langdon by a Japanese sentry did not bring up the question of Japanese occupation of Siberia, it was learned today. The views of the American Government on that question, however, have been put forward in previous communications.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The fact that Japanese troops in Vladivostok, as asserted by Japanese War Minister Tanaka, were intrusted by the consular body with the policing of that city was confirmed at the State Department today. Although the request was made to the Japanese commander at Vladivostok several months ago, after the withdrawal from Siberia of the American and other foreign troops except the Japanese, the fact only became known to the State Department very recently, just before the shooting of Lieutenant Langdon.

The State Department has never received the text of the appeal made to the Japanese military commander by the consular body, but the action was taken, it was stated, at a time when there was an upheaval at Vladivostok and a local government had not been established. The consular authorities, it is learned, did not have the power to commit their respective Governments so far as to request permanent protection.

All the best information so far obtainable through official reports indicates that the Japanese sentry who shot Lieutenant Langdon was excited and afraid when he fired at the American officer. From the beginning of the incident it has been believed here that all the expressions of regret made by the Japanese authorities, and their efforts to learn the true facts, have been in perfect good faith. The feeling at the State Department seems to be that Japan will meet the views of this Government concerning amends and measures to prevent a repetition of the affair.

COLBY TO HEAR GOV. STEPHENS

Californians' Views on Japanese to Be Fully Presented.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Before final action is taken by President Wilson or Secretary Colby on the recommendations of Ambassador Morris for a solution of the Japanese immigration and alien land ownership issues, Secretary Colby will confer fully with Senators Phelan and Johnson, other members of the California Congressional delegation, and other interested persons. It is not the intention of the State Department to hold public hearings, but opportunity will be afforded to Governor Stephens and others to present their views before the Administration takes action on the report.

The Morris-Shidehara negotiations have always been referred to at the State Department as "informal," and it has been declared that the report could only become formal when it is "accepted" by the Secretary of State as a basis for formal negotiations with Japan. These formal negotiations might result in the acceptance by both Governments of the report's recommendations, or acceptance in part with further negotiations for an agreement on fresh proposals, or for such omissions as either Government might suggest. The best indications are that the report will be accepted in its entirety by both Governments.

109,274 JAPANESE IN HAWAII.

33 Per Cent. Increase in Ten Years—21,031 Filipinos There.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Japanese population of Hawaii in 1920 was 109,274 out of the total population of 255,912, and represented an increase for that race of about 33 per cent. since 1910, the Census Bureau announced today.

The only race which showed a greater rate of increase in Hawaii than the Japanese was the Filipino, with an increase from 2,361 in 1910 to 21,031 in 1920. The native Hawaiian peoples decreased in the last decade from 26,041 to 23,723.

ANTI-ALIEN BILL IN TEXAS.

Measure Like California Law Proposed in State Senate.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 28.—A bill designed to prevent aliens from owning land in Texas was introduced in the State Senate today and referred to the Committee on State Affairs.

The measure, which follows closely the California Anti-Alien Land Law, was prepared by the American Legion Post at El Paso. It provides that the law would apply only to aliens who are ineligible to become citizens of the United States.

REDS PROTEST ON SIBERIA.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 28.—Commenting on alleged difficulties which A. T. Krasnotchekoff, head of the Far Eastern Republic of Siberia, is having with the Japanese, a wireless message from Moscow today says:

"The Japanese must keep their promises and must remove all their troops from Siberia. They are not wanted. We are able to settle our own internal affairs."

Withdrawal of Peace Advocate Taken to Mean the End of Conciliation Movement.

DE VALERA'S TRIP DENIED

Dublin Leaders Insist He Is Still There—In Questionnaire He Says Determination to Win Is Greater.

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—The announced resignation of Roger N. Sweetman from the Irish Republican Parliament, owing to what he termed a radical disagreement with the majority of his fellow-members on vital matters of policy, is creating a big stir in Dublin.

A prominent Sinn Fein leader today told The Associated Press that the resignation meant the final quashing of the peace movement in which Mr. Sweetman and Father Michael O'Flanagan, acting President of the Sinn Fein, participated conspicuously. It was Mr. Sweetman who proposed early in December a conference between the English Labor Commission visiting Ireland and the Irish Labor Party for the purpose of effecting a truce in Ireland.

Another reason for the resignation of Mr. Sweetman was given in a statement from another source today. This was to the effect that there was a meeting recently of the Dail Eireann—the first since Eamon de Valera's return to Ireland—at which a vote was taken on the question of peace or a continuance of the struggle. It was stated that Mr. Sweetman was the only one present who demanded peace, the others voting to keep up the fight.

Mr. Sweetman formerly was a member of the Nationalist Party. He resigned from it and joined the Sinn Fein and was elected to the Dail Eireann from North Wexford. Previously he had been a Government official in the Department of Charitable Bequests. His family long has been prominent in Irish politics. One of his uncles was a member of the Irish Parliamentary Party, from which he resigned after a disagreement with the leaders.

It is an open secret in Dublin that the Sinn Fein leaders greatly resented the Sweetman-O'Flanagan peace pronouncements.

Insist de Valera Was Not in France.

It was declared here today, on what was represented as the highest authority, that Eamon de Valera, the Irish Republican leader, was in Dublin, and that reports of his visit to France were "erroneous," probably designed to conceal his real whereabouts.

The de Valera interview in the Paris Oeuvre, it developed today, resulted from a questionnaire submitted by that newspaper to him. This questionnaire was answered at the same time that an answer was given to a questionnaire submitted to de Valera by American correspondents here, but the Oeuvre printed the interview first through some mistake.

The interview as given out here appeared today. It is covered in part by the article in the Oeuvre, but the answers to the questions were much more explicit and in some instances struck new ground. Regarding the new Home Rule act, de Valera in his answer to the American questions says:

"Like the majority of the Irish people, I have not considered it or even thought about it."

He vigorously denies there now is, or ever has been, a split in the Sinn Fein. He reiterates the determination of the Sinn Fein not to make peace unless Great Britain acknowledges as a preliminary Ireland's right as a free and independent nation.

As to de Valera being at Toura, France, which the Oeuvre gave as the place of interview, it has been intimated here by The Freeman's Journal that this was probably a device to permit the publication without disclosing the real whereabouts of de Valera.

To a question concerning suggestions of federation in Ireland as a solution of the Ulster difficulty, he says:

"The Ulster difficulty is an accident arising out of the British connection, and it will disappear with it."

Reported Returning From France.

PARIS, Jan. 28 (Associated Press).—Eamon de Valera, who has been making a brief visit to France, will be back in Ireland within twenty-four hours, it was declared here today by Sean O'Ceallaigh, who is representative in France of the Irish Republican movement. He said de Valera was expected to arrive in Dublin today, or at the latest, by tomorrow forenoon.

No effort had been made by the Irish Republican leader while he was in France to see Premier Lloyd George, now in Paris attending the Supreme Council sessions, declared O'Ceallaigh, nor had any attempt been made to bring the Irish question before the Supreme Council. He thought this question would not come up before the Council.

O'Ceallaigh would not discuss the momentary whereabouts of de Valera or his mission in France, but said the Irish leader had been in Paris and in several other cities during his visit to this country.

It was stated by O'Ceallaigh that letters addressed to de Valera were reaching him through the roundabout route formerly used, and that they were being anafered through the same channels.

AMERICAN WOMAN KIDNAPPED IN IRELAND

Ellen Reidy Taken From Motor by Armed and Masked Men on Her Way to Court.

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—An American woman, whose name is given as Ellen Reidy, has been kidnapped by armed and masked men who held up her motor car at Ballinglanna, in the Fermoy District of County Cork. It is said she says claim to a farm in the district and was proceeding to Quarter Sessions for the hearing of a case connected therewith. She had only recently arrived in Ireland.

John Milroy, M. P., one of two men who escaped from Lincoln Prison with de Valera in February, 1919, is reported to have been arrested tonight. He was traveling from Manchester to Dublin.

COMMISSIONER WOUNDED.

One Constable Killed, Five Shot, in Ambush of Machine Guns.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—An official report which has reached Dublin Castle states that Divisional Commissioner Holmes, with an escort of police, while traveling in two touring cars, was ambushed about five miles from Castle Ihland, in the Tralee district of County Kerry, at 12:30 o'clock. Constable Miles was killed outright and the remainder of the party were wounded. The Divisional Commissioner was seriously wounded.

The ambushers, who numbered about sixty, used two machine guns. They disarmed the police and took away their guns.

DUBLIN, Jan. 28 (Associated Press).—The official summary of events in Ireland for the week ended Jan. 24 says that there were 42 attacks on police and military, 7 fatal assaults on police, of which 5 were cold-blooded assassinations, and 43 raids on the mails.

There were 72 court-martials, at which 60 convictions were secured, and 18 sentences of penal servitude from three to ten years were imposed and one life sentence for the attempted murder of a constable. There were 36 additional in-aged, 104; military killed, 54, and wounded, 127; police killed, 139, and wounded, 311.

DESCRIBES OFFICERS' MURDER.

Witness Identifies Two of the Men Now Before Court-Martial.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—Mr. C., as the recently missing witness is known, explained the reasons for his absence when the court-martial was resumed today. He was on his way to the station, he said, when a friend said "I should not go, if I were you; you will probably get done in on the way." Further, he had on the morning of Nov. 21, said the for neurasthenia. He admitted he was now under armed guard and that he was arrested by the Assistant Provost Marshal at Portsmouth on Wednesday night.

Prior to this explanation Mr. C. had given a dramatic account of the shooting of Lieutenant Anglias or McMahon, in respect to whose death Francis Teeling, William Conway and Edward Potter are being tried. He was awakened on the morning of Nov. 21st said the witness, by a shout of "Hands up!" and found five men, including Teeling and Potter, standing in a semi-circle round the bed in which McMahon and he were sleeping.

While they were covered with revolvers the leader of the party searched the room. He then asked "Where are your guns, Mac?" and McMahon indicated a portmanteau. Firing was heard outside and a voice inquired, "Are you fellows all right. They are surrounding the house."

"With that," went on Mr. C., "they made to go out of the room. They did not get very far and the tall fellow in command pointed a revolver in our direction and fired. I saw McMahon raise his arm and I turned on my side and rolled out of bed face downward. I heard more shots fired while I lay on the floor very still. When the men had rushed out of the room I crawled round to McMahon and found he was dead."

Mr. C. said when McMahon was shot he was in bed unarmed and with his hands up.

PROTEST TO DANIELS ON SIMS'S SPEECH

Irish Sympathizers Resent Charge That Sinn Fein Fought Against America.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. — Protests against sentiments voiced by Rear Admiral William S. Sims, President of the Naval War College, in a speech at Boston on Wednesday night, in which he is alleged to have charged that the Sinn Fein fought America as vigorously as did the Germans during the World War, were received by Secretary of the Navy Daniels today.

One was a telegram from Thomas A. Niland of Boston asking why "Admiral Sims should not be court-martialed" for participating "as a British propagandists" in the Boston meeting. Another came from Matthew Cummings, President of the Greater Boston Council of the Friends of Irish Freedom, and asked that Secretary Daniels call upon Admiral Sims to submit to the Secretary of the Navy or to a naval board concrete facts to substantiate his statements.

Secretary Daniels tonight refused to comment on the remarks imputed to Admiral Sims, but said that he would first ask for a transcript of the speech, and after receiving it, give the matter his careful consideration. Mr. Daniels was credited in afternoon newspapers with having expressed displeasure over the remarks imputed to Admiral Sims. Mr. Daniels denied that he had done so, but with respect to the general subject of naval officers talking he said:

"As for naval officers, who want to get into the limelight, there are two courses. One course is to muzzle them and thus enable them to put themselves more in the limelight by shouting that they are muzzled. The other is to give them rope enough to hang themselves. Of the two evils I don't know which is the worse. There is no rule in the navy now which muzzles officers."

DENIAL BY MINE OWNER.

Asserts 1920 Coal Profiteering Could Not Exceed $600,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Statements by Senator Calder, Republican, of New York, that the public was "mulcted out of $1,500,000,000" during the 1920 coal shortage were characterized as "outrageous and below the dignity of any Senator" today by Thomas H. Watkins, President of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Corporation.

Testifying before the Senate committee considering the Calder bill to regulate the coal industries, Mr. Watkins said he had gathered statistical reports on high priced coal sold during 1920 and that "$600,000,000 is the utmost figure that could be placed on the coal which might have been open to profiteering."

The Calder bill, Mr. Watkins asserted, "grew out of a hysterical frame of mind, the feeling that somebody must be punished, and the desire to make political capital."

Opponents of the bill took all the time today, but Chairman La Follette of the Manufactures Committee, holding the hearings, announced the sessions would be closed. Committee members supporting the measure expect to secure next week a majority report favorable to the bill, with some modifications of its taxation clauses, and will endeavor to get a vote upon it in the Senate at this session.

HEAR OF ROAD TO CROSS ASIA

Japanese Said to Plan Railway From Pacific to Bagdad.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MANILA, Jan. 28.—Maps have been circulated among Japanese merchants here which reveal an ambitious plan on the part of the Japanese Government to build a railway across Asia to connect with the former German railway in Asia Minor at Bagdad. According to the plans, the proposed railway would touch at Kirin and Mukden, cross Mongolia, pass through Turkestan and across Persia, via Teheran, to Bagdad. It would run north of Peking and the great wall.

The Japanese informant here says it is estimated that ten years will be required to complete the project. The whole plan is believed to have been conceived for the purpose of strengthening the Japanese position in Siberia and inner Mongolia, and for dominating China politically, inasmuch as the line would also be connected with Shantung.

It is pointed out that it has been Japanese policy to grant concessions along Government controlled railways.

MRS. HARKNESS SUED.

Jewelers Claim Balance of $44,307 on Purchases by Husband.

Dreicer & Co. applied for an order in the Surrogates' Court yesterday directing Mrs. Florence S. Harkness, as executrix under the will of Harry S. Harkness, to show cause why she should not pay a balance of $44,307 for jewelry purchased for her by her husband within the two years before his death. Among the articles purchased were a diamond ring, $12,500; pearl necklace of 95 stones, $75,000; sapphire ring, $16,500, and diamond corsage ornament, $3,800. Interest of $10,000 is claimed.

It is said that payment has been delayed because of the lack of ready cash in the Harkness estate and the unwillingness of the executrix to sacrifice securities to meet the bill. The appraisal of the estate showed that Mr. Harkness owed several hundred thousand dollars to a number of jewelry firms for gems bought for his wife. The estate has been valued at $6,526,613.

PLANT AT DETROIT

Factory to Resume Work With 25 Per Cent. of Former Employes on Monday.

RESUMPTION AT PEEKSKILL

Stove Works and Oilcloth Mills to Resume Operations—Ohio Steel Mills Spurt.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 28.—Resumption in part of operations will begin Monday at the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor Company. Estimates of the percentage of the normal complement of 50,000 who received notice to report vary from 10 to 25 per cent.

Many employes have received notice to report for work Monday morning, and it is expected that at that time the plant will be operated at 25 per cent. of its capacity. Married men were the first to receive the summons to return.

Although the company has made no official announcement, it is the general impression that the rates of pay will be the same as those that prevailed at the time the plant shut down on Dec. 23. The minimum wage then was $6 a day.

To forestall a rush of thousands of unemployed to the plant, officials declared that the first jobs would go to the picked men of the organization, and that they would be notified as they were wanted.

It is the general impression among the workers that the company will now weed out the least efficient and all who are classified as "slackers." It is believed that when the plant is again going at full capacity there will be fewer men on the payrolls than there have been.

From authoritative sources it was learned that the company plans to begin the production of from 1,500 to 2,000 cars a day. The average before the plant closed was around 4,000.

Hundreds of employes of the tractor plant at Dearborn have received notice to report for work Monday.

The Ford plant was closed on Dec. 23.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The stove works of the Southard-Robertson Company, employing 400 molders and machinists, reopened yesterday, and the Standard Textile Company, employing several thousand oilcloth and imitation leather workers, also opened this week. Both factories had been idle for over two months.

The employes of the stove works returned at a voluntary reduction of wages. Like the oilcloth factory, the stove works are now running on full time. Another stove works in this city is about to resume full-time operation and workers are returning to a yeast plant employing 500 when running on full time.

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 28.—Increased production is contemplated by the Lexington Motor Company within the next month, officers of the United States Automobile Corporation announced here today. The Lexington Company, which is the corporation's principal subsidiary, is now producing 50 per cent. of its capacity, and employing 70 per cent. of its working force.

WARREN, Ohio, Jan. 28.—The Trumbull Steel Company, which has been operating on about a 50 per cent. basis for several months, resumed full force operations at all of its thirty-four mills last night and today. About 2,500 idle men returned to work.

REFUSED $12,000,000 OFFER.

New England Lines Said It Was Not Enough, Wabash Head Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—New England railroads refused a "gift" of $12,000,000 from trunk line executives to protect the former's credit, the Interstate Commerce Commission was told today by W. H. Williams, Chairman of the Wabash Railroad, testifying at hearings on a redivision of joint freight rates by carriers east and west of the Hudson River.

Mr. Williams said the New England carriers turned down the offer on the ground that it would not meet their needs. Mr. Williams said that he, with Presidents Rea of the Pennsylvania and Maher of the Norfolk & Western, representing the lines west of the Hudson River, had conferred with Presidents Pearson of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and Hustis of the Boston & Maine, with an idea of effecting an immediate settlement of the differences. The conference, he testified, was held with a view of giving the lines for one year $12,000,000 in the hope they could arrange in other ways thereafter to finance the yearly deficit shown on the books. The stipulation was made by the trunk lines, he said, that the gift would have to be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Another stipulation, he said, was that the gift would not impair the rights of the trunk lines to fight the application of the New England carriers for a redivision of rates.

The meeting of trunk line executives in New York to discuss the New England situation has been set for Tuesday afternoon, it was stated today. Various proposals to pool the interests of the trunk lines and other ways of settling the case pending before the Federal Commission will be discussed.

RETRIAL SET FOR ARNSTEIN.

Federal Attorney at Washington Has It Fixed for March 15.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Rumors that the Government had abandoned its plan to retry Jules ("Nicky") Arnstein and alleged confederates in the $5,000,000 bond robbery case were set at rest today when John E. Laskey, United States Attorney, asked Justice Gould to set the case for retrial on March 14. The request was granted.

"Nick" Cohn and Norman S. Bowles, who were to appear today to fight extradition to New York on charges resulting from the original bond robbery, will not appear in any such proceeding until April 15. It is understood that the New York authorities will await the outcome of the second trial before taking further action.

QUITS WILSON TO BE EDITOR.

President's Confidential Stenographer to Manage Shorthand Magazine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Charles L. Swem, Confidential Secretary to President Wilson, and one of the most rapid stenographers in the world, will become managing editor of The Gregg Writer, a Chicago shorthand paper, when he leaves the White House on March 4.

Mr. Swem has been with President Wilson throughout two terms of office, with the exception of three months, when he was in the aviation service.

Police Lieut. McNeill Made Captain.

Police Commissioner Enright yesterday promoted Lieutenant Archibald H. McNeill of the Flushing Station to the rank of Captain and Sergeants William F. Ryan of the Queensborough Bridge station, William Dobbyn of the West Twentieth Street station, Richard J. Pierce of the East 104th Street station, William H. McCauley of the Sixth Avenue station, Brooklyn, and Patrick White of the Clinton Street station to the rank of Lieutenant. Fourteen patrolmen were made Sergeants, thus leaving fourteen more vacancies among the patrolmen.

Arthur Train, Her Counsel, Quoted as Saying That Courts Should Intervene.

Arthur Train, who is conducting the fight to uphold the will of Miss Maria Louisa Ewen against the attack by her nephew, John Ewen, and who assisted in having Miss Ewen's marriage to the bogus "Baron von Koenits" annulled, was called suddenly before Surrogate Foley and the jury yesterday as a witness for the contestant.

Mr. Train was asked to identify letters he wrote three months after Miss Ewen's marriage had been annulled and after she had left New York with the Rev. Aubrey Percy Nelson on an "ecclesiastical mission" to the Holy Land. The Rev. Mr. Nelson, who is a legatee for $20,000 in the will, is now curate at St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church, 141st Street and Convent Avenue. One of the letters written in 1911 to Mr. Ewen was in substance as follows:

"It is an undeniable fact that Maria Louisa Ewen since her unfortunate marriage is acting more and more peculiar. She has suddenly gone abroad with a young churchman named Nelson who has given up his church connections, and I don't believe that his motives are altogether altruistic. A clergyman, however, is somewhat better than an ex-convict. I am calling this to your attention as I believe that a male member of the family should ask the courts to intervene and take charge of her property."

Mr. Train explained that he believed he wrote the letter at the time in the face of the fact that Miss Ewen had just escaped from her unfortunate marriage with the imposter and then had gone off suddenly with a young clergyman.

Testimony given before trial by the Rev. Mr. Nelson was also read into the record. He said that John Ewen had assured him that if he gave his testimony he would get the $20,000 whether the will was broken or not. He declared that Miss Ewen made the will as she did to please her sister, Eliza.

John Ewen admitted on the witness stand that he had assured the clergyman he would get his full legacy in any event. He thought the bequest was not too large, in view of the fact that he gave ten years of service to the aged woman. He said he couldn't get the clergyman to answer any of his questions until he made the promise and had offered to put it in writing.

The foreman of the jury asked Mr. Ewen if he thought the Rev. Mr. Nelson was "bad," and he replied:

"I thought he was pretty bad."

Mr. Train asked on cross-examination why Mr. Ewen had entered into an agreement with a man he jointly charged with his aunt Eliza with exerting "undue influence" on the decedent, and he charged against him was shutting Mr. replied that the only undue influence Ewen and his two sisters out of the will. The case was not finished.

KENYON OFFERS CREDIT BILL

Proposes New Rural System—Urges Hastening Public Works.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Two measures were introduced in the Senate today by Senator Kenyon of Iowa, one a resolution requesting the President to expedite public works, for which appropriations have been made, in order to give employment, and the other, a bill to establish a rural credit system, to standardise productive farm credit paper in the open market.

"The Rural Credit System bill," said Senator Kenyon, "creates two corporations by special charters, namely, a rural credit society and general insurance league. The credit society will consist of one central bank with $25,000,000 capital, to be furnished by the Government without interest, which will be retired by a sinking fund created by the bill. The credit society will also consist of forty-eight branches, one for each State, with $50,000 capital each, to be furnished by the insurance company accepting the Federal charter created by the bill. This stock will become a guaranty against the loss of the Government's capital.

"Any number of community associations or communes may be organized by farmers with not less than seven members each. This commune stock will be owned by farmer members and divided into shares of $5 each.

"Three commissioners are to be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture to negotiate with one of the large life insurance companies, for the purpose of inducing it to accept such Federal charter in lieu of its State charter, make an investment in the credit society aggregating $7,200,000 and choose the credit society's auditor and deputy auditor. The fact that the capital of such an insurance company becomes a guarantor of every piece of that rural credit paper and the insurance company is placed in a position to acquire accurate information as to the conduct of the credit society's business is bound to inspire the confidence of investors in such paper."

BELLEVUE PHYSICIAN ATTACKED WITH KNIFE

Assailant, a Paranoic ex-Patient, Is Disarmed and Held for Observation.

Dr. Stephen P. Jewett of 1,200 Madison Avenue, one of the attending psychiatrists at Bellevue Hospital, was attacked yesterday by a man with a knife. He was rescued by two fellow-physicians.

Dr. Jewett was in an office of the psychopathic building when a tall, strongly-built man entered and said:

"I've got you now. You tried to take my liberty away and now I'm going to kill you."

Drawing a long knife the man then attacked Dr. Jewett, who dodged behind a table, not, however, before the handle of the knife struck him under the left eye. The noise of the scuffle brought Dr. M. J. Thornton, a resident physician, who ran into the room and seized the man's arm from behind.

A minute later another hospital physician, Dr. Monroe Meyer, entered with a ledger, weighing about twenty pounds, which he had picked up in the outer office. The doctor brought the ledger down with a crash on the man's head, felling him. A few minutes later he was taken in a straightjacket to the psychopathic ward, where he said he was John Kohler, 33 years old, married, a janitor of 320 East Sixty-first Street.

The records disclosed that Kohler was admitted to the hospital two years ago as a paranoic and treated by Dr. Jewett and other physicians, but was discharged in the care of relatives.

Kohler will be kept in the hospital under observation.

MATEWAN COURT GETS JURY.

Cousin of Champion Dempsey Drawn in Mining Murder Trial.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 28.—The State will prosecute all indictments found against alleged participants in the Matewan battle last May, James Damron, counsel for the prosecution, declared tonight. Twenty-one men are on trial now, charged with killing Albert C. Felts, one of the seven private detectives who met death in the fight. The defendants will be tried on six other charges of killing, Damron said.

Thirteen talesmen out of a total of seventy-six veniremen examined had been tentatively accepted when court closed late today. Six of the jurors were seated yesterday. Dempsey, the twelfth juryman to be accepted, is a cousin of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion.

IN 6 UP-STATE CITIES

Men Quit in Albany, Troy, Rensselaer, Cohoes and Watervliet This Morning.

FIGHT IS OVER WAGE CUT

Company Acts After Getting Eight-Cent Fare in Albany—Increase Refused in Troy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Trolley service in Albany, Troy, Cohoes, Watervliet, and Rensselaer ended tonight as the men turned in their cars at the end of their day's runs. Tomorrow morning not a trolley wheel will turn in the five cities, and 1,200 trolley men will strike to show their resentment at having their wages cut from 60 cents an hour to 45 cents.

Although the hour set for the strike was midnight, leaders of the men's union informed the United Traction Company officials tonight they would complete their day's runs, and all-night cars, which end at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning, will continue up to that hour.

The United Traction Company has just received permission to charge an eight-cent fare in Albany, but the Public Service Commission denied the company's right to do so in Troy, where there is a provision in the charter which prevents an increase. Several days ago the company notified its men that the cut in wages would be effective with the putting into effect of the increased fare in Albany, although in Rensselaer the city fare is cut down to 5 cents, where it has been 7 cents heretofore. In Troy the Union men voted to a man to strike to retain the 60-cent an hour schedule of pay and the Albany union followed a night or two later.

There is talk tonight that the company will not attempt to run any cars until the matter is settled. John J. McManus, Corporation Counsel, will move on Monday to obtain a peremptory writ of mandamus compelling the company to run cars.

Several months ago the United Traction Company prevented a strike of the men by promising that if it obtained a ten-cent fare in Albany it would increase wages.

Trolley officials would not discuss the situation tonight nor would they verify rumors that strikebreakers will be brought in to run the cars. The State Board of Mediation and Arbitration offered its services today, but nothing came of the offer.

COLLEGE WANTS $150,000 THAT WILSON REFUSED

Institution Bearing Same Name as President Urges Him to Give It Proceeds of Manuscript.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The student body of Wilson College at Chambersburg, Pa., today petitioned President Wilson to accept a recent offer of $150,000 from a publisher for a manuscript and give the money to the endowment fund of the college. The petition was in the form of a letter signed by 500 students of the college, which read:

"In the press recently you were reported as having rejected a publisher's offer of $150,000 for a manuscript. The reason given for your refusal was that you would not capitalize your high office for personal gain.

"We, the students of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., appreciating the scruples which guided you to decline, respectfully petition you to reconsider and to modify your decision in the name of a worthy educational cause. We ask you to accept the offer and to donate the sum to the Wilson College endowment fund.

"Wilson College, founded at Chambersburg, Pa., by Sarah Wilson, a devout Christian of the Presbyterian faith, is the third oldest college for women in the United States. At present time the Faculty, alumnae, undergraduates and friends of Wilson College are trying to raise a necessary endowment fund of $500,000 to assure the future work of this institution. A substantial portion of this proposed fund has been subscribed, but it still falls far short of the necessary amount.

"We believe that you, as a great educator and President, will see in this appeal an opportunity to advance the cause of education for women, to augment the Christian activities of the Presbyterian Church and to engrave on the gratitude of coming generations of students the name of Wilson."

MAN WITH DYNAMITE IS HELD IN PASSAIC

Mill Worker Also Had Caps, Wire and Battery and Planned 'to Dump Them Into River.'

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 28.—Olojo Novobilsky, 35 years old, a mill worker of 237 Third Street, is being held for the Federal authorities pending an investigation of a story he told following his arrest today. He was taken into custody after a package containing ten sticks of dynamite, several percussion caps, electric wire and electric battery was found in a baggage car of the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday.

Novobilsky, the police say, admits having sent the explosives from Welch, in the Tug River coal region of McDowell County, W. Va., where he had been employed in the mines. He said that the explosives were given to him by a fellow-worker and that he was bringing them to Passaic to "dump them into the river." The police are inclined to believe Novobilsky.

ALARM SOUNDS HIS GUILT.

Deckhand Admits Stealing Clock That Startles Shoppers.

The ringing of an alarm clock at Sixth Avenue and Thirty-third Street yesterday afternoon not only astonished a crowd of shoppers more accustomed to hearing that sound in the early hours of the morning, but considerably alarmed Benjamin Levine, in whose overcoat pocket it happened to be.

Levine, who says he is a deckhand without any home, had just come out of a department store, followed by a woman store detective, who had observed the bulging overcoat pocket. The detective stopped him at the corner and placed her hand in his overcoat pocket, unintentionally setting off the alarm. She then called a patrolman and had him arrested.

Levine, when arraigned in Night Court, admitted taking the alarm clock. He was held in $500 bail for Special Sessions.

Lawrence Family Inherits Million.

Benjamin B. Lawrence, President of the Cuba Copper Company and Treasurer of the Research Corporation, left a will giving his entire estate for life to his widow, Alice Jerome Lawrence, and upon her death it is to be held in trust for her daughter Alice until she is 21 years old, when she gets the principal. The estate is estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Seven Passed by the House Are Blocked in Senate and Talk of Closure Grows.

NOT VOTES ENOUGH IN SIGHT

But McCumber May Try to Stop Debate Next Week, Last Appropriation Bills Fail.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senate leaders fear that the great appropriation bills, totaling perhaps $2,000,000,000, may be imperiled by the apparent filibuster against the emergency tariff bill, which continued today.

Plans for seeking closure and forcing early action on the measure were discussed, and it was said tonight that twenty-six names had been obtained to a closure petition. Only sixteen are necessary to present such a petition to the Senate, but closure can only be imposed by two-thirds majority of the Senate, and here the friends of the bill face a dilemma. It is understood that about forty-five Republicans and twelve Democrats would vote for closure, but the other seven necessary are not assured.

Senator McCumber, who, with Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Finance Committee, is leading the fight for the bill, said tonight that he expected to let its opponents "rock along" with their speeches until early next week, when he would try to stop debate through the closure rule. He was not sanguine as to the outcome.

Senators Harrison of Mississippi, King of Utah, Thomas of Colorado and others, who have been occupying the last two days with long speeches, insist that they are not filibustering, but that the bill must be "fully discussed."

In the meantime the annual supply bills sent over from the House are piling up awaiting action. The House has passed seven of these and is now working on the eighth, while the Senate has passed only one. Only five weeks remain before Congress goes out of existence, and the bills must be passed by Congress and sent to the President for his signature before that time.

The House has disposed of the District of Columbia, Sundry Civil, Post Office, Legislative, Indian, Agriculture and Pension bills, totaling $1,135,000,000, and is now engaged with the Diplomatic bill, while the Rivers and Harbors and Army bills were reported today. The Navy, Fortifications and General Deficiency bills are yet to be reported.

Direct charges of a filibuster against the Tariff bill were made today by Senator Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona. Senator Penrose had objected to Senators introducing bills and resolutions when this was not permitted by the rules, inasmuch as the Senate had recessed last night instead of adjourning, and therefore there was no "morning hour." He said he did not intend by circulating a closure petition to insinuate that a filibuster was going on, but asked Senators to speak directly to the bill.

"Perhaps the guilty conscience of those on the Democratic side has compelled them to make explanations in advance of accusations," he remarked.

Senator Ashurst broke in:

"The Senator from Pennsylvania has said he would not insinuate a filibuster. I do not insinuate it, either. I charge it."

Senator King held the floor more than four hours today, speaking on Russia and the Soviet regime. The Senator remarked that he had been interrupted in a League of Nations speech day before yesterday and he wanted to continue it. But as soon as Senator France appeared and advanced the idea that this country should resume trade relations with Russia, Senator King attacked this at length. He was still speaking when the Senate took a recess on motion of Senator Penrose. Senator King said he would continue his speech tomorrow.

Denial was made by Senator Thomas that he intended to filibuster. He said that he did not know of any organized effort to delay the bill, but that it must be discussed and that he would speak at some length tomorrow. He said he had always been a consistent supporter of closure.

Children Change Plans of Russian Refugees and Discuss Their Future.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Sewing machines and knitting needles suspended action when Rear Admiral Newton A. McCully and his adopted family of seven Russian children appeared this afternoon at the Russian Embassy, where a group of fashionable women had gathered for their weekly meeting of the sewing class in aid of Russian refugees.

Holding the hand of a 5-year-old girl, Admiral McCully commended the work of this sewing class and its parent organization, the Central Committee of Russian Relief, which has headquarters in New York.

This practical philanthropist, Admiral McCully, who frankly describes himself as a lover of children, spoke of the simplicity of the Russian character as one of the traits most worthy of preservation.

The nurse in charge of the children held the two youngest near by. Another small girl, evidently accustomed to being made much of, was reconciled to leaving the Admiral's side by one of the ladies of the class holding her on her knee and attaching a wristwatch to the small arm.

Six of the seven children wore American-made sailor suits of blue serge, to which their substitute parent declared they were clearly entitled by their eighteen days at sea.

In reply to a question as to his intended method of education, Admiral McCully said he purposed for the next five years to bring up the children as though they were his own. At the end of that time if the elder ones desired to return to Russia he would enable them to do so, or if any had been claimed by now unknown kindred, he would return them to the claimants later.

Following the brief talk the Admiral was the centre of a short reception when the ladies of the sewing class went back to their tasks. The class, now in its third season, is carried on in the dining room of the former embassy, with Mrs. Edward W. Root, daughter-in-law of the former Senator from New York, in charge. Mrs. Robert Lansing is Chairman of the Washington branch, Mrs. Livingston Farrand Treasurer, and Mrs. Sherman Miles Secretary.

Later in the day Admiral McCully called with his family at the Navy Department, where they were received with due ceremony by Secretary Daniels. Before returning to their home in I Street they made a call on Secretary Wilson at the Department of Labor. The children will be legally adopted by the Admiral according to the law of South Carolina, his home State.

HOLD MACLAY LETTER AFFECTS FRANKLIN PLEA

Shipping Board Members Cite the British Minister's Refusal to Yield Control of Tonnage.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Consideration by the Shipping Board of the records of yesterday's investigation of the agreement between the International Mercantile Marine and the British Government will be begun on the return of Chairman Benson from New York, board officials said tonight. A decision is also to be reached soon as to whether F. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine, will be recalled for further testimony.

Members of the board, in studying the question of the ability of the International Mercantile Marine to operate its British tonnage without detriment to American shipping, have understood to be attaching considerable importance to a communication from Sir Joseph Maclay, British Minister of Shipping, to Ambassador Davis read into the record by Commissioner Thompson. Written at the time of the negotiations between the United States Government and the International Mercantile Marine regarding the sale of the company's British tonnage to the Shipping Board, the communication declared that the British Government could not contemplate the possibility of the control of this tonnage passing out of its hands and would feel bound in exercise the rights reserved by it under the agreement of 1903.

Board members are understood to consider this communication as the explanation of the failure of this Government to purchase the British ships and to regard this evidence of control of the tonnage regardless of stock ownership as important in deciding the relation of the agreement to American shipping interests.

Mason Offers Amendment in House for "Minister to Ireland," Which Is Promptly Ruled Out.

BILL IS FOUGHT ALL DAY

Ministers to New European States Provided For—Consular Section Not Yet Reached.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Indirect recognition of "the Republic of Ireland" was knocked out in the House today on a point of order.

During consideration of the Diplomatic Appropriation bill Representative Mason, Republican, Illinois, a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, offered an amendment providing a salary of $10,000 for a Minister to Ireland. Instantly half a dozen Representatives were on their feet.

Chairman Rogers of the Subcommittee on Appropriations in charge of the bill, challenged the right of the House to include such an amendment, on the ground that it was without authority of law and that there had been no Executive recognition of Ireland.

Before the point was sustained by Representative Towner, Republican, Iowa, presiding, Mr. Mason declared the question of policy with respect to Ireland should be determined by Congress on its merits and not on a parliamentary point. As the appropriation, if authorized, would not be available until July, Representative Connally, Democrat, Texas, also a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, asked if Mr. Mason had any indication or assurance that Mr. Harding would designate a Minister.

"I have no promises, but I have hopes," Mr. Mason replied. "We all know, however, that President Wilson is not inclined to favor recognition."

While the fight to prevent authorization of salaries for Ministers to Finland and to the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes failed, the Chair sustained a point of order on the section which sought to reduce the Embassy at Turkey to a legation. Ministers to Czechoslovakia and Poland, eliminated yesterday from the $12,000 salary rank, were put back with Ministers in the $10,000 class. The bill, as amended on the floor, fixed a salary of $10,000 for an Ambassador to Turkey, instead of $17,500, the normal figure.

With final disposition of the Ambassador and Minister sections, the attack was renewed on other provisions. An effort to cut the item of $5,500 for a Japanese secretary at the Embassy at Tokio, prompted Chairman Rogers to declare it was the most important in the bill. Expressing similar views concerning a Chinese secretary at Peking, Mr. Rogers said, "The course of history was apt to depend upon these two positions."

The bill was shot at all day, partly as the out-cropping of opposition from Republicans and Democrats alike to prepare appropriation measures under the so-called budget system. Work constantly was interrupted and Representative McClintic, Democrat, Oklahoma, made five separate demands for a quorum, each rollcall requiring nearly half an hour.

After Mr. McClintic had made his fifth call for a quorum, with a count showing a sufficient number on the floor, Representative Walsh, Republican, Massachusetts, jumped into the fray with the charge that efforts were being made to block emergency legislation. Mr. Walsh said there had been rumblings of dissension in the Democratic ranks. Mr. McClintic insisted, however, that he was within his rights and that he had made no statements, as had been published, as to personal grievances with his colleague.

Before taking up salary items for the Consular Service, Chairman Rogers explained that many of them were subject to points of order, but gave warning that the American service, especially in China and Japan, would be seriously crippled by their elimination. The House adjourned, however, before attack could be opened on the items.

Condemns Cuts in Consular Bill.

O. K. Davis, Secretary of the National Foreign Trade Council, in a statement yesterday on the cuts, amounting to $855,700, in the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1922, said:

"The bill reported by the House Committee would furnish speakers to debate the issue with the Governor or others.

LONGSHOREMEN TO PROTEST.

Sixty Thousand Members of Union Vote Against Increased Fare.

William Delaney, organizer of the International Longshoremen's Association in this city, said yesterday that 60,000 longshoremen had voted to oppose any attempt to permit traction companies to increase fares. A delegation, he said, will be sent to Albany to protest to the Governor and the Legislature.

"The people of this city and the working people should not fall asleep on this proposition," said Mr. Delaney, "but should take action as one man to fight this proposed transit corporation outrage. We must line up behind the leaders who are conducting the campaign against the fare grab and make the fight as strenuous a one as was ever made by citizens against unjust concessions to corporations."

MAYER SEES NO END TO B. R. T. RECEIVERSHIP

Judge Writes State Senator Harris That Creditors' Suits Prevent Termination.

No end of the receivership of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company can be expected until certain creditors' suits against the company are settled, according to Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, who yesterday sent a letter to State Senator Harris. On behalf of a committee of legislators from Kings and Queens Counties Senator Harris asked Judge Mayer whether some means might not be found to obtain relief from present deplorable conditions.

Explaining the number of creditors' suits that are pending against the company, Judge Mayer added:

"In each instance the suit was brought by a creditor or creditors of the respective defendant companies for the purpose of having the assets of that company taken over to pay its debts; to have the amount of its debts and the order of priority of payment thereof ascertained, and to obtain a decree for the disposition of the property to pay the debts so far as the proceeds will go. In each of these suits the holders of mortgages on the property of the particular defendant have begun foreclosure of such mortgages. There are in addition to the asserted mortgage liens other claims to liens asserted, as well as claims for damages for personal injuries, and many other claims of different character; many of these claims are of such a nature that until they are disposed of the cases will not be ready for final decree. The court will not be in a position to make a final decree (which is the necessary step prior to terminating the receivership) in any of the pending cases until the respective cases have reached the point where they can be presented to the court for final adjudication. The only thing which the court can do to hasten this time (which it has already done and will continue to do) is to dispose expeditiously of all matters ready for its consideration.

"I cannot predict when the necessary legal steps will have progressed to the point of final decree, and I cannot therefore answer your query any more definitely."

PLAN MASS MEETING AGAINST 8-CENT FARE

of New York over their own affairs;

Because it means an eight-cent fare for New York City;

Because it means that the elected municipal officials will lose all control over the present transit system, which has cost the people of the city of New York more than $350,000,000;

Because it means that the people of the city will be robbed of the use and control of their streets; and, further,

Because it means that the power of fixing rates and service of gas and electricity supplied to the people of the city of New York will be in the hands of the up-State Public Service Commission, no one of whom can by law be a resident of the city of New York, and none of whom has any interest in the people of the city, or in the territory served. Therefore, it is

Resolved, That this organization, true to its party platform declarations for home rule and municipal ownership, continue to wage an untiring fight against the plan contained in Governor Miller's message. We call upon all the elected officials in the city and State to unselfishly join, irrespective of party, in a vigorous fight to protect the people of the City of New York against non-resident domination, and greedy corporate control of its public utilities; and we pledge to them in their fight every assistance and aid that lies within our power.

Edward F. Boyle, Chairman of the County Committee, presided, and speeches were made by Senator Walker, Mrs. Ella Hastings, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Miss Martha Byrne, Samuel Marx, Alderman William T. Collins and Miss Annie Mathews.

Livingston Backs Miller.

There were indications yesterday that the Republican organization in the city will back up the Governor, regardless of any consequences such action may have upon the municipal campaign this Fall. The first organization leader to come out flatly in support of the Governor's program was Jacob A. Livingston, Republican leader of Brooklyn. He announced that he would do all in his power to urge the Brooklyn Senators and Assemblymen to vote for the Governor's traction plan. After stating that he thought the Governor's traction plan was "all right," and that he was for it, the Brooklyn leader was asked regarding the criticism that it would override home rule.

"That is the cry of some Democrats who are being hurt," he replied.

"How about the higher fare issue?"

"That isn't the big question," Mr. Livingston replied. "If I understand the Governor's program, it is for the appointment of a commission with plenary powers to settle the transit problem in Brooklyn and throughout the greater city. It will have plenary power to find out if the companies need more fare, and if they can't get along without it, it must be paid, that's all. If the adequate service cannot be given without more fare it must be paid anyway, whether this method or some other is adopted to settle the question.

"We must start from the basis that the Governor is making an honest effort to solve the problem. There must be confidence in the ability of some one to go ahead and attempt a solution. It is not primarily a fare question. It is a question of satisfying the public with adequate service at no more than an adequate price. It is not a question of electing a Democratic or a Republican Mayor of the City of New York. It is a question of giving the people what they must have in the line of transportation.

Discusses "Honest Facts."

"This commission, as I understand it, is to have plenary power to go in and get the facts. Of course, it must get honest facts, and whatever the honest facts show must form the basis of the resultant plan. If it is an honest fact that you can't get the service for the 5-cent rate, how are you going to get it for less? If it is an honest fact that you can't get it for that price, it's time we had it. We haven't had adequate service for some time."

"Will you use your good offices to persuade Brooklyn legislators to support the Governor's plan?" Mr. Livingston was asked.

"At the present time, in view of my understanding of the Governor's plan and the situation I should say yes."

United States Senator Calder and District Leader F. J. H. Kracke have already endorsed the Governor's message. But several Republican legislators from Brooklyn are known to be opposed to it. These include Senator Burlingame and Assemblymen Carroll, Bly and Doherty.

New York County Republicans have made no move as yet to line up with the Governor, County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig declaring that he was sounding sentiment among the people. It was said that Chairman Koenig will ultimately swing the organization into line if he can find a way to meet the Democratic issue of an increased fare.

The Republicans will stress the fact that the matter must be kept out of politics. Former Controller William H. Prendergast, who was a member of the Board of Estimate when the original subway contracts were signed, said the transit matter could never be settled properly unless it was taken out of politics.

"The transit question must be considered in terms of service and not votes," he said. "The question never will be settled if parties and ambitious candidates are thinking of their political future instead of the public interest. The transit question never should have been put into politics, and now is the time to take it out."

J. H. Hopkins, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Committee of Forty-eight which was one of the component organizations of the Farmer-Labor party formed in Chicago last Summer, suggested yesterday in a letter to Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Chairman of the League of Women Voters, that the league institute a series of debates with Governor Miller and others. Mr. Hopkins took exception to the Governor's attack on the league in which he held that non-political organizations seeking to exert influence on politics or politicians were menaces because they were not responsive or responsible to the voters. Mr. Hopkins said his committee would furnish speakers to debate the issue with the Governor or others.

ASKS UTMOST EFFORTS TO END HOME SHORTAGE

National Chamber of Commerce Wants Illegal Building Trade Combinations Punished.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Resolutions urging investigation of all alleged illegal combinations in the building industry and punishment for the guilty party were adopted at the closing session here today of the housing conference called by the National Council of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The conference, attended by civic and industrial leaders from all parts of the country, pledged its full support to "those who are bringing the facts to light."

Holding the present housing shortage to constitute a "grave menace to the moral well-being of the American people," the conference urged manufacturers of building materials, contractors and retailers and distributors to "exert their utmost efforts to the end that conditions are brought about which will result in immediate reduction in costs of construction."

Workers engaged not only in the building industry itself, but also in the manufacture of all materials entering into construction, were urged to "do their full share" to the end that "labor costs, which constitute so large a proportion of the total cost of raw materials and of building, may be reduced to a point where it will be possible to proceed with construction."

All member organizations of the Chamber of Commerce were urged by the conference to adopt a "constructive program designed to secure adequate and wholesome housing for all the people," based on a study of housing conditions in each community.

The conference also adopted a resolution declaring its accord with the decision of the chamber's Board of Directors that provisions of the so-called Federal Coal bill and the Packers' bill infringe upon fundamental American principles." The resolution urged the Board of Directors to oppose the bills unless they were amended to "conform with fundamental principles."

COURT ABANDONS A WESTCHESTER LINE

Orders Receiver to Stop Operation of Shore Route Despite Public Service Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Because Receiver Leverett S. Miller of the Westchester Street Railway Company reported that the company was losing $35 to $40 a day in operating the mile and a half of shore line route from Mamaroneck to Larchmont on the Sound Supreme Court Justice Morschauser today directed that the line be abandoned.

This action was taken in face of an order of the Public Service Commission directing Receiver Miller to run the line.

"The receiver is an officer of the court," said Justice Morschauser, "and the court is not going to stand for its officer operating a road at a daily loss. Why doesn't the Public Service Commission operate the road if it is desired to run it at a loss?"

Recently Justice Morschauser directed Receiver Miller to suspend the line, but the Public Service Commission issued a new order, and so the matter was brought to court.

"I see only one way," continued Justice Morschauser, "and that is to stop the road if it does not pay regardless of any order of the Public Service Commission."

Withdraws Two-Fare Application.

The Brooklyn City Railroad Company esterday withdrew its application before the Public Service Commission for authority to divide the Graham Avenue trolley line into two zones and to charge a 5-cent fare in each zone. The basis for the application was the contention that the franchises of the company were obtained before the consolidation of the old cities of Brooklyn and Williamsburgh. Examination of the records disclosed that the franchises were granted subsequent to the consolidation and that the fare was fixed at 5 cents.

FALL IN TRANSIT STOCK SINCE 1915 SHOWN

Market Value Jan. 25, 1921, Was $368,657,519 Below High Figures of 1915.

In his message to the Legislature on the traction situation in this city Governor Miller stated that securities representing an amount of capital in excess of the value of the railroads had been issued in the past as the result of crooked financing, but that the water had been squeezed out of them by the fall in values to a point much below the intrinsic value of the properties represented.

Replying to this statement, Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney said that so far as the records show no water had been squeezed out of the securities. He said the water was all there, but that dividends and interest were not being paid on it, and that a suggestion made by him to officials of the traction companies that capitalization should be brought to measurable resemblance to property value had met with no response.

The following table shows the amount of local traction stock listed, the high price in 1915 and the depreciation between that date and Jan. 25:

NEW OIL CLAIMS

Order Prevents Filing or Work Under Denouncements Passed to Third Party.

AMERICAN OWNERS PLEASED

Signs of Better Treatment From the Government Seen in the Latest Decision.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary Zubaran, head of the Mexican Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor, who recently suspended all action on Federal zone concessions permitted under the Carranza decrees, has ordered also the suspension of all filings of and procedure under denouncements not filed by the owners of lessees of lands on which the claims are located, according to a telegram from Tampico today through official channels.

The dispatch quotes the following warning, posted at the Federal Petroleum Agency at Tuxpam by order of the Mexico City Government:

"Be it known by the public that from and after this date, by instruction of the Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor, this agency suspends the filing of, and all of procedure under, all denouncements not filed by owners or lessees of lands on which the claims are located, Tuxpam, Jan. 24."

Third parties not related to the land are now absolutely cut off by the action of the Federal Government.

Oil companies operating in Mexico received word from Mexico City yesterday that President Obregon had suspended operations under the denouncement titles issued by former President De la Huerta during the latter days of his administration. Notices of this suspension have been posted by Government officials in Tuxpam and the issuance of any further denouncement titles is abandoned for the time being. This action was construed by the oil companies as one of the most hopeful signs that has thus far developed in the Mexican oil situation. It was held that it indicated President Obregon's desire to adhere to a policy of protecting property rights.

The number of denouncements affected by the verdict of President Obregon is large, among them being a concession which was reported to have been granted to one of the large British companies in the last few hours of the previous régime. The De la Huerta action was really an outgrowth of the Carranza decrees, which were put out to force the oil companies to relinquish their property in favor of the State, as provided for under Article XXVII. of the Mexican Constitution. The companies after denouncement might apply for permits to operate the properties. Failing in denouncements, the holdings were open to denouncement by other persons. The oil companies refused to admit any right of the Mexican Government to confiscate their properties, and this led to the situation which developed during De la Huerta's term of office.

The so-called zone concessions were ruled against by President Obregon some time ago, and the present action, it is felt, clears the situation to a marked degree. It is realized, however, that the present rulings are only tentative, but it is believed they may point the way to a permanent plan for firmly establishing property rights in Mexico. It has been impressed upon Mexico that it can expect no outside relief for its financial situation unless the security of such rights is beyond question.

Russell Voorhees, Once Burned in Effigy, Doesn't Like Babylon, L. I.

Russell Raymond Voorhees, who publishes the South Side Signal, a weekly paper, in Babylon, L. I., doesn't like the people there very much, and they don't like him. They burned him in effigy recently after he had published in his paper the misfortunes of a young woman, and Voorhees called the townspeople "clamdiggers."

A short time ago he issued some checks which were not covered by sufficient balance at the bank, so it was charged, and he was arrested last Saturday and held in $100 bail. He couldn't get bail and Justice of the Peace Cooper, who is also publisher of the rival paper, The Leader, paroled Voorhees until today.

Voorhees says life in Babylon is not pleasant. He says he intends to keep on printing the truth in his paper, no matter what the consequences may be.

MOVIES FOR HOOVER RELIEF.

Many Theatres to Give Performances Today for European Fund.

Performances will be given in moving picture theatres throughout the city at 10 o'clock this morning for the benefit of the $33,000,000 fund of the European Relief Council. Programs have been planned especially for children. Thousands of tickets were distributed yesterday in the schools by persons who bought them to help feed children in Southeastern Europe. Some contributors gave as much as $100 each for the tickets.

The Board of Education has written every teacher requesting that she urge each pupil to give a penny a week for the next five weeks toward the fund.

Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Chairman of the Women's Emergency Committee of the council, announced yesterday that $100,000 had been collected.

ROADS FOR WAGE CUT OF HALF A BILLION

roads can compass it, and the movement to reduce wages will begin soon.

The situation as viewed by the executives was set forth today by Samuel O. Dunn, editor of The Railway Age and counsel of the Labor Committee:

"The employes in the shops in 1917 were working on a ten-hour basis, while in 1920 they were working on an eight-hour basis. For working on an eight-hour basis they are now receiving 72 per cent. higher average monthly wages than they received in 1917 on a ten-hour basis. The abolition of piecework has resulted in a heavy reduction in the average work done per man, not only per day but per hour; and because of this and the eight-hour day the railways are being obliged, or were when business was heavy, to employ 43 per cent. more men in their shops than in 1917. Nor is this all. In spite of the great increase in the number of men employed in the shops, the railways were unable in 1920 to do in their own shops all the repair work on locomotives and cars required, and had to send a substantial part of their equipment requiring heavy repairs to outside plants, which further greatly increased the expense of maintenance of equipment."

W. S. Carter, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Firemen, said here today that wasteful management rather than increased wages was responsible for the plight of the railroads. He stated that if the roads persisted in their demands for a general reduction he would seek an investigation of the financing methods of the corporations involved.

NO SEPARATE PARLEYS BY UNIONS WITH ROADS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Reports that railroad executives might soon start a movement for a general reduction of wages of employes have stirred up labor circles here. The railroad workers are preparing for a vigorous fight against such a proposal.

The railroad unions have made Washington their centre of activity, and will be ready to act when the question of wage reductions is brought to an issue. Inquiries made by leaders, it is said, indicate that the workers will present a solid front against wage decreases.

Representatives of the employes contend:

1. That railway executives who favor wage reductions are endeavoring to take unfair advantage by putting forward their plea when, because of abnormal conditions, traffic is at low ebb and minimum earnings are shown.

2. That the effort for wage reductions is part of a general plan, advocated by some executives, to weaken organized labor.

3. That some executives are seeking to test the question of wage reductions through cases involving weak lines, which do not represent the true situation in regard to railroads in general.

It is stated in labor circles that workers on no system will agree to reductions without fighting their case out before the Federal Wage Board. The unions are too well organized, it is held, for any railroad to obtain concessions from enough of the employes to carry out any reduction movement. Any hope of the railway executives of independent negotiations, it is held, is futile.

The case of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad is accepted here as one that may open the fight along broad lines by the railway executives. Labor leaders will not admit that the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic case is typical nor that the condition of the railroads in general is as critical as some managers would have it appear.

It is contended that there should be no decisions in regard to wage decreases until normal traffic conditions have been resumed and the new rate schedules have had a fair chance. The workers insist that it is not the labor cost of operating which is responsible for the present situation.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 28.—The resolution offered by Boilermakers' Local 143 at the last meeting of the Baltimore Federation of Labor, calling upon all labor organizations and the individual members of such bodies to withdraw savings accounts from all banks, was referred to the Executive Committee of the Federation by the action of conservative members.

"I am glad," said President Broening today, "that the resolution was referred to the Executive Committee and not acted upon hastily. It is a serious matter and ought to be carefully studied. I am inclined to believe, however, that the resolution will be acted upon in February. We do not know that there is a conspiracy to break down organized labor, but there are those in the movement who strongly suspect it. Naturally, the workingman does not take kindly to the idea that his money is in the hands of those working against him."

"If the resolution is adopted and carried out what is to be done with the money?" was asked.

"The organization of labor banks is a part of the plan," was the reply. "There are already movements to that end on foot; in fact, two banks have been organized. Through them the laboring man would be able to borrow money at a legal rate of interest and not be thrown upon the tender mercies of loan sharks. These banks could also buy up the notes and obligations of the corporations as a means of insuring an attentive hearing."

"If all of the labor unions were to apply to the banks for their deposits and cause a run on the financial institutions of the country what benefit would that be to the workingman?" Broening was asked.

"Personally," he replied, "I believe that the withdrawals of money would be so widely distributed among the banks that none of them would be seriously affected."

AUTO PLATES HOLD OVER.

1920 Licenses Good Until Feb. 15. State Secretary Announces.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Under ruling by Secretary of State Lyons, announced today, automobilists will be allowed to use their 1920 license plates until Feb. 15.

An extension of fifteen days, Mr. Lyons said, was necessary because the automobile bureau of his department was doing the greatest volume of business in its history, which has been augmented by the open Winter. There also has been a delay in the delivery of new plates manufactured at one of the State prisons

'BLUE SKY LAWS' INVOKED.

Ohio Grand Jury Indicts Four Officers of Tire Company.

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 28.—Four officers of the Interlocking Cord Tire Company of Akron and Mogadore were arrested on secret indictments returned late today by the Summit County Grand Jury, following investigation of charges of fraud made by more than 400 stockholders in a petition for receivership filed two weeks ago.

Separate indictments, in two counts each, charge Walter Kline, President of the corporation; C. E. Foust, Secretary; J. W. Rinear, Treasurer, and L. W. Rinear, sales manager, with alleged violation of the Ohio "Blue Sky" laws. Kline also was indicted for the alleged obtaining of money under false pretenses.

When arraigned in the Criminal Court all defendants pleaded not guilty and were released on bond.

CRANE AIDS RELIEF IN CHINA.

U. S. Minister to Head American Committee in Peking.

Charles R. Crane, United States Minister to China, has been chosen ex officio head of an All-American Committee at Peking to represent the American Committee for China Famine Fund, it was announced here yesterday.

Thomas W. Lamont, Chairman of the committee in this country, has been notified that the Peking committee was formed of the "most prominent Americans in China," to be responsible to the committee here for all funds sent to China for famine sufferers. The committee in this country has forwarded $400,000 to Peking to date.

MIDDLEBURY HEAD RESIGNS.

Dr. John M. Thomas Will Become Pennsylvania State College President

The acceptance of the resignation of Dr. John Martin Thomas, President of Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., since 1908, was announced last night at a dinner of the New York alumni of that institution at the University Club. It was also announced that Dr. Thomas had been offered the Presidency of Pennsylvania State College, which offer he later told a NEW YORK TIMES reporter he would accept.

Dr. Thomas was ordained a minister in the Presbyterian church in 1893 and was pastor of a church in East Orange, N. J., until he became President of Middlebury College. He holds doctorates from that institution and from Amherst, Dartmouth, Norwich University and the University of Vermont. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Middlebury College.

Associates Honor Merseles.

A reception in honor of Theodore F. Merseles, former Vice President and General Manager of the National Cloak and Suit Company, Seventh Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, was given yesterday in the offices of the firm by former associates of Mr. Merseles. Mr. Merseles has recently been made President of the Montgomery Ward Company. S. G. Rosenbaum presented a bronze statuette, the gift of the officers of the organization.

GOLD BY DIRIGIBLE

NO ACTION BY BAKER YET

State Department Will Not Try to Get Deserter Unless War Department Asks It.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Grover C. Bergdoll, American draft evader, and Isaac Stecher, his chauffeur, say that they used Canadian passports to get to Europe, coming to Germany by way of England and Holland, according to a dispatch from Eberbach.

Bergdoll's passport is numbered 64,493 and is issued in the name of George Charles Riggs, age 35, an agriculturist, born at Milk River, Alberta. Stecher's passport is numbered 64,787 and is made out to Frank Jeremiah Johnson, age 40, born in New Dayton, Alberta. Both documents are alleged to have been issued at Winnipeg, the men claiming to be British subjects.

According to their statement they sailed from Quebec on July 6, landed at Liverpool July 18, and after staying at a London hotel left for Holland five days later.

Carl Neaf and Frank Zimmer, alleged American detectives who attempted the kidnapping of the two men, are still in custody.

American officials in Coblenz, according to dispatches from the occupied area today, say that no orders for such action against Bergdoll and Stecher were issued. Inquiry into the incident is proceeding.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. — Secretary Baker said today that he was interested in the reports from Germany about Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the draft dodger, who is wanted by the military authorities. Interviews attributed to Bergdoll, he said, appeared to contain much that had not been brought out in investigations.

The State Department has taken no steps yet to procure the arrest of Bergdoll and will not do so unless asked by the War Department.

Special to the New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 28.—Frank Zimmer, one of the Americans who attempted to seize Bergdoll at Eberbach, Germany, is a Denver man, 27 years old. He served in the Ninety-first Division during the war in France as Supply Sergeant. Last Fall he returned to Denver on a furlough, and spent a month with his parents, returning to Germany before Christmas.

Zimmer's parents are of German birth, and both have many relatives in Germany.

PHILADELLPHIA, Jan. 28.—Mrs. Frieda Stecher, wife of Eugene Stecher, who is in Germany with Bergdoll, has begun proceedings for divorce, it was learned today. It was said at her home she had received neither money nor word from her husband since his flight. She tried to get a passport to Germany so that she might live with her parents in Saxony, but failed.

20 YOUNG CRIMINALS TO PRISON 206 YEARS

None of Convicted Men More Than 23 Years Old—All Guilty of Burglaries and Hold-Ups.

Maximum sentences aggregating 206 years were imposed yesterday by Judge Louis D. Gibbs in the Bronx County Court on twenty hold-up men and burglars, none of whom was over 23 years old. Fourteen pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with robberies by the aid of pistols, and the others were convicted after trial.

"This is clean-up day in the Bronx County Court," announced Judge Gibbs. "I intend to instill the fear of God into the minds of criminals by showing them how severe the law is when they are found guilty of crimes such as you fellows have committed."

The court was jammed with relatives and friends of the prisoners and a large crowd stood at the entrance. Judge Gibbs had let it be known that he would sentence the twenty criminals in succession and police reserves from the Morrisania Station were assigned to guard the court.

Looking over the crowd as the first group of hold-up men were arraigned, Judge Gibbs continued: "If there are any criminals among you, I hope the sentences I am about to impose will impress you with the potency of the law when you are found guilty. The Bronx is no place for the gunman, as you will realize before I have finished this day's work."

Juan Alvarez, 19 years old; Seliciano Joels, 23 years old; Sylvester Rumbaro, 23 years old, and Christian Avalino, 22 years old, were in the first group. They are Filipinos, arrested in connection with hold-ups of Chinese restaurants in the Bronx. Valiriano Santos, 28 years old, a graduate of the University of Manila, and the leader, was sentenced to Sing Sing for fifteen years when arraigned before Judge Gibbs a week ago.

Alvarez received eighteen years, Rumbaro fifteen, Joels fourteen and Avalino ten years. The sentences sent shivers through the other prisoners.

John J. Rooney, Jean Gerrdi, Frank Rome and John Mastrelli were then moved up for sentence. They pleaded guilty to a series of hold-ups. Rooney was sent to Sing Sing for sixteen years, Gerrdi for twelve, Rome for sixteen and Mastrelli, said to be the leader, twenty years.

When Paul J. Nagle of Belleville, N. J., and Jack Perry, an ex-convict, were arraigned for robbing Mrs. Helen McHugh, a wealthy widow of 172 West Eighty-first Street, during a ride in an automobile in Van Cortlandt Park on the night of June 25 last, their victim requested Judge Gibbs to be lenient with Nagle.

"Why, these men chloroformed you after they had beaten and robbed you," replied Judge Gibbs, "and I can't see any reason for being lenient with either of them. Perry, I'll sentence you to Sing Sing for a flat term of twenty years, as a second offender. Nagle, because this is the first time you have been convicted, I'll give you an indeterminate sentence of from ten to twenty years."

Antonio La Pora, 19 years old, who was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory in 1918 for killing a man, then was arraigned on an indictment charging him with striking Charles Farra, of 2,423 Lorillard Place over the head with an iron bar in attempting to rob him. He was sent to Sing Sing for ten years.

Judge Gibbs imposed a sentence of fifteen years on Benedict Castillo of 647 Crescent Avenue, convicted of assaulting two policemen when they arrested him in connection with the hold-up of Thomas Dudgeon of 240 East 203d Street.

Judge Gibbs continued the work of sentencing the rest of the men for several hours, and in many instances praised policemen for bravery in arresting the criminals.

SILK THIEVES CONVICTED.

Two Paterson Manufacturers Among 35 Indicted for $150,000 Theft.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 28.—Jacob Goldring and Morris Rosen, silk manufacturers of Paterson, were found guilty tonight of conspiring to steal silk valued at over $5,000. They were placed on trial Tuesday before Federal Judge Rellstab and a jury.

The defendants were among the thirty-five men indicted for the alleged theft of more than $150,000 worth of silk in interstate shipments. The trial of the others will proceed speedily.

Escape After Pistol Battle in Auto Stolen From Actress Before Brooklyn Theatre.

Three hold-up men who a few hours before had stolen an automobile of Miss Charlotte Greenwood, the actress, from in front of the Crescent Theatre, Brooklyn, shortly before midnight on Thursday, engaged in a pistol battle with Captain Wohlfarth and detectives and reserves from the Jamaica Station at Hillside Avenue and Rocky Hill Road, Queens. Because of the speed of Miss Greenwood's car they escaped the police, also in automobiles.

The fight took place half an hour after the bandits had held up Glenn Brewer of Hillside and Cherokee Avenues and Mrs. Harold Thomsen of Palatina Avenue, Hollis, Queens. The men pulled up to the sidewalk beside Mrs. Thomsen and her escort. Two of them jumped out of the car, leaving the third at the wheel. They held pistols in front of their victims and after taking Mrs. Thomsen's pocketbook, containing $5.40, and $15 from Mr. Brewer they hopped onto the running board and fled toward Jamaica.

Mr. Brewer telephoned to Captain Wohlfarth of the Jamaica station, who organized posses to search the roads. Captain Wohlfarth and Detectives Kehoe, Harden, Mehling and Bunty were in an automobile when they saw another car with three occupants speeding in Hillside Avenue.

Detective Kehoe, who was operating the police automobile, succeeded in drawing beside the men as they neared Rocky Hill Road and ordered them to halt. Instead, the chauffeur made a wide turn around the police automobile and started in the direction of Jamaica.

Captain Wohlfarth and the detectives began shooting, and their fire was returned by the three men in the car, all of whom crouched low while it sped off at sixty miles an hour. The policemen kept up a steady exchange of bullets with the three men for a half mile, but their car was not the equal of the other and the fugitives escaped.

When the detectives returned to the station they discovered that an alarm had been sent out for Miss Greenwood's car, the description of which tallied with that of the car used by the three robbers.

Soon afterward another posse of policemen reported that they had found Miss Greenwood's car at the Long Island Railroad Station in Jamaica. Persons in the neighborhood reported that it had been abandoned by three men who boarded a train for this city.

Investigations of Thomas Fox, 18, of 262 Chadwick Avenue, and Albert Burch, 18, of 292 Seymour Avenue, both of Newark, were locked up in Millburn, N. J., last night in connection with the hold-up of passengers on two trolley cars of the Morris County Traction Company near Summit last Monday night. Charles Dukin, motorman, identified Fox as one of the robbers.

The prisoners were arrested yesterday morning in Seven Bridges Road, Millburn, by Sergeant Nagle and Policeman Kent while they were riding with a third man in an automobile. When the policeman questioned them the third man escaped. When they were taken to Police Headquarters in Millburn it was found that the car had been stolen a few hours before the hold-up of the trolley cars from Emanuel Beltman, a druggist, of 80 Shanley Avenue, Newark.

Magistrate Charles N. Harris, in the Jefferson Market Court, yesterday held James Brown, a negro, in $25,000 bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of assaulting and robbing Mrs. Loretta Smith in her home, at 26 Jane Street, on Nov. 4 last. When Brown was arrested Thursday he intimated that he was the murderer of Ream Constance Hoxie, the 17-year-old music student, in her home, at 72 West Eighty-ninth Street, on the afternoon of Feb. 2 last.

Detectives yesterday accompanied the negro to the home of the slain girl, but they reported later to Captain Carey of the Homicide Bureau that the man was not the murderer. Captain Carey intimated that the negro was mentally unbalanced.

Philip Roman, 50 years old, who said that up to the beginning of the year he was Assistant Prosecutor of Allegheny County, Pa., and John G. Hart, 25 years old, were held in $1,000 bail each when arraigned yesterday before Judge Kelly in Hillside, N. J., on a charge of carrying pistols. Detective Calatlan told the Court that when the men were arrested Thursday night in an automobile they had more than $7,000 in cash and six bottles of whisky.

the watches in groups of three and four and dropped them into the bag. I started to speak loudly, to draw the attention of Rommel, who was working at a bench behind the partition, but the robber rubbed the pistol in a circle around my heart and said: 'Now, be careful. One word, and I'll shoot you.'

"Rommel became suspicious that something unusual was happening and ran toward a door on the other side of the partition to see what was going on. Just then a well-dressed, smooth-shaven man opened the door leading from the hall and confronted Rommel with two pistols.

"'I heard him say to Rommel: 'If you have any regard for your life just stand with your hands up where you are. Don't ask questions, or I'll begin to shoot.'

"The first robber had taken the contents of both trays, when he turned to the other fellow and said: 'We've got it all; let's go.'

"Then the two walked to the door leading to the hall with their pistols pointed at both of us, and the first robber said: 'We are not going away from the door of this place for ten minutes. If you cry out or attempt to follow us, we'll come back and kill you.' Both of them were smiling all the time as though they were having a great joke at our expense.

"When I heard the door slam, I tipped around to Rommel. We ran to one of the windows overlooking the courtyard and saw the two men walking toward the stairway leading to Broadway. We waited a few minutes longer, then ran into the hall and began to shout.

"Doors flew open and we ran down Broadway. The street was jammed with people and we could find nobody who saw the robbers leave the building."

CIGAR STORE MAN HELD UP.

Robbers Get $200 After They Bind and Gag United Clerk.

Two men pressed pistols against G. D. Garabidian at 10:30 last night and backed Garabidian, clerk in the United Cigar Store at the northwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and Eighty-first Street, to a rear room. There, working at their leisure behind a thin partition, they bound him with twine one took from his pocket, stuffed a handkerchief into his mouth and went back to the store. They fled after the safe and cash register had yielded between $200 and $250.

Garabidian, warned by the men that they would return and "fill him full of lead" if he made outcry, struggled until he heard a customer enter. Then he wriggled near the partition and kicked it. The customer ran to the street, blowing a police whistle.

A policeman of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station freed the clerk and detectives from there hunted for the robbers.

SECOND THEFT IN CITY HALL.

Commissioner Sullivan of Queens Loses $125 Overcoat.

While Francis X. Sullivan, Commissioner of Public Works of the Borough of Queens, was attending a meeting of the Board of Estimate in City Hall yesterday, some one walked away with a $125 overcoat he had left in an anteroom.

It was the second theft in City Hall within a few weeks. The other occurred while the freedom of the city was extended to Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, in the aldermanic chamber. At that time a handbag containing $30 was cut from the wrist of a young woman who was standing within a few feet of Mayor Hylan.

POLITICS IN SCHOOLS

Thomas W. Churchill Wants "No Monkeying" With System by Board of Estimate.

CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION

Commissioner Claxton Recommends $2,000 a Year as Minimum Pay for Teachers.

Speaking yesterday at a citizens' conference on education in the Town Hall in West Forty-third Street, Thomas W. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education, declared that the Board of Estimate had no right to "monkey with" the Board of Education in its management of the city school system.

He pointed out that the body of men administering the finances of the school system also would dictate the policy, and said that it was impossible for a board of seven men to handle the financial affairs of the schools efficiently. He said that a board of forty-six would be better and that in the natural process of sifting through the forty-six men the management finally would be invested in a small number of men.

The speaker also pleaded for enforcement of the New York State laws for continuation schools, and said he favored dropping the military training law on the ground that it is "unworkable no matter what virtues it has." He would also eliminate crowding in the schools and would have stringent physical training regulations. He also spoke for adequate pay for teachers.

Mr. Churchill was one of about thirty speakers at three sessions yesterday of a Citizens' Conference on Education for the district of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. These conferences are being held in all parts of the United States, and Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, is attending most of them to discuss pay of teachers, rural schools, and all other problems brought up.

Peter J. Brady, Supervisor of the City Record, who was invited to present the side of labor at a session where the continuation schools were discussed, also urged the separation of the Board of Education and the Board of Estimate and said that the school board ought also to handle the finances of the city school system. He attacked education proposals of Governor Miller and asserted that the State Bureau of Compulsory Attendance should be retained.

"If the Governor wants to leave a great monument to himself," said Mr. Brady, "let him send a message to the Legislature calling for the election of boards of education at an election separate from that at which other officers are elected, and then let them handle the financing of the schools independently of any other agency. Remove the financing of the schools from politics and have the Commissioner of Education and the school boards elected by the voters at separate elections."

Dr. William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of the city schools, said that divided control of the schools was caused by the present laws, and that it was true that the schools were subjected too much to the play of politics.

Speaking of teachers' pay, Commissioner Claxton said he believed that the minimum should be at least $2,000 a year, or between $2,000 and $3,000 a year.

Superintendent David B. Corson of the Newark public schools said that he would "defactorize" the schools, and particularly the high schools, where fads and schemes had made the rooms resemble factories. He said he believed a demand was growing for the elimination of non-essentials, and he cited high school study of chemistry.

The continuation school was the subject of discussion, and all the speakers favored rigorous enforcement of the law hours a week. Dr. William McAndrew, Associate Superintendent of Schools, said: "We view the continuation education law as a self-evident necessity."

Other speakers at the conferences yesterday were George M. Wiley, Assistant Commissioner for Elementary Education in this State; Dr. Lambert L. Jackson, Assistant Commissioner in New Jersey; Lee Driver, Director of the Bureau of Rural Education in New Jersey; Dr. John A. Keith of the State Normal School at Indiana, Pa.; Dr. George Becht of the Pennsylvania Department of Education; Dr. Harlan Updegraff of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. William C. Bagley of Teachers College in Columbia University.

Also on the program at the afternoon session were Dr. Frank B. Gilbert, Deputy Education Commissioner in this State; W. D. Lewis, Deputy Superintendent in Pennsylvania; Ernest C. Hartwell, Superintendent of Schools in Buffalo, N. Y., and Melvin A. Rice of the New Jersey State Board. Other speakers at the evening session were Dr. R. S. Copeland, City Health Commissioner, and Lewis A. Wilson, Director of Vocational and Extension Education in this State.

Another session will be held this morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce at 65 Liberty Street, and the speakers on the subject "Financing the Schools" will be Controller Craig, Professor E. R. A. Seligman of Columbia University, Marcus Aaron of the Pennsylvania State Board of Education, and Judge Dimner Beiber of the Philadelphia Board. A luncheon meeting will be held at the Hotel Commodore at 1 o'clock.

VOTERS ENLIGHTENED IN WOMEN'S CLUBS

Mrs. Richard M. Chapman Is a Candidate and Mrs. William R. Chapman Is Not.

Women who went to the Hotel Astor yesterday to register in preparation for the forthcoming election of a President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs received from Mrs. Eugene J. Grant a ticket headed by the name of Mrs. Richard M. Chapman of Brooklyn. Mrs. Grant, a former President of the organization and Mrs. Chapman's campaign manager, explained to each registrant that all rumors, reports and assertions to the contrary notwithstanding, Mrs. Chapman still was and would continue to be a candidate for the federation's highest office.

To those who inquired why such efforts were made to assure the fact of Mrs. Chapman's avowed candidacy, Mrs. Grant explained that she was circumventing a "clever political trick" whereby the supporters of Miss Mary Wood, the rival candidate, had sought to put Mrs. Chapman out of the running at the eleventh hour. Mrs. Chapman's sponsors said that in batches of Wood campaign literature which had reached them were printed slips which read: "Mrs. William Rogers Chapman, President of the Rubinstein Club, requests that information be circulated that she is not a candidate for President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs."

"Now we can only believe that this was intentionally done to injure our candidate at the last moment," said Mrs. Grant. "The federation is a tremendous organization, composed of hundreds of clubs, and every woman cannot be known to every other. We have at least three Chapmans in the federation. When a notice is received saying that a Mrs. Chapman is not a candidate for the Presidency, the women knowing that a Mrs. Chapman had been nominated pay no attention to the first name and naturally think that the woman nominated has changed her mind and vote for the other woman."

Miss Wood denied any attempt to resort to trickery. She said the slips were sent out after Mrs. William Rogers Chapman had stated publicly at a reception to Miss Wood at the Hotel Pennsylvania a week ago that she was not a candidate.

ON DRY LAW PUT IN

Wants Provision Giving Police Power to Arrest Volstead Act Violators.

ALLOWS CIDER LOOPHOLE

Legal Redress Is Provided for Sober Citizens Injured by Intoxicated Persons.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Governor Miller's recommendations for stricter enforcement of prohibition by placing the responsibility on State officers were embodied in bills presented to the Legislature today by Assemblyman Bert P. Gage. The measures provide amendments to the Code of Criminal Procedure and some of the proposed changes meet the suggestions of the State Anti-Saloon League.

A hearing will be given on the measures next Wednesday, although it had been the intention of the legislative leaders, up to today, to have the bills reported out of committee for action on the floors of both houses without airing their provisions in public.

One of the amendments proposed would permit any police officer to arrest and cause prosecution immediately of any person caught violating the "dry" law. Prosecution would follow indictment and bail is fixed at not less than $1,000.

Another amendment requires immediate execution of search and seizure warrants.

The third proposal gives any person the right to institute court action to recover for personal damages when injured by an intoxicated person. It also gives the heirs of any person who dies from drinking intoxicating liquors the right to go into the courts with a suit for damages against the person who sold or gave away the liquor.

Still another proposed change in the existing law would permit possession of cider, hard or otherwise, in a house for use by the family or bona fide guests. Abuse of this privilege would result in the closing of the house for one year, at the discretion of the authorities.

Despite the fact that today was only a legislative day, many bills were introduced in the Senate. Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson proposed a constitutional amendment for reconstruction of the State Government. Such an amendment was passed by the last Legislature, and if passed by the present session will be presented to the people on a referendum. The measures carry out the Republican Party's plan for the reconstruction of the State Government and the consolidation of existing departments into twenty-one departments. One of the measures provides that the Secretary of State, the Treasurer and the State Engineer shall be appointed by the Governor instead of being elected. Under this provision the only State officers to be elected would be the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, the State Controller and the Attorney General.

The second proposed amendment eliminates the State Lunacy Commission and provides for a commission on mental hygiene to inspect all institutions for the care of insane persons, epileptics, idiots and feeble-minded and mentally defective persons.

Opposition is being organized against enactment of the Baumes-Martin constitutional amendment bill giving war veterans preference in civil service. The policemen and firemen of New York City are said to be opposed to the proposed change, according to Joseph J. O'Reilly, who represents the Patrolmen's Benevolent and Uniformed Firemen's Association of New York City. The State Mayors' conference and the State Civil Service Reform Association are expected to support the opposition, according to Mr. O'Reilly.

"The patrolmen and firemen of New York City," said Mr. O'Reilly, "were the selective draft, and directed, under penalty of dishonorable discharge, to answer the questionnaire of the Government in a certain way. They performed extra war duty which earned the commendation of the Federal authorities. If the preference amendment should go through and another war should come, it would be difficult to hold patrolmen and firemen in places where they are needed most."

Senator Martin G. McCue of New York introduced a bill providing for appropriations to meet the deficiency in the New York City Health Department Pension Fund.

COLD IMPRISONS MILLER.

Bronchial Affection Keeps Governor Away From Executive Office.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Governor Miller remained at the Executive Mansion today for rest and recuperation from an infected throat. It was said at his office in the Capitol that he would not return to his desk for two or three days.

The Governor's physician, Dr. O. H. Neuman, in his bulletin announced, was suffering with a slight bronchial cold. A bulletin on the Governor's condition, issued this afternoon, said:

"Governor Miller has a slight bronchial cold and should be kept quiet for a day or so. There is absolutely nothing serious. He will be confined for a few days to his house but not to the bed."

ASK AID FOR CITY SCHOOLS.

Regents Request Legislature to Permit $18,000,000 Bond Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—The State Board of Regents passed a resolution today asking the Legislature to act to enable the City of New York to issue short term bonds to meet the deficit of approximately $18,000,000 in the city's education budget.

The board also went on record as opposing enactment of the bill introduced by Senator George Fearon of Onondaga which would take the power of fixing teachers' salaries from the city Boards of Education and give it to the Boards of Estimate and Apportionment.

Frank B. Gilbert, acting Commissioner of Education, declared that the Fearon bill was improper legislation to bring to the attention of the Legislature at this time.

"In view of the present investigation that is being made of city school conditions by the committee representing the Board of Regents and the Mayors' Conference, and the probability that specific recommendations will be made by this committee involving the financial control of city schools, it is improper at the present time to bring to the attention of the Legislature any such legislation," he said.

The board acted on the conditions in New York City after it had been brought to its attention that there was doubt as to the power of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to provide sufficient funds for the payment of teachers' salaries and the maintenance of schools during the fiscal year. More than $78,000,000 is required to run the schools and about $50,000,000 has been appropriated.

Miller Signs His First Measure.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Governor Miller today signed the first bill enacted into law since his administration began on Jan. 1. This was the Boylan-Adler measure adding one member to the Hospital Development Commission. Immediately after signing the bill the Governor announced the appointment of former Senator Henry M. Sage of Albany as the new member of the commission. Mr. Sage was for many years Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and was responsible for the creation of the Hospital Development Commission.

Uruguay to Send Gold Here.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 28.—The Government has authorized three local banks to export gold to the United States in sums totaling $360,500, it was announced today. This action is expected to relieve to some degree the exchange situation.

FROM MONTREAL

Miss Spellman, Who Fled to Escape Examinations, Comes Back With Her Parents.

FOUND CANADA TOO COLD

She Left Wearing $1,500 Diamond Brooch, and Managed to Bring It Back Safely.

Miss Blanche Spellman, who ran away from home last Monday because she feared she would not pass her trigonometry examinations at Columbia, returned from Montreal, Canada, last night with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Spellman of 1 West Ninety-second Street. Miss Spellman decided to come home and study art in New York instead of Canada, as Canada seemed to be colder than she had anticipated.

"My sister was found in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, where she had registered under her own name," said Howard Spellman, her brother, last night. "There is no mystery to her going away, which was the result of a sudden decision to enter an art school and get away from her other studies. She told us all that in the first letter, which we did not receive promptly; if we had got that letter in time we should not have been alarmed. She had enough money for the trip, and brought back all the jewelry and clothes she took with her."

When Miss Spellman left New York she was wearing a $1,500 diamond horseshoe brooch of her mother's, which she had borrowed that morning to bring her good luck in her examinations. She bought some new clothes at two department stores where her father had charge accounts, wrote a letter in the Hotel Pennsylvania to explain her sudden trip, and went north. Her destination was MONTREAL, Jan. 28.—The Hotel Windsor denied tonight that any person under the name of Blanche Adele Spellman was registered there or had been registered. All hotels of any importance in Montreal denied having entertained the girl or her parents.

MOTHERHOOD DEATHS GROW

Bill for Health Safeguards Is Expected to Pass the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Motherhood is safer in any of seventeen foreign countries than in the United States and babies in ten other countries have a better chance of living through their first year, according to the House Commerce Committee's report today on the Sheppard-Towner bill to appropriate $1,480,000 for safeguarding the health of mothers and babies.

The report classed the bill as emergency legislation and said that there was practically no opposition to it.

The committee found, it said, that maternal and infant mortality in the United States was not decreasing, statistics before it showing a 15 per cent. increase in deaths from childbirth between 1919 and 1920.

Infants under one year old are dying from preventable ailments at the rate of 230,000 a year the report said.

"In rural sections studied, it was ascertained," the report added, "that 80 per cent. of mothers received no advice or trained care preceding the birth of children."

WOMEN OPEN NEW FIELD.

Pioneers Forming Title Insurance Company in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—What is said to be the first title insurance company in the United States organized and conducted by women is now being formed in this city. It will be known as the "Women's Trust Company." Application will be made on Feb. 14 to Governor Sproul for a charter of incorporation.

The applicants for the charter are Julia M. Taylor, Bessie M. Snover, L. Edna Hawmen, Lilla Burt Cummings and Katharine Carlisle Emmert, all of this city. Their solicitor is Cecelia P. Bass, a woman member of the Bar. Miss Snover is a dean at the University of Pennsylvania.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE REPLIES TO MILLER

view without knowing anything about the subject?

We insist that public office should be given to the man who will best serve the public, and not in payment for party service. We believe that true economy will result when public office is regarded not as party spoils but as public trust. Does the Republican Party disagree with this?

We believe that unthinking submission to the dictates of the small groups which habitually control our dominant parties would be a menace to our country's future. Does this belief preclude our working with the Republican Party?

Members of the league expressed belief that the Governor's criticism would furnish a stimulus for greater activity and a membership drive will be begun in answer to his assertion that the league had no reason for existence. One effect of his speech was shown in the response to an appeal for funds, when the up-State women pledged more than $6,000 for the support of the State league in less than 10 minutes. This was said to have been a larger sum than ever raised before outside New York City.

Expects Attack to Benefit League.

Mrs. Vanderlip said she was sure the Governor's speech would result in a benefit to the league.

"So sweeping a denunciation of the League of Women Voters will have a reaction among the thinking voters, which will be better than any reply or denial that can be made," she said. "It is beyond imagination how any one can think there was any ulterior motive on the part of such organizations as the Consumers' League, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Women's City Club and the League of Women Voters in supporting the welfare bills, which were not initiated by them, but by the working women of the State."

Individual members of the league went much further in criticism of the Governor than implied in the letter.

"What Governor Miller said was a lie," said Miss Maud Swarts, Secretary of the New York State Women's Trade Union League. "We have not been depriving women of the opportunity of being grandmothers and working at night, but we feel that women of that age should have homes and not have to go out scrubbing floors."

The convention approved the Eight-Hour Workday bill, to which the Governor said he was opposed.

Other women characterized Governor Miller as a reactionary. Miss Hay said she was glad the Governor had spoken frankly.

"We knew how he felt regarding us," she said, "and what he said was expected."

Other women, however, said they believed the Governor had gone considerably beyond what was necessary in expressing disapproval of the league. His reference to the re-election of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. was considered particularly galling.

Declares for Direct Primary.

The convention showed another point of disagreement with the announced policy of the Republican organization by passing a resolution in favor of "the retention of the direct primary with improvements."

Dr. Katharine B. Davis, who submitted the report of the committee, said the abolition of the direct primary would result in the loss of the best method of women expressing their views in politics. There was no debate on the direct primary question. Apparently Republican women, who were expected to advocate a partial return to the convention system, changed their minds after hearing the Governor's speech.

Miss Davis said the committee was not prepared to recommend any of the bills proposing a State-wide use of voting machines. She said the committee favored the use of the machines, but believed they should be tried out in New York City gradually. Miss Davis also said the committee opposed the restoration of the party circle on the party ballot to make "straight" voting easier, but there was no formal action by the convention.

Upon the suggestion of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the convention tabled a recommendation for a constitutional amendment to require that voters must be able to read and write the English language. Mrs. Catt said she did not believe the league was prepared to begin a fight for this change at this time.

The chief point at issue between the League of Women Voters and the party organizations, the voting of "split" ballots was discussed by Miss Hay in a talk on "Political Action."

"We took political action last Fall," she said. "It may not have met with the approval of every Republican or every Democrat.

"I agree with Governor Miller in some things he said. I believe with him that the country is run by the political parties. I don't believe that we have no right to take political action unless told to do so by a boss or a man higher up."

May Take Part in City Election.

Miss Hay predicted that the League of Women Voters would enter the coming Mayoralty campaign in New York City.

"Everything is mixed up there," she said. "We have two prominent Republicans telling the Governor that he is handing out the Mayoralty to Hylan on a silver platter. That may be true.

"I believe the time has been reached when we should endorse or support candidates. It is likely to get us into trouble, but it will be a good thing to have a fight when we clean house.

"I have had only one object in life for the last two years. Never while I live will I ever be directed by any individual as to how or for whom I shall vote."

Miss Hay then called for a party poll of the delegates. It showed 128 enrolled Republicans, 20 Democrats and 7 independents.

"That only proves," said Miss Hay when the result of the poll was announced, "that we are going to stand for principles, no matter where they may take us, and that we are going to scratch our tickets if we want to scratch them."

Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany said she was in favor of "selective voting," and that the basis of this was information which the League of Women Voters intends to furnish.

Most of the afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of child welfare measures under the leadership of Dr. S. Josephine Baker, Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the New York City Department of Health. The convention approved a program for the study of the problems of maternity, birth registration, care of the infant, the health of the school child, the sick child, the dependent child, the delinquent child, the defective child and the child in industry, with a view to bringing about remedies for existing evils by legislation or otherwise. The convention adjourned late in the afternoon.

WOMEN HERE DIVIDE ON MILLER SPEECH

Republican Members of Voters League Call Governor's Remarks Courageous.

There is sharp division of opinion among women over Governor Miller's speech at Albany to the New York State League of Women Voters, in which he said that the use of political power by groups not allied with political parties was dangerous to American institutions.

Organization Republican women expressed themselves as glad that he rebuked the league, as did some members of the league who are not wholly in sympathy with its aims. Some Democratic women did not like his words. Women who opposed suffrage, but who are now reconciled, agree with the Governor, as do many of the suffragists. The line splits through all usual groups and parties, the opposition coming from women who believe that they can best attain their social and civic aims by acting as a unit and from women who think Governor Miller rebuked many of his supporters in the election.

"I am delighted that Governor Miller has had the courage to meet this situation with the courage he showed last night," said Mrs. Olive Scott Gabriel, Republican woman leader of the Tenth Assembly District, at the meeting of the City Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday. "If women are to accomplish anything they must do it through their parties, and it is undoubtedly true that the action of minorities in forcing legislation is dangerous.

"The welfare bills were an excellent example of that. There were many women who worked at night—I have been among them—who did not know that the bills were even proposed, much less what they were all about. The Night Work bill threw many women out of work who would never have borne children, and one league with which I was connected had to find work for 1,200 of them. That was the result of one welfare bill.

Pleased with Speech.

"As for what he said about the signal failure of women to defeat Senator Wadsworth, I am with him. Senator Wadsworth is a splendid representative of New York State; he is courageous and stands up for his convictions. No one can do other than respect him for that. I am altogether pleased at the Governor's speech."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, member of the Woman's Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee, said:

"I heartily endorse Governor Miller's statement. There is no place for such an organization in the political life of the United States today. Women and men are, in fact, equal partners in our political scheme; no sex line is drawn. The logical evolution of the League of Women Voters leads to one result, a sex party."

Mrs. Arthur Lott, Secretary of the Women's National Republican Club, said she was resigning from the League of Women Voters, "because I find myself in accord with Governor Miller's clearly expressed ideas of working through a party." Mrs. Lott has been a suffrage worker.

Mrs. William Vanamee said she was against anything which meant the establishment of a woman's party.

"This is considered reactionary," she said. "Governor Miller's logic is brought into relief by Mrs. Catt when she says that the Republican Party was a group long before it was a party. Very true, but it was never non-partisan."

One of those who suggested that the League of Women Voters was badly named, that it was obsolete, was Mrs. Anne Rhodes, who is a member of the league, a Republican and a stanch upholder of Governor Miller.

"Governor Miller has declared himself squarely and in a courageous manner," said Mrs. Rhodes. "I think he is greatly to be commended for meeting the issue in this way, and I have heard women say they were glad he said it to them instead of about them. There is difference of opinion on many points in his speech, and there are various ways of looking at the welfare bills, but on the whole I believe the Governor has done a courageous thing, and done it well."

"I'm afraid to say it," said Mrs. Belle de Rivera, founder and President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs. "Governor Miller put into words what I have been thinking. The League of Women Voters claims to exercise a certain power. It is made up of women of all parties, but it is responsible to no one. I don't believe in it. In organizing it I think Mrs. Catt saw a great vision, but as it is I don't believe it is practical. It may evolve into something great."

Mrs. Rosalie Loew Whitney and Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll also approved of Governor Miller's speech, and said they believed the time had passed by when women could do effective work outside the parties.

Calls Governor Too Forceful.

Mrs. Eugene J. Grant, former President of the City Federation, who did not vote for Governor Miller because she is a Democrat, said:

"Governor Miller was rather too forceful and not very politic. No public person can have too many friends. He has offended many women who might at some time think of voting for him. The League of Women Voters is not a political party. Its members represent many political faiths."

"In view of the fact that the women elected Governor Miller, I think this is a strange attitude for him to take," said Mrs. Thomas J. Vivian, President of the Congress of State Societies, who voted for the Governor. "I regret having voted for a man who has so changed his attitude to the women who gave him their votes. The League of Women Voters is not a political party and objects to being called one."

Mrs. Haryot Holt Dey, President of the Women's Press Club, said:

"Governor Miller seems to be mistaken in his conception of the League of Women Voters. Its members are continually stating that the league is not a political party, and it urges its members to belong to parties. Its most prominent members are women of opposite political beliefs. Miss Mary Garrett Hay sacrificed her place in the Republican Party because she believed it was her duty to oppose Wadsworth, which shows that she was working honestly for what she believed was the best thing to do politically."

"I think he is exactly right," said Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, President of the Woman's Republican Club.

"All good men can be mistaken," said Mrs. Havens Brewster Bayles of Brooklyn, former President of the Prospect Club. "Governor Miller would not be Governor Miller if it had not been for the honest independent votes. So long as the men who control the political parties debase their powers, right-minded voters can only make their protest felt by voting for the right man regardless of party. Members of the League of Women Voters vote in any way the please."

TO FIGHT FOR LEGAL RIGHTS.

National Woman's Party Would Disband to Form New Organization.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—A resolution was adopted by the National Advisory Council and State Chairmen Committee of the National Woman's Party at a meeting here today favoring disbanding of the present and the creation of a new organization. The resolution will be submitted to the National Convention of the Woman's Party to meet here Feb. 15 to 28.

The resolution also pledged the women assembled here today, "the political freedom of women having been won in the United States, to see that this freedom is not lost in any international Government that is established, and to work for the removal of all the remaining forms of the subjection of women."

The immediate work of the proposed new organization, the resolution added, should be "the removal of the legal disabilities of women."

FOR MORSE AUDIT

Chairman Walsh of Inquiry Board Fails to Reply—Schwab Can't Be Reached.

SIMILAR OFFER LAST YEAR

John Barton Payne Transmitted Original Proposal After Finding of $269,543 Voucher.

Admiral William S. Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, last night opened the way for the joint audit proposed by Perley Morse & Co., accountants, to clear all possible doubt about the disposition of the expense vouchers of Charles M. Schwab, former Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. In an audit of the accounts of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation against the Fleet Corporation Morse accountants found a Bethlehem Steel Company voucher for $269,543, representing the "special expenses" of Mr. Schwab, of which $100,000 was allotted to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, and alleged to have been charged to ship construction for the Fleet Corporation at the time that Mr. Schwab was Director General.

Admiral Benson said that he was willing that such an audit should be made of the accounts of the Fleet Corporation, that the proposal of Morse & Co. seemed fair, and that if Mr. Schwab and the Shipping Board Committee wanted such an investigation they would meet with no objection on his part.

The audit proposed by the accountants contemplates not only an examination of the accounts of the Bethlehem Steel Company and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, but an audit of the accounts of the Fleet Corporation, the United States Navy and the United States Treasury Department.

As outlined in the offer of the accountants to Chairman Joseph Walsh of the Shipping Board Committee, the audit would be made by three firms of accountants, including Morse & Co., a second firm, perhaps Price, Waterhouse & Co. auditors for the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, and a third to be selected by the first two. Their report would be submitted to a commission of which one member would be selected by the President of the United States, the second by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the third by the first two.

Admiral Won't Object.

Admiral Benson came here last night to address a joint meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He made no reference to the controversy over the Schwab voucher. Following his address he was asked by reporters what he thought of the proposal of Morse & Co.

"I have not read the letter of Morse & Co.," said the Admiral, "but I have been informed clearly of their proposition. I think that the audit they offer to make is fair, and if it is wanted by the Shipping Board Committee and by Mr. Schwab, the Shipping Board is willing that the audit should be made.

"I do not want to appear in the light of interfering in the work of the Shipping Board Committee before which I expect to be called. I will say what I have to say then.

"The Walsh committee, I understand, has exonerated Mr. Schwab, and it is really up to him to say whether such an audit should be made."

Admiral Benson said that he could not recall that the vouchers in question ever had been formally brought to his attention. He was familiar with the details of the controversy only through reports.

One Audit Under Way.

"There is an audit now in progress for the Shipping Board of the accounts of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation," added Admiral Benson, "being made by auditors of the Fleet Corporation and accountants of Morse & Co. I can express no opinion until their work is completed and they have made their final report. So far their progress has been rather slow."

An effort was made without success to reach Mr. Schwab at his home last night to inform him of what Admiral Benson had said. It was said that Mr. Schwab had retired and could not be disturbed.

Morse & Co. received no reply yesterday from Chairman Walsh of the Congressional Committee on Shipping Board Operations to the proposal for the audit.

The Bethlehem Steel Company declined a similar offer of the accountants in March, 1920 as disclosed by the testimony of Mr. Morse, head of the firm of public accountants, before the committee.

The first offer, made through John Barton Payne, then Chairman of the Shipping Board, came after the accountants' audit for the board had been stopped on Feb. 21, 1920. This audit was halted following the discovery of the voucher for $269,543. Soon after the audit was called off, the testimony of Mr. Morse showed, Chairman Payne summoned him to Washington. He sent a telegram to the accountants on March 8, saying: "Matters have developed which I think I should discuss personally with you. Glad to see you at your convenience."

Offer of Audit Made.

Mr. Morse, accompanied by his associate, George S. Burgess, formerly connected with the accounting department of the Shipping Board, went to Washington and saw Chairman Payne on March 9. The following day the accountants drew up their offer of a joint audit in a letter to Chairman Payne, which he read in their presence. The letter follows:

"March 8, 1920.

"The Hon. John Barton Payne, Chairman United States Shipping Board, Emergency Fleet Corporation, Washington, D. C.

"Dear Sir: Referring to the conversation which you had Saturday afternoon with our Mr. Perley Morse and Mr. George S. Burgess, we desire to submit to you two propositions which we believe that the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation will accept as eminently fair to protect its interests and at the same time protect the interests of the Government in the audit that we are now making of the hulls manufactured by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation for your board:

"First—That Price, Waterhouse & Co., the regular auditors of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, make a joint audit with us and sign the report jointly with us, taking exceptions to anything to which they desire to except, the work to be arranged between us in a manner agreeable and acceptable to us, as may be determined by us jointly.

"We have confidence in the fairness of Price, Waterhouse & Co. and that there will be no serious disagreement between us as to what constitutes costs. We have been associated with them before in other matters, where, after a discussion as to what constitutes cost, we readily came to an agreement and signed joint reports without any disagreement as to principle whatsoever.

"Second—If it should be found that Price, Waterhouse & Co. are too busy at the present time to assign a sufficient force of accountants to this work, we would suggest that the physical or mechanical part of the work be done by us, and that before reports are written, that all of our working papers be submitted to them and an agreement reached between us as to what are proper charges to cost, and the report be rendered by us along the lines agreed upon and approved by them and us, in case of disagreements Price, Waterhouse & Co. to state their position and we to state ours.

Would Limit Accountants.

"This latter method should be more acceptable to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, since it would limit the number of accountants employed in the work to our men, Price, Waterhouse & Co. only checking the working papers and the finished report; thereby saving expense to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, and the annoyance of having numerous auditors in their plants simultaneously.

"Respectfully submitted,

"PERLEY MORSE & CO."

In the presence of Mr. Morse and Mr. Burgess, Chairman Payne called a joint audit with Price, Waterhouse & Co. "What do you say to this?"

The offer was not accepted, and in the latest proposal for a joint audit Mr. Morse again suggests that the audit be made by his accountants and Price, Waterhouse & Co., or some company acceptable to the Bethlehem Steel Company, and a third firm of accountants to be selected by the first two.

George C. May of Price, Waterhouse & Co. was asked yesterday if his concern was willing to undertake a joint audit with Perley Morse & Co. and a third firm of accountants. Mr. May said that he could not discuss the Morse proposal in the absence of instructions from the Bethlehem Steel Company.

MUST CUT SHIPPING COST.

Benson Suggests Internal Combustion Engines to Reduce Expenses.

The cost of operating the 1,400 vessels of the United States Shipping Board has almost reached the point where it exceeds the amount of revenue produced by these ships, according to a statement made last night by Admiral William S. Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board, before a joint meeting of the Metropolitan Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the New York Section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at the Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. Admiral Benson said that the problem was to find a way to reduce the cost of operation.

"In order to make our merchant marine what it ought to be, we have got to reduce the cost of operation very materially, and that is what I mean when I say that it is largely an engineering problem."

Admiral Benson predicted that the solution would be found in the adoption of internal combustion engines, which would be used to develop electrical drive for the ships. This would result in a great saving not only in cargo space but in the amount of time consumed in the turn-around. Admiral Benson advocated the manning of our ships entirely by American citizens.

FORM SHIPPING ASSOCIATION

Builders, Equipment Makers and Dealers to Help the Industry.

At a meeting held at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday afternoon representatives of forty-seven shipbuilding companies, manufacturers of marine equipment and dealers formed an association to advance the interests of its members, to promote and supervise exhibits and help the building and operation of ships.

The importance of holding the annual marine exposition at the same time as the convention of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers and other bodies was discussed. The temporary officers of the association are Colonel E. A. Simmons, acting President, New York, and K. L. Ames Jr., Chicago, acting Secretary.

TO AMEND CLAYTON ACT.

Senate Committee Reports Frelinghuysen Bill With Some Changes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Frelinghuysen bill amending the Clayton Anti-Trust act so as to remove restrictions on railroad transactions with companies having interlocking Directorates was reported favorably by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today, modified to provide for supervision of such transaction by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The measure was presented as new legislation to meet conditions resulting from the Transportation act and from the veto by President Wilson of the bill to suspend operation of the prohibitive section of the Clayton act, applying to supply purchases from interlocking companies.

Many changes were made by the committee in the Frelinghuysen bill, as recommended by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The minimum amount of materials which railroads may purchase annually from interlocking corporations without bids was raised from $50,000 to $100,000. The bill originally placed the $50,000 limit only on single transactions.

THOMAS PAINE HONORED.

Oscar S. Straus Says He Deserves Place Beside Country's Leaders.

Oscar S. Straus, formerly Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor and Minister to Turkey, eulogized the memory of Thomas Paine at a dinner given by the Thomas Paine National Historical Society at the Café Boulevard last night. Mr. Straus called the patriot, who was born 184 years ago, the most convincing advocate of democracy, saying that he had a right to a place in our history beside Washington, Adams and Madison, as Thomas Paine was the first to take a bold stand against oppression.

Others who spoke were Mrs. William Vanamlee, acting Director of the Hall of Fame; the Rev. Charles H. Lyttle, pastor of the Second Unitarian Church, Brooklyn, and William M. van der Weyde, President of the society.

SAILORS REJECT WAGE CUT.

Neptune Association Is Against 25% Decrease for Deck Officers.

Captain Arthur N. McGray, Secretary and Treasurer of the Neptune Association, whose members include 7,000 deck officers employed on American ships, said yesterday that his organization does not favor the proposal of the American Steamship Owners' Association of a 25 per cent. wage reduction and elimination of overtime. The reason, he said, was because the "question of wages is so negligible in view of the absolute collapse of shipping that a wage reduction would not benefit ship owners to any extent."

As an indication of how small the benefit would be, Captain McGray said that the average operating expense is only about 10 or 12 per cent. of the ship owners' total cost.

The National Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association and the National Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots have not yet indicated what their answer to the ship owners will be.

STEGER FOUND INCOMPETENT

Conservator Appointed for Former Millionaire Piano Maker.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—George F. Steger, once wealthy and until recently Treasurer of the Steger and Sons Piano Company, was declared mentally incompetent and incapable of managing his affairs by a jury today.

The findings was based principally on Steger's admissions and the testimony of two alienists, who agreed that the former millionaire, although "not insane in the sense of murderous or criminal tendencies, was mentally incompetent and incapable of grasping financial matters."

The Chicago Title and Trust Company was appointed conservator of the estate and Chris G. Steger conservator of his brother's person. Several weeks ago Judge Hurner adjudged Steger a spendthrift.

BULLET HALTS COURT TRIAL.

Ball Enters Essex Market Window. Missing Magistrate—Firer Escapes.

During the trial of Harry O. Cohen of 623 East Eleventh Street yesterday afternoon in the Essex Market Court at Second Avenue and First Street a bullet entered the window of the courtroom, passed over the heads of Assistant District Attorney Henry Goodman and Magistrate Raphael Tobias and imbedded itself in the wall. Magistrate Tobias immediately halted the trial and the courtroom was cleared while policemen from the Fifth Street Station searched the neighborhood for a person with a weapon. No one was arrested.

Magistrate Tobias said that no threat had been made against his life and he had no enemies so far as he knew. He adjourned court for the rest of the day. Cohen was being tried for a violation of the tenement house law.

REWARDING POLICE

Policy of Paying Gratuities Caused Thousands of Thefts, Insurance Agents Say.

COMMITTEE TO AID WHITMAN

Detectives' Demands for "Expenses" Added $100,000 to Graft, Ex-Governor Asserts.

Members of the Theft Committee of the Automobile Conference of the Atlantic States agreed, at a conference yesterday with ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, to urge insurance companies to stop payments of rewards to policemen for the recovery of automobiles, because the promiscuous practice of granting rewards had led to wholesale stealing for the sake of rewards.

Up to a year ago, according to the insurance men, the companies were satisfied to pay rewards for exceptional service on the part of policemen, but during the last year it became apparent to them that the reward policy was the direct cause of thousands of thefts and that a combination of detectives and thieves had been built up to steal automobiles for rewards only.

Mr. Whitman said that along with the reward payments, estimated at $450,000 in 1919, had grown up a practice on the part of some detectives and policemen of demanding expense money from the 103 automobile insurance companies doing business in the city, to reimburse them for alleged outlays in the recovery of automobiles. This is said to have added another $100,000 or more to the revenue from the reward-collecting business. Mr. Whitman was asked whether any policemen had charged the Police Department and the insurance companies both for the same alleged expenses.

"I believe that has occurred," he replied. "That, of course, is being looked into."

Payments Have Fallen Off.

According to the insurance officials, the motto of "No reward, no automobile," had become a fixed rule only in the last three months. In the last ten days, it is said, reward payments have fallen off greatly.

The "reward graft," the insurance officials say, has not been practiced solely by policemen, or in conjunction with policemen. Some "independents" have stolen machines, hidden them away and watched the "No questions asked" advertisements until they saw a chance for the safe collection of the reward.

Mr. Whitman said he had evidence indicating that the great majority of the cars stolen in recent months were taken with no other purpose than that of collecting the reward.

Insurance adjusters sent to Governor Whitman yesterday lists of rewards that they had paid to members of the Police Department for recovering stolen machines. One list showed that one Sergeant had collected two rewards on one day from the same adjuster.

No instance has been reported where a car was originally stolen by a policeman. One thing which made auto thefts easy, it was pointed out, was the fact that many garages were hospitable to stolen cars. Instances have been reported where an active thief has driven several machines to a single garage in one day. Mr. Whitman said that it was no exceptional feat for a fast worker to steal a dozen automobiles in one day.

Aid Offered by Committee.

The members of the Theft Committee who called on Mr. Whitman were N. S. Bartow, President of the Queens Insurance Company, Chairman of the committee; William Ballard, President of the Commercial Union, and Richard O'Connor, Vice President of the Caledonia Insurance Company. They were accompanied by their counsel, ex-Assistant District Attorney R. H. Weller, and offered every assistance in their power to Mr. Whitman.

Mr. Whitman said that the police rule allowing the acceptance of rewards by policemen for exceptionally meritorious work could not be used as a defense by any of the accused policemen, because such authorized rewards had to receive the endorsement of the Police Commissioner in each case.

Detective Sergeant Martin S. Owens and Thomas J. Horan of the Automobile Squad, who were indicted on Thursday for accepting unlawful fees for recovering automobiles, pleaded not guilty yesterday before Judge Crain in General Sessions and were released on bail of $2,500 each.

The Grand Jury will continue on Monday to receive evidence as to alleged automobile reward graft." Cases are being prepared against five more members of the Police Department, it was said. New names were brought to light yesterday in the lists of rewards submitted by insurance adjusters, and it was said that the total indictments for reward grafting of this kind will reach a high figure, and probably will include a few city employes outside of the Police Department.

May Indict Garage Men.

The investigation has barely started, it was said, and may last several weeks, in which time it is expected that some of the original auto thieves and certain garage proprietors will be indicted.

Police Captain M. Du Bois, now under indictment and suspension on the charge of demanding and receiving a price from employing printers for furnishing police protection in the printers' strike of 1919, was called up for trial before First Deputy Commissioner Leach at the Brooklyn Headquarters yesterday. There are three charges against him, first, the acceptance of a $100 gratuity from Ralph I. Bartholomew of the Publishers' Printing Company, for which he was indicted; second, that he failed to take proper police action in the case; third, that he failed to make a report of the acceptance of the alleged fee.

Captain Du Bois, who was represented by Walter Lynch of 170 Broadway, raised the question that the Police Department had no jurisdiction over him because he had been officially retired.

Mr. Whitman had learned just before the indictment of Du Bois that his retirement was pending, and requested that Commissioner Enright suspend action. Captain Du Bois, however, contends that the Commissioner had already signed the retirement papers in Du Bois's presence and that, although the Commissioner later issued an order revoking the retirement order, he had no power to reopen the case and cancel the retirement.

Commissioner Leach adjourned the case to refer the issue raised to Commissioner Enright.

ASHMAN OUSTED AS GRAFTER.

Driver Who Got $1 a Week From Householder Dismissed by Leo.

The first victim of Street Cleaning Commissioner John P. Leo's campaign to stamp out petty grafting by ash cart drivers and paltry bribing by householders, tradespeople and others coming in contact with the street cleaning employes, was Osceola Scott of 3 East 135th Street, a negro, who was discharged yesterday.

Commissioner Leo, who lives in Washington Heights, was on his way to the subway a few days ago when in front of the home of William Kuhn, 537 West 142d Street, he saw Osceola leaving the premises with a barrel of ashes. The Commissioner asked the driver why he abandoned his five-ton motor truck to carry out a barrel of ashes. Scott, he said, explained that he got a dollar a week for carrying the ashes. The next day Scott stood trial.

Commissioner Leo has offered a reward of $10 to every street cleaning employe who will report the identity of any person who offers them gratuities for doing the work the municipality pays them for doing.

FROM PAYROLL SAFE

Expert Job in Paterson Yields Small Return After Three Are Captured and Bound.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 28.—Three crackmen, described by the police as experts, blew open a safe tonight in the plant of Samuel Smith & Sons, boiler manufacturers, and got $36 instead of the weekly payroll which they had expected.

The job was carried out after a timekeeper, a watchman and the latter's young son had been backed into an adjoining room at the point of pistols and bound hand and foot with copper wire.

Disappointed over the contents of the safe, the robbers proceeded to search the two bound men, taking a pocketbook from one and a watch from the other, in each case returning the valuables with the assurance that they were only after "stuff belonging to the big fellow."

From the time the men made their appearance until they left more than an hour was consumed, but less than a half hour was used in tearing the door out of the safe. The crackmen then got an hour's start before Thomas Foliatto, the watchman, managed to free himself and notify Police Captain McBride.

REWARD INCREASED FOR KIDNAPPED WIFE

Los Angeles Police Search for Woman for Whose Return $2,600 Is Offered.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—Departure of detectives on a secret mission has led to the report that they are on the track of the kidnappers of Mrs. Gladys Julia Witherell, who took her from her home at 1,843 Whitley Avenue Tuesday evening. Rewards aggregating $2,000 are now offered for her return.

In a statement issued today, officers stated they were firmly convinced that Mrs. Witherell is being held for ransom. They asserted the belief that the kidnapper was a man of high intelligence and that he was accompanied by a woman who was acting as a guard over Mrs. Witherell.

The Board of County Supervisors was today considering offering $1,000 reward for the return of Mrs. Witherell, which would increase the rewards now out to $3,600. John C. Kratz, the girl's father, has offered $1,000; her husband, $500; a Los Angeles newspaper, $500, and neighbors of the family, $600.

No communication from the kidnappers has been received by the husband since a letter was shoved under the doorway of his home yesterday, demanding a ransom of $50,000.

The police are continuing their search for the gray-haired man who made his appearance again yesterday. This time he visited the offices of Fred Erwing, business partner of Witherell. He told Erwing that he saw an automobile standing in Moneta Avenue, near Sixty-fourth Street. He said there was a bundle in the car, and that it quivered and from it appeared a woman's hand.

Erwing turned to the telephone to call the police. When he turned back the man had disappeared. Erwing ran into the corridor of the building, but was unable to find the mysterious stranger.

CONSTABLE HELD AS THIEF.

Accused by Negro of Complicity in Crimes at Metuchen.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 28.—Herman Berringer, the only constable in Piscataway, is in jail here today, charged with complicity in robberies of houses of wealthy residents of Metuchen which had been closed for the Winter.

His arrest followed charges made by Emanuel Hall, a negro, who confessed to the robberies, and identified Berringer as his accomplice. Berringer denied the charges, but was held in $5,000 bail.

PRESENT DEAN'S PORTRAIT.

A portrait of Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, dean emeritus of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, 437 West Fifty-ninth Street, was presented to the college last night. The presentation was made by Dr. George S. Huntington, professor of anatomy, and the portrait was accepted by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia, of which the college is a part, on behalf of the university. Dr. Lambert was present.

Dr. Huntington said that in a short time there would be an alliance between lege which will make them a unit for the Presbyterian Hospital and the college the study of medicine and give the students the benefit of the hospital laboratory. He said he believed the unification of the two institutions would serve as a model for other medical schools.

DEMANDS CABLE TO CUBA.

Western Union Seeks Permission to Splice Barbados Line.

Rush Taggart, counsel for the Western Union Telegraph Company, asked Federal Judge A. N. Hand yesterday to direct United States District Attorney Caffey to modify the Government's application for an injunction restraining the company from attempting to land a cable at Miami Beach, Fla., so that the company's cable between Barbados and Florida might be spliced to link it with Cuba.

Mr. Taggart stated that the Barbados cable had cost his client $3,000,000, and contended that the Government had no power to prevent the splicing of the cable on the high seas.

Mr. Caffey refused to consent to the modification asked for. Decision was reserved.

H. P. CRANE JR. ACCUSED.

Son of Steel Maker Held on Charge of 13-Year-Old Girl.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Herbert Prentice Crane Jr., grandson of the late Richard T. Crane, millionaire Chicago steel manufacturer, was held today by the police on charges of an attempted attack upon thirteen-year-old Louise Sturm in Lincoln Park last Wednesday evening.

Crane, who is 27 years old, was identified by the Sturm girl and also by Marie Fisher, her companion in the park.

The prisoner strenuously denied the charge today. "I know nothing whatever about the girl's charges and I can prove that I was not in the park that night," he said.

Crane was granted a continuance until Feb. 11 when arraigned in police court today. His bond was set at $10,000.

DIES OF HICCOUGHS.

Victim Had Apparently Recovered After Fifteen Days.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—John Peterson of Essington, who last week was apparently cured of a violent attack of hiccoughs lasting fifteen days, had a relapse Wednesday night and died last night. He was 45 years old. He leaves a wife and four children.

Publication of the man's plight aroused nation-wide interest, especially among those with home-made remedies. For fifteen days he scarcely ate or slept. Each mail furnished a wealth of suggestions. One writer said the hiccoughs were "flutterings of the liver, like fins of a fish," and could be cured by two teaspoonfuls of bird shot.

STAINED GLASS PANEL BID IN AT $70,000

13th Century English Window Sold to A. P. Raymond in Competition with Duveens.

$331,130 FOR 153 NUMBERS

Sir Joseph Duveen Pays $23,000 for a French Stained Glass — Big Audience Applauds Prices.

What was said to be the biggest public sale of stained glass ever held, with the biggest prices and the greatest enthusiasm among the buyers and audience, took place at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, where the Lawrence collection of Gothic and other ancient art is being sold, the returns for the afternoon being $331,130 for 153 numbers.

Seventy thousand dollars was the top price of the day, given for a thirteenth century English stained glass panel, 30½ inches by 31½, which went to A. P. Raymond of Philadelphia. The glass was started at $5,000 and ran up by thousands to the selling price. The Duveens were the competitors, running up the price to the final big selling point, Sir Joseph Duveen bidding on the fine old glass himself.

There was the biggest crowd present that the galleries have ever known, the crowds standing even in the windows, and the applause which had been enthusiastic at other large sales broke bounds at the record breaker and from all parts of the room came cries of: "Who bought it, who bought it?" The old glass was rectangular in shape, the design showing a portion of a Jesse tree with the half figure of the Christ with purple face, yellow crown, white and purple robe and yellow mantle. On either side are scrolled acanthus leaves in white, green, purple and red, with a blue background.

A French stained glass of the thirteenth century, No. 364, somewhat smaller, the subject a saint and two attendants, brought the second highest price, $23,000, going to Sir Joseph Duveen, who was purchasing for several private buyers. One of the largest buyers of the day was Raymond Pitcain, from near Philadelphia. Mr. Pitcain and the Duveens carried off most of the bigger numbers. The purchases of Mr. Pitcain, it was said, will be placed in a beautiful Swedenborgian church in his home town, built by his father, who was the head of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. Mr. Pitcain's purchases of stained glass yesterday amounted to about $100,000.

Many museums were attracted by the old glass, and among the bidders were representatives of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and A. Augustus Healy of the Brooklyn Museum. Most of the would-be museum buyers were crowded out by the others, who had no limit in price. No. 374, a French thirteenth century panel of the "Seven Sleepers" series, went for $10,800 to a buyer giving the name of Bourgeoles, and it was said that the panel would find a home in the Worcester Museum.

Among the numbers bringing the biggest prices were No. 290, fifteenth century carved and painted wooden group, which went to William O. Hubbard for $3,500; No. 345, German stained glass panel, sixteenth century, Duveen, $3,900; No. 349, thirteenth century Rhenish stained glass panel, Pitcain, $4,000; No. 350, thirteenth century French stained glass panel, Duveen, $7,000; No. 353, thirteenth century French stained glass panel, Pitcain, $5,900; No. 354, another thirteenth century French stained glass panel, Duveen, $9,000; Nos. 357 and 358, other thirteenth century French stained glass panels, for $5,500 each.

No. 361, a pair of French (Beauce) stained glass panels, thirteenth century, Pitcain, $14,000; No. 365, thirteenth century English stained glass panel, went to Duveen for $4,000; No. 367, French stained glass panel, thirteenth century, Pitcain, $4,600; No. 369, thirteenth century French stained glass panel, $7,800; No. 373, thirteenth century French stained glass panel, Pitcain, $9,100; Nos. 375, 376 and 377, thirteenth century French stained glass panels, the "Seven Sleepers" series, went to Pitcain for respectively $8,800, $7,300 and $9,500. For No. 378, a pair of thirteenth century stained glass panels, scenes from the Nativity, Duveen paid $13,200, and Nos. 379 and 380, panels of the same period, were bought by him for $8,200 and $12,600. No. 381, a quartrefoil English stained glass panel, thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, went to Seaman, agent, for $7,700. A circular thirteenth century French stained glass panel, No. 382, went to Pitcain for $6,900, and No. 383, a fifteenth century English panel of stained glass, was bought by a Mr. Rey for $3,000.

The grand total for the sale to date is $348,862. It will be concluded this afternoon.

ETHEL BARRYMORE COMING.

Detained in Cincinnati by a Minor Operation on Her Hand.

Ethel Barrymore, the star of "Déclassé, who has been ill with fugitive arthritis in a Cincinnati Hospital for the last two weeks, was unable to start for New York yesterday with her uncle, John Drew, as had been expected by her friends. Owing to the necessity for a minor operation on her hand she will have to remain in the hospital several days longer before returning home.

Two of Miss Barrymore's three children will leave for New York when she does, her eldest boy, Sam, having already been sent back to school when she first became ill. It is now considered virtually certain that Miss Barrymore will be unable to act again this season.

ROCKEFELLER A BOY SCOUT.

John D. Jr. Speaks at Westchester Dinner—May Be Commissioner.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. and James W. Gerard addressed a gathering of Boy Scouts and Scoutmasters last night at the annual dinner of the Westchester County Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the Biltmore. Martin Vogel, President of the council, presided.

Mr. Rockefeller said that, being the father of five boys, he was qualified to speak on the subject. "The future of civilization rests in the hands of the boys of today," he said. "I feel that the work that Mr. Hoover's committee is doing to save the children of Europe is of tremendous significance. Demonstrations by scouts were given before the speaking. G. W. Oakley, County Scout Executive, said that Mr. Rockefeller would be asked to become Scout Commissioner for Westchester County in place of Irvin S. Cobb, who has resigned.

Irene Castle Sues C. B. Cochrane.

Irene Castle Treman sued Charles B. Cochrane, London theatrical producer, in the Supreme Court yesterday for $20,000 damages. She alleges that in October last she signed a contract to star in a musical comedy to be produced in London by Mr. Cochrane, in which she was to be the only star and have a dancing partner acceptable to her, and was to get $2,500 a week for eight weeks. She alleges that she was to begin Dec. 23, but before that time Mr. Cochrane told her she could consider the contract canceled.

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

Miss Bori Returns in "La Boheme."

The performance of Puccini's "La Bohème" last evening at the Metropolitan Opera House was an occasion of exceptional interest to many people in the audience, because it brought back to the stage Miss Lucrezia Bori, after an absence of six years. These have been years of anxiety to her friends and admirers, of whom she gained many in her seasons in the Metropolitan Company, because the reason for her leaving it was the loss of her voice.

This was said to be due to an unskillful, or, at any rate, unsuccessful operation on her vocal chords. The restoration of it was a matter of uncertainty and of patient waiting. On her return to New York a few weeks ago she was reported to have regained fully her voice. The interest of last evening's performance, in which she took the part of Mimi, was to see whether the six years had accomplished what they were reported to have done.

It appeared that they had. Her entrance in the first act was greeted with a long continued and demonstrative welcome. Her singing of the music that follows disclosed apparently the old quality, the old power and volume, the old style. Now, Miss Bori's voice was never one of the great voices that have been heard on the stage of the Metropolitan. It was agreeable, expressive, admirably used—the vehicle of some really artistic singing; and it now once more has all these qualities, for which the esteem in which she was held before will be enhanced. Artistic singing is something to be highly valued and cherished at the Metropolitan Opera House today more than ever. But quite as valuable an element in Miss Bori's impersonations was—and is—the gracious and insinuating charm of her acting, the power of closely identifying herself with the characters she represents; her mirth, gayety and vivacity, her pathetic and poetical intensity. Within her range, which is not, naturally, one of the widest, she was, and will unquestionably continue to be, one of the most delightful and artistic members of the company. The warmth of her welcome last evening showed very clearly that she had not been forgotten, and that unfaded memories were joined with glad anticipations.

The performance enlisted otherwise singers who have appeared before in "La Boheme" this season. Mr. Scotti, the Marcello, was easily the leader of the four Bohemians in accomplished Bohemianism—they were otherwise rather a dull lot. Yet Mr. Gigli sang much of the music artistically and in beautiful voice, mingled with some of the characteristic extravagances of the Italian tenor, which are discouraging to those of his admirers who do not shout "bravo" and who wish that he would always be as artistic as he can. But for such self-restraint as he did show he is entitled to much credit.

Kathleen Parlow's Recital.

Miss Kathleen Parlow returned to the New York concert stage yesterday after an absence of some years. She was before that a familiar figure in New York, and won respect and admiration for her playing of the violin. She has returned with the same vigor and energy that animated her thin, spare frame and that signified a nervous strength and a fire that were not suspected; with the same big and broad tone, the same excellent technique in bowing and fingering and a ripe musical feeling.

Miss Parlow is in some sense sponsor of Pizzetti's sonata for piano and violin, said to be in the key of A, by Ildebrando Pizzetti, with which she created no little impression in London last Autumn. It was the finest number on her program yesterday. It was not wholly new to New York, for it was heard a couple of weeks ago in Aeolian Hall. Miss Parlow plays it with intense conviction, with great energy and power, doubtless as the composer would have it. He is an Italian, 40 years old, and the sonata is said to be dated 1919.

Pizzetti is not one of those who plunge most deeply into dissonances; but his method is of the most modern. His themes seem especially meagre and austere and his writing in comparison with what many of his contemporaries are doing is marked by simplicity and little involution. It seems, in fact, sometimes almost bare. The sonata is in three movements, marked "tempestoso," "prighiera per gli innocenti," "vivo e fresco," which, it is needless to say, are not developed in the hitherto accepted manner. The themes of the first movement seem of small musical value; there is interest in the treatment that might grow with greater familiarity with the music. The slow movement seems the least original of the three, though the themes here are more tangible than in the first and are not free from the influence of the Puccini manner. In the last movement there is the unmistakable suggestion of folksong tunefulness.

It is difficult to see, even on a repeated hearing of this sonata, either that it is the most important work of the kind since Franck's or that it adds a new page to the history of the former, both of which comments have been made upon it. Miss Parlow had the assistance of Mr. Howard Brockway in playing it, for it is music in which the piano proceeds on an equal plane with the violin. He entered upon the music in the same spirit as did Miss Parlow, and the result was a performance that clearly did full justice to Pizzetti.

Miss Parlow then played Glazunoff's concerto, a work which needs the orchestra for its proper coloring. It has been made familiar here in recent years by Mr. Zimbalist's playing. Miss Parlow delivered it with much dash, but not with perfect finish or with entire correctness of intonation in the more complicated passage. Among the numbers which followed were Beethoven's Romance in G, two pieces by Suk, others by Quilter and Frank Bridge and Wieniawski's "Airs Russes."

Rachmaninoff With Philharmonic.

Serge Rachmaninoff played with the Philharmonic Orchestra again at its matinee yesterday in Carnegie Hall, repeating his own pianoforte concerto No. 3, in D minor. Before the pianist appeared Mr. Stransky conducted Borodin's symphony in B minor, and afterward Tchaikovsky's "Slavic March," comprising, with the solo number, an "all-Russian" program. An audience that completely filled the hall was stirred to especial enthusiasm by the performance of Mr. Rachmaninoff, as another great crowd had been on the previous evening.

Mrs. Julie Powell Sues for Divorce.

Mrs. Julie M. Powell, who appeared in "The Lady of the Lamp" under the name of Eileen Wilson, filed a suit in the Supreme Court yesterday for a separation from her husband, William H. Powell, who plays one of the leading rôles in "Spanish Love." The couple were married in 1915 while members of a stock company at Portland, Ore., and she alleges that her husband has never supported her, although he has earned not less than $250 a week.

MUSIC NOTES.

Hector Dufranne, who sings the name part in Leroux's "Le Chemineau" at the Manhattan this afternoon, was the creator of that role in Paris. The opera from Richepin's poetic story has been only twice performed in New York hitherto. M. Maguenat was its hero when the Chicago company gave it here two seasons ago, on Jan. 31 and Feb. 10, 1919.

Otokar Sevcik has personally awarded the prize scholarship of $1,200, given by Jan Kubelik in his Bohemian master's name at Ithaca Conservatory, to a young Russian violinist from Philadelphia, Grisha Monasevitch.

Galli-Curci and Josef Lhevinne will give a joint concert at the Metropolitan Opera House on the afternoon of Sunday, Feb. 13, in aid of the music school maintained by Greenwich House, 44 Barrow Street.

COURT FINDS JOLSON SONG LIKE TOSCA AIR

Judge Hand Hears "Avalon" Played, Then Listens to Operatic Melody.

COPYRIGHT SUIT ORDERED

Tunes Played in Court on Piano, Trumpet, Violin and Phonograph.

A piano, a violin, a trumpet and a phonograph, gave noisy testimony yesterday before Federal Judge A. N. Hand in the suit of G. Ricordi & Co. for an injunction restraining J. H. Remick & Co., music publishers, from trafficking in the song "Avalon" sung by Al Jolson and others. The plaintiffs contend that the music is the same as the music of an aria in the opera La Tosca, the copyright of which they hold.

The phonograph produced the song, the air was played on the piano, the violin repeated the harmony and the trumpet accentuated certain notes which are alleged to have clearly indicated the alleged plagiarism. After these tests the Court agreed with Nathan Burkan, counsel for the plaintiff, that there was close similarity between the song and the aria and parts of them might reasonably be considered the same.

Leon Laski, counsel for the defendant, contended that the passages, even if they were precisely the same in song and operatic aria, could not be considered original because they had appeared in melodies as far back as the thirteenth century. Mr. Burkan asked that the defendant be required to furnish a bond of $50,000 because it had received $60,000 for mechanical records of the song and had sold 800,000 copies of the music. The court granted a temporary injunction, directed the plaintiff to furnish a bond of $25,000 to guarantee prosecution of the copyright infringement suit and agreed to stay the restraining order if the defendant put up a bond for the same amount to guarantee the payment of damages and costs if it lost the suit.

MARY GARDEN SINGS CARMEN

Large Audience Greets Chicago Directrix in Bizet's Music Drama.

"Carmen" was sung to a house sold out at the Manhattan last night, with all of Bizet's leading rôles, and, indeed, half the entire cast and much of the ensemble, repeating those heard in various former visits of the Chicago Opera Association. Mary Garden, now the company's directrix, had first essayed the Spanish gypsy here as far back as Feb. 18, 1912, at the Metropolitan.

The parent forces of the Chicago organisation once before that occasion had given the opera in the course of their first return as guests on Broadway, on Feb. 21, 1911, with Marguerite Sylva. In their most recent pair of performances in 1918 at the Lexington Miss Garden was associated with Muratore and Baklanoff, both heard with her last evening, as well as two others, Nicolay and Defrere, again in minor rôles of the smugglers.

Bizet's music drama, it should not be forgotten, had made part of the history and furnished most of the prosperity of Oscar Hammerstein's opening Manhattan season of 1906-7. It was Chlotilde Bressler-Gianoli who then captured the hearts of New Yorkers, the first woman to do so completely after Emma Calvé, with whom she even shared the same stage during that season.

Miss Garden's Carmen last night was characterized by energy of action as well as by vocal limitations already familiar, showing changes of detail in an interpretation she has oftener given in the West. Alice Zeppilli was heard once more as Micaela. Mr. Muratore, a soldierly figure as Don José, was heartily applauded in the tenor's "Flower Song," and Mr. Baklanoff, dramatic always, received a like tribute without effacing all memories in the air of the Toreador. Mr. Marinuzzi conducted with zeal and musical authority.

Among newer members of the cast were Margery Maxwell and Carmen Pascova, the latter an Australian, as Carmen's girl companions, and Cotreuil as José's commanding officer. There were manifestations of approval for the entr'acte airs, the dances before the bullring, and once for the well set stage picture of the gypsy encampment.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The postponed opening of "In the Night Watch" at the Century will take place tonight.

Maurice Schwartz and his Yiddish company appeared at the Irving Place Theatre in "The Middle Classes," by Maxim Gorky.

"Tickle Me" and "Linger Longer Letty," both of which have been playing largely in Shubert theatres, will be presented in A. L. Erlanger's houses in Chicago this Spring. "Tickle Me" will open at the Illinois on April 3 and "Linger Longer Letty" will be seen at the Olympic on April 10.

Ossip Dymow's "The Pest" was given its first production last night at the Jewish Art Theatre.

Norman Trevor, appearing in "Enter Madame," will give two special performances of Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband" in about a month in aid of the Post-Graduate Hospital.

"Tickle Me" will enter upon its final two weeks at the Selwyn Theatre next Monday night.

"Honeydew" will end its run at the Casino three weeks from tonight.

One price—fixed and inflexible —50c for service

McBRIDE'S are trying to stabilize the theatre ticket business by establishing firmly the policy that fifty cents above box office price is the proper value of the best theatre ticket service.

The very foundation of this business is our reputation for squareness and service and that's something that no premiums could induce us to sacrifice. There are no evasions—no excuses. Our fifty cent policy is unalterable—no matter how much the traffic will bear.

TAPERING DOWN.

All the correspondents at Palm Beach got one item of news when Mr. HARDING made his brief stop there. It was that Mr. HOOVER had been "eliminated" as a Cabinet possibility. The announcement was made as if no human agency had been involved; somehow, in the course of the four or five days on the Indian River, Mr. HOOVER had got lost. That was all. It was merely a sort of accident that Mr. HOOVER had been eliminated. Senator JOHNSON'S fierce opposition to him had had nothing whatever to do with it.

Wise or unwise, the decision not to invite Mr. HOOVER to enter the Cabinet will disappoint great numbers of Republicans. His name had stood in their minds as sure to be among those of the big men with whom the next President was going to surround himself. If within ten days of the Presidential election there had been a guessing contest as to the men most likely to be in the Cabinet, the chances are that ROOT and WOOD and HOOVER would have topped the list. Today it appears that not one of them is to be in the Cabinet. Instead, the indications are that we are to have FALL and DAUGHERTY and HAYS. This recalls the saying of "TOM" PLATT about the late TIMOTHY WOODRUFF, when a nomination was to be made, that it looked as if the situation might "taper down to TIM."

GARDEN SEEDS AND THE COAST GUARD.

Early in January the division commanders of the Coast Guard cutters received the following instructions:

"Reduce fuel and fresh water consumption to lowest possible minimum. Vessels to steam only when absolutely necessary. Use pulling boats instead of power launches."

Captain BYRON L. REED, division commander at New York, explains that the Treasury Department, Congress failing to make adequate appropriations for the Coast Guard Service, has cut our funds to a point where we cannot respond to any distress call except where a ship is in imminent danger of sinking and lives are in immediate danger." Unless Congress comes to the relief of the service, whose duty and pleasure it is to go to the relief of anybody in distress, 1,000 men will have to be laid off by the 1st of July. If there was ever a hard-working, self-sacrificing, meritorious and economical organization, it is the Coast Guard. Its recruiting stations have been closed to cut expenses. The Coast Guard hasn't much influence with Congress. Perhaps if it were associated with the Navy Department, instead of with the Treasury Department, its "S O S" call would be heeded.

Congress should be commended for every honest impulse toward economy that it exhibits, especially when it does something rational to save the public money and reduce taxation. When the question is "free seeds" for distribution by sacks and carloads, a form of spending money that is no longer necessary, whatever impulse toward economy Congress displays, the final action is for continuing the distribution because there are votes in it. In spite of exhortations to retrench and pledges not to waste money, the House of Representatives has just voted $360,000 for "free seeds," although the Appropriations Committee refused to insert any appropriation at all in the Agricultural bill. It is to be noted that the Agricultural Department asked for $239,000, or $121,000 less than the House finally gave it in a fit of improvident generosity, flushing the protests of an outspoken minority. Not far short of half a million dollars for "free seeds," which the country could have got along without, and beggarly sums for the Coast Guard, which those who go down to the sea in ships cannot get along without!

SUBWAY PROFITS.

The Mayor on Thursday said that "the Interborough had admittedly been "making money on its contract with "the city." The Mayor makes up the city budget and he knows that the Interborough surplus is a deficit for the city under the contract. On the Interborough accounts alone for the five months ended with November the Interborough failed to earn its interest by $44,819, if we may trust The Subway Sun. That small deficit leaves out the fact that the subway earned nothing toward the $80,000,000 of the city's investment on which the taxpayers pay the interest.

For the last half of 1920 the Interborough reports a deficit of $2,864,749 on the elevated lines and a surplus over interest for the subway of $181,989. For the same period the city paid interest of about $2,200,000 on its bonds issued in aid of the joint undertaking. A surplus can be found only by not including the city's interest, to which the subway is obligated both by its bond and by the sacred contract. Including the city interest, there appears a deficit of $2,018,000 for the subway and $2,864,749 for the elevated lines. Different figures can be found by different combinations, but on any of them the city is many millions away from reducing its budget or interest payments by any fictitious surplus, calculated by leaving out the burden of the city's investment, which is paid by the taxpayers. The budget recites the fact, so the Mayor must know it.

TARIFF MIRACLE-WORKERS.

It was a despairing professor of that branch who said that "miracles, "driven from their own field, have "taken refuge in political economy." Instances abound. Take the high-tariff advocates and beggars in Washington. What they gravely propose looks like necromancy. They profess to think that they can, by a customs duty, "make the foreigner pay to get into our market," and yet that when he does get in the native consumer will not have to pay him, and all local producers, a higher price on account of the tariff tax. This is sheer thaumaturgy—if it is not nonsense. So is the solemn plan to keep out all foreign goods, yet compel foreign nations to pay the uttermost farthing of what they owe us. That payment, under such conditions, could be made only by resort to the Black Art.

Mr. HARDING'S recent message to the Southerners about the idyllic beauties of a protective tariff was straight from the Age of Innocence, economically speaking. It was an echo of the earlier "Ohio idee." To it wonders were of every-day occurrence. Larks were all the while falling from the sky to make protectionist pies. There was then a childlike faith in the efficacy of tariff taxes which nobody had to pay. Simple-hearted folk believed implicitly in all the promises of the miracle-mongers of protection. The industrial situation of the country has since then changed radically, our financial outlook has been completely altered, yet the Republican Senators at Washington are still babbling the old fairy-tales of the protectionist nursery.

AN OLD-FASHIONED GOVERNOR.

Both those who agree and those who disagree with the opinions expressed by Governor MILLER in his speech to the New York State League of Women Voters must applaud his courage and his frankness. Not since GROVER CLEVELAND has New York had a Governor so ready to "speak right out in meetin'." He hasn't the least fear of losing votes. That is the best recipe for winning them. Instead of flattering the women of the League, and exuding honey after the manner of politicians addressing the new voters, he told them exactly what he thought. He treated them to one of the most interesting surprise parties that has been seen in the politics of New York. Whether he went too far or not, it is a mighty comforting thing to have a Governor who liberates his soul freely and doesn't care a rap whether anybody likes it or not.

The accomplished leaders of the League may console themselves with the reflection that the Governor had a cold in his head, that he has been working too hard, and that the state of his health may have communicated a little severity to his remarks, but they should candidly ask themselves whether they may not profit by some of his criticisms. The League of Women Voters is or was meant to be a non-partisan organization. In disseminating political information and aiding the political education of women voters, it is doing good work. There is always a danger that societies of this sort may well become close corporations run by little coteries.

Of course, Governor MILLER'S strictures may be thought to have a partisan origin in the anti-Wadsworth campaign, but there is a soundness to some of them beyond dispute. There have been many instances of that successful, pushing minority sway, of the political influence of ostensibly non-political associations. Governor MILLER regards every such organization as "a menace to our institutions." That is an overstatement. The League of Women Voters, for instance, would inevitably be disrupted if it continued to throw itself on one side or the other in political campaigns. It couldn't hold the majority of its own members. Women voters will be divided among political parties or independents in presumably the same proportions as men voters. The League will have to justify itself by its wisdom; and it is possible enough that, as woman suffrage comes to be an old story, such an organization will be regarded as superfluous. Meanwhile, its leaders might profit by such straightforward criticism as the Governor made. It can't expect its friends to be the best judges of its course.

If something of what the Governor said about social welfare is contentious matter, his general idea is sound. Women are supposed to be specially interested in social welfare. That is natural. But there must always be an economic corrective to their generous purposes. The humanitarian, the sentimentalist, the sociologist and the faddist stand upon the taxpayer, and they are in the way of becoming an intolerable burden. When new State and Federal activities are blithely proposed, the members of the League of Women Voters and everybody else must remember that the taxpayers are in evil case enough already. There is no danger that social welfare will be neglected. There is constant danger that the kind-hearted will insist that the State protect people who don't want to be protected, and elicit new groans from those who have to "foot the bills." Governor MILLER'S speech, whatever objection may be raised against details in it, was not destitute of hard common sense and disagreeable fact. While we sympathize with the fluttering it caused among its hearers, we are glad that New York has a Governor who dares to say what he thinks.

THE RAILWAY LABOR QUESTION.

If the Esch-Cummins law is to accomplish the benefits intended, it is necessary that it should be observed by all concerned under it. It was intended to benefit railway investors, but primarily for the sake of the users of the railways. It was not intended to lessen the wages which labor ought to receive, if earned and within the power of the railways to pay. The law was not passed and must not be administered in a partisan manner. Neither can it be ignored by those with a preference for earlier methods of procedure, as though the relations between capital and labor were not affected with a public interest as much as the transportation service itself.

It is a cause for regret that one small road put itself in the wrong on a point of procedure in opening the movement for a revision of its wage scale. The road simply reduced wages, as if the Esch-Cummins law had not been passed. That method of reducing wages is not now feasible, nor even lawful. The workers are right in saying that they must be consulted before such action is taken under the present Railway law, and that the right of appeal to the Railway Labor Board depends upon disagreement between them and their employers. Probably the company was not wrong in taking the disagreement for a certainty, but it was wrong in its procedure, and it gave the first trick to its employés. There is a bigger railway labor question almost ripe, and it may be hoped that the companies will not fail to use reason and observe the law.

"CONTROL" OF INDUSTRY BY LABOR.

In comparison with the Red demands of the Italian metal workers, who lately seized the factories and tried to operate them through soviets or committees, the plan which the Giolitti Government has outlined for industrial control by labor is so palely pink as to seem positively reactionary. Of such active control as centres in handling capital, opening new markets, adopting new methods, buying and selling, the report is significantly silent. It concerns itself chiefly with methods of familiarizing the workers with industrial conditions, all reasonable betterment of their social and economic status, providing them with opportunities of technical instruction, permitting them to inform themselves as to the observance of laws passed for their protection, and so forth. In brief, the plan uses the word "control" in its present Continental and also its primary English sense of checking up facts, as a means of determining the righteousness of conditions by inquiry or experiment. Labor is to control industry about as far as the Controller controls the currency. The ownership and command is to rest where it is.

The project is, however, none the less interesting. It is, in fact, infinitely more promising than an attempt at subversive measures. Under the Italian scheme there is to be a committee of nine to represent the workers, of whom three are to be elected by managers and technical experts. These are to familiarize themselves with all conditions in the industry short of trade secrets and other functions of proprietorship which are necessarily private. The owners and their lieutenants are to appoint a corresponding committee of nine to confer with the so-called Committee of Control and facilitate reforms. This is a frank and wholesome admission that the laborer has an interest in his industry which, while it includes his pay envelope, goes beyond merely material considerations to his natural desire for contact with the industrial and social fabric. It remains to be seen what the Italian radicals will say to it.

USEFUL ARMENIA.

Armenians in Constantinople report the picking up of a wireless message from LENIN to the Foreign Minister of the new Soviet Armenia, lately installed under the suzerainty of Moscow and now engaged in negotiating with the Turkish Nationalists. It was not a very encouraging communication. "For the present," says LENIN, "Armenian territorial aspirations "must be sacrificed to the interest of "world revolution." The immediate occasion was a request for the dispatch of troops, which apparently LENIN could not spare, to protect the Armenian frontier; but it applies very well to the whole Bolshevist policy toward Armenia. The Armenians have been driven back into a tiny corner of their country, and there apparently they must stay because LENIN finds MUSTAPHA KEMAL useful, and for the present must meet his demands. Later KEMAL may not be so necessary and the Red armies may descend into Anatolia on the pious errand of liberating Armenia.

But there should be no haste to throw the first stone at this somewhat cynical gentleman in the Kremlin. LENIN learned how to handle the Armenian question from the Powers of Western Europe. For the last fifty years or so, not to mention medieval instances, Armenian aspirations, territorial and otherwise, were constantly being sacrificed to one thing or another. Armenia always offered a convenient excuse for an outburst of moral indignation, but when the Turks had given up something to the indignant Power it always happened that somehow Armenia had to be sacrificed. Some day Russia, whether red, white or navy blue, will start toward warm water once more, and the liberation of Armenia will once more arouse the sympathy of the world. Quite possibly, when the smoke has blown away, the Armenians will be better off than they are now; but if so, it will be because for once their interest happened to coincide with something desired by a stronger Power. Armenia has done a great deal of service to Europe; without her a good many chestnuts would still be in the fire.

THOSE WHO TOIL NOT.

The grievance submitted by Brooklyn housewives for action by Congress has seldom been surpassed as an instance of flagrant injustice which is beyond the scope of law. These overburdened wives and mothers say something, in the familiar manner of the farmer, about an eight-hour day for dishwashers; but the burden of their complaint is against spinsters who toil not, and especially against childless married women. They demand that these be conscripted and 'prenticed out to overburdened mothers for three days' work each week.

One can imagine the rage of the spinsters, the blessing of whose singleness would be mitigated on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. But the childless wife is an ultra-modern phenomenon. Imagination falters at the spectacle she might present upon being bound to the care of another's brood on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and especially on the Saturday holiday. In spite of ADAM SMITH, the basic wealth of any nation is in its citizens, in their character and ability, without which the utmost riches are only corruption; and, as things go nowadays, those who produce citizens are doubly penalized—penalized in having to pay all they have to support them and far more grievously penalized in not being able to afford the education and upbringing which all good children deserve. If the basis of citizenship is service, then clearly spinsters should become dishwashers on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, while childless wives turned nursemaids on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Such an arrangement is beyond the most strident demand for social justice. The spinster has long ceased to be conscriptable, either for domestic service or for the purpose of true comedy. She has become a "bachelor" and thus one of the most privileged and enviable of mortals—self-sustaining, self-respecting, free. Only the childless wife is more privileged, if not more enviable; for she is quite as free as the bachelor girl and does not have to bother about that matter of self-sustention. Not only is she not yet a character in comedy; she doubtless never will be. Both are, if not exactly Lords of Creation, yet certainly the only beings to whom those Lords do homage. For saying that a man is responsible for the actions of his wife the law has been called an ass. But it is not ass enough to say that the apostles of bachelor girlhood and birth control shall be bound out as help to mere matrons and housewives.

It was clearly in prevision of this that the Brooklyn housewives closed their petition with the asseveration that 60 per cent. of Congressmen are paid more than they are worth. It may not have been wise to say so; but saying it doubtless relieved many minds.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Industrial Precedents Set Aside.

Old principles of law governing the relations and responsibilities of "fellow-servants" have been much changed, as everybody knows, by recent legislation in regard to the liabilities of employers and the compensation of workmen for injuries suffered in the course of employment.

These changes have been due to great changes in the nature of industry since the days when manufacturing was done on a small scale and the contacts between employers and employés, like those between men in the same service, were far closer than they are now. Another influence has been the increased appreciation of the fact that labor has rights as well as capital.

The new ideas have had, as they deserved, the general approval of the public, and there is nowhere any desire, or at least there is no openly avowed desire, for a return to the old "rules" that left the workman to bear practically all the burdens and dangers incidental to his labor. Even a change for the better, however, can be carried too far, and a recent decision by the New York State Court of Appeals certainly goes a long way along the new path, and, without any disrespect for the learned Judges, or any intimation that they were wrong, can be called surprising, or even startling.

Liability Determined by Service.

It seems that one day, in the Champlain Silk Mills, a skylarking boy threw an apple across one of the rooms. He had no intention of hurting anybody, but he did. The apple hit one LEO BRUNO in the right eye, and, as a result of the blow, the sight of that eye was seriously and permanently affected—almost completely destroyed. BRUNO demanded compensation from his employers and they resisted the claim, denying that any responsibility for it rested on them.

The case went to the Court of Appeals, and there the right to recover was upheld. Judge CARDOZO, who wrote the decision, after reviewing other cases in this and other States and in England, thus explained the conclusion reached:

> The risks of injury incurred through the acts of fellow-workmen are not measured by the tendency of such acts to serve the master's business. Many things that have no such tendency are done by workmen every day. The test of liability under the statute is not the master's dereliction, whether his own act or that of his representatives acting within the scope of their authority. The test of liability is the relation of the service to the injury of the employe.

In the last sentence, evidently, lies the basis of the decision—BRUNO suffered his injury while at work, and therefore his compensation must come from the industry—must be paid, not by himself, but, ultimately, by the consumers of its products. One inclines to ask, "How would it be if he had been stabbed or shot by a fellow-workman in settlement of a real or imagined wrong committed outside the shop?"

They Do It Without One Smile!

If Christian Scientists had a sense of humor—which, of course, they haven't and can't have, else would most of their time be used up in laughing at themselves—they never would have appealed to the State Board of Education against the decision of New York City's board that teachers cannot get pay while absent on account of an illness that is certified only by a practitioner of Christian Science.

As such practitioners vehemently deny the existence of illness, or at least deny that illness is a reality, for one of them to certify that a teacher has been sufficiently ill to justify remaining at home is a most obvious absurdity—a sort of joke—at which our educational authorities cannot possibly do more than smile, crossly or good-humoredly according to individual taste or temperament.

The demand and refusal, however, do have a serious side in that they call renewed attention to the presence in our public schools of teachers who, in exact proportion to their consistency as believers in the Eddyite delusions, are incompetent to perform one of the teacher's very important duties—that of watching for the presence of pupils suffering from contagious diseases and, when found, sending them promptly home for treatment, in order that other pupils may not be infected. A Christian Scientist teacher who thus admitted that a child was sick and a danger to other children would have to repudiate and violate the fundamental principles of her faith, and there are some of them, at least, who would not do that, whatever the consequences might be.

And yet here they are complaining that their "healers" are not allowed to certify the illnesses of those very teachers!

He Claims to Solve the Problem.

Another dispatch from Paris, printed yesterday, seems to confirm previous reports to the effect that an engineer from Argentina has constructed a flying machine on the "helicopter" principle that is receiving the serious attention of the French Government. Indeed, so serious is the attention said to be that the French War Office is declared to have bought the exclusive right to use the Argentine's invention.

That is not quite the same as saying that the new helicopter has demonstrated its practicality, but it is enough to excite interest. The helicopter idea is not new—it is even older, and much older, than those ideas by the use of which the WRIGHT brothers, first of human kind, really "flew" and made the conquest of the air a reality. So many helicopters, however, have disappointed the hopes of their inventors that most aviation specialists have come to the conclusion that machines of that sort never will work.

That conclusion is unsafe—as unsafe as was the conclusion of many other specialists that mechanical flight was for man impossible and that those who attempted it were more or less insane. "Impossible" is a word that should be used with great caution, and whether a helicopter will work or not is a matter of fact, not of opinion.

If the engineer from Argentina can do what he says he can with his machine, the day of airplanes as we know them now approaches its end, for a successful helicopter will be free from several of the grave faults and weaknesses of the present machine, and will be able to do several highly desirable things which it never can attempt.

Opportunity for Harding.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Hon. Elihu Root is to be congratulated upon the wisdom and timeliness of his letter to Mr. Butler in reference to the proposed conference upon disarmament. To try to force the issue now, right at the threshold of a new Administration particularly charged by the American people with the settlement of the entire international problem, and not give President-elect Harding the opportunity to include it in his plan for world peace, would seem the height of unwisdom made worse by its impertinence.

DAYLIGHT SAVING REPEAL.

Mr. Betts Wants to Save the State "Annoyance" of Two Times.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has just been called to a recent editorial comment of yours on my introduction in the Assembly of a bill to repeal the daylight saving law of this State. Your discussion of the question seems to be somewhat confusing, therefore I hope you will give me sufficient space in your valuable paper to make the issue clear.

First—The so-called Daylight Saving law was enacted by the Congress in 1918 as a purely war emergency measure.

Second—It was understood at the time that its operation would result in a serious handicap to the farmers of the country, and that as soon as the war was over it should be repealed and the farmers should be relieved of its injurious effects.

Third—In August, 1919, the Congress kept faith with the American farmers on this subject, and amended that section of the law which provided for daylight saving by ordering the clocks set back to standard time, as provided in Section 3 of the original act.

Fourth—On the first day of the session of the New York State Legislature in 1920 I introduced a bill to repeal the State law, in harmony with the action of the Congress on this subject.

Fifth—There was so much opposition from the city members that in order to gratify them the bill was changed so as to amend the municipal law, conferring upon the local authorities in cities and villages the right to have local option on daylight saving by passing an ordinance to this effect.

Sixth—The bill in this form granted to cities and villages the right to have daylight saving, but relieved the farmers from its operation. Governor Smith vetoed this bill, and on election day the farmers vetoed him.

Seventh—The first time that Congress ever passed an act applying to the whole United States and its territories on this subject was in 1918, in which act they divided the United States and its territories into zones, fixing the standard time in each zone the same as it had been from the foundation of this Republic.

Eighth—When the Congress amended the law in August, 1919, it only amended Section 3, which provided for setting the clock ahead during the Summer months, and so amended it that the clocks should be set back to standard time as provided in Section 1 of the original act; therefore the Federal law enacted as a war emergency measure is still upon the statute books, in full force and effect, the same as it was during the war.

Ninth—It will thus be seen that the State law is in direct conflict with the Federal act, for it is a well-settled principle of law that when Congress has authority to legislate upon a subject it has supreme authority. The act having been a war emergency measure, and we still being technically at war, the Federal law is supreme over the State law, and therefore the State law is unconstitutional and should be wiped from the statute books.

Tenth—The House committee which investigated this subject in its report declared that while the people in the cities and villages could adjust themselves to the scheme of daylight saving, the farmers could not do so without severe injury to the farming industry, for the reason that the farmers have to work in harmony with the laws of nature and with the seasons and they could not change either, and the committee further declared that the daylight saving scheme "upset nature's plan on the farm for both man and beast." Therefore, Section 3 of the act providing for daylight saving was repealed by the House over the President's veto by a vote of 223 to 109 and in the Senate by a vote of 57 to 19.

Eleventh—It has been claimed that the workingmen of the country are in favor of daylight saving, and yet the American Federation of Labor at its annual convention held at Atlantic City in August, 1919, when the question of repealing the daylight saving section of the Federal law was before Congress, voted down, by an overwhelming majority, a resolution memorializing Congress to retain the daylight saving law.

Twelfth—The representatives from the country districts of this State were willing that the people in the cities should have daylight saving, if they wanted it, and this is the reason they consented to an amendment to the municipal law conferring power upon the local authorities to provide for local option on daylight saving. They contended, however, that the city representatives should not insist upon having daylight saving at the expense of the farmers, when it was not necessary.

It is conceded, even by many people in the cities, that having two times is a source of annoyance, but the railroads and Post Offices were conducted on the Federal standard time, therefore the amendment to the municipal law giving local option to cities and villages did not change the situation.

A year's experience with the two times, I believe, has convinced a majority of the people of the State that a straight repeal of the State law in harmony with the Federal law is now desirable, and that local option, even for cities, is in the nature of a nuisance.

Thanks for the Rescuers of a Dog.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I ask that you will see that the enclosed check gets to the Captain and the quartermaster of the ferryboat Edgewater, running on the Fort Lee route, who saved "the little black and white dog" from a cake of ice in the Hudson River, as so delightfully told on your editorial page today, and ask them to have a smoke, with the thanks of an admirer of dogs?

Incidentally, I want to express my appreciation of THE NEW YORK TIMES, a good, reliable paper to start the day with and a splendid paper for its clean and informing news and editorial writings to end the day with.

THE MOTE.

Americans we were, a little group
Around a table in a festive room,
Conversing lightly on a fruitful theme—
Our Country; and as little logical
As patriots of other lands, who boast
Each of his own. (A mother on her babe,
Or lover on his sweetheart newly won,
May turn more often a discerning eye.)
The name of our good neighbor, Canada,
Came into our discussion, and I heard
A woman say, "I find Canadians
Too egotistical! They think themselves
The best, and bravest, and most eminent
In all achievement, most intelligent,
And altogether greatest of the race
In all the world!" Indulgently I smiled—
"Can we condemn them? Do not we ourselves Think likewise of ourselves?" In quick surprise,
Her look rebuked me. "But we are!" she said.

GRACE AGNES TIMMERMAN.

FOREIGN BANKS IN FRANCE

Denial That Their Existence Is Menaced by the New Law Proposed by Deputy Gerald.

By HENRY E. GOURD,
President of the French Chamber of Commerce of New York.

New York, Jan. 24, 1921.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has been called to two articles published recently in your esteemed paper and I have just read them with great interest. One is entitled "For Big Tax on Foreign Banks; Deputy Would Penalize Them Heavily for Alleged Hammering of Exchange," and the other one is entitled "Criticises French Foreign Bank Plan; Guaranty Trust Official Compares It Unfavorably With Banking Laws Here."

As President of the French Chamber of Commerce of New York it is my duty as well as it is my pleasure to do all that is in my power to contribute not only to maintain but also to develop the friendly relations of already long standing between the United States and my country, so as to strengthen the ties that have united them in two memorable wars. I am, therefore, anxious to see any misunderstanding between them avoided and, as I fear that the titles of the articles above alluded to might prove somewhat captious or misleading, I beg to submit to your readers a few short remarks on the subject.

I have before me the preamble of the bill introduced in the French Chamber of Deputies by Mr. Georges Gérald and I translate literally the passages incriminated by your correspondent: "We witness the establishment on our territory of banks belonging to various nations who often, even in the course of the great events that we have gone through during the last five years, have shown us neither respect nor sympathy."

This is, in my opinion, a statement of unquestionable facts; it is, furthermore, a statement which does not apply to the Americans, who have given us, during the period mentioned, a constant help, acknowledged in France with sincere gratitude, and who have shown us, then and since, in many circumstances, a much appreciated sympathy.

"These banks," adds the author of the bill, "take advantage of the lower rate of exchange, the unexplainable variations whereof reveal shady manoeuvres to establish themselves with great luxury and expense and to acquire against our interest, naturally, the facilities indispensable to the carrying out of their plans. They do not only compete with our best institutions of credit in a way that the latter can hardly counteract, but they create unavoidably on our market financial disturbances resulting most often from regrettable methods, to say the least, the consequences of which are incalculable."

Commenting upon these assertions, your correspondent writes:

"In the preamble of the bill, which is a savage attack on foreign banks and their shady manoeuvres, the author of the bill, Deputy Georges Gérald, makes it clear that his purpose is indeed to make their continued existence in France impossible."

In qualifying the above statement as "a savage attack on foreign banks and on their shady manoeuvres" your correspondent goes rather too far, in my opinion, and there is no reason, at any rate, why American bankers should take offense at Mr. Gérald's remarks, if they do not feel guilty of having resorted to the questionable methods alluded to by him, and I have no doubt that their conscience is perfectly at rest on that score.

Assuming, on the other hand, merely for the sake of argument, that the French bankers should have inspired this proposed legislation, were they justified by the circumstances? That is the question. Let us, therefore, examine the situation which confronts them, from their own point of view. When they see representatives of nations whose moneys are at an extraordinarily high premium come and make a splurge in France, buying the most conspicuous buildings, in the most frequented districts, and fitting them up as luxuriously as possible in order to catch the eye of the public, to inspire it with confidence in their financial resources and to capture its trade, at a very small expense in pounds, dollars, pesetas, &c., and when they see the same foreigners disorganize all their services by offering to their employes twice or three times, if not more in certain cases, the salaries that they paid them, is it astonishing that they should try to protect themselves against such competition? Are they warranted in proposing to have restrictions imposed upon foreigners, especially when they come from countries where protection against outsiders is in high honor and where the French are subject to restrictions in the banking business and in others as, to cite only one example, a Frenchman, for instance, cannot import or sell any alcoholic beverages here for medicinal purposes, when citizens can add when any American can sell anything that he cares to sell in France? Is not, therefore, the spirit of self-defense, which would seem to prompt them, not only comprehensible but excusable in the eyes of whoever is willing to admit, in good faith, that in legislation there is such a thing as reciprocity?

Furthermore, your correspondent's conclusion seems to me rather far-fetched, inasmuch as, if the author of the bill had had in view to make "the continued existence of foreign banks in France impossible," he would have resorted to other means than a taxation, copied on the measures recently adopted by the Spanish Government, and than the obligation for them to obtain of the French Government an authorization by decree, in order to be able to receive deposits or to take part in any operation relative to foreign issues, other than those concerning their own nationals. In fact, in obliging foreign banks to obtain the authorization of the Government so as to be able to receive deposits, the proposed bill is by no means as radical as the law of the State of New York, which does not allow foreign banks to receive deposits nor even to carry on a local discounting business. Still, these two operations constitute the fundamental transactions of banks that do not make a specialty of exchange, of letters of credit, of promoting enterprises or making loans. In France, so far, American banks, without being bound to employ local capital, which is not the case for French banks here, have enjoyed, on the contrary, all the same privileges as French banks, and they might yet do so, according to the proposed legislation, by obtaining from the Government the authorization to that effect, which would undoubtedly be granted to representatives of friendly nations, while it might be refused to others, and would thus facilitate the business of the former by suppressing the competition of the latter.

Upon the whole, I fail to see that the French present banking system compares unfavorably with banking laws here, as stated in your issue of the 20th, and, aside from the question of taxation, which is far from being settled and which would, in a certain measure, have its equivalent here where French companies are heavily taxed on their capital used here, it would still be more favorable to foreign banks which could obtain the authorization of the French Government to receive deposits, to do a local discount business, than the law of the State of New York is to foreigners, to whom it denies the same facilities. I might add that the repeal of such obnoxious legislation might go far toward inducing France not to modify, as suggested, its present banking laws. At any rate, it would tend to legitimate criticisms of French methods which can easily be retorted under the present circumstances.

Before concluding these remarks I wish to add that your correspondent does not seem to have caught the exact gist of Mr. Gérald's remarks, when he wrote: "Deputy would penalize the French bankers heavily for alleged hammering of exchange." The author of the bill does not accuse foreign bankers of "having hammered the exchange." He merely declares that they have taken advantage of its low rate to indulge in certain practices detrimental to French banks and which have created disturbances on the market.

I would deplore, as far as I am concerned, any bitterness of feeling, any estrangement that might result from such legislation as the one proposed, and that is why I thought that your readers ought to hear both sides of the question in order to be able to form an unbiased opinion, and I have no doubt they will recognize that, if the French followed the example of other nations in imposing certain restrictions upon their banking interests in France such legislation, although perhaps unwise, would not at least be without excuse, or even without justification, being based on reciprocity.

HENRY E. GOURD,
President of the French Chamber of Commerce of New York.

LICENSES FOR DYES.

A Tariff Unavailing With the Mark at Its Present Level.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish emphatically to take issue with the letter on the Dye License bill signed by E. S. Graves, appearing in THE TIMES of Jan. 22. The Germans had forty years' experience in the dye industry and controlled the world's supply of dyes before the war. Nothing could please them more than the non-passage of the very Longworth bill which Mr. Graves so much deplores. The bill is a very just one and serves to bar out the dyes that we are making here, which dyes incidentally are not only as good as the Germans can make, but they are identical, and this production constitutes perhaps 85 per cent. of the needs of the country. As to the remaining 15 per cent., if we do not make these, the bill provides for their importation under license, so that as far as the consumer goes he is provided for under any circumstance.

On the other hand, if the bill is not passed the Germans will certainly flood this country with their dyes, for their labor is cheaper than ours and they would not hesitate to resort to dumping methods, which is an old and thoroughly familiar game with them. Tariff alone will avail nothing, for there is no duty that can be reasonably considered which will have the least effect when the present price of the mark is considered.

The importance of maintaining the splendid industry that we have established is almost self-evident. It is vital from the standpoint of the nation's safety, for we now know that had not the Germans had this great industry the war would have stopped long before it did, and it is equally true that for the future whatever nation has supremacy in this industry will be able to dictate to any other, for war is now a question of chemistry. Therefore, the question is one which is really beyond mere economics, and it now looks as if the future peace of the world were dependent upon maintaining a chemical industrial balance.

Most of the people who argue against the dye bill do so because they want the Germans back again with their complete hold of the situation in this country, for it is exceedingly lucrative to all who take any part in aiding their schemes.

S. A. TUCKER,
Late Major, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. A.
Columbia University, Jan. 25, 1921.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his letter on the Dye License bill, [illegible] makes the entirely erroneous statement that "the licensing feature, which is virtually an embargo, is, in a way, a dog-in-the-manger attitude." The licensing bill now pending before Congress is not in any sense of the word an embargo. It is simply a control of importations of such a nature that no attempt to dump cheap German products on this market, to the destruction of the newly established American dyestuff industry, can be undertaken. If, on the other hand, it can be shown that a required dyestuff cannot be obtained in this country in sufficient quantity and at a reasonable price, a license authorizing its importation must perforce, be issued. Under its conditions no dyestuffs will be imported except under such licenses granted after proper investigation by a competent board appointed under Government auspices. A dyestuff user would not be precluded under this license bill from securing any and all dyes that he might require, in any quantities that he might require, no matter what his interests may be. If the dyes he wants are made by American concerns of the requisite quality and in sufficient quantity and at a reasonable price, he can purchase them from American manufacturers under proper competitive conditions; if the dyes he wants are not so produced by American manufacturers, there is nothing whatever to prevent his obtaining them from Germany under licenses granted by the License Board.

The bill as proposed does not give the slightest advantage to a large manufacturer of dyestuffs, as against a small manufacturer, and each is required to establish the fact that, in order to avoid the granting of licenses, the dyes required are produced in this country in sufficient quantity and at competitive prices. There is thus no limitation placed on the American textile manufacturer such as Mr. Graves states to be the case, and he is at perfect liberty to supply the textile markets of this country with his products and to approach the textile markets of other countries without being under any handicap by reason of inability to secure the dyes he requires.

As far as dyes are concerned, he can get whatever he wants, whenever he wants it, and the protection of the new American industry by means of a license feature will not impair his ability to do so in the slightest degree.

Great Society Array at Benefit for Union Settlement at Ritz-Carlton.

OLD GUARD CELEBRATES

Its 95th Anniversary Ball a Fine Spectacle at Commodore—Illustrators Dance in Costume.

Last night offered several diversions in the way of dances. The Union Settlement ball at the Ritz-Carlton, the Old Guard's reception and ball at the Commodore and the annual costume ball of the Illustrators' Society of New York, which took place at Delmonico's, were among the principal events.

There was a great array of débutantes at the Union Settlement ball at the Ritz, given under the auspices of the Board of the Women's Auxiliary of the Settlement, of which Mrs. Reginald Barclay is Chairman and Mrs. James Rockwell Sheffield, President.

A group of dinners preceded the function, the dinner hostesses including Mrs. Francis L. Hine, Mrs. Barclay, Mrs. A. Henry Mosle, Mrs. Lynford McC. Dickinson, Mrs. Julius F. Workum, Mrs. W. E. S. Griswold and Mrs. Minturn Post Collins.

It was an early ball, 9 o'clock having been announced as the starting hour. Miss Annie Auchincloss headed a large committee of débutantes, and Olives B. Jennings was chairman of the floor committee. Mrs. H. P. Davison was Chairman of the ball committee.

Among those occupying boxes were Mrs. Hugh Dudley Auchincloss, Mrs. Barclay, Mrs. Edwin M. Bulkley, Mrs. James B. Clemens, Mrs. Davison, Mrs. David Dows, Mrs. Griswold, Mrs. J. Horace Harding, Mrs. Edward S. Harkness, Mrs. Hine, Mrs. Robert Jaffray, Miss Emily M. Jaffray, Mrs. Walter B. James, Mrs. Walter Jennings, Mrs. D. Hunter McAlpin, Mrs. Henry E. Meeker, Mrs. Mosle, Mrs. Frederick W. Moss, Mrs. Theodore L. Peters, Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, Mrs. William A. Read, Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, Mrs. William H. Woodin, Edmund Coffin, and John Sloane.

Old Guard's 95th Anniversary.

The annual ball of the Old Guard marked the ninety-fifth anniversary of this famous veteran military organization. During the many years of its existence New York has witnessed many changes, but the features of this annual event are largely the same every year.

The grand march at midnight, with the veterans in full dress and all the military guests in uniform, made an imposing spectacle. General Robert Lee Bullard, Commander of the Department of the East, and Rear Admiral James H. Glennon led the march.

An added feature this year was the presentation of the Veteran Trophy to the Governor's Foot Guards of Connecticut, which they won last Summer at the Seagirt, N. J., rifle range. Governor Everett Lake of Connecticut received the trophy for the Foot Guards. Governor Miller was to have made the presentation, but was unable to attend owing to illness, so Governor Edwards of New Jersey presented it.

Many representatives of various veteran military organizations of the country attended the ball. Those who met in Boston last year to formulate the organizations into a national body reconvened here yesterday so as to attend the ball.

Captain William A. Damer, Adjutant of the Old Guard, was Chairman of the ball. Major Edward Havemeyer Snyder is Commandant of the organization. There were delegations from the Ancient and Honorables of Boston, the Worcester Continentals, Putnam Phalanx, Amoskeag Veterans of Manchester, N. H.; Bristol Train of Artillery of Rhode Island, the Old Guard of Atlanta, the Richmond Blues of Virginia, the State Fencibles and City Troop of Philadelphia, the Minute Men from Washington, the Cleveland Grays, and representatives from the famous Gordon Highlanders.

Mrs. James B. Wasson, wife of the Chaplain of the Old Guard, headed a large committee of hostesses who looked after the visiting delegations from other cities. Among the hostesses were Mrs. William A. Damer, Mrs. John Miller Gregory, Mrs. William Rufus Boyd Jr., Mrs. Lillian N. Ellis, Mrs. Timothy M. O'Connor, Mrs. P. J. Rochiettl, Mrs. Y. D. Semple, Mrs. Bernhardt Wall, Mrs. Charles W. Hack, Mrs. Gustave A. Heleu, Mrs. Rufus Steele, Mrs. A. A. Gerdes, Mrs. David Gorden, and the Misses Elsie Marie Steger, Jean D. Barnes, Estelle J. Christie and Minnie B. Geary.

Illustrators' Society Dances.

The annual costume ball of the Illustrators' Society was a late and gay affair. Charles Dana Gibson is President of the society. C. D. Williams was head of the entertainment committee.

The ballroom was decorated with sixty original poster drawings made by members. Many of the guests came in Parisian costumes of 1850, while others were costumed as Italian bandits, Hawaiian dancers with grass skirts, Japanese and Persians.

Among those who attended were J. E. Sheridan, R. L. Goldberg, Fred Cooper, John La Gatta, H. B. Eddy, Robert Beebe, Donald Teague, George Howe, Stowe Phelps, Robert Amick, Charles Voight, Walter Trumbull, Frank Godwin, Herbert B. Swope, Jean Mattol, J. Harry Masson, Arthur W. Brown, Jack Shaw, A. J. Powers, Miss Ruth Eastman and Mrs. Alice L. Foss.

LIEUT. KLOOR TO WED MISS A. FLOWERTON

Troth of Lost Naval Balloon Pilot Who Suffered Hardships in Far North Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Flowerton of 68 West Eighty-seventh Street, New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alexandra Flowerton, to Lieutenant Louis A. Kloor Jr., U. S. N. R. F. Lieutenant Kloor was a student at Tulane University, New Orleans, before he received his commission in the navy. He was the pilot of the naval balloon so recently lost in Canada and shared all the adventures, mishaps and extreme hardships of that memorable air voyage and the following hardships in the forests of the Far North with Lieutenant Farrell and Lieutenant Hinton.

His letters to Miss Flowerton describing the perils of the trip were published. It has been stated several times that Lieutenant Kloor and Miss Flowerton were engaged, but this is the first formal announcement of it.

It was announced last night at a dinner given by Mrs. B. F. Huppe of 68 West Eighty-seventh Street. Miss Flowerton's father is in Europe, and her mother is on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Kloor is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Kloor of Crowley, La.

BETTY JACKSON TO WED.

Her Engagement to Howard Maxwell Jr. Is Announced.

Dr. John A. Jackson and Mrs. Jackson of 969 Park Avenue, New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Betty Jackson, to Howard Maxwell Jr. Miss Jackson made her début a year ago and is a member of the Junior League. She is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady and of Francis P. Garvan.

Mr. Maxwell, who was graduated from Princeton in 1919, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Maxwell of 15 East Eighty-fourth Street and Glen Cove, L. I. He served during the war as a Lieutenant in Naval Aviation. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo D. Armstrong of Riverside, Conn., are at the Plaza for the remainder of the Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Perry Osborn are receiving congratulations on the birth of twin daughters at their residence, 24 East Seventieth Street, on Jan 10. Mrs. Osborn was formerly Miss Anne M. Steele. Mr. Osborn is the son of Professor and Mrs. H. Fairfield Osborn of 905 Fifth Avenue.

Miss Mary Cameron is spending the week-end with Miss Elaine S. Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Sullivan, of Philadelphia.

The Countess d'Ussel left here yesterday with Mrs. Henry P. Loomis, for a visit in Washington.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will give a dance next Monday evening at her residence, 640 Fifth Avenue.

Mrs. Walter Damrosch will entertain at dinner tonight at her residence, 146 East Sixty-first Street.

Mrs. Morgan Cowperthwaite of Lamington House, Far Hills, N. J., is at the Vanderbilt for a visit.

Mrs. Moses Taylor is giving a dance tonight at her home, 701 Park Avenue, for her daughter, Miss Marion Taylor.

Miss Helen Neilson, daughter of Mrs. Ernest Neilson, is giving a small tea dance this afternoon at the Ritz-Carlton. Miss Lily F. Robertson, her cousin, will assist in receiving.

Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, Mrs. Charles Pope, Mrs. C. M. Fair, Mrs. Josiah C. Thaw and Reginald Vanderbilt entertained parties last night at the third Bachelors' Dance at the Vanderbilt.

WALTER R. LEVENTRITT WED

Ex-Justice's Son Married Miss Bertha Campbell on Dec. 30.

The marriage was announced yesterday of Miss Bertha Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Campbell of Boston, and Walter R. Leventritt of this city. The marriage took place on Dec. 30.

Mr. Leventritt is the son of David Leventritt, one of the best known lawyers of this city, and a former Justice of the Supreme Court of New York. David Leventritt is now senior member of the firm of Leventritt, Cook, Nathan & Lehman of 111 Broadway.

The former Justice and his daughter are now in California on a vacation trip. His other son is Leo L. Leventritt, a lawyer of this city.

Sprague-Barrows Wedding Today.

Miss Hester Noel Barrows, daughter of the late Charles Clifford Barrows and Mrs. Barrows of 63 East Fifty-sixth Street, will be married at noon today to Evan Lloyd Sprague of 1 West Sixty-seventh Street, son of Evan Turner Sprague of this city. The Rev. Dr. Herbert Shipman will perform the ceremony in the Church of the Heavenly Rest in the presence of only members of the immediate families, who will afterward attend a luncheon at the Volson on Park Avenue. The bride's brother, Dr. David Nye Barrows, who was married last October to Miss Frances Scoville, will give her in marriage, and she will be attended by Mrs. Pierson Van Kirk as matron of honor. The first intimation that the wedding was to take place came yesterday, when a marriage license was issued to the couple. In their application Miss Barrows gave her age as 27 and Mr. Sprague said he was 30. He is a graduate of Cornell University and a member of the Cornell Club of this city.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN DINE.

International Federation Supported by College Presidents.

The importance of the International Federation of University Women in the promotion of a better international understanding was emphasized last night at a conference dinner at the Hotel Gotham, under the auspices of the New York Branch of the association of Collegiate Alumnae and the Women's University Club. The speakers agreed that there is a big task ahead because of the gloomy outlook the European professors and teachers have at this time, and the wholehearted support of the college and university women in this country was urged.

Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College presided, and the speakers included Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance; Mrs. Caroline F. E. Spurgeon, President of the International Federation of University Women; Dr. Henry Noble McCracken, President of Vassar College; Dr. William Allan Neilson, President of Smith College; Miss Ellen F. Pendleton, President of Mount Holyoke College, and Dr. M. Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr. Dr. Thomas suggested seven ways of raising a fund of $20,000 a year with which to carry on the work of the international organization.

President McCracken of Vassar College declared that he was in favor of an exchange of undergraduate students as well as an exchange of graduate students, saying that it would be of great advantage to the colleges on both sides of any ocean. He admitted that there were some practical objections, but said the university women should find some way to make the exchange arrangement possible.

A number of students from foreign countries also spoke.

Bowdoin Alumni Dine.

Bowdoin College Alumni Association held its annual dinner last evening in the Hotel Pennsylvania. Harvey D. Gibson, President of the association, was toastmaster, and the speakers were Kenneth Charles Martin Sills, President of the college; John Garrett, President of the Student Council, and Romilly Johnson. These officers were elected: President, George R. Walker; Vice Presidents, Frederick W. Pickard, Henry B. Quinby and Frank A. Munsey.

Dance for News Company Workers.

The Mutual Benefit Association of the American News Company will hold a dance in the Winter Garden of the Hotel McAlpin next Wednesday evening.

Chamberlain Dodds Sale, $26,585.

A pair of fine old Regence green and gold settees brought the top price at the Chamberlain Dodds sale at the Clarke Galleries yesterday afternoon, going to H. F. Arnold for $500 each. The frames were painted in Nile green with carved details in gold, the upholstery in salmon pink brocade of the period with mauve fringe. An old wall paper paneled room, Chinese eighteenth century design, from the country house of Sir Archibald Grey, Cumberland, England, designs of birds, flowers and bamboo trees, was purchased by Mrs. D. O'Connell for $900. A Venetian lacquer commode, period Louis Quinze, went to A. A. Smith for $215, and Mrs. C. P. Rogers paid $380 for a pair of green lacquer encoigneres, Venetian, Louis XV. period. The returns for the day were $12,871, making a total to date of $26,585. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

'Shimmy' Stopped at School Dance.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 28.—Among the juniors at the Hartford High School there was much talk today of the action of Miss Sarah Trees, Dean of the high school girls, in stopping a "shimmy" dance. When one of the girls mounted the stage after a few dance numbers last night and gave a performance there was vigorous applause, but there was no encore. The hook was not actually used, but Miss Trees, in the stage wings, saw that the first number was the last.

More Gifts for Neediest Cases.

One gift of $100 and two smaller gifts increased the total of contributions for the Neediest Cases yesterday to $110,535.62. The three contributions received by THE NEW YORK TIMES were $100 from Mrs. William W. Lee, $10 from Eugene Norwood and $5 from "Anonymous."

TRUST FOR CHARITY

Charter to Be Asked in Hartford for Foundation to Administer Large Fund.

TO AID WELFARE WORK

Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, the Donor, Widely Interested in Hospitals and Social Service.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 28.—Authority to dispense millions in charity was asked of the General Assembly today in a bill introduced on behalf of Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins of New York, daughter of Marcellus Hartley, who was the dominating figure in the formation of the Remington Arms plant and the Union Metallic Cartridge Company of Bridgeport. The money, which eventually will amount to several millions, is to be available for use in any charity, educational or other welfare work in the United States.

The bill requests a charter for the Hartley Trust Corporation, which will be the legal name of the foundation, and was drawn by R. B. Stoeckel, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, who has been Mrs. Jenkins's attorney for many years. The incorporators of the trust are to be Mrs. Jenkins herself, her daughter, Miss Grace Hartley Jenkins of Norfolk, Governor Everett J. Lake, Dr. Samuel A. Brown, a prominent physician of New York City, and Commissioner Stoeckel. Among the features of the foundation plan is a provision that the Governor of Connecticut shall always be a member of the Board of Trustees.

Governor Lake has been asked to remain a member after his retirement from office, and today signified his willingness to do so. The board will, therefore, be increased to six members upon the completion of Governor Lake's term of office, which will be not earlier than 1923.

The utmost latitude is allowed the officials of the Foundation in the granting of the funds available. They will, however, be guided by the lifelong policy of Mrs. Jenkins to aid chiefly welfare work of an institutional or permanent nature. It is Mrs. Jenkins's plan to start the fund with a few hundred thousand dollars and add to the Foundation each year until her death. At present she is interested in many welfare institutions in New York City, including several hospitals, and she has shown an active interest in prison reform movements.

Her donations to worthy enterprises have sometimes reached $100,000 in a single year.

It is probable that the charter in its final form will provide that at least three of the Board of Trustees shall be citizens of this State. As at present constituted, the board numbers among its members a physician, a business man, a lawyer and two representatives of the family.

It is probable that this representation will be continued perpetually. The clause making the Governor a member also insures that at least one State official will be on the board at all times.

Miss Grace Hartley Jenkins is engaged to Winter Mead, a former Yale crew captain, of New York.

SEEK MISSING HEIRS OF PADDACK ESTATE

Boy Known as the 'Millionaire Kid' and His Sister Not Heard From in Two Years.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Simon D. Paddack Jr. is missing from Broadway circles, which dubbed him the "millionaire kid" a few years ago when he frequented the lobster palaces of the famous thoroughfare and spent freely his share of the income of the trust funds created by the $1,000,000 will of his eccentric uncle, D. Paddack, one of the pioneer paper manufacturers of the country.

Mrs. Marion Paddack Jones, sister of the erstwhile "millionaire kid," has also dropped out of sight and has not been heard from in more than two years, not since the day she walked out of her apartment in New York and deserted her husband and their two children.

The disappearance of two of the heirs of the paper manufacturer has been brought to light in the Surrogate Court, where affidavits have been filed by a bank as executor of the will of Frank W. Lasher, former trustee of several funds created in the will of the elder Paddack.

The last trace of Simon was a postal card mailed in December from Rouen, France, to Richard H. Byrne, who has served as his counsel. Mrs. Lillian Paddack, his wife, said recently in New York that she knew nothing of her husband's movements. Mrs. Marion Paddack Jones's husband has not seen her since she left their apartment in New York. Citations showed Mrs. Jones had assigned her interest in her uncle's estate to J. W. Knapp.

M'ADOOS TO VISIT OBREGON IN MEXICO

Accept Invitation to Be Guests of President With Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse and Jerome S. Hess, counsel for the financial agency of the Mexican Government here, have accepted the invitation of President Obregon of Mexico to be his guests in Mexico City. Mr. Hess has gone to El Paso, Texas, to join the other members of the party.

This information was given out yesterday by Harold B. Elar, a partner of Mr. Hess, who said there was no political significance in the visit, but that Mr. McAdoo would have the opportunity to study Mexican railway and financial problems at first hand. The date of the visit was not made public.

Craig Reinstates Anthony Moors.

Anthony Moors of Woodhaven, a Republican leader, was yesterday reinstated by Controller Craig in his position as Deputy Receiver of Taxes for Queens. He had been suspended early in December pending an investigation into a burglary in the office when one of the large safes was opened and $400 was stolen. The charge against Receiver Moors was that he did not report the burglary to Controller Craig. Investigation showed that Receiver Moors had reported the incident to his immediate superior. An investigation of the office was also made, and it was found that Mr. Moors had everything in good condition.

Outerbridge Leaves Estate to Wife.

The will of the late A. Emilius Outerbridge, ship broker, who died at 850 Park Avenue on Jan. 14, leaves his entire estate for life to his widow Mrs. Nannie Thompson Outerbridge, after deducting four bequests of $100 each and one of $1,000 to distant relatives. One of the $100 legatees is Sir Joseph Outerbridge of St. John's, N. F. Upon the death of the widow the estate goes to her two sons, Samuel R. and Frank R. Outerbridge.

Newport Divorcee of Last Month Quietly Marries Prominent New York Surgeon.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 28.—Mrs. Charlotte Hunnewell Sorchan, long a prominent member of the Summer colony, who on Dec. 9 received her final decree of divorce from Victor Sorchan, on the ground of neglect to provide, and Dr. Walton Martin of 151 East Sixty-third Street, New York, were married here this noon.

The ceremony was performed at Laforge cottage by Judge Chester W. Barrows of the Superior Court, and the only ones present were Miss Bertha Lee, the court stenographer, and John W. Barker of New York, a friend of Dr. Martin.

Dr. Martin had been at Laforge cottage for a few days, and Mrs. Sorchan arrived from New York this morning. With Mr. Baker, they visited the City Hall late in the morning and took out a marriage license. Mrs. Sorchan, who is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell of Boston, gave her age as 40. Dr. Martin, who is a son of Kingsley Martin and Clementine Walton Martin of New York, gave his age as 51.

He was one of the surgeons who attended Colonel Roosevelt in his final illness and has been attending physician at St. Luke's Hospital and Professor of Clinic Surgery at Columbia. He is the author of a Physics and Chemistry and revised Green's Pathology. In 1914-15 he installed Ambulance B at the American Hospital, Neuilly, France. He is a graduate of Yale and a member of the University and Century Clubs.

Dr. and Mrs. Martin left during the afternoon for Boston.

Mrs. Sorchan at one time was the owner of Gull Rock, on the Cliffs, which she and Mr. Sorchan occupied. Some years ago the estate was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw of Boston. Last Summer Mrs. Sorchan and her daughter, Miss Beatrice Sorchan, occupied a small estate on Halidon Hill.

WIFE SUES G. SCHIRMER.

Asks $1,200 Monthly Alimony and Separation From Music Publisher.

Mrs. Florence Powers Schirmer, wife of the present head of the music publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc., sued him in the Supreme Court yesterday for a separation and asked $1,200 a month alimony and $3,500 counsel fees. She sues on the ground of abandonment, but hints that she might have asked more drastic relief had she wished to do so.

"I have purposely refrained from mentioning numerous occurrences during my married life with the defendant where the defendant has shown an utter disregard for his marital obligations," she said.

Mrs. Schirmer was only 22 years old at the time of her marriage in 1917, and says she is still residing in a $375 a month apartment fitted up for her by her husband at 40 East Sixty-second Street in October, 1918. She says that her husband has paid the rent of the apartment and the wages of her servants while living at the Hotel Commodore and has paid all her bills at the stores to Jan. 1, but has allowed her only $50 a month spending money. She asks the custody of their two-year-old son Gustave Jr.

Mr. Schirmer was sued for breach of promise two months after his marriage by Miss Grace Fisher, actress, who asked $50,000 damages on the ground that he promised to wed her on or before Nov. 24, 1917, less than a month before he married Miss Powers. He replied that she had received the attentions of other men.

Dr. Baer paid $3,000 for No. 674, a painting by a 16th century Italian artist, "The Virgin and Saints." An Ikon, Greek, 15th-16th century, "St. Michael and St. Gabriel," a panel, was bought by Dr. G. F. Muller for $1,300 and to Major H. J. Jackson went No. 680, a painting on a gold ground, panel, "Madonna and Saints," school of Gentile da Fabriano, for $1,300. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

JUMPS TO DEATH AT NIAGARA

Supposed Cleveland Man Leaps From American Side of Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 28.—An unidentified man is reported to have jumped into the river above the Falls at 2:15 o'clock this morning and to have been swept to death over the American brink. The man talked to S. W. Rhodes, reservation officer, just a few minutes before he made the leap. He told Rhodes he was from Cleveland, Ohio, and that he had come to the park to take a farewell look before leaving for Cleveland.

Rhodes turned and left the stranger looking at the Falls. He was attracted by a shout and turned back to see the man on the railing.

"Good-bye," he shouted to Rhodes, and disappeared over the rail. Rhodes ran to the bank and states that he saw the man pass over the brink.

Commander Hazeltine Found Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—Commander Charles W. Hazeltine, U. S. N., was found dead of heart disease today at the Art Club. He was 58 years old. Commander Hazeltine was aid to Assistant District Commander at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. He was transferred here from the Brooklyn Navy Yard six months ago and made his home at the club. He retired to his room late last evening, apparently in health. He was found dead shortly after noon today.

Commander Hazeltine was graduated from Annapolis in the class of 1884. He retired from the navy, but went back to the service when the war with Germany began and had been on active duty since.

James Buckley.

James Buckley, general Eastern passenger agent of the Erie Railroad, died last night in St. Vincent's Hospital. "Uncle Jimmy" Buckley, as he was known to his associates, had been in the employ of the Erie for fifty-six years, rising from the grade of messenger boy. The completion of the half century of his service was celebrated by a dinner given to him at the Manhattan Club Sept. 26, 1914. President Underwood said at that time that "he had ceased to be an individual and had become an institution."

William Benton Crisp.

William Benton Crisp, attorney and former President of the United States and Mexican Trust Company, died yesterday at his home, 410 Park Avenue, Manhattan. For nine years after his graduation from Columbia he practiced in Baltimore and then moved to this city. Mr. Crisp had made a specialty of banking, corporation and commercial law.

OF STUDENTS GOWNS

Chancellor Sarcastically Refers to Dresses at Senior Ball as 'What There Was of Them.'

SCORES CIGARETTE USING

Will Close College Building to Dances Where Fire Danger Is Ignored, He Warns Students.

Special to the New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Reference to the dresses worn by young women of Syracuse University at the senior ball on Tuesday night was qualified with "what there was of them" in a letter by Chancellor James R. Day, published today in the university daily newspaper, taking the men of the school to task for the reckless use of cigarettes in the college gymnasium at the ball.

The conduct of the students at the ball was called disgraceful and dangerous in connection with the mass of cigarette stubs swept out of the gymnasium after the affair.

The letter of the Chancellor says:

"Again it becomes my duty to insist upon the rule, which the university has had from the beginning, against campus smoking. The violation of this rule had been serious in our gym. It was disgraceful at the senior ball, and it was dangerous. How men can smoke into the faces of ladies on such an occasion can be explained only by a lack of self-respect. It is perilous; no tobacco burns so persistently as a cigarette stub.

"At the senior ball material was inflammable; the dresses—what there was of them—the decorations and the floor itself invited a conflagration and death. This suggested no restraint to the young men, who found it impossible to endure the separation from their darling cigarette dope. The fact that they were a nuisance to scores of persons who are nauseated by the doped cigarette was no restraint, the fact that our insurance was threatened, probably never occurred to men with whom the cigarette displaces every other thought and consideration.

"The quantity of cigarette stubs swept out of the gym the morning after the ball was startling. Nothing remains for the administration but to refuse the building hereafter to all gatherings reckless and indifferent to our rule.

"Every week brings through the press instances of fires, and often with fatalities, by the cigarette habit. Smoking is forbidden upon the campus and in the buildings of Syracuse University. For heaven's sake, be men—be bigger than a cigarette!"

COL. ELISHA S. THEALL DIES IN WASHINGTON

Secretary Daniels's Assistant Was an Authority on Naval and International Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Colonel Elisha S. Theall, on duty at the Navy Department as assistant to the Secretary of the Navy, and one of the most popular and widely known officers in Washington, died this morning at his residence, 2,406 Sixteenth Street. He had never fully recovered from injuries received Thanksgiving night, 1919, when his skull was fractured by an automobile. His wife, who was Miss Florence Shepherd of White Plains, N. Y., survives.

Colonel Theall was born in New York City in 1872, and was graduated from Annapolis in 1897, to be retired ten years later from the Marine Corps on account of heart disease. He then studied law at Columbia and practiced in Washington, becoming an authority on Congressional, naval and international law. Secretary Daniels said today:

"The Naval Affairs Committee of both houses relied upon him for advice and assistance. As legislative legal adviser to the Secretary of the Navy he had great influence in the determination of fundamental questions affecting the naval establishment."

When the United States entered the war Colonel Theall at once sought reinstatement on the active list of the Marine Corps, was commissioned a Colonel and served with the Base Force in Philadelphia, and later commanded the Marines at Norfolk in the Fall of 1918.

SIR MERTON R. COTES DEAD.

Noted Art Connoisseur and Explorer Dies in London.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Sir Merton Russel Cotes, noted art connoisseur and art collector, is dead.

Many of the pictures owned by Sir Merton Russell Cotes were borrowed for the Chicago Exposition and at other times have been part of exhibitions in various large cities of the British Isles. Sir Merton presented to the American people an original black basalt bust of George Washington, made by Josiah Wedgwood, which is now in the Congressional Library at Washington. He was born in 1835.

Archbishop of Liverpool Dead.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Dr. Thomas Whiteside, Archbishop of Liverpool, is dead. All the Roman Catholic Sees in Great Britain, with the exception of Westminster and Edinburgh, are now vacant.

The Most Rev. Thomas Whiteside, D. D., was born at Lancaster April 17, 1857. He was consecrated in 1894 and raised to the archiepiscopal dignity in 1911.

COWARD IN FINAL

Harvard and Yale Club Players Will Decide National Class B Squash Title Today.

BOTH SCORE TRIUMPHS

Eli Player Gives Fine Exhibition in Defeating Heminway, While Crimson Star Disposes of Seller.

It will be the Yale Club against the Harvard Club in the final match of the squash tennis tournament for the national Class B championship to be contested this afternoon at the Squash Club. Thomas R. Coward, representing the Blue, will meet F. S. Whitlock of the Crimson organization for the individual championship at two o'clock. Both won their way into the final yesterday in straight-game victories, the matches being decided in the best three of five games. Coward defeated E. H. Heminway of the Harvard Club by scores of 15—4, 15—8, 18—15, and Whitlock disposed of F. A. Seller of the Montclair A. C. by 15—4, 15—11, 15—6.

Coward's success over Heminway was more or less expected. The Yale man, playing his first full season in tournament squash, has been the sensation of the courts this Winter. Not only has he risen to triumph after triumph in the Class B ranks, but he has proved repeatedly that he can meet many of the Class A leaders on equal terms. He has a natural aptitude for the game, a faculty for sensing his opponent's next move, remarkable speed and accuracy of stroke and the ability to make good use of the angles and to introduce baffling change of pace. All of these attributes were in evidence yesterday in his victory over Heminway, but the outstanding feature in his play was his ability to mix his shots and catch his opponent out of position.

Heminway Slow to Start.

Heminway, true to his habit, was slow in getting started and Coward won the first game with comparative ease. The Harvard man improved in the second game and, in the third, fought his rival on almost even terms, forcing the game into extra points. Had he been able to reverse the count in this game, he might have afforded Coward considerable trouble in the endurance test which would then have been in order.

In the first two innings of the opener, Heminway took brief command and led at 3-1, but, in his fourth inning, Coward brought his big guns into action. Playing with much brilliancy and excellent headwork, he amassed a total of 7 aces in that single hand, earning most of his points by low around-the-court shots and mixing speed with soft shots that landed at the back wall in such wise that it was all but impossible to get a racquet on them. Coward finished out the game in the remarkably small number of nine innings, capturing the final point when Heminway missed an around-the-court shot to his backhand.

The second game was more sharply contested. Coward collected high runs of 5 and 3, and Heminway scored 4 in one inning. The Yale man led all the way, however, and the result was never in real doubt. Coward ended it with 3 aces in his thirteenth hand, forcing Heminway to hit into the telltale for the final point.

In the third and final game, Coward was leading at 7 to 3, when Heminway, who had been playing more and more strongly, entered his best effort of the afternoon, and went into the lead for the first time in the match. He scored seven aces in his seventh hand, playing good squash, but also profiting largely by the fact that his opponent was undergoing a temporary attack of apparent carelessness. Most of Heminway's points came to him on errors, Coward flubbing several easy ones.

Heminway led, 10 to 7, at this stage of the proceedings, and continued to hold the lead for half a dozen hands up to 13 to 11. Coward score five aces in his next two innings, however, and the end was in sight. The final rallies were long and brilliant, both men making admirable gets. Twice Coward missed the match point on an out and a telltale, but he finally came through with a hard-hit ball that struck Heminway on the rebound from the front wall.

The point score follows:

FIRST GAME

Coward ....0 1 0 7 0 0 2 4 1—15
Heminway ....2 1 0 1 0 0 0 0 ..— 4

SECOND GAME.

Coward ......0 1 2 5 1 2 0 0 1 0 0 0 3—15
Heminway ...0 0 1 0 1 0 0 4 1 0 1 0 ..— 8

THIRD GAME.

Coward—
1 1 1 3 0 1 0 0 1 1 0 2 1 4 0 0 1 0 0 1—18
Heminway—
1 0 0 1 0 1 7 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 ..—15

Whitlock Plays Steady Game.

Whitlock's steadiness and hard stroking were too much for Seller in the other semi-final. The Harvard man won the first game easily, but Seller braced in the second and made it a real tussle. With Whitlock leading at 12—5 Seller made a fine effort, and drew up almost to even terms at 12—11. That was as far as he could get, however, for Whitlock ran out the game without yielding another ace. The third set again found the Harvard man in command all the way.

The summaries:

Semi-Final Round, National Class B Tournament—T. R. Coward, Yale Club, defeated E. H. Heminway, Harvard Club, 15—4, 15—8, 18—15; F. S. Whitlock, Harvard Club, defeated F. A. Seller, Montclair A. C., 15—4, 15—11, 15—6.

TENNIS SCENE SHIFTS.

Second of Philadelphia-New York Series to Be Played Here Today.

A return match in the intercity court tennis series between New York and Philadelphia will be played here today at the Racquet and Tennis Club. In the first of the series, played last Saturday in Philadelphia, the Quakers won by 3 matches to 1. Play will begin this morning at 11 o'clock, and will be exclusively in doubles. The New York pairs will be chosen from among Payne Whitney, C. E. Sands, Fulton Cutting, C. S. Cutting, Hewitt Morgan, Edgar Leonard, Maurice Roche and J. H. Smith Jr. Philadelphia's representatives will include Jay Gould, Russell Thayer, Daniel Hutchison, W. J. McGlynn, J. Bell, G. H. Brook, Schofield Andrews and probably R. K. Cassatt.

THORP TO AID O'NEILL.

Is Named Again to Coach Linemen of Columbia Eleven.

Tom Thorp, who has been coaching Columbia linemen since football was restored in 1915, will be at the old stand again next season, according to an announcement by Graduate Manager Watt yesterday. Thorp's appointment assures Coach Buck O'Neill of at least two assistants next Fall, since Joe Brooks, former head coach at Williams, was recently named as an assistant at Columbia.

W. AND J. TO HAVE NINE.

Baseball Is Sanctioned With Assurance That New Field Will Be Built.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 28.—Given assurance by the college authorities that a new diamond would be constructed immediately and be ready for use this year and according to wishes of the undergraduates who had submitted a unanimous recommendation for maintenance of a varsity team, the W. and J. Athletic Council this afternoon sanctioned intercollegiate baseball and gave approval to track and tennis on a wider basis.

The transfer of the interests of William A. Brady and Charles B. Cochran in the proposed Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier bout probably will be affected Monday afternoon, when Promoter Tex Rickard expects to confer with Mr. Brady on the proposition. Rickard announced yesterday that he planned to assume complete control of the bout as promoter, following Monday's meeting with Mr. Brady. The latter is now out of the city, but is expected to return late Sunday night. On Tuesday Promoter Rickard and Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, will confer on plans for the world's championship match. Manager Kearns yesterday wired Rickard from Pocatello, Idaho, that he would arrive here Monday. Whether the Montreal proposition for holding the bout in the Dominion is acceptable will probably be determined at Tuesday's meeting.

LAYS DOWN LAW FOR PIONEER CLUB

Boxing Commission Sets Conditions Necessary for Resumption of Bouts.

The privilege of conducting boxing bouts under the Walker law will be restored to the Pioneer Sporting Club on East Twenty-fourth Street as soon as officials of the organization give the Boxing Commission assurance that they will comply with a schedule of improvements, calculated to eliminate a repetition of the conditions attendant upon the disqualification of Roy Moore in a bout with Packey O'Gatty at the club, Jan. 21. Following a hearing on the case yesterday, the Boxing Commission outlined the conditions on which the club's suspension would be lifted, in the following statement:

The New York State Boxing Commission, in the complaint against the Pioneer Sporting Club for permitting overcrowding and disorderly actions at the O'Gatty-Moore contest on Jan. 21, announces that the following conditions have been imposed upon the Pioneer Sporting Club as a condition precedent to the reopening of the club:

That the club file with the commission a seating plan properly approved by the Fire Department, and show thereon the exact seating capacity.

That they provide a three-foot space around the ring between the press seats and the first row of spectators' seats.

That they assign two special officers who shall be on duty around the ringside, whose special duties, in addition, shall be to see that no spectators approach or climb into the ring.

That they enforce the regulation that no one but the officials and newspaper men be permitted to sit at the press table.

In future contests it has been directed that the club agree to have printed no more tickets for each contest than are called for by the seating plan above referred to, and that all unsold tickets are to be sent to the office of the commission on the day following a contest.

That the club shall employ at least ten uniformed special officers to keep order.

That no persons be permitted to stand along the side walls or in the rear.

That hereafter, at all contests, the club doctor must remain at the club until the last bout has finished and must be in constant attendance near the ringside and available for such services as may be required during the entire period of all contests. This latter is a strict rule of the commission, and this is the only club, licensed by the New York State Boxing Commission, that has not complied with this condition.

CHIP TO BOX HERE TONIGHT.

Middleweight Will Meet Jack Duffy at Commonwealth Club.

George Chip, Newcastle, Pa., middleweight, who formerly held the class title, will engage Jack Duffy, Chicago boxer, in the stellar bout of fifteen rounds this evening at the Commonwealth Sporting Club. This bout will mark Chip's first appearance here under the Walker law. The Newcastle boxer is seeking a championship match against Johnny Wilson, and expects to demonstrate his qualifications at the expense of Duffy. The latter is a rugged, awkward, hard-hitting boxer who has appeared in several local matches. In the semi-final bout Bobby Bolan and Eddie Leonard will clash.

LIFTS BAN ON BOXING.

Mayor of Sharon, Pa., Permits Bouts Under Legion Auspices.

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 28.—The Sharon Post of the American Legion has been granted permission by Mayor Frank Gilbert to hold boxing bouts. Boxing has been under the ban here for the last few years.

Mayor Gilbert, in granting permission to the legion, said he felt that it would run the sport on a clean basis. The Mayor said that, as long as the legion exercised proper care in match-making he would not interfere.

CANNOT BOX IN PORTLAND.

Permission for Dempsey Bout Is Refused in Oregon Metropolis.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 28.—The Portland Boxing Commission today decided not to sanction arrangements for a ten-round decision bout here for Jack Dempsey in April. Mayor George L. Baker said that such a match was verging too close upon the true meaning of a "prize-fight."

REPEALS ANTI-BOXING LAW.

Kansas Senate Votes Approval of Ten-Round No-Decision Bouts.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 28.—A bill repealing the anti-boxing law and permitting ten-round no-decision bouts was passed by the Senate today.

HERZOG TO STAY IN GAME.

Several Managers Said to Be Angling for Ex-Cub's Services.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 28.—Buck Herzog, second baseman, recently released unconditionally by the Chicago Nationals, does not expect to quit baseball, but says he will not do business until the schedule meeting of the National League at New York next month.

It is said Manager Donovan of the Philadelphia Nationals is dickering with Herzog. Other major league offers also are said to have been made to him.

Boys' Club Wrestlers Defeat Pratt.

The Boys' Club defeated the wrestlers of Pratt Institute last night in the latter's gymnasium by the score of 20 points to 12.

Commerce Basketball Team Wins.

The High School of Commerce basketball team defeated the Evander Childs team yesterday at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory by a score of 22 to 14.

IN CANADIAN TESTS

Moore, Jewtraw, Murphy and Leitch Among Americans Who Win Heats in Title Races.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 28.—Canadian speed skaters more than held their own at the preliminary heats of the Canadian amateur speed-skating championships tonight at the Montreal A. A. rink, which incidentally marked the opening of the Montreal Winter Carnival. Preliminary heats were skated off in five of the championship events and the finals in the sixth, the half-mile, backward, which was won by R. L. Wheeler of Montreal, with Mike Goodman of Winnipeg second, third place going to Valentin Bialas of Saranac Lake. The finish of this race between Wheeler and Goodman was particularly close.

Joe Moore of New York and Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid qualified for all the events and are looked upon as the serious contenders. Moore, Jewtraw and Wes Becker won their heats in the 220. The first two named and William Murphy and Al Leitch scored in the 440. Jewtraw also won heats in the half mile and mile. In the latter Leitch and Moore also qualified. Other Americans finished second or third in the various events and will race in the finals tomorrow.

Eleven Canadian skaters won their heats in the various events and a number of others qualified for the semi-finals today. Russell Wheeler, the local skater, was the outstanding figure of the evening, winning his heat in the five events as well as the final in the half-mile afterward.

Mike Goodman, the Canadian amateur speed skating champion, won four of his heats, finished second to Wheeler in the two-mile heat and also finished second to him in the final of the half-mile backward race.

As usual in preliminary heats, the time was poor, but all the skaters showed form that bodes ill for some of the Canadian records tomorrow afternoon.

The semi-finals and finals will be skated off tomorrow afternoon beginning at 2:30.

GRIMES SIGNS HIS PAPERS.

Second Baseman Sends Contract to Giants—Brown Falls Into Line.

The signed contract of Second Baseman Roy Grimes of Minerva, Ohio, was received by the Giants yesterday. Grimes was purchased last July from the Bridgeport club of the Eastern League, and $5,000 in legal tender was handed to the Wooden Nutmegs as a consideration. He was then, and he still is, a highly touted young infielder, but both the player and the purchasing team had hard luck last year.

Edward W. Brown, an outfielder of Ohiowa, Neb., also sent in his signed contract yesterday. Brown was bought from the San Antonio team of the Texas League last season. He is beyond strictly legal proportions vertically, being something over 6 feet 3 inches long from his brogans to his well thatched pate. Those who have watched him in action say that he can go back and get them with the best men in the business.

GETS OFFER FROM GIANTS.

Hinkle, Chicago University Star, May Try for Job in Outfield.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Following the election of Robert Cole to captain the University of Chicago baseball nine this year came the announcement today that Paul Hinkle, who has won his "C" three times in baseball and will be graduated in March, has been offered a contract to play this season with the New York Giants.

Hinkle has not yet decided whether he will join John McGraw's club on its Spring training trip, after he is graduated, but said he probably would make up his mind next week. He has also been offered a job as assistant to Pat Page, Athletic Director of Butler College, Indiana.

TO COACH TIGER YEARLINGS.

Hanks of Mercersburg Engaged for Princeton Freshman Nine.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 28.—Eugene Hanks, former Mercersburg coach, has been engaged as head instructor of the Princeton freshman nine, according to an announcement of the University Athletic Association today. Hanks turned out one of the best schoolboy teams in the East last year, and has developed four championship nines in his ten years at Mercersburg.

TESREAU TO COACH AGAIN.

Former Giant Pitcher Re-engaged to Handle Dartmouth Nine.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 28.—Jeff Tesreau, former Giant pitching star, has been re-engaged as coach of the Dartmouth baseball team for the 1921 season and will arrive in Hanover early in March to start practice, according to an announcement here tonight by Graduate Manager Horace G. Pender. Tesreau has coached the Green nines during the last two seasons and turned out winning teams both years.

BEATS GALLAUDET

New Yorkers Forge Ahead in Closing Moments and Win at Basketball, 39-26.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28.—Fordham's basketball team, playing a steadier and more finished game, defeated Gallaudet at Kendall Green tonight, 39 to 26. The locals got off to a good lead in the first ten minutes, totaling 15 points to the visitors' 5 in that time, but their points were gained mainly through long shots, and failure in team play proved fatal in the long run.

While Fordham, through well-developed passing, crawled up on the locals in the latter part of the opening period, the home team stayed in front until half time, leading 17 to 14 at intermission.

Fordham tied the count at 17 all in the first minute of the second half, but Gallaudet quickly shot two baskets to go into the van again. However, the winners' team work soon began to tell and within the next few minutes they were in front to stay there to the final whistle, gradually increasing their margin.

The line-up:

FORDHAM (39).		GALLAUDET (26).
Fallon	L. F.	Boatright
Stocker	R. F.	Danofsky
Gordon	C.	Baynes
Culiaton	L. G.	Bouchard
Kelly	R. G.	Lafontaine

Goals from field—Fallon (4), Gordon (6), Culiaton, Kelly, Healy (3), Danofsky (2), Baynes (3), Bouchard, Lafontaine (4). Goals from fouls—Gordon 9 in 14, Lafontaine 1 in 6, Baynes 5 in 5.

Substitutions—Fordham, Healy for Stocker; Gallaudet, Scipp for Beatright, Benedict for Bouchard, Langenberg for Benedict.

Referee—Guyon, Carlisle. Time of halves—20 minutes.

CRESCENTS MAKE IT 20.

Brooklyn Five Adds to Its String With 26-17 Victory Over F. & M.

One more victory has been chalked up to the credit of the Crescent Athletic Club's basketball team, making a straight run of twenty victories without a defeat. The latest addition to the string is Franklin and Marshall College, which met the Half Mooners last night in the Crescent court and succumbed to the tune of 26 to 17 in a well played game.

Nicklas and Parmele were the chief scorers of the Brooklyn team, while Madison did very well for F. & M.. At half time the score was 16 to 8 in favor of the home team.

The line-up:

CRESCENT (26).		F. & M. (17).
Nicklas	L. F.	Weaver
Parmele	R. F.	Horisman
McTigue	C.	Waugman
Simms	L. G.	Madison
Griffin	R. G.	Williams

Goals from field—Nicklas (4), Parmele (3), Simms (2), Griffin (2), McTigue, Weaver (2), Horisman (2), Madison (2). Goals from foul—Parmele (2), Madison (5).

Substitutions—Crescent: Heath for McTigue. F. and M.: Jarbey for Madison, McGarvey for Waugman.

Referee—Tom Thorp, Columbia. Time of halves—20 minutes.

RALLY BY POLY FIVE FAILS.

Brooklyn Players Lose to Georgetown by 38 to 30.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28.—Brooklyn Poly, after being on the short end of 20 to 6 count in the first half of its basketball game with Georgetown here tonight, rallied in the second portion and came close to pulling the contest out of the fire. Poly was finally subdued, 38 to 30, but was playing the locals off their feet when the final whistle blew.

Line-up and summary:

GEORGETOWN (38).		B'KLYN POLY (30).
Flavin	L. F.	Nelson
Florence	R. F.	Linoki
O'Connell	C.	Joy
Dudack	L. G.	Bachrach
Zazalli	R. G.	Schartzman

Substitutions—O'Byrne for Florence, Walsh for Zazalli, Florence for O'Byrne, Zazalli for Walsh, Swift for Flavin, Ratner for Linoki, Linoki for Ratner.

Goals From Floor—Flavin (7), Florence (3), O'Connell (4), Dudack, Zazalli (2), Nelson (6), Linoki (4), Bachrach (3).

Goals From Foul—Flavin (4), Nelson (4).

Referee—Colliflower.

PRATT FIVE WINS EASILY.

Piles Up Score of 42 to 8 Against Manhattan College.

Pratt Institute's basketball team defeated the Manhattan College five last night at Pratt Institute, 42 tp 8. Kruser, the centre of the Brooklyn team, proved to be the best scorer of both floor goals and goals from foul. He had five of the former and four of the latter to his credit. Bucera made seven goals from the floor for Pratt.

Hemilin of the Manhattan College quintet made two floor goals and two from foul, while Fresa did the rest of the scoring for the Manhattan aggregation. The line-up:

PRATT (42).		MANHATTAN (8).
Leary	L. F.	Freza
Schafran	R. F.	Hayes
Kruser	C.	Hemilin
Munigle	R. G.	Mahoney
Bucera	L. G.	Zimmerer

Goals from field—Bucera (7), Kruser (5), Schafran (5), Munigle (4), Leary (3), Hemilin (2), Freza. Goals from foul—Kruser (4), Hall, Hemilin (2).

Substitutions—Pratt: MacIntosh for Munigle, Crawford for Schafran, Le Count for Bucera, Gerberich for Kruser, Hall for Leary.

Referee—Ed Thorp, De La Salle. Time of halves—20 minutes.

AQUATIC EVENTS A FEATURE.

Other Contests Also for Sportsman's Show, Which Starts Today.

Swimming, diving and boxing contests for amateurs and trapshooting for both amateurs and professionals will feature the program of the Sportsman's Show, which opens this morning at Madison Square Garden and will hold forth until Saturday of next week. The show will be under the personal supervision of Tex Rickard, who aims to make it a bigger event than any of the shows of this type previously held in the Garden.

An extensive program of aquatic events for both men and women competitors has been arranged by the officials of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. At least one contest has been scheduled for each afternoon and also for each evening while the show is in progress. For the opening day there will be a 60-yard handicap swim for women at 2:30 P. M. and the trial heats of the 100-yard handicap for men swimmers at 3 P. M. In the evening women will take part in a fancy diving handicap at 8 o'clock, and the semi-final and final of the men's 100-yard handicap will be started at 9 o'clock.

Boxing bouts by amateurs are scheduled for each afternoon and evening of the show. The afternoon boxing will be started at 5 o'clock and the evening events at 10:30 o'clock. The contestants will be of three classes—118, 128 and 138 pounds. The boxers will weigh in this afternoon at the Garden and will not be required to weigh in again during the tournament. Two three-round bouts will be put on each evening. There will be no bouts this afternoon. The names of the contestants will not be announced until the boxers enter the ring.

Will Box for Clark House Fund.

A boxing exhibition between Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion of the world, and Sammy Noble will be the headliner of the annual "get together" at the Clark House, 283 Rivington Street, tonight for the benefit of the Clark Camp, which takes care of east side youngsters during the Summer. There will be also a basketball game between Sam Meiltzer's Old Timers and Will Cantor's team of the same name, and dancing after the athletic contests.

The New England Professional Golfers' Association, Inc., organized a short time since, proposes to try out something of a departure from the usual procedure in professional ranks in connection with several tournaments being planned for the current year. A system of handicaps, similar to that frequently employed by amateurs will be used. Daniel Horan, Massachusetts Golf Association handicapper, has agreed to undertake the job of rating members of the new association. Charles Burgess of the Woodland Golf Club is President of the new organization, which has more than twenty-five charter members.

LANGFORD WINNER IN FLORIDA GOLF

Captures Lake Worth Tourney by Victory Over Heintzman, 3 and 2, in Final.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 29.—W. B. Langford of the Glen Oak Golf Club, Chicago, won the championship match in the annual Lake Worth Golf Tournament here today, putting out George C. Heintzman of the Hamilton Country Club, Canada, in the final round by 3 and 2. In the second sixteen, F. V. Skiff of Baltusrol defeated Sidney Maddock of Palm Beach, 7 and 6, and in the third flight the match went to twenty holes before R. Greiner was able to overcome J. H. Holmes.

Langford was 1 down in the ninth in the championship match, and, as they started back, Heintzman slashed his drive into the rocks while Langford drove straight. Their next strokes brought both up on the edge of the green. Heintzman ran up dead and stymied Langford. Langford gave him the putt and ran up dead, halving the hole. On the tenth both hooked their drives and then Langford went a little over the green, while Heintzman went still further over into the bunker. Heintzman chipped out short, while Langford ran up dead and won the hole.

At the next hole, Langford was short into the bunker and Heintzman went over into the bunker and took two shots to get out. Langford won the hole and was 1 up for the first time. Heintzman drove into the rough on the twelfth, while Langford drove straight. Heintzman got out short, while Langford played over the bunker.

When they got on the green, Heintzman missed his putt and Langford was 2 up. On the fourteenth, both were straight over the bunker short of the green. Heintzman chipped up within eight feet, while Langford holed his shot.

REACH FINAL IN GOLF.

Van Houten and Colburn Survive in Sweepstakes at Ormond Beach.

Special to The New York Times.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 28.—The semi-finals today in the Tomoka Sweepstakes on the Ormond golf course left E. W. Van Houten of Arcola and B. S. Colburn of Asheville to play in the final of the first division tomorrow, and in the second division Donn Byrne, Woodway Golf Club, and Abram Deronde of Englewood. Between two divisions and the consolation class three of the matches went to extra holes.

In a competitive way the play was capital, and as the cold snap lasted but a day the battling was much more enjoyable. Van Houten, who plays entirely with irons, defeated George Potts, Flatrock Golf Club, New York, by 2 up, and Colburn beat F. L. Brown of Columbus, Ohio, 1 up at the nineteenth. Brown, although beaten, came in in 40.

Donn Byrne won from Charles Prettyman, Philadelphia, in the second division and Deronde beat N. Holmes, Allegheny Golf Club, 1 up. Both of the consolations in this divisions went to extra holes. E. M. Gatliff of Covington, Ky., won from E. E. Reed, Havana, by 1 up at the twentieth. He was 2 down at the turn, but squared the match with a par 3 on the fifteenth. In the other consolation match of this division Judge Knox of Alabama beat Father Gavan of Columbia, S. C., 1 up at the nineteenth. J. J. Gray, Nashville, beat P. McKeel of Morgantown, 5 and 4 in the first division consolation.

JINX FAILS TO HALT CLARK.

Medalist in St. Augustine Golf Tourney Reaches Final.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 28.—Donald Clark of Huntington, W. Va., is one golfer at least who is not bothered by the medal jinx. Although he won the qualifying round of the first tournament of the season here on Tuesday, he is still in the running and playing as vigorously as ever. Today he defeated Hugh Mackenzie of the Columbia Club of Washington in a hard fought struggle that went to nineteen holes. As a result Clark will meet William A. Knight, who won the Florida State championship two years ago. Knight's victim in the semi-final round was Dr. D. L. Culver, the New York Athletic Club's trapshooting star. The score of this match was 5 and 4. The contest between Clark and Mackenzie was an up and down affair. Knight took the lead at the start in his tussle with Culver and kept in the van all the way.

QUAKERS WIN AT HOCKEY.

Defeat New Rochelle Team, 6 to 2, in Rough Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—The New Rochelle hockey team lost a sensational match to the Quaker City sextet by 6 goals to 2 in its first appearance at the Ice Palace here tonight. The match was bitterly contested and much closer than the score indicates. It was the roughest game played here this season, sticks flying in all directions. Three New Rochelle players—Dufresne, Wellington and O'Keefe—were ruled off the ice for rough playing, and Henriques of the Quakers also was put out for tripping. Each stayed the regulation time of two minutes.

Henriques was the star of the match with four goals, but Captain Eddie Hill's all-around playing helped Philadelphia to its victory. Noonan played a snappy game for New Rochelle.

The line-up:

QUAKER CITY (6).		NEW ROCHELLE (2).
Crawford	R. W.	Noonan
Henriques	C.	T. Smith
Souder	L. W.	Wellington
Hill	C.	Hunter
Dexter	P.	Dufresne

Walter A. Kinsella, professional of the Squash Club, and James Reid, professional of the Crescent Athletic Club, will meet in a handicap match at squash tennis this afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Crescent courts. Kinsella, who is the former professional champion, will concede Reid five aces in each game, and the match will be decided in the best three of five games.

PLAY IN MET. OPEN

Mitchell and Duncan Likely to Contend for Golf Title—Siwanoy First Choice.

The probability of the Metropolitan Open Golf Championship being awarded to the Siwanoy Country Club, and of Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, two famous British professionals, being contenders for the title at present held by Walter Hagen is the latest development in the local golfing arena. Although official confirmation on neither point has yet been made, information on which the announcement is made comes from a source thoroughly reliable.

In the first place the Professional Golfers' Association, which was asked to express its choice of a course for the championship, nominated Siwanoy as first, with the Deal Golf Club second and Canoe Brook Country Club third. Three selections were requested in order that alternates might be had in case some combination of circumstances made it inadvisable to approve the first selection.

It happens, however, that there is nothing to interfere with awarding the tournament to Siwanoy. In the first place, no other Westchester course has been given serious consideration, and furthermore, it has been seven years since that section of the association's territory staged an open championship, Scarsdale drawing the last one in 1914. It is pretty well understood that the amateur championship will be awarded to the Englewood Golf Club, while the junior championship, the only other event sponsored by the association, has been definitely awarded to the Belleclaire Golf and Country Club at Bayside, Long Island.

So much for the decision to send the tournament to the Mount Vernon course. As to the appearance of Duncan and Mitchell in the list of competitors, practical assurance has been received from the men who will handle the booking of exhibitions over here that no such matches will be scheduled to conflict with the championship of the district, and that they will be strongly urged to enter this tournament. Furthermore the two stars will undoubtedly prefer to take part in a tournament of such importance as the local championship has attained.

Last year Vardon and Ray did not take part in the tournament, though they played an exhibition match at the Greenwich Country Club, where the championship was played, only a day or two before the tournament opened. Their failure to enter the list was due to the fact that exhibitions had been arranged for the days on which the tournament was played before the dates for the event had been definitely settled.

In order to afford the visitors the privilege of playing in the championship, the playing dates will be arranged with a view to that end. This will mean probably late in July or early in August. The British open proper will be played June 30-July 1. Shortly after this will come the French open, in which, no doubt, several British stars, as well as a majority of the American delegation which expects to go over for the British event, are likely to take part. Under this schedule the visiting stars as well as the home talent should be back here by July 20, or possibly earlier. This will allow about a week's practice, provided the championship is held the last week in July.

Englewood has practically been accepted for the Metropolitan amateur. That club held the last of these events staged on Jersey soil in 1914. Since that time the amateur was sent once to the Brooklawn Country Club at Bridgeport, Conn., once to Nassau and twice to Apawamis. New Jersey, therefore, has the call again, and Englewood appears to have no formidable opposition.

TITLEHOLDER LOSES GAME.

Concannon Bows to Silver in Match of Pocket Billiard Meet.

By far the most interesting game played to date in the professional pocket billiard championship tournament for the State title that has been under way at Lawlor's rooms took place last night when Leo Silver defeated Joseph Concannon, present holder, by the score of 125 to 92.

Both had high runs of twenty-three, but Silver had three of them, while the title holder gathered but one such cluster. Nevertheless, Concannon put up a stubborn game and was in the lead well into the match. When he had 77 points Silver had but 73. Then Silver made his second run of 23 soon after and the score was 96 to 87 in his favor.

Concannon played safeties. Then Silver got started again and tallied his third bunch of 23 which took him to the 119 mark, while Concannon had, in the meantime, tallied five points, which put his score at 92. Despite the best efforts of the champion to leave the balls safe, Silver managed to get the necessary six with which to end the game.

Fred Wolfret meets Charles Grogan tonight in the continuation of the tourney.

SURPRISE FOR LEO FLYNN.

Bernstein Beats Him in Hard-Fought Snooker Match by 54 to 45.

The unexpected happened at Doyle's Broadway Billiard Room last night when Max Bernstein defeated Leo Flynn in the amateur championship snooker pool tournament. Bernstein has always been regarded as one of the weaker players, but seems to have developed speedily since the tournament began, as he has lost but one game out of five. In last night's match he held Flynn even until the colors were reached, and then after a battle of safety play he finally knocked off the black ball, winning by a score of 54 to 45.

This game places Bernstein in a tie with William Downs, who has won four and lost one. They will play the tie off this afternoon, and the winner will meet George La Rue Tuesday night in the final. The tournament was divided in two sections on account of the large number of contestants.

NAUGHRIGHT BREAKS EVEN.

Wins a Match and Loses One in Amateur Three-Cushion Tourney.

Ray Naughright, who was thrown somewhat behind his schedule by sickness, got an even break in two matches of the New York State amateur three-cushion championship tournament at the Rational Recreation parlors last night. In the first contest he defeated George Laubach, 30 to 28, in forty-six innings. Laubach clicked off a high run of five, while Naughright's best effort was four.

In the second match Naughright was defeated by Robert Crespi, 30 to 24, in forty-eight innings. This match was closely contested right along until the final inning. At this point Crespi was leading 28 to 24 and in his last appearance he counted four points to end the match. Naughright's best run was three.

LOYOLA IN HOCKEY TIE.

Battles to 4-4 Score Against Newman School on Local Rink.

Loyola School's hockey team battled through a tie game yesterday against the Newman School team of Lakewood, N. J., in a keenly fought game on the ice at the 181st Street Ice Palace. When the teams had completed three periods of ten minutes each, the score was knotted at 4 all. Because the ice was not available for further use by the scholastic teams, the lads were prevented from playing to a decision.

Newman School was in front at the end of the first period by 2 to 1, but in the second period the Loyola skaters registered two goals while Newman was scoring one. Both sides scored goals in the closing period.

TOWNSEND HARRIS SCHOOL IS VICTOR

Captures P. S. A. L. Swimming Championship in Meet at City College.

STUYVESANT IS SECOND

Winning Team Scores 19½ Points, 3 More Than Its Closest Rival—A Spectacular Relay Race.

Townsend Harris Hall High School's swimming team, which tied for premier laurels in the final dual meet series recently in the New York A. C. pool, carried off the high school aquatic championship title last night in the annual meet conducted under the auspices of the Public Schools Athletic League in the City College pool. The lads from Harlem, in a program of six events, accumulated the victorious total of 19½ points, leading Stuyvesant H. S., which finished second, by three tallies. Erasmus Hall H. S. of Brooklyn was third with 11 tallies, and Manual Training and Evander Childs High Schools were deadlocked for fourth, each with 5 points. Last year's title-winning aggregation, the representatives of De Witt Clinton H. S., finished seventh with 4 points in a list of eight schools which figured in the point score.

In attaining the team championship representatives of Townsend Harris Hall accounted for a brace of individual titles and a team championship. The victorious school's team scored a spectacular victory in the 800-foot relay race. In the fancy diving contest Leslie Miller carried off the title and contributed five points to his team's total, and, in the plunge for distance, F. Umansky floated through the water of the City College natatorium the winning distance of 64 feet 10 inches, another Townsend Harris Hall individual title and a potent addition to the school's score.

A Spectacular Victory.

The most spectacular victory for the Townsend Harris Hall lads was in one of the hardest fought struggles of the meet. This came in the 800-foot relay race, which was the first final, and started the school auspiciously in quest of the team honors. An exceptional burst of speed by K. Harvey on the last leg of the journey brought the title to Townsend Harris Hall. Stuyvesant High School's team, off to a superb start through the speedy swimming of A. Truell, led the field for three relays, working up an advantage of about a yard at the start of the closing relay. J. Shaw, Stuyvesant, and Harvey were the anchor men for their respective teams and the battle between them for supremacy threw the crowd which filled the floating accommodations into a delirium of shouting and cheering.

Harvey swan at a terrific clip from the time he dove into the water, and in the first length overhauled Shaw. For 10 brief laps the pair swam practically abreast, but on the final turn of the pool Harvey began gradually to creep away from his rival and, with untiring stroke, continued to the finish, where he had a lead of about one yard. Erasmus Hall's quartet finished third. The time for the victorious team was 2:48, six seconds slower than the record established two years ago.

Close finishes were the rule in the other races. All in all, the program produced the quality of competition characteristic of scholastic activities where a title is involved, and the enthusiasm transformed the college pool inclosure into a bedlam typical of schoolboy sport.

Braisted Loses Two Titles.

Cornel Braisted, crack Boys' High swimmer, who won the 50-yard and 100-yard titles last year, was relieved of both his championship brackets in the course of the evening. Braisted was third in a blanket finish in the half-century swim, in which Harry Lewis, Erasmus Hall, led the procession. Lewis covered the distance in 28 seconds, three-fifths of a second slower than the record. In the century event, Braisted had to be content with fourth position. The title he won last year was gathered in by Herb Belin, Manual Training's consistent performer over this distance. Belin swam to victory in 1:02 3-5, two-fifths of a second behind the existing record. At the finish, Belin was inches in front of J. Shaw, Stuyvesant, who, in turn, was separated by less than a foot from Bunker Rossetti, Erasmus Hall.

Roland Schell, Evander Childs H. S., gave an impressive display of ability in capturing the 220-yard title from a formidable field. He won by about a yard and a half in 2:57 3-5. In the plunge for distance, F. Umansky, Townsend Harris was victorious with 64 feet 10 inches, and in the diving title test, the laurel wreath went to Leslie Miller, another Townsend Harris student, with 58.6 points.

The summaries:

800-Foot Relay Swim—Won by Townsend Harris Hall High School, first team (A. Clifford, R. Beardsley, W. Pilot and R. Harvey); Stuyvesant High School (A. Truell, J. Kennedy, R. Smith and J. Shaw), second; Erasmus Hall High School (D. Reynolds, E. Gardiner, J. Tompkins and B. Rossetti), third; High School of Commerce (Hershel, Roses, Barrere and Kanishefsky), fourth. Time—2:48.

Fancy Diving Contest—Won by L. Miller, Townsend Harris Hall High School, 58.6 points; W. Perry, Stuyvesant High School, 57.3 points, second; D. Reynolds, Erasmus Hall High School, 51 points, third; Waterbury, De Witt Clinton High School, 48.6 points, fourth.

220-Yard Swim—Won by R. Shell, Evander Childs High School; G. Gernsbach, Townsend Harris Hall High School, second; P. Wacker, De Witt Clinton High School, third; W. Perry, Stuyvesant High School, fourth. Time—2:57 3-5.

50-Yard Swim—Won by H. Lewis, Erasmus Hall H. S.; J. Kennedy, Stuyvesant H. S., second; C. Braisted, Boys' H. S., third; R. Fitzgibbons, De Witt Clinton H. S., fourth. Time—0:28.

Plunge for Distance—Won by F. Umansky, Townsend Harris Hall H. S., with 64 feet 10 inches; M. Lowey, Stuyvesant H. S., 64 feet, second; W. Ruhl, Townsend Harris Hall H. S., 61 feet, and J. Avery Boys' H. S., 61 feet, tied for third.

100-Yard Swim—Won by H. Belin, Manual Training H. S.; J. Shaw, Stuyvesant H. S., second; B. Rossetti, Erasmus Hall H. S., third; C. Braisted, Boys' H. S., fourth. Time—1:02 3-5.

Point Score—Townsend Harris Hall H. S., 19½ points; Stuyvesant H. S., 16; Erasmus Hall H. S., 11; Manual Training H. S., 5; Evander Childs H. S., 5; Boys' H. S., 4½; De Witt Clinton H. S., 4; H. S. of Commerce, 2.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS EVENT.

50-Yard Swim—Won by A. Harover, P. S. 62, Manhattan; R. Acanfara, P. S. 171, Manhattan, second; B. Resnick, P. S. 62, Manhattan, third; J. Guggenheimer, P. S. 171, Manhattan, fourth. Time—0:38 3-5.

LITTLE IMP WINS ON ICE.

Yacht Is Only One of Three to Finish in First Long Branch Race.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 28.—Little Imp, the property of Mrs. I. T. Straus of Newark, won the first ice boat race of the season, sailed today by the Long Branch Ice Boat and Yacht Club. The yacht finished alone in the contest for the Commodore's Cup. The Little Imp sailed seven and one-half miles in 18 minutes in charge of Captain T. Fraser Price and Captain Clarence S. Green.

A fourth member of the team will be picked tomorrow at a time trial on Soldiers' Field.

Penn Offers to Help Teach The Young Idea How to Row

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—In order to develop material for its future crew, the University of Pennsylvania, through its rowing authorities, today made an offer of boats, quarters and Athletics of the city High School sport directors. At a recent meeting of the Supervisory Committee on Athletics of the city high school rowing as a sport was abolished, and the action of the Pennsylvania authorities was attributed to a desire to prevent interest in oarsmanship among the schoolboys from dying out.

MAN O' WAR MAKES HIS FAREWELL BOW

Champion Racer, Under Colors, Gallops Before Admiring Throng at Lexington.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 28.—Man o' War, champion race horse of the American turf, made his last public appearance this afternoon before a large crowd at the Kentucky Jockey Club track.

The super-horse was galloped up and down the home stretch twice and seemed to enjoy the frolic as much as his admirers.

Hundreds of prominent horsemen, business men and society women mingled their cheers with those of hundreds of small racing enthusiasts who sometimes watched their favorite through a crack in the fence or from distant housetops, but who on this occasion occupied any seat that their desire dictated, due to the fact that the show was free to everybody. A squad of police kept the crowd from surging onto the track.

Man o' War was led from the paddock with full racing paraphernalia and the Riddle colors on. Clyde Gordon, workout jockey for the horse since he was a yearling, rode him up and down several times in front of the grandstand, while George A. Bain, master of ceremonies, made a brief talk introducing Man o' War, his owner, Samuel D. Riddle, and Mrs. Riddle, and his trainer, Louis Feustel. Bain gave a brief record of the horse's performances.

Riddle spoke briefly, expressing appreciation of the interest shown in Man o' War, and thanking the horse's friends in his behalf.

A coincidence in which Bain justly takes pride is the fact that he introduced the horse of the century at his first public appearance at Saratoga Springs in August, 1918, when he sold him as a yearling to his present owner, Riddle.

Today, following the public showing, Riddle turned Man o' War over, with a clean bill of health and a record that horsemen say will stand for many years, to his future caretaker, Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, who will be in charge of Man o' War and a stable of brood mares for Riddle at Hinata Farm.

TURFMEN TO CONFER AGAIN.

Jockey Club Stewards and Maryland Commission to Meet Wednesday.

The following statement was given out yesterday by The Jockey Club:

"As the result of an informal discussion of matters pertaining to the turf at a dinner given by Joseph Widener at his home in Philadelphia last Thursday evening and attended by members of the Board of Stewards of The Jockey Club and the Maryland State Racing Commision, it was decided to hold a conference on Wednesday next at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Philadelphia, at which a working agreement will be perfected."

NEXT SIX-DAY RACE MAR. 6.

Foreign Riders Expected to Start in Grind at Garden.

The next six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden will be held March 6 to 12, it became known yesterday, when entry blanks were distributed among local amateur riders for the series of sprint races which will be held on the Saturday night previous to the opening of the long grind. Plans for the forthcoming race promise one of the most successful grinds in the local history of the Garden cycling attraction. The pick of the foreign riders has been invited to start, and the promoters expect that a majority of them will accept the invitations.

50 TO 1 SHOT WINS WITH FEW BACKERS

Jim Fogg Upsets Form Players at New Orleans by Capturing First Race.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 28.—Although a number of fairly long-priced horses have scored during the course of the Winter meeting, the racegoers at the Fair Grounds were treated to a decided thrill when a 50 to 1 shot, the first of the season, got home in front in the first race. And as is usually the case with such winners, the horse had few if any backers.

This winner was Jim Fogg, a three-year-old son of Harrigan and Alice Commoner, owned by the Hall Brothers, and was making his first appearance under silks. For some reason Jim failed to come out as a two-year-old and so nothing of his ability was known. He was cast today in a five and a half furlong race for maidens of his age in which there were thirteen starters.

Jim Fogg showed good speed and, rushing up with the front runners at the start, followed the pace closely. He popped into the lead at the head of the stretch to the utter surprise of most of the crowd, and, fighting it out gamely with Repent, finally took the victory from the latter by half a length after a driving finish.

Meantime, the crowd had seen the favorite, Trader, which was sent to the post an odds-on choice, almost drop out of the contest a furlong from the start. Trader got into close quarters in the big field and was bumped so hard that he was almost thrown to the ground. It knocked him from second place to last and there he remained, not being persevered with when it was seen that he had no chance. Damoris took third in this event.

The feature of the card was the Belmont Handicap for three-year-olds at a mile, and it proved to be a stirring race between Fantoche and Botheration, which went to the post equal choices at 3 to 2 in a small field of five starters.

The victory of Fantoche was due largely to an excellent ride by Jockey Lawrence Lyke, who fairly lifted his mount over the finish line to win by a nose. Botheration raced Two Pair down in the first three-quarters and then took the lead and appeared to be the winner at the head of the stretch. Fantoche, which had been under restraint for the first half mile, began to move up at the far turn and, under a rousing ride in the last furlong, caught Botheration inside the eighth pole and got the decision after both horses had fought it out gamely. Master Jack was third.

175-Pound Class—Wilson of Princeton won over Humphreys of Boston Tech on a referee's decision in 3 minutes 37 seconds.

Unlimited Class—Captain Carpenter of Princeton won over Russell on a referee's decision in 6 minutes 6 seconds.

Total score—Princeton 17, Boston Tech 8.

Referee—Mr. Koustobkiaid.

BELTON WONDERFUL BEST POM IN SHOW

Takes Highest Honors in Exhibit at Waldorf—Many Ribbons for Bricabrac.

Pomeranians reigned yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria, where the American Pomeranian Club held its eleventh annual specialty show for the little dogs. A hundred or so of these canine fluffballs starred in the 1921 classic, and went through their paces in the ring to the edification of perhaps three times their number of prominent New York Pomeranian enthusiasts.

The dog to be declared both the winner of the dogs and the best Pom of the show was Mrs. Hollins Bourne's Belton Wonderful. Belton lived up to the second half of his name, being a very wonderful wolf sable, with a fine carriage and hair remarkable both for length and fineness. If dog pelts ever come to have commercial value for wraps and coats, Belton's owner will do well to keep him locked up.

The winner of the bitches and the second best dog of the show was Mrs. E. Seely's Bricabrac, a black Pom, of which there were not so many specimens exhibited as in former years. The sable and other less sombre hues seem of late years somewhat to have supplanted the black in popular favor. Bricabrac, an especially fine example of her sex and breed, displayed an insatiable appetite for ribbons yesterday. She took the first award in five classes, from puppy up to winners of lady Poms, so that when the show was over Bricabrac was so covered with blue streamers as to make it difficult to say just what her natural shade might be.

The principal awards follow:

FERRIS JAKE IS WINNER.

Pointer Gains Victory in National Championship Field Trials.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Jan. 28.—Ferris Jake, a pointer, owned by C. E. Griffith of Yale, Okla., is the winner of the national championship field trials, which closed here late today, according to an announcement made to-night by the judges. The new champion is a young dog, this being his first important victory. He was bought a year ago for $1,500.

GUILLEMOT TO RUN HERE.

French Athlete Expected to Compete Here in Guaranty Club Meet.

One of the most important local board floor races of recent years is promised for the annual indoor athletic meet of the Guaranty Club in Madison Square Garden, Feb. 19, when Josef Guillemot, the French distance runner, who won the 5,000-meter title at the last Olympic games, is scheduled to make his first appearance against a field of Uncle Sam's crack runners. Officials of the Guaranty Club have been negotiating with the French star for the last several weeks. Yesterday a cablegram was received from the Guaranty Club's Paris representative advising the local officials that Guillemot had accepted the invitation and was now making preparations to come to this country.

Guillemot is a Corporal in the French Army. Before he can definitely agree to race here it is necessary that the French runner secure a leave of absence to visit this country. It is said the French authorities have promised to do everything possible in assisting Guillemot to procure the necessary permit.

In anticipation of the Frenchman's appearance here the Guaranty Club officials have added a special 3,000-meter race to their attractive program, and they have limited the field of prospective starters to half a dozen. Joie W. Ray, the speedy little Illinois A. C. runner, and John Romig of Penn State, intercollegiate cross-country champion, have already accepted invitations to compete. Others invited include Hallock H. Brown, Boston A. A., Olympic champion at the distance; Harry Helme, Buffalo, St. John's School, Manlius, N. Y., national junior and senior two-mile champion, and Walter Higgins, the crack Columbia runner, who holds the Van Cortlandt Park intercollegiate hill and dale record.

Hats Humbled in Price

SOME of these hats are as Spring-like in appearance as anything one would see on the beach at Orlando—those soft felts which have just the negligee air needed with flannels and serges.

Others of the "brushed-up" felt, in light tans, greens and grays, suggest a motor coat or a travel ulster.

They are all hats of distinction, selected to show their quality and style by contrast with the ordinary, every-day hats one encounters.

If The Man's Shop could openly state the prices at which these hats originally appeared, few of them would be left at the end of the first day.

Now they are all priced at $4.75—truly a fraction of their prices a few weeks ago.

In trimmings—ribbons and bindings they represent all that the highest-priced hat maker could bring to his task.

And they include the newest blocks in black stiff hats, as well as the soft felts.

Men who believe in accepting unusual opportunities as they come along will not hesitate to select one or more of these hats, for future as well as present wear.

SEIZE 500 BARRELS OF BEER IN BRONX

Prohibition Agents Say 60,000 Bottles Found in Warehouse Tested 5 Per Cent.

TWO PRISONERS TAKEN

Lawyer and Two Others Arrested in Brooklyn for Selling Forged Liquor Permits.

Federal prohibition agents seized 60,000 bottles of 5 per cent. beer, packed in 500 sugar barrels, after they had been transferred from cars in the Van Nest yards of the New Haven Railroad to the warehouse of Sofia Brothers at 1,221 Intervale Avenue, the Bronx, last night. Theodore Sofia, a part owner of the warehouse, and Joseph Kramer, a chauffeur, of 1,363 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, were arrested. Kramer is held on a charge of transporting liquor illegally.

The prohibition agents have been trying to trace the source of beer that has appeared in the Bronx for some time. They finally learned, they say, that it was being shipped into the city from Philadelphia and yesterday morning they found two and one-half car loads in the Van Nest yards. The agents immediately took several bottles to be analyzed. "Five per cent." was the laboratory answer to the tests, according to the agents.

When the last barrel had been packed away the agents and two detectives from the Special Service Squad descended on the warehouse and made the arrests. The two prisoners will be arraigned this morning.

Three arrests for the alleged sale of a forged liquor withdrawal permit were made in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon by agents on the staff of Hugh McQuillan, head of the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau. Those arrested were Jacob Stein, a lawyer; his brother, William Stein, a process server, and Arthur Devine, alias Feltman, described by Mr. McQuillan's agents as a "bootlegger." The arrests were made in the offices of the Brooklyn Service Bureau, process servers, at 373 Fulton Street, with which all three men are alleged to have been connected.

The prisoners were arraigned before Commissioner Barmore in Brooklyn, and held in $7,500 bail each for examination on Feb. 18.

Wants Volstead Act Changed.

United States Attorney Le Roy W. Ross of Brooklyn, who last Spring urged an amendment to the Volstead act providing for Federal liquor distributing stations, has again brought forward his plan to aid the Prohibition Department in reducing the number of basic permit holders. Mr. Ross would have the Government dispense liquor for medicinal, sacramental and industrial purposes. He said yesterday that he could see no reason for so many being in this business, when there was so little legitimate demand for liquor and alcohol.

Prohibition Commissioner John F. Kramer has sent circular letters to prohibition offices throughout the country warning against the acceptance of gifts from persons transacting business through prohibition offices.

About fifty prohibition agents have been busy this week on court cases in which they were witnesses. Some idea of the court work under the prohibition law is indicated by figures of United States Attorney Caffey, showing that trials involving 5,109 persons charged with criminal violation of the liquor law were handled last year. Besides, 1,053 civil actions were brought. In these about 850 injunctions were obtained. A number of persons were later convicted of violation of the injunctions. Among those serving sentences for violations are thirty-seven in the Tombs, forty-two in the Essex County Jail and eight in the Essex County Penitentiary.

In a tenement house in City Hall Place, near Duane Street, detectives of the Elizabeth Street station found a complete still ready for operation, two barrels of mash, two large crates of raisins and about 100 bottles and a number of jugs. They arrested three men who described themselves as Paul Romage, 15 City Hall Place; Stephen Ferretti of the same address, and Emil Martinio of Hoboken. The detectives said they also found three loaded shotguns and more than 100 cartridges.

The raid followed a report to the Elizabeth Street station about midnight by an Italian who said that his brother was a prisoner in the house. He said that his brother had been kidnapped some time ago and his family had to pay $400 ransom for his release. A second ransom was being demanded, the Italian told the police. Detectives went to the place and broke down the door. The inmates turned out the lights and attacked the detectives, who were forced to use blackjacks in subduing them.

Shoe Salesman Held.

Harry Jonas, 68 years old, of 910 Jennings Street, a shoe salesman, was arrested yesterday by a patrolman of the East Eighty-eighth Street station and will be turned over today to the Federal authorities to answer a charge of violating the Volstead act. The police said he had a 20-gallon keg in a taxicab when arrested on complaint of a man wearing a minister's garb. Jonas first said the keg contained wine, later said it was root beer and finally grape juice. He consented to have the contents sampled when arraigned before Magistrate Robert O. Ten Eyck, in Harlem Court, but later changed his mind.

When the case of Theodore Thomsen on a writ of habeas corpus came up before a Supreme Court Justice in Brooklyn yesterday it was adjourned until next Friday. Thomsen, a bartender at 2,957 Fulton Street, was arrested on a charge of violating the State liquor tax law. The trial Magistrate held him in bail of $1,000. On advice of his counsel, Senator Charles A. Russell, the defendant refused to give the bail. Senator Russell contends that the Federal law supercedes the State law and, therefore, the police have no right to make arrests under the State liquor tax law.

Henry Goldenberg, owner of a drug store at Flatbush Avenue and Regent Place, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday by a prohibition agent on a charge of violating the Volstead act. He is alleged to have sold whisky to two colored prohibition agents. Fifty arrests were made in Jersey City yesterday for liquor violations.

Henry Munser, clerk in the Longacre Drug Store, 916 Seventh Avenue, waived examination yesterday before United States Commissioner Hitchcock on a charge of selling whisky without a prescription. He was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury. Maxwell S. Freeman, proprietor of the store, who was also before the Commissioner, asked for a hearing and was held in $1,000 bail for examination Tuesday afternoon. He is also charged with violating the Volstead act. Prohibition Agents Einstein, Smith, and Writtenberg said the clerk sold them a quart of whisky for $9. The agents said they seized 177 bottles of champagne, brandy and gin in the place.

CLERK HELD ON RUM CHARGE.

Admits Selling Whisky at 50 Cents a Glass in a Room.

Edward Dwyer, who described himself as a clerk of 40 Greenwich Street, was arraigned before Magistrate Simms in the Tombs Court yesterday on the charge of violating the State Liquor Tax law.

Policemen Sheehan and Toomey of the Second Inspection District said that they had found Dwyer and two other men in a room on the second floor at 40 Greenwich Street. He said that there were two glasses of whisky on the table and $3 in bills. According to the statements of the two policemen, Dwyer confessed to the two raiders that he had sold whisky, charging the men 50 cents a glass for it. Magistrate Simms continued the case until Feb. 2, because similar cases are pending on appeal before the Court of Special Sessions to determine whether arrests of this kind are legal.

9,401 STILLS TAKEN IN SOUTH

Dry Enforcement Chief Reports 5,328 Arrests in Last Year.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 28.—A total of 9,401 illicit stills was captured and 5,328 arrests were made during the year 1920 in the Southern prohibition district, which comprises the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee, according to figures made public today by S. R. Brame, supervising agent of the district. Of the arrests Kentucky had 1,182.

Prosecutions, the report said, resulted in fines aggregating 288,585 and imprisonments totaling 2,378 months.

Carriers of illicit whisky confiscated included 309 automobiles, 8 boats, 66 vehicles and 93 horses and mules. One house was confiscated. In addition, 27,812 gallons of liquor; 5,779 bushels of meal; 27,130 pounds of sugar; 7,747 gallons of molasses; 88,942 gallons of cider and 2,810,349 gallons of mash were seized in raids.

The total value of property in the district seized for sale was $1,008,171, while property destroyed was valued at $1,524,515. Taxes and penalties assessed by the Internal Revenue Department for the area aggregated $4,561,233.

DECLARES DRY AGENTS EXCEED SOLDIERS' RISK

Wheeler Says Rate of Killings Is Greater Among Them Than in War—Asks Bigger Fund.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Anti-Saloon League, through its counsel, Wayne B. Wheeler, appeared before the Senate Committee on Appropriations today and urged that Congress appropriate for the enforcement of the Prohibition act the full amount asked by the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau, which is $7,500,000. The House cut this to $7,100,000.

Money to enforce prohibition, Mr. Wheeler argued, is the best investment that Congress can make, adding that "it is more important to sustain the Constitution and enforce the law than it is to save a few hundred thousand dollars."

The $400,000 which the Anti-Saloon League asked should be added to the House appropriation was needed to care for the present prohibition enforcement force, Mr. Wheeler declared.

"The field agents," he said, "who gather the evidence should be better paid. They are in a dangerous and difficult field of work. Fewer than one-half of 1 per cent. of the men under arms in the late war lost their lives. A larger percentage of the men who do the field work in gathering this evidence have been killed. Their work is made more dangerous by the wet propaganda now in circulation to encourage lawbreakers."

Mr. Wheeler argued that field agents who receive $1,500 a year cannot live comfortably on the amount, and that "the Government has no right to ask them to work for this salary, knowing the dangers and temptations to graft that they meet."

"The Federal Government," Mr. Wheeler added, "should provide an adequate appropriation, even if there was no return in fines. When we realize that there will be collected in fines, forfeited bonds and prohibitive taxes more than it costs to enforce the law, no good reason can be given for not granting this needed appropriation. It is different from any other appropriation, because it returns to the Government more than is paid out for the service. This is why it is false economy to deny the request."

Seize 400 Cases of Liquor at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Jan. 28.—Federal "dry" agents today seized a shipment of 400 cases of whisky on the way from New York to Cleveland and billed as merchandise. The seizure is the largest made in this district since prohibition went into effect.

ROOSEVELT ON HOME RULE.

Warns Audience Against Letting Transit Become a Political Football.

"Don't let the gentlemen who are doing the considerable shouting for home rule of cities fool you into letting them make the traction system a political football," Colonel Theodore Roosevelt urged his audience at a patriotic mass meeting in the Stuyvesant Neighborhood House, Stuyvesant and Ninth Streets, last night.

This was the first of a series of patriotic meetings to be held under the auspices of the Vacation Association, Inc., 218 Madison Avenue, in a campaign to combat Bolshevism. The association's platform, embodying eight articles defining Americanism, was read by Colonel Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt advised his audience to make themselves familiar with the government of the United States and to be sure of the facts on mooted political points, so that they could perform the duties of citizenship intelligently. One of the dangers of political life, he said, is the watchword invented by politicians, if it is carried too far.

CRAIG'S WITHDRAWAL FILED.

Estimate Board Suspends Action on Controller's Committee Resignation.

The Board of Estimate yesterday "placed on file" Controller Charles L. Craig's letter, received at a previous meeting, notifying the board that he would no longer serve on the Committee on Finance and Budget, of which he was Chairman. By this procedure the board suspends action on the Controller's withdrawal, which followed a resolution adopted by the board which was designed to curtail the powers of the committee.

Deputy Controller Smith moved that the communication be filed, and the motion was adopted, President LaGuardia of the Aldermen and Henry H. Curran, President of Manhattan, voting no.

ACCUSED MAN ON STAND.

Dr. H. C. Winnes Denies Charge of Killing Girl on Mountain Trail.

HARLAN, Ky., Jan. 28.—Taking the stand today in his own behalf, Dr. H. C. Winnes, charged with the murder of Miss Lura Parsons, a school teacher, strongly denied that he was implicated in the killing of the girl, whose mutilated body was found on a lonely pine mountain trail near Dillon, Ky., Sept. 7, 1920.

Taking the stand immediately after the prosecution closed its case this morning, the former State veterinarian also launched into an emphatic denial of charges of the State that he had been drinking whisky on the day of the murder. Dr. Winnes further asserted that he had not seen Miss Parsons after she started from Dillon across the mountain ahead of him toward the Pine Mountain School.

Dr. Winnes was calm and composed throughout his testimony.

Solovel Indictment Dismissed.

The indictment charging Joseph A. Solovel, a former Assistant Corporation Counsel and a friend of Mayor Hylan, with having bribed Frank J. Seib, a special agent of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, to release Benjamin Gross, arrested for alleged violation of the prohibition law, was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge A. N. Hand. The Court stated that the indictment was faulty and that the Government should show more fully what crime had been committed by Gross.

END OF PRINTERS' INK FEARED BY MAKERS

Ban on Carbon-Black Alarms Manufacturers, Who Predict 700 Per Cent. Increase.

SUPPLY FROM FOUR STATES

Wyoming Has Stopped Production, Which Involves Large Waste of Natural Gas.

Resolutions of protest adopted by the National Association of Ink Makers, directed against legislation prohibiting the manufacture of carbon-black, an essential in the production of printers' ink, were explained yesterday by Thomas A. Lenci, one of the committee which drafted the resolutions, and the head of the Eagle Printing Ink Company. He said that if laws already passed in Wyoming came into force in Louisiana, as proposed there, the manufacture of carbon-black practically would be brought to a standstill.

"The public does not realize the situation," he said. "Does it want to pay 50 cents a pound for ink that now costs about 7?"

The only other States where carbon-black is made, said Mr. Lenci, are West Virginia and, to a slight extent, Oaklahoma and Kentucky. It is manufactured from natural gas, and because there is a large amount of gas wasted in the process there is a movement on foot in Louisiana to prevent its use on the ground of public policy.

Mr. Lenci admitted that there was waste in the process, but no way of preventing this has been found.

"The only possible substitute for carbon-black is lampblack," he continued. "But it is not so good, and ink made from it costs from 20 to 30 cents a pound. Carbon-black is essential. The States which pass legislation forbidding its manufacture are selfish, discriminating against the good of the country. There is a clique of gas producers at work in Louisiana to put through this law, so that they may pipe their product to New Orleans for use as a public utility."

The consulting chemist of another large firm said that lampblack was the only substitute for carbon-black.

"It is not as dense," he pointed out. "Twice as much is needed to make the same amount of ink, and it costs twice as much, too. I doubt whether enough lampblack could be produced to care for the demand without the manufacture of carbon-black. Colored inks are not a practicable substitute, as they are made from chemical compounds and cost from 20 to 30 cents a pound."

TO EXPLAIN CONSORTIUM.

Lending Powers Will Seek to Answer Chinese Objections.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The State Department expects to issue in a few days a joint statement, agreed upon by the British, French, Japanese and American Governments, defining the purposes and scope of the consortium for financing China.

Some misapprehension by Chinese officials and bankers as to the principles underlying the consortium has delayed acceptance of the plan by the Peking Government. It is understood that the main Chinese objection has been the requirement in the consortium that in order to safeguard the interests of the lenders, the consortium's agents shall oversee the application of the loans and supervise the tax collections specified as guarantees. The object of this is to prevent "squeeze" by Chinese officials. Previous foreign loans have sometimes been misappropriated in part by Chinese officials.

FORM FOREIGN TRADE BANK.

Federal Reserve Approves $100,000,000 New York Corporation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Federal Reserve Board approved today the articles of association and organization certificate of the Foreign Trade Financing Corporation, a corporation organized under the provisions of the Federal Reserve act, commonly known as the "Edge act."

The capital of this corporation is $100,000,000 and its home office is in New York City. It is incorporated for the purpose of engaging in the business of international or foreign banking or other international or foreign financial operations. Pending the issue of a final permit to commence business the corporation has authority to exercise only those powers which are incidental and preliminary to its organization.

Rivers and Harbors Bill In.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Rivers and Harbors Approprlation bill, carrying $15,250,000 as a lump sum, was reported today by the House Appropriations Committee. The amount is $2,850,000 more than last year's appropriation and $41,864,915 less than estimates submitted. With unexpected balances, a total of $47,299,006 will be available for existing projects before June 30, 1922, the committee report said.

BUSINESS IMPROVES, BUT IS IRREGULAR

Outlook Being Viewed With Increasing Confidence, but Buyers Still Cautious.

THINK IDLENESS IS CHECKED

Failures for Week Ending Jan. 27 Were 429, a Weekly Decrease of 10.

In a survey of business conditions, the weekly reviews find signs of continued improvement, although the point is stressed that great irregularity exists, with a strong tendency to caution. It is considered by R. G. Dun & Co. that deflation has run its course in many lines and sales are reported to have been so heavy that a restocking of goods has become necessary. The outlook, it is asserted, is being viewed with increasing confidence.

With reference to the growing unemployment Bradstreet's says that the official figures of 3,700,000 workers being idle in the mechanical industry "are qualified by statements that perhaps some of these have found work elsewhere, and by the known facts in several instances that work has been found for many thousands to do."

In discussing the general situation Bradstreet's says:

"A widening circle of improvement, more lines of trade and sections of country participating therein, and a better, indeed a more confident, tone are the salient features of this week's reports. Wholesale and retail trade are each slightly better, and the industrial situation on balance seems to show no loss in employment, increased running time in leading textile and shoe manufacturing centres probably offsetting less activity in some sectors of the iron and steel trades and in the railway industry.

"That great irregularity is still shown and that buyers are cautious as rarely in recent years is, however, proved by a measure of quieting down and possibly temporary ease in prices of some cotton goods and in some grades of hides, while, on the other hand, lines hitherto not manifesting much interest now report more strength.

"Business failures for the week ended Jan. 27 number 429, which compares with 439 last week, 104 in the like week of 1920, 140 in 1919, 292 in 1913 and 312 in 1917."

Dun's Review says:

"A demand for goods that is based on actual requirements has lately developed in some trade in different sections of the country, particularly in the textile branches in the East, and the prospects for further gains and their maintenance are the more favorable because speculative excesses are absent. The rate of production is still well below capacity in all important industries and unemployment remains an adverse phase of the situation, but the tendency in some quarters is toward a gradual expansion of operations and a checking of the spread of idleness.

"After months of readjustment, sudden revival is not to be expected, and an extension of the transition may conceivably occur in various lines before any definite turn for the better will be witnessed. The general indications, however, are now rather more encouraging, and there is a growing disposition to view the outlook with confidence."

OWNER HELD FOR FIRE.

Philadelphia Manufacturer Arrested After Arson Is Confessed by Another

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—Joseph Fickler, proprietor of a dress manufacturing plant at 133 North Seventh Street, was held today in $10,000 bail for a further hearing, charged with conspiracy to set fire to his plant.

Jacob Skulinick, New York, was held without bail yesterday on charges of setting fire to the plant. He made a full confession, according to Fire Marshal Elliott, declaring he was paid by New York men to fire the place. The Fire Marshal testified he intends to present evidence definitely establishing Fickler's connection with Skullnick.

$225,000,000 ROAD SOLD FOR $5,000,000

Stockholders of Denver & Rio Grande Charge Fraud by Interlocking Directors.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 28.—Affidavits alleging that fraudulent transactions by interlocking directorates led to the receivership sale of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad were filed late today with Federal Judges Walter H. Sanborn and Robert E. Lewis, sitting here as the District Court of Colorado.

The affidavits were filed by John Lee Webster of Omaha, Neb., counsel for intervening stockholders who are attempting to have the Federal Court deny confirmation of the sale. Mr. Webster asserted that the physical propery of the road was valued at $225,000,000, although it was sold for $5,000,000, and that the securities held by the road were alone worth $9,722,000.

The affidavits declared that advertisements of the sale were couched in covert language "so that prospective bidders would not understand the value of the property." This, Mr. Webster continued, "was to discourage others than the interlocking Directorates" from bidding at the sale.

The alleged methods employed by the "interlocking Directorates" are what the complainants declare "fraudulent," it was explained.

The Court granted purchasers of the road, who were representatives of the Western Pacific, thirty days in which to file an answer to the affidavits and a similar period to both sides in which to file briefs showing the value and indebtedness of the road.

Mr. Webster announced that after the briefs had been filed he would institute proceedings in the District Court at Denver to have set aside the judgment granted the Equitable Trust Company of New York which resulted in the sale, and for an accounting of the amount of money the Equitable Trust Company has received from the sale.

BETTER STILL, IN DRY GOODS

Chicago Sees New Buying Confidence in Settling Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"The present week has witnessed a continued steady increase in the wholesale distribution of dry goods, supported by a substantial increase in the number of orders sent in by our road salesmen and by the fact that there were many more customers in the house this week than during the corresponding period last year.

"This increase in the number of buyers in the market is probably a reflection of what, under present conditions, is a very sane policy—namely, that of buying in smaller quantities and buying more often. In this way the retailer is enabled to keep a complete assortment of lines on hand and thereby materially increase his turnover.

"The indications are that confidence is fast becoming established in the prices now being quoted on cotton piece goods, particularly ginghams, percales, white goods and domestics. Price adjustments on lines of goods for house-furnishing purposes are also bringing forth for merchandise an excess of what had been anticipated.

"Collections, though not up to normal, are showing a slight improvement."

UNITED FRUIT PROFITS UP.

$29.01 a Share Earned on Capital Stock of $100,000,000.

The United Fruit Company in its report for last year shows a net income after interest and taxes amounting to $29,008,307. This was the equivalent of $29.01 a share on the $100,000,000 capital stock. In the larger part of 1920 the capital stock was $50,316,500. The 100 per cent. stock dividend declared last Fall was not payable except to stockholders of Dec. 20. On the basis of the old stock earnings were $57.65 a share, compared with $40.07 in the preceding fifteen months.

The total income was $44,615,274, compared with $38,386,308. Surplus after dividends of $6,518,990 was $22,489,317, compared with $13,873,955. In 1919 the company changed its report to conform with the calendar year. The total surplus shown at the end of last year was $25,980,010, compared with $40,109,722 at the end of the preceding year. This was due to the charge to profit and loss of $50,000,000 for the stock dividend. The balance sheet at the end of the year showed an increase in the value of steamships from $12,961,852 to $25,933,600.

COTTON BELT LINES DENY LABOR CHARGE

Only Six Locomotives Repaired on Contract, Others Done in Company Shops.

COULDN'T GET MECHANICS

Sent Representatives to Automobile Centres, but Men Refused to Come.

J. M. Herbert, President of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway, in commenting upon charges of some labor leaders that the railroads were conspiring to break union labor by farming out equipment repair orders, pointed to the traffic record of his company since the termination of Federal control, and to the fact that only six locomotives were repaired on contract.

"In an effort to re-establish its locomotive mileage capacity," said Mr. Herbert, "the company sent representatives to Toledo, Detroit, Indianapolis and other centres employing skilled mechanics in the manufacture of automobiles, in an endeavor to induce men who had been laid off in that industry to accept service with the railway company, without success.

"After procuring the cost basis of making repairs at the various plants adjacent to the lines of this company, and determining that the Grant Locomotive Works were in position to perform this service at the lowest cost, together with the assurance of most prompt delivery of repaired locomotives, an arrangement was negotiated with that company for overhauling a maximum of twenty locomotives. After six of these locomotives had been sent to the Grant works, and three of them turned out, it was possible by reason of changed conditions to obtain the service of sufficient skilled mechanics to work our own shop facilities to capacity, and arrangement with the outside plant was immediately canceled."

FAVORS TRADE FINANCING.

Reserve Board Approves Plan of $100,000,000 Corporation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Approval of the articles of association of the Foreign Trade Financing Corporation of New York was announced tonight by the Federal Reserve Board. The corporation, which is capitalized at $100,000,000, is being organized under the Edge act for the purpose of engaging in international financial operations.

Announcement was made in New York recently that the presidency of the new corporation would be tendered Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board. Governor Harding stated that until a formal offer was made he would refrain from comment upon the tender.

Pending the issue of a final permit to begin business the board said the corporation has authority to exercise only those powers which are incidental and preliminary to its organization.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Sales of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, Inc., for the first ten months of the fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1920, were $205,931,875, against $158,965,169 for the corresponding period of last year, an increase of $46,966,706, or over 29 per cent.

A syndicate headed by King, Hoagland & Co. of Chicago, Bolger, Mosser & Williams of Chicago, Chandler & Co., Inc., of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and Howe, Snow, Corrigan & Bertles of Grand Rapids, has purchased $2,750,000 first mortgage 8 per cent. serial sinking fund gold bonds of the Mid-Co. Petroleum Company.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—7¾ per cent. for the best names. Thursday—7¾ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Prices Steady.

Prices were steady in the local gray goods market yesterday, but not a great deal of business was done. Spot sales of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths were made at 8¼ cents, and February deliveries of the same construction also brought that price. Similar business was done in 39-inch 68-72s at 9½ cents. Additional trading in 5-yard and 5.50-yard sheetings was done at 7¼ and 6½ cents, respectively. Fourteen cents continued to be the selling price of 39-inch 64-104, 4.30-yard sateens.

Summer Clothing Business.

The men's Summer clothing trade is not quite as active as sellers would like it to be, but the future is regarded with more than usual confidence. A good deal depends, so manufacturers state, on the trend of conditions up to Easter. If buying of the usual clothing continues to be restricted, makers of the specialty lines foresee a more active demand for their products, because Summer clothing should get off to an earlier start. For this reason, prospects are looked upon as favorable. Conditions in the South have shown enough improvement to put retailers in that section in a better spirit, and orders have become freer.

Novelty Sweaters Doing Well.

The Spring demand for women's novelty sweaters is opening up strongly, with the great bulk of it for tuxedo and tie-back effects. The brighter shades are again having everything their own way, especially gray. Following gray, the leading colors of the moment are buff, tomato red and Sax blue. Much of the merchandise now being ordered is said to be meant for special sale offerings. So far as quantity is concerned, the sales volume of leading houses was said yesterday to be up to previous standards, but the lowering of prices has contracted the dollars-and-cents total considerably.

Sport Styles as Experiments.

An increased tendency toward trying out new designs in women's wear, by introducing them in sports apparel, has been noted. The major points in design, it is said, can first be carried out in sport models to much better advantage than in more staple goods, for the reason that wider style latitude is permitted. Just how the new fashion ideas are being launched is made evident in the lengthened skirts that are now promised. This mode has been introduced in the sports apparel worn at the Winter resorts and appears to have found general favor, with the result that longer skirts can be confidently put out in more staple lines.

Sales at Close Margins.

Instead of advertising major items, the tendency with many specialty stores now is to feature articles involving smaller purchase prices. This is regarded as a good means of stimulating business on merchandise that in a sales way has been "done to death." The little features are usually sold at very close margins, and sometimes at a loss which must be made up by profits gained elsewhere. A notable instance of this was in a hosiery sale where the dealer lost a dollar on every pair sold. Another sale that was generously patronized because the goods looked cheap to customers was a glove event. In this case the mark-up amounted to a little over 30 per cent., enabling the store to make a small profit.

Coal Demand Lessening Here.

Company sales agents report that the demand for domestic hard coal is about as strong as ever, Saward's Journal will say today, but the fact that "independent" prices have dropped from $15 a ton to around $10 in the last few weeks shows that the necessities of the retail trade and of consumers are becoming less urgent. This is not to be wondered at, considering the size of the output, the state of the weather and the fact that distribution has not been seriously hampered by snow. For the first time in many weeks it is possible to report improvement in the bituminous trade. This is due to quite an extent to the closing of the mines, which has reduced the pressure on the market.

Weather Hurt Velvet Hats.

Not only has the continuance of unseasonable weather, in the opinion of some buyers, hurt the chances of the satin hat for Spring by bringing it out prematurely, but it has also put pretty much of a quietus on the demand for hats of fur, velvet and other Winter materials. Fur hats have for the most part been conspicuous by their absence this Winter, and velvet hats at the moment are nearly as scarce. Silk and satin hats, however, are seen in profusion, and it is this fact which is expected in some quarters to militate against their popularity for real Spring wear. Controverting this opinion, however, is the assertion that they lend themselves very easily to "doctoring" which will bring them up to the minute.

Difficulties on New Fabrics.

Quite a little difficulty has cropped up in the clothing trade for those houses which require deliveries on woolens ordered or desire to place reorders. It is found in many cases the mills got so little business on the materials put out in samples that the machinery was shut down rather than go ahead on so small a production. This state of affairs has complicated matters for the clothiers, inasmuch as delay of any kind added to expenses that are heavier than usual will go to increase the manufacturing costs. Furthermore, not much improvement is looked for in this respect, and the manufacturers face the risky alternative of asking customers to change to some other fabric styles on which supplies can be obtained.

Piece Goods Stores to Stay.

Two factors are expected to create a permanent place for the specialty store dealing in dress goods and silks. One is that the matter of design in such materials is a much more important consideration than it was. When ordinary colors and semi-staple patterns were the stock in trade of dress goods departments there was not much need for specializing in the line, but now it is pointed out that the diversity of fabric styles needs expert attention. The other factor, believed likely to give the dress goods specialty store a place and keep it there, is the start which such establishments get by reason of price readjustments. The opportunity to be the first to offer goods at cheaper prices came along and was seized by those who opened stores and cut under the values of regular stores.

Britain to Lift Coal Tar Embargo.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Consul General R. P. Skinner has cabled from London that the British Board of Trade has announced the removal of the prohibition on the exportation of coal tar, all products obtained therefrom and derivatives thereof suitable for use in the manufacture of dyes or explosives, dyes and dyestuffs from coal-tar products, and synthetic indigo, effective from Feb. 1. The embargo on the exportation of butter was removed on Jan. 27.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Declines This Week Five Times the Advances in Number.

So sharp was the break in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week, as far as the number of declines was concerned, that the advances were exceeded by nearly five to one. Excepting for the foodstuffs and the markets for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, only one advance was seen in the entire list. Of the 98 revisions shown in the general list only 17 were upward. Last week there were 38 advances in 84 changes.

The following table gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Government maximums. †Nominal.

The declines in foodstuffs during the week outnumbered the advances by 18 to 8. Flour showed a fair drop for the week, but hams did not change. Both Middle Western lard and bacon were higher here. Mess pork did not change at Chicago, but all of the live meats were cheaper there. Short ribs also declined. The local dairy products list was bare of advances. Slight declines were shown in the best grades of butter and cheese, but eggs were reduced rather sharply. The fancy nearby grade broke 7 cents a dozen in price during the week and the best Westerns were quoted 6 cents a dozen lower.

Neither the fresh nor the dried fruits changed this week. In the vegetables there was a rise in beans, but onions and cabbage were cheaper. Brazilian coffee advanced, but teas were unchanged. In the spice list declines in cloves and ginger contrasted with advances in black and white Singapore peppers. Both raw and refined sugar was lower and the price of fine granulated is now just half what it was at this time last year.

The grains list again showed solid declines, excepting for straw, which did not change. Seven of the week's 17 advances were seen in the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, which also showed 24 declines. Among the advances were refined menthol and some of the soda products. The only listed change in the hides was a drop in No. 1 Texas stock. In the leather list declines were seen in union backs, scoured oak backs and belting butts. Tallow was lower in price. Hemp and hops also declined.

Further declines in lumber prices were listed this week, among these being those in white pine, plain and quarter white oak, red gum, spruce and yellow pine boards and timbers. Eleven declines to one advance was the record of the metals list. Ordinary antimony supplied the advance. Most of the declines were seen in the minor metals, and they included lake and electrolytic coppers, spelter, lead and tin. In the naval stores both turpentine and resin were cheaper. Lower prices were also quoted for Brazilian and Eastern crude rubbers.

The week in the textile markets was less active than the earlier ones of the month. The cotton goods were devoid of feature, excepting for the lower prices quoted on several varieties of unfinished cloths. Burlaps also went through a quiet week, with some easing off of prices toward the finish.

CHRISTMAS SALES NORMAL.

So-called "Consumers' Strike" Did Not Affect Buying Here.

Christmas sales by department stores in this district were approximately the same this year as they were a year ago, when they attained their greatest volume, according to an article on retail trade which is to appear in the monthly review of business and credit conditions published by the Federal Reserve Agent at the New York Federal Reserve Bank. The figures used in making this comparison, and which appear to indicate that the much discussed "consumers' strike" had little effect on the volume of business as a whole, are based upon reports submitted to the Reserve Agent by department stores in the principal cities of the district. The report says:

"Net sales of reporting stores for the month of December were less than 2 per cent. below the sales in December, 1919. Stores in New York City and Brooklyn report a slight decline, while stores elsewhere in the district report an increase. When the reduced prices of many articles are taken into consideration it seems clear that the actual volume of goods sold was greater than in December, 1919.

"Retail trade during the month of January was marked by the annual mid-Winter clearance sales, which assumed greater importance this year because of the widespread expectation of unusually large price reductions. Merchants report that their volume of business compares favorably with that of last January and that the process of liquidation of stocks is progressing."

This One Set a Record.

Usually, when a department store employe's suggestion for the betterment of business is accepted as worthy by the executives whose duty it is to pass on them it is carried out at once. Quite the reverse was true in the case of the idea, offered by a worker in one of the local stores, which has recently been put into effect at a cost of about $10 after being "on the fire" for about four years. The suggestion was that the telephone number of the store be made the same as that of the street on which it is located, with a couple of ciphers tacked on. In order to obtain that number, with the several trunk lines the store requires, it was necessary to get several others above and below it. Most of these were in use and had to be "bought up." That was what took the time. The last "hold-out" to capitulate to the desire of the store was a smaller merchant located near by, who finally gave in when promised a set of business stationery containing the new number assigned to him.

Hamburg Bars High-Priced Coffee.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—In view of the improvement in exchange the Coffee Import Union of Hamburg, which is the foreign trade board for coffee, has ruled that further importation of coffee for which more than nine marks per kilo is paid abroad be not permitted.

BUSINESS RECORDS

Failures of the Week.

BRADSTREET'S reports 420 failures in the United States for the week, against 439 for the previous week and 104, 140, 292, 312 for the corresponding weeks, 1920 to 1917. The New England States had 28; Middle, 82; Western, 119; Northwestern, 40; Southern, 129; Far Western, 31. Canada had 27, against 50 for the preceding week. In the United States about 68 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had $5,000 capital or less and 21.6 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

In Town.

THE STANLEY NAVIGATION CO. and THE ZEPHYR NAVIGATION CO., INC.—Judge Hand has appointed David Cohen receiver, in $20,000 bond, for The Stanley Navigation Co. and The Zephyr Navigation Co., Inc., at 25 Beaver St., in a suit brought by Beaver Trust Co., Peaver, Pa., in connection with a bond issue. It is stated that the defendant is a Delaware corporation; that, in January, 1919, it purchased the schooner Joseph S. Zeman, subject to all liens, claims and rights arising by virtue of a mortgage on it; that it authorized a series of bonds to be executed in an amount not exceeding $250,000 and that $120,000 are outstanding. The complainant is said to hold a mortgage on the schooner Joseph S. Zeman as collateral for bond issue.

LEVINE & LICHTENSTEIN, INC.—Judge Hand has appointed John L. Lytle receiver for Levine & Lichtenstein, Inc., jobber in clothing, at 817 Broadway, in $1,000 bond. It is stated that the liabilities are about $25,000 and the assets about $5,000.

BOYER OIL COMPANY, INC., dealer in vegetable oil and oil products, at 23 West Broadway, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $70,329, of which $31,134 are secured claims, and assets of $78,061, consisting of note, $2,500; merchandise, &c., $45,118; accounts, $5,786; unliquidated claims, $4,576, and deposit in bank, $79. Judge Hand has appointed Bertha Rembaugh receiver, in $2,000 bond. Irving National Bank is the secured creditor for $31,134 and C. Itoh & Co. has an unsecured claim for $24,034.

M. L. BODOW, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against M. L. Bodow, Inc., at 13 West Thirty-first Street, by these creditors: L. Bachman & Co., $542; Franken Brothers, $114, and L. J. Brodsky, $41. It is stated that the liabilities are about $15,000 and the assets about $5,000.

BRADY-BUTLER COMPANY, general contractors at 18 West Thirty-fourth Street, has assigned to Thomas J. Brady.

WILLIAM HERRMANN, restaurant, at 19 West Forty-sixth Street, has assigned to Edward J. Ryan.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed against Grossfield & Roe, wholesale grocers, in spite of a total of $4,500,000 business last year. The sudden drop in the high cost of products is the sole cause, S. E. Grossfield states. The petition was filed by Blum, Wolfsohn & Blum, representing three of the creditors—the Cereal Milling Company, the Gorton-Pew Fisheries and the Calumet Baking Powder Company. Officials of the firm maintain it is solvent.

Reaction in Foreign Exchange, Sharp Fall in Silver Bullion, Stocks Inactive.

Having been based in its later stages on expectation of prompt agreement by the allied Premiers on German reparations, the rise in foreign exchange was naturally checked by yesterday's dispatches from Paris. The news might readily have been interpreted to indicate that the English and French positions were irreconcilable and that the settlement was further away than it seemed to be before the conference assembled. Whether this is actually true or not, few people who have followed the course of recent European conferences were bold enough to predict. But the effect on foreign exchange of the day's advices was considerable; not less so when it had become evident some days ago that the movement of rates had a highly speculative origin.

Sterling declined 4 cents from Thursday's final rate; the French and Belgian exchanges were ¼ to ⅜ cent per franc lower; there was also more moderate reaction in all other European rates and in the Canadian dollar. It is possible to regard this movement either as embodying a natural reaction from a very much speeded-up speculation, or as reflecting some tentative change of view regarding the German settlement. Undoubtedly the strong point of the argument from a predicted agreement on the amount of the reparations is the fact that, sooner or later, the allied Governments must agree and that common sense stands in the way of agreement on impossibilities.

Nothing occurred on the Stock Exchange to break the monotony of the week. The day's net changes again included both advances and declines, but irregular advances occurred in the greater part of the market, and comparison of prices with those of a week ago will show that the trend has been pretty steadily upward, though at a very gradual pace. Liberty bonds were slightly reactionary, but the Victory 4¾ per cents. reached yesterday the highest price since the middle of last April. The quick subscription to the Pennsylvania Railroad's $60,000,000 new ten-year 6½ per cents., offered yesterday morning at 99¼, was reflected both by a rise in other Pennsylvania bonds and by the bidding of a fraction over par on the Stock Exchange for the new bonds "when issued"; a price, however, which did not hold throughout the day. The same company's $50,000,000 bonds of similar character and for a similar ten-year term, but bearing 7 per cent. interest, were floated at par last April, and have sold as high as 105.

While exchange on Europe was reacting, the London market for silver bullion broke with much violence. Yesterday's price was 1⅛ pence below Thursday and 2¼ below Friday of last week. What was more interesting, it reached a new low level for the entire war period, the day's London quotation of 37⅝ pence not having been reached in any reaction of the silver market since May of 1917. This renewed falling-away from the fantastic price, reached by the silver market at the climax of the world's economic illusions of exactly a year ago, is in point of fact nothing but recognition of the state of things in China. The London and Chinese speculators bought silver last year on the confident theory that, with high prices for Oriental goods and unchecked prosperity in Oriental trade, there was no limit to China's power of absorbing silver.

It was the same reasoning and met with the same result as the coincident theory of American mercantile speculators that the high prices and the people's purchasing power in textiles and leather and food had come to stay. The London bullion trade is now beginning cautiously to suggest that return to the pre-war price would be the best thing that could happen to the silver market. Today's week-end reviews of our own mercantile trade are beginning to point out signs that, in some important markets, "deflation has about run its course." But one of the mercantile agencies adds that, out of 98 commodities quoted in its list, 81 have gone lower this week as compared with 17 advances.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JAN. 28, 1921.

Call money on the Stock Exchange was 7 per cent. all day. The rates for time money showed some easement, the range on mixed collateral, all dates, being quoted at 6½@7 per cent., and on all industrials, 7 per cent. bid. The drop in the range of ½ of 1 per cent. is the equivalent of the advance made the previous day. With a scarcity of offerings by banks business continues on a small scale.

The rate for prime name merchants' paper was unchanged at 7¾ per cent., other names discounting at 8 per cent. Bankers' acceptances ruled unchanged.

Illinois Roads Seek to Enjoin State.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Seventeen Illinois railroads filed suits today in the United States District Court to enjoin the Public Utilities Commission of Illinois and State officials from filing suits against the railroads or from interfering with collection of existing freight rates. The suits were intended to prevent interference threatened because of the 40 per cent. increase in rates recently granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Hearing on the suits was set for Feb. 14.

Reaction in All European Rates —Sterling Down 4 Cents, Francs ¼ Cent.

Partly in connection with what seemed during the day to be renewed uncertainty as to outcome of the Paris conference on German reparations, all of the European exchange rates which have lately been advancing reacted sharply yesterday. Sterling, for which a very late high and closing quotation of $3.89 was made on Thursday evening, declined 4 cents yesterday. French francs one-quarter cent and Belgian francs nearly one-third cent. The rate on Madrid was about one-eighth cent lower per peseta, on Amsterdam one-eighth cent per florin lower. Scandinavian rates declined one-tenth to one-fifteenth cent per krone.

Even the highly depreciated exchanges on Central Europe yielded fractionally, Austria falling from .31 to .30 cent. There was no change in South American rates, but Montreal exchange fell from Thursday's closing of 90.1 cents per Canadian dollar to 89½ cents, Wednesday's final price.

REFINING BONDS

Syndicate to Place 6½ Per Cent. Atlantic Company Debentures on Sale Monday.

An issue of $15,000,000 in ten-year 6½ per cent. debentures of the Atlantic Refining Company will be offered on Monday by a banking syndicate composed of Brown Brothers & Co., White, Weld & Co., Graham, Parsons & Co., Frazier & Co. and the Equitable Trust Company. The offering price has not as yet been finally decided, but it is expected to be in the neighborhood of 99½.

This is the first public offering of Atlantic Refining Company securities. In 1919 the company offered to stockholders $20,000,000 preferred stock, and aside from this it has always financed its requirements from earnings. There is outstanding only $5,000,000, par value, of common stock, which closed yesterday 900@925. The stock has sold very much higher. At the close of 1919 the book value of the common stock was placed at $1,315 a share.

This financing is regarded as significant of the easier tone of the money market and of the improved conditions in the investment market. The fact that the new bonds are to bear only 6½ per cent. interest is interesting by comparison with the 7 per cent. coupon rate on the two last issues of so-called "Standard Oil" bonds. In the middle of last month the Standard Oil Company of California borrowed $25,000,000 on ten-year 7 per cent. bonds, while the Standard Oil Company of New York borrowed $30,000,000 in 7 per cent. four-ten year serial bonds.

It is expected that there will be other important new financing announced early next week. Reports in the financial district yesterday had it that a loan of $15,000,000 to Danish cities, including Copenhagen, would be announced on Monday, and it is understood that at least two prominent industrial companies are to float securities early in the week.

The tremendous success of the $60,000,000 Pennsylvania bond issue has given rise to the belief that other railroads will shortly make application to the investment market, and in this respect some of the smaller roads have been mentioned. Yesterday it was learned that an issue of $3,564,000 of Illinois Central equipment trust notes has been placed privately by Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

A meeting of the South American group of bankers was held yesterday at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., and it is understood that some progress is being made in arranging the program for South American financing.

There has naturally been much curiosity recently as to how the stock market would reflect any news development of direct bearing and of a constructive nature. With regard to the market as a whole, nothing of prime importance has come to light, but perhaps some indication of the lethargic situation which exists is to be had in contemplating the action of Mexican Petroleum yesterday. The stock declined more than 2 points, and yet the news of the day was perhaps the best that has come forth with reference to Mexican Petroleum in a considerable time. This was to the effect that President Obregon of Mexico had suspended further "denouncements" and also had suspended any operations under "denouncements" already granted. Officials of companies operating in Mexico looked upon this as the most hopeful sign that had developed with reference to the most oil situation in Mexico in a long time. It was held to be at least a tentative admission of the inviolability of property rights. And yet with such word as this Mexican Petroleum actually declined on the day, whereas it might have been expected that the news would cause a running in of the shorts.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

The average price of eight representative steel products as compiled by The Iron Age shows no change from that of a week ago. This is a condition which has been repeated for several weeks and the question is being raised as to whether this indicates that steel prices for the moment have reached a point of stability. It was to be expected that something of this nature would happen when the level of the independents approached so close, as has been the case, to that of the Steel Corporation. It is the belief of some that little price change will be noted until the move to a lower level has been made by the Steel Corporation itself. Certain large users of steel are urging more drastic cuts in steel prices, especially those who are competing with German and Belgian manufacturers in the world markets.

Money Easier Again.

After having moved up to 7@7½ per cent. on Thursday, time money on good mixed collateral eased yesterday to 6½@7 per cent., the rate at which it was quoted on Wednesday. The gyrations of this rate in the last few days have been so many and so uncertain that observers now are at a loss to explain them, although most of the observers can explain a decline—to their own satisfaction—much easier than they can explain an advance. If today's bank statements show any further contraction in loans and deposits, the explanations for declines will be still easier and, by the same token, it will be made more difficult to tell why rates should be going up, even occasionally.

Pennsylvania Bonds Popular.

The new Pennsylvania fifteen-year 6½ per cents proved popular on the Stock Exchange yesterday. It was their first day on the board and the opening price was made at par, as against the 99¼ subscription price. From that level they rose to 100¼, a premium of a full point above the subscription price, but they eased off thereafter to 99⅞, and then came back and closed at par. The success of this issue, both on the subscription and in its initial reception on the market, has created the belief that quite a little new railroad financing will be undertaken within a very short time.

Gold From China.

The first shipment of gold to be received from China, except from Hongkong, came in to San Francisco yesterday from Shanghai and amounted to $3,086,000. It was consigned to several American concerns, the two receiving the largest amounts being the American Express Company, which received $1,000,000, and the International Banking Corporation, which received $590,000. The gold was sent in the ordinary way and resulted from the conventional "foreign exchange operation." Bankers interested in the Far East are doubtful if there will be any considerable movement of gold from China, but with exchange standing so heavily against the Chinese it is possible that more gold will be sent here. Incidentally, it was announced yesterday that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. are to receive $3,200,000 gold from London on the Lapland, which sails for this country today. This will bring the amount received from London by this firm up to $98,500,000 since Jan. 1, 1920.

December Comparisons Improve.

December earnings statements of many of the railroads submitted so far to the Interstate Commerce Commission compared favorably in most instances with the earnings reported in the corresponding period in 1919. This has been considered significant in view of the fact that the majority of the roads are spending more on maintenance of road and equipment than they did in December, 1919. Railroad men give as one reason for this improvement the fact that working forces were reduced as traffic declined during November and December last, and the decrease in payroll has made the net showing better. As compared with the preceding month, December earnings are lower, and in almost every instance this has been due to the drop in business handled. It has been asserted that a comparison of December, 1920, figures with December, 1919, was not fair, because of the changed conditions under which the railroads now operate. But, in the opinion of some, gain in net revenue from railway operation over the amounts reported in the preceding year must be taken as an improvement, in spite of any decrease from the preceding 1920 month, as net does not show until after the deduction of expenses of operation.

Railroad Business Declining.

Statistics obtained in the financial district yesterday show that car loadings on American railroads in the week ended Jan. 15 dropped to 709,888 cars. In the corresponding 1920 period 840,524 cars were loaded with revenue freight, and in 1919, when the slump in business which followed the signing of the armistice was still having its effect, car loadings were 758,609. The general decline in business has resulted in traffic declines on most of the roads.

Mexico to Buy Equipment.

Announcement that Mexico would soon be in the market for a considerable amount of railroad equipment was not a great surprise, as it was only a few weeks ago that the Mexican railroads were readmitted to the per diem car agreement of the American Railroad Association. According to the reports from Mexico yesterday, credits are being arranged for between $5,000,000 and $7,000,000, which, while not large as equipment business goes, would be a very acceptable order among the equipment manufacturers.

SENT STERLING UP

Financial Expert Lays Recent Rise to Belief That Allies Would Fix Reparations.

SAYS OPTIMISM PREVAILS

Thinks Exchange Speculation, Lack of Bills and Falling Prices Have Helped.

The reasons for the sharp advance in the rate of sterling exchange, which has risen approximately 55 cents in the pound in less than three months, were explained by the head of one of the most important international banking houses yesterday as follows:

Improvement in sentiment on the expectation of an early adjustment of the international situation, including the German reparations; worldwide speculation, which this banker believes now has become greater than the world speculation in securities; the natural falling off in commercial bills at this time of year, and the lower cost of most commodities here, which necessitates a less amount of money with which to purchase them.

Commenting on these points, the banker said there was no doubt that a great majority of people in all commercial countries believed that within a short time the allied powers would find some common ground for settlement of the reparations problem. He is of the opinion that a great number of others felt this way and, accordingly, are conducting their exchange operations on the theory that European rates are to go back to something more closely approximating normal than any which have been seen since sterling and French francs were "unpegged," in March, 1919.

In the second instance, the banker says that the speculation which has come as a result of the first influence is far greater than most people here realize. In some of the Continental countries, he believes, the speculation in exchange is far greater in scope than the speculation in securities, and even in the United States there is a much greater speculation in European exchanges than is generally appreciated.

As for the paucity of bills at this time of year, he points out that most of the cotton and grain shipments have been financed and that it will be some little time before the financing of the new crops will be taken up. In pre-war years it was usual for the European exchanges to become firm in the late Winter and early Spring, and this year this natural firmness, he thinks, has been accentuated by the speculation and the wide fluctuations to which the foreign exchange market has been susceptible ever since the abnormal situation was created by the war.

The fall in commodity prices in almost all lines of goods which Europe is buying here is a factor of no mean proportions, according to this financier. A decline in the price of cotton of 20 to 25 or 30 cents a pound finds reflection in the greatly reduced amount of money which is now required to buy the staple, and this tends to reduce the volume of bills in the market. Last year cotton exports were valued higher than were the exports of any other single commodity. Added to the decline in price, the amount of cotton now being exported has also declined sharply.

All of these factors, this banker feels, have contributed to the present strength of European exchanges, and particularly to that of sterling, and while each has played its part in the general scheme, the authority says that in his opinion the two first mentioned have been the more pertinent.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Mixed Price Movement Shows Advances for Some, With Declines in Others.

There was a mixed trend to prices in the wholesale markets yesterday, some of the staples showing advances, with others under Thursday's closing to net unchanged. In the grains, wheat was up 5 cents per bushel, with corn at a decline of 1¼ cents per bushel, oats and flour unchanged. In the groceries, coffee and sugar were unchanged, butter dropped 1 cent per pound and eggs 2 cents per dozen to a low for the month. In the provisions, except for lard, which was up 5 cents per 100 pounds, prices were unchanged.

No changes were reported in the metals, excepting tin, where there was a decline of $1.25 a ton. In the textiles, spot cotton, middling, was 25 cents per 100 pounds lower, with printcloths unchanged.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Friday, a week before and a year ago:

Stockholders of Denver & Rio Grande Ask for Rehearing.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 28.—In an effort to delay confirmation of the recent sale of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, preparatory to having it denied, John Lee Webster, of counsel for intervening stockholders, informed Judge Walter I. Sanborn of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today that new proceedings would be filed at Denver to have the sale set aside.

Webster made application for a rehearing of the case, alleging that the road was purchased by "interlocking directorates" for "what we contend was $195,000,000 less than the actual value of the road."

The interests of many stockholders were jeopardized by the sale, Mr. Webster asserted. Judge Sanborn did not say whether he would grant the rehearing.

The road was sold Nov. 20, last, to representatives of the Western Pacific for $5,000,000 to satisfy a judgment of $38,000,000 obtained by the Equitable Trust Company of New York, as trustee for holders of bonds issued by the Western Pacific and guaranteed by the Denver & Rio Grande. The purchasers also assumed obligations of the latter road amounting to $141,175,000.

The sale wiped out the stock of the Denver & Rio Grande, amounting to $87,775,670.

Crude Oil Output Increases.

Crude oil production in the United States in 1920 amounted to 443,402,000 barrels, as compared with 377,719,000 barrels in 1919, a gain of 65,683,000 barrels, according to the preliminary figures compiled by the United States Geological Survey. Daily average production in 1920 was 1,211,481, as against 1,034,847 barrels in the preceding year.

SHOW BIG INCREASE

December Statistics Sent to Commerce Commission Easily Beat Those a Year Ago.

CAUSE WALL ST. COMMENT

Traffic Volume Was Smaller Than in Preceding Month Owing to Business Slump.

Railroad earnings statements for December which were made to the Interstate Commerce Commission and reached Wall Street yesterday aroused considerable comment in financial quarters, because in the majority of instances net income as well as gross revenues showed substantial increases over the corresponding month in 1919. At the same time they reflected a decline in the volume of traffic moved during the month as compared with November, due to the general slump in business which began as early as October, 1920.

On the other hand there were some who drew attention to the fact that in the closing months of 1919 there was a sharp drop in the net earnings of the railroads which was due in part to increased expenses without increased [...] were hit by weather conditions.

Generally those were the reasons for most of the gains of net income in December. In the case of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, however, an exact explanation of why that system showed a net increase of $1,888,274 and a decrease in operating expenses of $1,806,743 was lacking, pending receipt of the detailed report of revenue receipts and operating disbursements.

The reports of the roads covering operations for 1920 naturally showed decreases in net as compared with the preceding year because no rate increases had been allowed in 1919 to offset wage increases and advances in the cost of materials.

The following statistics show the December reports of a number of companies in brief:

COMMERCE CONCERN

Takes Place of Grayson M.-P. Murphy as President of Corporation.

WILL ESTABLISH NEW FIRM

Retiring Officer, With James B. A. Fosburgh and Frederick Osborn, to Deal in Industrials.

Grayson M.-P. Murphy has resigned as President of the Foreign Commerce Corporation of America and is to be succeeded, as of Feb. 1, by Edward R. Stettinius. The corporation was formed about a year ago by interests identified with J. P. Morgan & Co., and it was said yesterday that the change in its Presidency would not alter the policy of the institution, nor would it result in further changes in the executive personnel.

Mr. Murphy is forming a new firm, under the style of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., in which there will be associated with Mr. Murphy James B. A. Fosburgh and Frederick Osborn, both of whom now are members of the firm of Fosburgh, Pratt & Osborn, which is to be dissolved. The new firm will specialize in industrial concerns, in their financing and management, the formation of syndicates, &c., and it will maintain a special department to conduct examinations of companies. It will also open foreign offices within a short time.

There will also be formed a joint stock corporation with an authorized capital of $5,000,000 in A stock and 100 shares of B stock of no par value. This latter company will be headed by John T. Pratt as President and will have for its Directors Mr. Pratt, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Fosburgh and Mr. Osborn and James H. Perkins, one-time Vice President of the National City Company and now a member of Montgomery & Co.

Offices will be opened at 43 Exchange Place until about May 1, when permanent offices will be established at 52 Broadway.

BAR SILVER PRICE LOWEST SINCE 1917

Break in London Is Laid to Halt in Purchases by India and Heavy Chinese Offerings.

A break of 1¼d. in the London price for bar silver yesterday took the quotation down to 37⅝d., the lowest point recorded since May, 1917. Local bankers interested in the silver market said that the unexpected and abrupt cessation of spot purchases by the Indian bazaars and continued heavy offerings of futures by China were responsible.

The Indian bazaars, it was added, had been buying spot silver in fairly good volume for some days, and this buying made the so-called "spread" between spots and futures as much as 1¼d. on Thursday. That is to say, spot silver had sold in London for 1¼d. more than futures, which have been sold consistently by Chinese interests for some time past. Yesterday's break mainly was in the spot price, and at the close of business in London spots were separated from futures by only ⅛d.

The Chinese selling has been in the face of fairly large shipments of the white metal from this country. According to bankers' records, almost 10,000,000 ounces of silver have gone to China since Dec. 27, the last shipment, of 1,250,000 ounces, having left San Francisco on Monday.

Stocks at Hongkong, the market which supplies the Canton Mint, are fairly heavy at present, but the Canton Mint is said to be melting about 100,000 ounces a day. Most of the metal sent from this country recently has gone to Shanghai.

TO DISCUSS RATE DETAILS.

Meeting Next Week for Solution of New England Roads' Claims.

In spite of recent denials that there had been a tentative agreement by New England railroads to accept $15,000,000 a year in settlement of their claims for a more fair division of through rates, it was reported yesterday that at a meeting to be held early next week a few details remained to be settled before formal announcement of the agreement would be made.

In some quarters it is not expected that the amount mentioned will be enough to let the New England roads earn the 6 per cent. on their aggregate property value as prescribed in the Transportation act, and in others it is not the understanding that it will solve the New England problem.

That the final agreement will probably be reached next week, however, is the belief in some quarters, as $15,000,000 will go quite a distance in relieving the New England situation pending a further revision of rates and a more thorough solution of the problem.

IN WIDEST SPREAD

From Federal Report Pit Figures Stock on Hand Is 20,000,000 Bushels Short of Needs.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—The grain trade is decidedly at sea tonight as to the exact meaning of the Department of Agriculture's report on wheat stocks as of Jan. 1. The report was construed as bearish early; and with free selling by houses with Eastern connections, prices dropped 1⅓ to 2 cents under the previous day's close. A number of the leading operators, however, construed it as sensationally bullish and bought freely, making a bulge of 4 to 4½ cents from the bottom. Toward the last a report from Washington stated that the estimate did not include seed and feed requirements, and a sharp break followed, the close being 1 cent higher on March and ¼ cent lower on the May, the spread at the last being 12 cents, the widest so far.

A careful analysis of the department's figures, after taking everything possible into consideration, indicates that there is a very close adjustment of supplies to requirements for the last six months of the crop year. There is no foundation for the report that there are 100,000,000 bushels of wheat held on farms for seed, feed, &c., requirements that are not included in the 320,000,000 bushels in all positions. There are, however, around 35,000,000 bushels held for Spring wheat seed, of which no notice is taken; but this is offset by the fact that a like quantity was excluded last year.

So that actual quantities reported are still 97,000,000 bushels less than in 1920, based on the official estimate that there were 320,000,000 bushels in all positions available on Jan. 1, and, allowing 70,000,000 bushels for carry-over, there remain 250,000,000 bushels for domestic consumption and for export. Exports for January are privately estimated at 30,000,000 bushels and around 40,000,000 bushels have been sold for export from Feb. 1 on, indicating only 180,000,000 bushels left for domestic consumption and for any fresh export business that may develop later, whereas the actual needs are over 200,000,000 bushels.

Included in the stocks of 48,000,000 bushels at terminal markets were 8,000,000 bushels Canadian held at Eastern ports, already sold for export, while there was an unknown quantity of Manitobas included in the mill stocks. A comparison of the Jan. 1, 1920, figures with those of July 1, 1920, indicates that the 417,000,000 bushels reported on Jan. 1 that year must have been at least 100,000,000 bushels too low, as the actual movement and the consumption figures were estimated to show around 523,000,000 bushels. Last year, however, stocks of flour in all positions were extremely large, while this year they are small.

Immediately after the close wheat was offered about 2 cents lower than the official finish, and there was heavy buying by operators. The position of the market was such at the last, and the temper of the trade so radically bearish, that it was expected there would be a lower range early and probably a sharp bulge later, especially if any great buying developed.

Export business was slow, the only sales reported being 104,000 bushels via the Gulf. Belgium took 112,000 bushels from Argentina at around $1.83 or ¼c. below what the grain was offered for from America, despite the fact that it recently arranged for a loan in the United States.

Coarse grains were heavy and closed with corn unchanged, to quarter cent lower, and oats unchanged, to eighth cent lower, with many going to the widest discount under the July in both grains, so far this season.

Primary points had 989,000 bushels wheat against 1,122,000 bushels a week ago, and 600,000 last year. Shipments were 797,000; week ago, 913,000; year ago, 575,000.

Corn receipts were 1,923,000; week ago, 1,823,000, year ago, 753,000. Shipments were 877,000; week ago, 846,000; year ago, 427,000.

WASTE SINCE WAR

Former Assistant Secretary of Treasury Criticises Militaristic Policy.

INFLATION EVIL INCREASED

War and Navy Expenses for Six Months Equal to Former Cost of Government for Year.

The most important problem of Government finance is the international financial problem, R. C. Leffingwell, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, yesterday told members of the Bond Club of New York, at their regular monthly luncheon at the Bankers Club. The international financial problem, Mr. Leffingwell went on to explain, so far as action on the part of this country is concerned, involves two closely related matters. These are the war debts of the European countries and of the United States, and the tariff.

Mr. Leffingwell pointed out that nearly one-third of this country's gross debt of $24,000,000,000 matures on or before May 20, 1923, or two years from next May, amounting to $7,657,000,000; $2,592,000,000 of which is Treasury certificates, $840,000,000 war savings securities, and $4,225,000,000 Victory notes. "The bulk of the Victory loan will have to be refunded," he said.

"Those who advocate the refunding of the Liberty loans seem to think that there is some advantage to be gained by consolidating the whole public debt into one issue bearing one rate of interest and having one maturity. Of course, so far from being an advantage, it would be a great disadvantage."

Mr. Leffingwell said that the trouble with the world today, the trouble in the United States, the trouble with the Treasury, was waste, war waste and waste after fighting stopped. He said that he did not wish to criticise the expenditures of the Government during the war, when time was all-important, but since the armistice it has been a different matter. We did not stop the waste; we did not promptly dispose of our surplus war supplies; we continued to build ships at war costs of labor and materials.

Since armistice day the Government "has been pursuing a militaristic policy, involving the maintenance of a great army and the building and maintenance of a navy second to none. The War Department and the Navy Department alone spent about as much in the last six months as before the war it cost to run our Government for a year."

Mr. Leffingwell believes that the militaristic policy of the Government with respect to the army and navy and its policy with respect to the railroads and ships, have been responsible more than anything else for the post-armistice inflation of the public debt, of currency and credit, and for our inability to respond to the needs of Europe.

LONG ISLAND FARES INCREASED TODAY

Railroad Company Acts Immediately When Appellate Division Vacates Injunction.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday vacated the injunction granted by Justice Benedict restraining the Long Island Railroad Company from increasing fares 20 per cent., which was allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Counsel for the city and State obtained the injunction on the ground that the company operated an intrastate railroad and was therefore out of the jurisdiction of the Federal Commission. In granting the injunction Justice Benedict severely criticised the commission for seeking to take away from States the right of control over lines operating only within State lines.

Soon after the injunction was vacated the company announced that the increased fares would become effective at 12.01 A. M. today, and explained that the new rates would apply to all passenger fares except the 60-trip commutation, the 46-trip school and the 50-trip family tickets. The increase will also apply to all one-way and round trip tickets and to local fares on the electric line on Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. The decision of the Appellate Division similarly affects the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Company, where the new rates will also be put into effect at once.

In his argument for the annulment of the injunction Alfred A. Gardner, counsel for the Long Island company, said that the Interstate Commerce Commission, not being open to direct attack by State courts, could not be attacked collaterally by them. He said that the determination of the commission that the intrastate rates were discriminatory because they were lower than those of interstate companies was free of attacks by State courts. He stated that the power of Congress to confer exclusive jurisdiction on Federal courts was well established.

Public Service Commissioner Alfred M. Barrett announced that an appeal to the Court of Appeals would be taken immediately. He also said:

"The Appellate Division did not pass upon the merits of the case. It refused to grant a request by the Attorney General for a stay, but permitted an appeal. We do not believe that the Federal Government has a right to interfere with the lawful exercise of the regulative powers guaranteed to the State under the Federal Constitution. There was no testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission which would even suggest that the Long Island Railroad was an interstate carrier. The people living on Long Island are greatly concerned in this matter."

IN WEAK MARKET

Fear of March or May Reselling of January Spot Sales Aids Depression.

There was nothing very new in the cotton market or in the general cotton situation yesterday. The rally of the day before was completely checked, and in its place there was an extreme decline of 25 to 36 points for the general list and of 46 points for March, which now virtually is the spot month, considering there is so little interest in February.

The selling, on the surface, appeared to be inspired by the poor Liverpool cables and the adverse reports from Manchester, which latter state that some uneasiness is entertained there over conditions in the Far East. The Far Eastern uncertainty was accentuated yesterday by the break in silver in London to the lowest price reached since May, 1917. However, late reports from Manchester said that cloths were in somewhat better demand, but yarns remained irregular.

Probably the real factor in weakening the market here was the same thing that was commented on in this place yesterday, which is the fear that the 80,000-odd bales taken up by spot houses here on January contracts will be resold in March or May. Both of these months were under the spot price at one time yesterday, and March remained under it at the close. The local trade does not look for the movement of all of this cotton into consuming channels, and until it is known rather definitely what is to become of it there is likely to be fear and hesitation in making new commitments in the old crop months.

Meanwhile the new crop months are moving along fairly well. Yesterday they went off with the old months early in the day, but they rallied subsequently and closed steady. Premiums on new crop months now range anywhere from 50 to more than 100 points.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
March	14.58	14.61	14.26	14.48@14.50	14.72
May	14.77	14.95	14.60	14.86@14.87	14.95

Dec.	15.41	15.55	15.26	15.57	15.53

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, down 25 points, to 14.75c; middling upland; sales nil.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 14c, unchanged; New Orleans, 14.25c, unchanged; Savannah, 15c, unchanged; Augusta, 14c, unchanged; Memphis, 14.50c, unchanged; Houston, 13.50c, unchanged; Little Rock, 14.50c, unchanged.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Yesterday.	Last Wk.	Last Yr.
Port receipts	21,556	24,449	56,724
Exports	24,024	20,654	35,326

Port stocks	1,493,173	......	1,424,053

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was dull and irregular at 9.04d for middling. Sales 2,000 bales of which American 1,000. Imports 5,000 bales all American. Future opened steady 9 to 14 points up and closed 24 to 36 points down on the day. Prices: January, 3.18d; March, 9.31d; May, 9.50d; July, 9.66d. Manchester: Yarns were irregular and cloths weer in more demand.

ON FIFTH AVENUE

Peck & Peck Building, at 587 Fifth Avenue, Figures in Big Rental.

ANOTHER 42D STREET LEASE

Eastern Steel Company Takes Executive Offices at 50 East Forty-second Street.

The Grand Central Terminal zone, where there has been a strong revival of demand for commercial space during the last week, furnished two more important transactions yesterday when leases were closed for many thousands of square feet.

The largest of the two deals, which calls for an aggregate rental of about $2,400,000, involves the Peck & Peck Building now in course of erection at 587 Fifth Avenue, which has been leased to Crouch & Fitzgerald.

The property consists of a ten-story building, occupying a plot 50 by 125 feet, located near Forty-seventh Street. According to the terms of the lease, which was negotiated by Frank T. Vailler and J. L. Robertson, Crouch & Fitzgerald will take over the new structure for a term of twenty-one years beginning May 1, 1921, for an aggregate rental of $2,000,000.

The site of the Peck & Peck Building was formerly ocupied by the J. B. Haggin residence and was purchased some months ago by Peck & Peck as a good parcel to invest in and improve.

Eastern Steel Company Leases Space.

The second lease, which involved a large amount of space in the 50 East Forty-second Street Building to the Eastern Steel Company, of which James A. Burden and August Heckscher are Vice Presidents, is significant in view of the $2,000,000 lease for space in the National City Building at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue closed by the Crucible Steel Company of America on Monday last.

The Eastern Steel Company, among whose Directors are Harry Payne Whitney, Edmund L. Baylies and T. I. Crane of Philadelphia, will abandon its present offices at 60 Broadway and establish its main executive office on Forty-second Street. Cushman & Wakefield negotiated the transaction.

Another big lease is reported pending in the Madison Avenue office building which occupies the block on Madison Avenue from Forty-third to Forty-fourth Street.

4 INDICTED IN COAL CASES.

Accused of Sending Preferential Shipments to Foreign Ports.

The Federal Grand Jury yesterday indicted two coal companies and two individuals on charges of violating the act which prohibits discrimination and rebates in connection with shipping. The defendants are W. H. Bradford & Co. and Lloyd G. McCrum, General Manager of the company, and Coale & Co. and the firm's President, William F. Coale.

The defendants are accused of obtaining permits from the Interstate Commerce Commission for the preferential shipment of bituminous coal from the mines on the plea that it was needed by public utilities in this city and then shipping the coal to foreign ports. The indictments were obtained on information gathered by William McMurtrie Speer, a special assistant Attorney General.

PAWNS RING TO GET LICENSE

When Bridegroom's Offer of $1.30 Fails He Pledges Nuptial Band for $2.

When Isadore Ozer, a tailor, of 148 Avenue C, and Lena Brusensky, who lives at the same address, went to the Marriage License Bureau in the Municipal Building yesterday, Theodore Waterman, clerk, told them that the fee was $2. Ozer felt in his pockets and exclaimed, "I must have left it home in the other suit." The prospective bride and bridegroom and his future mother-in-law could scrape together only $1.30. Mr. Waterman told them that he was sorry, but the bureau could not issue a license on "trust."

"Wait a minute," said Ozer, and dived out of the door.

Ten minutes later he was back with a $2 note.

"Where did you get it so soon?" asked the clerk.

"I hocked the wedding ring," said Ozer.

AMERICA NOT AN EXAMPLE.

Hoover Holds We Are Not Leading in Disarmament.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 28.—Assertions that the United States was not setting up a particularly worthy example in its program of greater armament were made here today by Herbert Hoover, head of the movement to help starving children in Europe.

The former food administrator "sees no reason why the United States should cancel the war debts of the allied nations when they are spending more for armament than it would take to pay the principal and interest on the debts."

Mr. Hoover said he could not, "without putting some one in difficulty," discuss the rumor than he was to have a place in Harding's Cabinet.

OSTERWEISS KEEPS PAROLE.

Wealthy Young Offender Makes Good Without Aid of Relatives.

TOPEKA, Jan. 28.—The $1,752 fine and costs recently assessed against Louis Osterweiss, known as the "millionaire kid," by Judge Pollock in the United States District Court of Kansas City, has been paid here, F. I. Campbell, clerk of the Federal Court, announced today.

Osterweiss originally was convicted of counterfeiting and received a year's parole by Judge Pollock to make good without the aid of relatives. Upon evidence that he had done this he recently was released subject to the payment of the fine.

TO SEARCH FOR ELY WILL.

Surrogate Cohalan Grants Application of Louise Ely Paterson.

On the application of Louise Ely Paterson of 881 Pelham Road, New Rochelle, Surrogate Cohalan yesterday signed an order directing the management of the Murray Hill Hotel to permit the room occupied by the late Alfred G. Ely to be searched for a possible will.

Mr. Ely died on Jan. 30 of this year. Henry Warren Beebe of 150 Nassau Street, attorney for the petitioner, said the search would be made soon in the presence of a representative of the State Controller.

Ford's Net Gain Reaches 2,672.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—A net gain of 2,673 votes was recorded for Henry Ford today by the Senate committee recounting the ballots cast in the 1918 contest against Senator Newberry of Michigan, whose plurality was 7,567. At the close of the work today 1,961 of the 2,222 precincts in the State had been recounted, including the Ninth Ward of Detroit.

World Movement Organization Relieved of Long Rental.

It was announced yesterday that papers have been signed releasing the Interchurch World Movement of North America from its lease, involving the former Greenhut Building, occupying the block front on the east side of Sixth Avenue, from Eighteenth to Nineteenth Street, and owned by the Big Store Realty Corporation.

The Interchurch World Movement leased 650,000 square feet in the building about one year ago for a term of nine years, the aggregate rental approximating $5,600,000. About $1,000,000 was spent by the owners in putting the structure in condition for occupancy by the new tenants, making it an excellent store and loft building. The Big Store Realty Corporation has commissioned Joseph P. Day, Spear & Co. and the Cross & Brown Company as renting agents and several leases for space are pending.

That section of Sixth Avenue has undergone radical changes during the last few years. For a long time it was the centre of the retail department stores and when the northward movement started the buildings were converted for the use of wholesalers who demanded large space. Since the war many insurance and other companies have moved into the neighborhood.

BUILDERS BUY SITE.

Nine-Story Apartment to Be Built on West 76th Street.

As a site for a nine-story apartment house Herman Axelrod of J. Axelrod & Son, builders, purchased a plot 68 by 102.2, at 125 to 129 West Seventy-sixth Street.

The plot, which is now improved with four-story dwellings, was bought from Abby T. Briggs, Susan R. Lawton, and the estate of William C. Flannigan through L. J. Phillips & Co. These houses will be demolished and it is expected that the new building will be ready for occupancy in the Spring of 1922.

The proposed building is directly opposite St. Andrew's M. E. Church, and when completed will be the largest apartment house on Seventy-sixth Street, from Central Park West to Broadway.

$300,000 West Harlem Deal.

The Monterey, a seven-story elevator apartment house, covering the northerly block front on West 114th Street, from Manhattan Avenue to Morningside Avenue, has been purchased by the newly incorporated 351 West 114th Street Realty Company.

The building, valued at $300,000, fronts 65.3 feet on the street, 118.9 feet on Morningside Avenue and 100.11 on Manhattan Avenue. The seller, the Manhattan Life Insurance Company, acquired the property recently in foreclosure proceedings.

The new company has a capitalization of $25,000, and has for Directors L. Lahn, D. S. Simon and L. Reit.

Tenement Investments.

The four-story flat at 69 Sixth Avenue has been purchased by Dorato Sposta from the Hognet estate. It was sold through Schindle & Liebler.

The four-story tenement, 25 by 100.5, at 514 West Fifty-first Street, has been sold by Patrick A. McGoldrick, as executor, to Patrick Lenihan.

Peter Rohrs has sold to Herman Schmonsees the four-story tenement, 25 by 100.5, at 507 West Forty-ninth Street.

The four-story tenement, 15 by 98.9, at 213 East Twenty-ninth Street, has been sold by Julia B. Randolph to Nathan Halperin.

Two Sales on the Bowery.

The three-story business structure at 166 and 166½ Bowery, lot 25 by 100 feet, has been purchased by Abe Isaacs from Jacob Blynn. It was held at $45,000. J. Finkelstein & Son were the brokers.

Henry Shapiro & Co. have sold for Abraham Goldberg to a client the three-story business building at 9 Norfolk Street.

The five-story building at 217 Bowery, 28 by 96, held at $45,000, has been sold by Hiram Rinaldo for Henry A. Goldman to Barnett Zliedman. The seller recently bought it from the Commonwealth Bank.

New Jersey Buyers.

Two plots in Chatham Courts, Chatham, N. J., have been sold by the estate of George F. Wilcox to Irving Meyer and one plot by the same owner to John J. Conklin. The Eugene Jobs-H. F. Beck Company acted as brokers. They also sold in the Ridge Crest section of Summit three plots fronting on Primrose Place and Oak Ridge Avenue, for the Commonwealth Land Company, to W. Corbin.

Dwellings at Lyndhurst have been sold by L. N. Nicholson & Co. to James A. Harris, Ethel O'Connor, Henry A. Borghard and David Peterson.

Bronx Borough Sales.

The three-story building at 592 East 167th Street, on a lot 25 by 92 feet, has been purchased by Leo Levinson from Mary A. Wiswell. The broker was the Eugene J. Busher Company. The latter also sold the two-story building at 594 East 167th Street, on a lot 25 by 92, to Grace E. Ellis.

The Niewenhous Realty Corporation sold the three-story building, used for stores and apartments, at 3,373 Third Avenue, which was purchased recently at foreclosure sale. Jenny Caldin was the buyer.

Activity in Brooklyn.

The four-story apartment structure at 434 Third Street has been sold by the estate of Louise Egelhoff to an investor. The A. J. Shannon Company in conjunction with the Dawstain Realty Company acted as broker.

The James F. Kerns Company has sold the two-family dwelling at 343 Seventy-second Street for F. L. Druliner.

Upper West Side Deals.

The four-story building altered for business at 3,478 Broadway, southeast corner of 142d Street, on plot 25 by 70, has been sold by J. S. Maxwell for Nathan Federgreen.

W. J. Huston & Son sold for the Pinkney estate, Clarence H. Kelsey administrator, to Mary Mullen the lot, 25 by 99.11, on the south side of 144th Street, 360 feet east of Lenox Avenue.

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for male telephone operator, Grade 1, will be received until 4 P. M. on Feb. 3. Candidates must be at least 18 years of age. The subjects and weights of the examination will be: Experience, 6; duties, 3; citizenship, 1. A qualifying physical test will be given. There is one vacancy in the Estimate Board at $1,200 a year.

United States.

The commission announces an examination for magnetic observer in the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, men above 20 years of age, in both temporary and permanent positions. The entrance salary of observer is $1,500 a year. Appointees will be allowed the increase granted by Congress of $20 a month. On account of the needs of the service papers will be rated as received and certification made as the needs of the service require. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on: General education, 30; special training and experience, 70. Applicants must show that they have completed fourteen units of high school work accepted for college entrance. Age limits do not apply to persons entitled to preference because of military or naval service. Classified employes who have reached the retirement age and have served fifteen years are entitled to retirement with an annuity.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

At a meeting of the stockholders of Ferman and Wolff, Inc., held January 26th, 1921, the following resolution was duly adopted: Resolved, That the name of Ferman and Wolff, Inc., be changed to Ferman and Friedman, Inc., and that the proper proceedings be taken necessary to effect such change.
ISIDORE FERMAN, President.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Southern storm has passed rapidly east-northeastward, and Friday night its centre was north-east of the Bermudas. Another disturbance is developing over the Plains States, and a third is approaching the North Pacific Coast. The pressure is rising over the West Canadian Provinces, and it is high over the Eastern States.

The weather was fair during the last twenty-four hours east of the Rocky Mountains and unsettled with rains and snows west of the Rocky Mountains.

There has been a further rise in temperature over the States east of the Rocky Mountains except on the immediate Atlantic Coast. The temperature is falling in the Northwest.

In the New England States the weather will be fair Saturday and probably Sunday, with somewhat warmer in the interior of Northern New England. In the Middle Atlantic, South Atlantic and East Gulf States the weather will be fair Saturday and cloudy Sunday, with moderate temperature. In the Ohio Valley and Tennessee the weather will be cloudy and unsettled Saturday and Sunday, while in the region of the Great Lakes it will become unsettled, with probably rain or snow Saturday night or Sunday, with somewhat lower temperature Sunday.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Western New York—Partly cloudy Saturday; Sunday unsettled, with probably rain; moderate temperature.

Northern New England—Fair Saturday and probably Sunday; somewhat warmer in the interior.

Eastern New York and Southern New England—Fair Saturday; Sunday cloudy; moderate temperature.

New Jersey—Fair Saturday; Sunday cloudy and unsettled; moderate temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1921.	1920.		1921.	1920.
3 A. M.	25	28	4 P. M.	42	32
6 A. M.	29	27	6 P. M.	38	28
9 A. M.	29	25	9 P. M.	35	22
12 M.	38	40	11 P. M.	35	19

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 34; for the corresponding date last year it was 29; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 30, at 8 P. M. it was 38. Maximum temperature 42 degrees at 4 P. M., minimum 26 degrees at 6 A. M. Humidity 54 per cent. at 8 A. M., 64 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.31 inches, at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.29 inches.

Walking Delegate Insists He Recalled Conversation Two Months Old Word for Word.

HE CONTRADICTS HIMSELF

First Said He Depended on Memorandum, Then Says It Was From Memory Only.

In an effort to discredit the defense of Robert P. Brindell, on trial on a charge of extortion, Samuel Untermyer yesterday subjected David Danahy, a walking delegate in Brindell's Building Trades Council, to a vigorous cross-examination concerning the testimony the witness offered on Thursday, when he testified that Brindell was with him in the Bronx on Sept. 29, 1920, at the hour when Max Aronson swore he paid the labor leader $5,000 in the office of the Building Trades Council, 12 St. Mark's Place. Danahy admitted yesterday that when he heard what he alleged was the conversation between Aronson and Brindell earlier in the day he "attached no significance to it," although he gave what purported to be a fairly accurate verbatim account of what was said. Aronson swore he paid the money about 3 o'clock or 3:30, having agreed to give it to Brindell at a prior interview which took place at noon the same day.

Danahy said he did not recall the conversation until Aronson described it before the Lockwood committee on Nov. 27, nearly two months later. The only memorandum made of what he heard at the conversation between Aronson and Brindell, he said, was typed by a stenographer, who took it down when he (Danany) narrated it at the office of Martin W. Littleton, counsel for the defense, a week ago last Wednesday.

Although Danahy testified that he made notes on slips of paper regarding his work and movements on various days and testimony before the Lockwood committee, he said that all but three, which he produced, had been destroyed. Among those destroyed was the one bearing the memorandum concerning the visit he made with Brindell and Stephen Birmingham, a patrolman, to the extension of the Third Avenue elevated at 210th Street. Testimony concerning this trip is Danahy's alibi for Brindell and the mainspring of the defense.

Testing Danahy's Memory.

Mr. Untermyer attempted to test the memory of Danahy for other dates. He asked what he did on Oct. 15, 1920. Danahy thought for some time, and then said he could not recall from memory. The prosecutor asked where he was on Dec. 15, and he thought "possibly" at the Lockwood committee hearings.

Asked how many times he had talked to Brindell on the Aronson matter, Danahy said the "slips might show," but admitted they were not in existence.

"How are you able to tell by slips that are not in existence?" asked Mr. Untermyer. Danahy admitted he had destroyed the slips after memorizing them.

Q.—Because you expected to be called as a witness? A.—No.

Q.—For what purpose? A.—Because I might be called as a witness.

Q.—I thought you said you didn't? A.—I didn't understand the question.

Witness Contradicts Himself.

Danahy was asked if his data as to the Aronson-Brindell conversation were based entirely on the 210th Street visit and the grievance report which he made in a telephone conversation to the council.

"Entirely on that," was his positive reply. At the termination of his cross-examination Danahy contradicted this statement by asserting that he was absolutely sure that he recalled the interview as a matter of independent memory.

Q.—Do you remember now as a matter of independent memory, without reference to any telephone messages, without reference to this Exhibit W (the grievance slip) or anything else, that it was on Sept. 29 that you made that visit? That is a matter of independent memory, is it? A.—It is.

Q.—Absolutely? A.—Absolutely.

Q.—And that is the only date in the history of your business affairs (Witness—It is not) that you can pick out? A.—It is not. I have picked out six or seven of them.

Q.—Now you do claim, don't you, that although your attention was not called to Aronson's testimony until Nov. 23, and although you made no note of it until you gave, your statement a week ago, that, as a matter of independent memory, you remember that Sept. 29 was the date of this interview? (Between Brindell and Aronson.) Is that right? A.—I do.

Danahy took advantage of Mr. Untermyer's offer to extricate himself from a slip he made when he stated that he paid about half a dozen visits to the 210th Street job between Sept. 21 and Oct. 12.

Mr. Untermyer asked him if he was sure that he went there on Oct. 12. Danahy said he was.

Q.—Don't you know that Oct. 12 was Columbus Day, when men do not work? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you want to take back that statement? A.—I do.

Brindell, said Danahy, had no business in the neighborhood of 210th Street on Sept. 29, 1920, although he volunteered to give Danahy a ride in his automobile to the job. He said Brindell was going home.

Q.—Was he in the habit of going home at 2 o'clock? A.—He generally left at 1.

Q.—And he arrived at 12? A.—He was always there at 12.

Workmen Paid Brindell 50 Cents Month.

John Ryan, who described himself as an organizer for the Carpenters' Union, on direct examination, said he had charge of the work of affiliating the old House Wreckers' Union with the House Shorers. On cross-examination he said that Brindell received 50 cents a month from each of the 3,500 members of the Dock Workers' Union.

Vladimir Fanke, now employed by the Compensation Department of the Building Trades Council at $75 a week, the next witness for the defense, with a variegated career as Russian ballet dancer, mechanic, laborer and interpreter, said he left the old or Zaraisko House Wreckers' Union on March 27, 1920, after the members had voted down the proposition of joining the council. He said that he interpreted a speech made by Ryan to the members, many of whom knew no English, and that one man said he was opposed to having anything to do with an organization like the council, that was affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, because it "belonged to the bourgeoisie," and said the members ought to join the I. W. W. On Mr. Untermyer's protest the statement of the member as quoted by Fanke was stricken out of the record.

The trial will continue Monday at 10 A. M.

BIRMINGHAM OFF THE FORCE.

Patrolman Who Is to Testify for Brindell Got Leave by False Plea.

Patrolman Stephen W. Birmingham, who is expected to be an important witness for the defense in the Brindell trial, was dismissed from the Police Department on Thursday. It became known yesterday. He was tried before Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach on Dec. 29, 1920, on charges that he made false representations in obtaining leave.

The defense in the Brindell case relies on Birmingham to furnish corroboration of the alibi vouched for by David Danahy, a walking delegate, who testified on Thursday that he, together with Birmingham and Brindell were in the Bronx at the hour when Max Aronson swore he gave $5,000 to the labor leader at the office of the Building Trades Council. It was thought that Birmingham would be a witness for the defense, but it was brought out at the Lockwood Committee's hearing that Birmingham, during his leave, was in charge of the Compensation Department of the Building Trades Council at a salary of $5,000 a year and at his trial he admitted that this was correct.

INDICT 36 IN BUILDING GRAFT.

Dealers in Masons' Supplies Accused of Violating Donnelly Law.

The January Grand Jury, of which Francis H. Cabot is foreman, returned a blanket indictment yesterday afternoon to Justice John V. McAvoy, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. It is understood that the indictment contains the names of fifty-six individuals and concerns, members of an association of dealers in masons' building materials.

The defendants will be arraigned for pleading on Monday. The charge said to be mentioned in the indictment is violation of the Donnelly Anti-Trust law. The evidence was presented to the Grand Jury by William A. De Ford.

BAKER UPHOLDS ARMY DEMOTIONS

War Secretary Replies to Court Petitions of Colonels Seeking Reinstatement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary Baker has filed in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia his answers to the petitions brought by Colonels John W. French and William F. Creary for writs of mandamus to compel him to restore them to their former positions in the army. Colonel French was placed on the retired list and Colonel Creary was discharged under Section 24-B of the new Army Reorganization act. They have challenged the legality and propriety of the Secretary's action, under that law, and seek to have a court review.

"The Secretary's desire," the War Department declared in a statement issued today, "as expressed to his attorneys was, that in testing the validity of the elimination of these officers, no technicalities were to be resorted to, but that his answer should state fully and frankly what had been done, and submit to the court the question whether any illegality had been committed to the prejudice of these officers.

"In the French case the Secretary's answer sets up that although Colonel French has not been guilty of any serious misconduct on duty, yet he has not rendered efficient service. The answer states that in accordance with Colonel French's request, a court of inquiry was convened to consider the question whether he should be placed in Class B as not fitted for further service in the army; that in that court Colonel French was furnished with a full copy of all unfavorable parts of his record as an officer, on which his classification in Class B was proposed to be based; that he was permitted to examine his entire record since his first commission; to have counsel; to testify and present the testimony of others; that the court of inquiry as well as the final classification board placed him in Class B.

"The Secretary denies that the officers composing the classification board were prejudiced and says they gave Colonel French fair and impartial consideration. The Secretary denies that he assumed to act personally for the President in the approval of the proceedings of the classification board, but says that prior to any determination in the matter he laid the whole subject before the President and received from him general authority and direction in the name of the President to approve, revise or take such other action as might seem just, and that in accordance with that authority, acting on behalf of the President, on Dec. 24 last, he signed an instrument approving the proceedings of the classification board and directed Colonel French's retirement. The Secretary closes his answer by stating that the proceedings in the case have been in accordance with law and no injustice has been done Colonel French."

The answer in the case of Colonel Creary, who was discharged Nov. 17, is similar.

DR. MANNING GREETED BY FRIENDS AT OFFICE

Bishop-Elect's Desk Heaped With Congratulatory Messages—Will Not Preach Tomorrow.

When Dr. William T. Manning, Bishop-elect of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, reached his office at Church and Fulton Streets yesterday for the first time since his election he found a large number of friends awaiting him, and on his desk were piled many congratulatory messages from all parts of the country. After he had sorted the messages Dr. Manning posed for a battery of camera men.

One of the congratulatory telegrams was from Captain Gloster Armstrong, British Consul-General in New York; another was from Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, who wrote:

"Among all the congratulations on your selection as Bishop of the Diocese of New York mine may not be the first. But I pray you to consider this message among the most sincere inasmuch as it is a genuine token of my heartfelt sympathy for one of the best and truest friends Belgium ever had."

Other messages were from Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Dr. Morgan Dix, former rector of Trinity; Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts; the Rev. Dr. Harlan Mendenhall, Moderator of the Presbytery of New York; the Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie; Robert H. Gardiner of Gardiner, Me., Secretary of the Commission for Faith and Order, of which Dr. Manning is a prominent member; Samuel Thorne Jr., Colonel De Witt C. Falls, Bradley Martin, Bishop E. L. Parsons, Assistant Bishop of San Francisco; John R. Mott and Dr. John Grier Hibben, President of Princeton University.

Dr. Manning declined yesterday to make any formal statement. He will be present at the Trinity services tomorrow, but will not preach. The pulpit will be occupied by the Rev. Cyril Bickersteth of the Community of the Resurrection, Mirfield, England.

BLIND GIRL LED GRADUATES.

Got 100 Per Cent. in All Studies but One—Plays, Dances and Sews.

Rosa Cohen was born blind, but she led her class of thirty-five boys and girls, graduated on Thursday from Public School 127, Seventh Avenue and Seventy-eighth Street, Brooklyn. She is the first blind girl known to have been graduated from the public schools, and so impressive was her standing and a piano recital which she gave that residents of Bay Ridge have started a movement to provide her with a musical education.

Rosa is 14 years old. Since she was a baby she has been an inmate of the Sunshine Home for the Blind, on Thirteenth Avenue, Dyker Heights. Like other blind children, she was about two years behind the normal age in leaving kindergarten and entering grammar school, but proved so proficient that she easily caught up with the others, skipped a grade, and reached the top of her class.

Her marks in mathematics and every other subject except English were 100 per cent., and in English she got 96. She has composed simple pieces for the piano, dances well and sews. She made her graduation dress, uses the typewriter and wants to go to college.

Judge Holds Evidence Was Insufficient to Connect Him With Alleged Crime.

CAUSES STIR IN THE COURT

Dead Boy's Mother Collapsed When Counsel for the Defense Suggested Suicide.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—William M. Brines was acquitted today of the charge of killing Elmer C. Drewes. The University of Pennsylvania sophomore was freed on the ground that insufficient evidence had been submitted to connect him with the Dartmouth College senior's death.

Judge Ferguson of the Criminal Court, before whom the case was tried, pointed out in his charge to the jury that no evidence had been submitted to prove that Brines met Drawes on the day of his death; that all the evidence submitted against the defendant was circumstantial; that only one witness told anything of the automobile alleged to belong to Brines, which was found abandoned in Germantown, and that as she admitted being very nervous at the time, it was possible that she had been mistaken in the car.

The Judge added that it was possible that some one else might have had the car on the night of the alleged murder, that Drewes might have committed suicide and that some one might have taken the body to the spot where it was found on Oct. 7.

He therefore directed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty on the bill charging murder and upon the manslaughter bill as well. The Foreman said it had been unanimously decided by the jury last night at the close of the prosecution's case to acquit Brines.

The action was followed by a commotion in the courtroom. A momentary silence, abruptly broken by gasps, hysterical feminine laughs, and noisy moving of chairs was followed by sharp demands for order by court attendants.

Mrs. Annie Brines, the widowed mother of the accused student, wept.

"This is the happiest moment of my life," she exclaimed as she kissed her son, "and they have given me my boy. God has been good to me. I know my boy and I know his conscience and I know he did not kill Elmer."

Brines, who since the trial began Monday has maintained a show of reserve, threw his arms about his mother and wept. Then he left the courtroom with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Drewes, parents of the dead Dartmouth man, left the courtroom arm in arm. The middle-aged woman, who had collapsed in court this morning when Brines's counsel suggested that her son might have committed suicide, moaned piteously.

"My poor Elmer," she sobbed, "he didn't kill himself. This is terrible. There is a higher Judge who looks over us all. He is one who will see justice done."

The morning session of the trial was devoted entirely to hearings of the motion by counsel for the defense to take the case from the jury.

TOOK SHIP 2 MONTHS TO COME FROM FRANCE

Crew Refused to Stoke Belgian Freighter Cannonier, Erroneously Reported as Sinking.

The Belgian freighter Cannonier arrived yesterday from Bordeaux, having been since Nov. 22 on the voyage and compelled to put into the Azores and Bermuda because of bad weather and lack of coal. Captain Paul Nicholas said yesterday that the ship had rolled and been tossed about so much that they were all bowlegged.

The battering received by the Cannonier crossing the Bay of Biscay shifted things around so much that the Captain had to put into St. Michael's on Dec. 14 to refit. After making a fresh start he reached Bermuda last Monday, where coal and supplies were obtained. While there three firemen were so seasick that they had to be left on shore, and five of the six sailors on board were requested to stoke in their places and refused to do so.

On Wednesday afternoon the depleted engine room crew, even with the aid of the cook, were unable to keep enough steam up for the Cannonier to be headed toward New York, and she drifted more than 100 miles to the southward, and the Captain sent a message for help to the wireless station at New London. The message was garbled in transmission through the stormy weather conditions, and amateur operators had the vessel sinking fifty miles east of Fire Island, which created excitement along the waterfront on Wednesday evening.

The Belgian Consul said yesterday that he could not interfere in the matter of the six mutinous sailors, as their are Frenchmen and the steamer flies the Belgian flag. All the Captain can do is to take them back as passengers and have them arrested in Bordeaux, where they were shipped.

OIL PROMOTERS INDICTED.

Ten Company Officials Accused of Using Mails to Defraud.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Ten officials of the Black Diamond Oil Company were indicted today on five charges of conspiracy to use the mails in a scheme to defraud by a Federal Grand Jury. Bonds were fixed at $5,000 each.

Those indicted included C. C. Marshall, President of the company, Drumright, Okla.; John D. Cameron, General Manager, New York, and D. Francis Foley, Secretary, New York.

The indictments charged that statements in literature alleged to have been sent through the mails that the concern had extensive land holdings in Texas and other southern States, that 550,000 barrels of oil were produced annually from thirty-six wells and that annual earnings were $1,000,000, were false.

The charges state that the company owned only a few acres in Indiana, with several wells worth about $1,000,

CHARGES ILLEGAL ARREST.

Counsel for Herman Weisseis Says He Was Held Without Warrant.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Herman Weisseis, held in the Tombs prison from May 1, 1919, to Jan. 30, 1920, and then transferred to the Brooklyn Navy Yard for court-martial as a spy, was arrested by the Department of Justice, "without a warrant," according to a brief filed in the Supreme Court today in behalf of his appeal for habeas corpus.

It contended that the military authorities were without jurisdiction, New York City not being in the zone of operations, and judicial courts functioning.

Object to Election of Howard Borden as Commanding General of State Troops.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 28.—Fifteen officers of the Third Regiment of the New Jersey National Guard resigned here today as a protest against the election of Howard S. Borden as Brigadier General in command of the State troops. Their objections are that General Borden did not serve overseas during the war and that his election was dictated by Governor Edwards.

At the election of a new commander of the State troops in December, General Borden, then commanding officer of the Sixth New Jersey Infantry, was opposed by Lieut. Col. William Buttle, who served overseas with the American Expeditionary Force. It is alleged that Governor Edwards interfered indirectly when there was a deadlock on the twenty-second ballot and caused the selection of Colonel Borden.

A week later three officers sent their resignations to the new commander. They were Colonel Winfield S. Price, Lieut. Col. Edward B. Stone and Major Leonidas Coyle. Their resignations were accepted and the two other battalion commanders—Majors George L. Selby of Camden and C. F. Burr of Trenton—resigned, with nine company officers. It is predicted that all the other officers of the unit will quit, an event that would be paralleled in National Guard history only by the resignation of all the officers of the Twelfth New York Infantry as a protest against an order to march a second time in review before Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan while they were on the Mexican border.

Another prediction is that the American Legion will take a hand in the controversy, because Major Coyle is the State commander of the veterans' organization. His battalion refused to consider his resignation and unanimously voted to retain him as its commander. Similar action is being proposed in the cases of the other officers.

Some officers of the legion already have demanded the resignation of General Borden, which he refused on the ground that he did valuable work during the war. He was Secretary of the Defense League of New Jersey during the war and served also in the New Jersey State Militia. As an expert aviator, he did war work in testing bomb dropping devices. He directed many Liberty Loan parades and commanded troops that escorted notable visitors.

When General Borden was elected Colonel of the new Sixth Infantry, it was predicted by Adjutant General Glikyson that he would command the new brigade of State troops. General Borden's home is at Oceanic and he is famous as a sportsman. He is a member of the firm of M. C. D. Borden & Sons, dry goods, and Vice President of the American Printing Company, both of 90 Worth Street, New York, and is reputed to be a millionaire.

MARION COUNTY OFFICER ADMITS $14,303 THEFT

Treasurer Forry Confesses That He Framed Up Robbery Story to Cover Embezzlement.

MARION, Ohio, Jan. 28.—Treasurer Harry C. Forry of Marion County, who reported Wednesday morning that he had been robbed of $14,303 by two bandits who knocked him unconscious in his office in the Court House, was placed under arrest early today and confessed to the theft of the money, the police announced today.

Not satisfied with his story of the robbery, the police became suspicious of Forry and late last night obtained a written confession from him, they say, telling how he stole the money from the Court House safe Tuesday night, taking it to his home, where he hid it in a chest.

Forry was placed under arrest early this morning, almost immediately following the arrival of a new baby at his home. He is the father of three other children and is the son-in-law of Horace W. Cookston, representing Marion County in the Legislature. Forry is 35 years of age and is a Democrat. He was defeated for re-election last November.

Wednesday morning Harley Benedict, entering the County Treasurer's office to pay his taxes, found Forry lying on the floor, apparently unconscious. He rendered first aid and called a physician and the police. Forry said two youthful bandits had hit him over the head with a revolver and had walked off with the money, later found to be about $14,300.

In his signed confession, Forry said he framed the robbery story to cover his theft. He admitted having scratched his face and hit himself over the head with a hammer in order to make his robbery story more realistic.

Forry, in his signed confession, said he went deeply into debt last Fall during his campaign for re-election and had heavily mortgaged two houses he owned. His friends believe that his mind became deranged with worry over his financial obligations and his defeat for re-election.

RESERVE OFFICER WINS.

Court Overrules Daniels's Order Retiring Commander Without Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, was ordered today by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in Circuit Court to revoke his order of Nov. 12, 1919, which placed Commander George A. Berry of the Naval Reserve, on the inactive list without pay. Secretary Daniels was directed to permit Commander Berry to appear before a naval retirement board for a second inquiry into his physical disabilities in the same manner as inquiries concerning disabilities of regular naval officers are conducted and disposed of.

Commander Berry said that he had been placed on the inactive list because of injuries received in the line of duty, an act which he contended was a clear violation of the law affecting such cases. He held that he was entitled to retirement pay as officers of the regular navy who are retired or discharged because of some physical disability. The case will affect petitions of other naval reserve officers who seek retirement pay.

BRIDE JUMPS TO DEATH.

Influenza Victim Calls for Priest, Leaps From Window.

Mrs. Helen Marshall, 27, a bride of four months, jumped from the window of her bedroom on the fourth floor of 1,124 College Avenue, the Bronx, last night while suffering from influenza, and was killed.

She told her husband George that she felt she was dying and asked him to call a priest. While he was telephoning for the priest and the physician, he heard her push up the window and ran in just too late to prevent her from jumping out.

Mrs. Marshall had only recently been appointed guardian of her two orphaned nieces, Rita and Joseph Lewis, 8 and 6 years old. Their father, who was a member of the Twenty-seventh Division, was killed in front of the Hindenberg line, and their mother, Mrs. Marshall's sister, died a few months ago.

Dr. A. H. Knapp Sues for Separation

Dr. Arnold H. Knapp of 10 East Fifty-fourth Street brought suit in the Supreme Court yesterday for a separation from his wife, Mrs. Julia Long Knapp, who, he alleges, has gone secretly to Nevada for the purpose of divorcing him there. He says he married the defendant in 1909 at Camden, S. C., and that they lived together at 10 East Fifty-fourth Street until Sept. 16, 1919, when she returned to Camden, taking their children with her. He tried to induce her to return, but she refused and finally went to Nevada.

Allerton House, a residence. For homes and professional men, in the fulfillment of a new idea in city housing.

The sociability and privacy of a club, the conveniences of a hotel, the pleasant quiet of a home, these are provided at a fraction of the cost of accommodations at a first-class hotel, because essentials have been substituted for useless extravagances.

The Allerton idea of service is expressed in the pervasive atmosphere of comfort to be found equally in its lounge, roof garden, sun parlor, gymnasium and music room.

Allerton House is a residence men are proud to speak of as their home.

KING OF BELGIANS OFFERS YACHTING CUP FOR SEA RACE

Proposes Transatlantic Contest for Sailing Craft, Open to the World.

TO BE WITHOUT HANDICAP

First Boat to Finish Will Win—Course Will Be From Sandy Hook to Ostend.

MANY VESSELS AVAILABLE

U. S. Has 25 or More Yachts Suitable for Deep-Sea Racing—Auxiliaries Eligible.

Albert I., King of the Belgians, has offered a cup, emblematic of the yachting championship of the seas, for an international transatlantic race to be sailed next Summer. The race, which will be open to sailing yachts of all nations, with no restrictions on size of boat or rig, is scheduled to get under way at noon on July 4 from a starting line off Sandy Hook. The finishing point is to be off Ostend, Belgium, making the contest one of approximately 3,300 nautical miles. An elaborate welcome will be accorded the contestants at the brilliant Belgian watering place. One of the provisions for the race is that the start is to be made on schedule regardless of weather or wind conditions then prevailing.

Announcement of King Albert's offer was made yesterday by Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, Belgian Ambassador to the United States, who stated that the King's purpose is "the encouragement of wholesome deep-sea yachting." The cup will become the permanent property of the owner whose yacht is first across the finish line and other prizes will be awarded to the owners of all boats which complete the route. According to the conditions in the deed of gift, auxiliary yachts are eligible to compete, providing the propelling machinery is sealed. The event is to be contested without handicap of any kind.

The contest will be the fifth transatlantic yacht race. The last event of the kind was held sixteen years ago, in 1905, when elven yachts started in competition for a cup offered by the former Kaiser of Germany. This trophy turned out to be made of pewter. It was melted during the World War and converted into bullets.

Entries for the race will close on June 20 next with Pierre Mali, Belgian Consul General in New York, with offices at 25 Madison Avenue. Specific details of race conditions, with particulars regarding the finish off Ostend, will be announced later.

The start of the race is to be from the Ambrose Light vessel, one gun to be fired as a warning signal at ten minutes before noon and the starting gun at noon. A committee of three yachtsmen, one a member of the New York Yacht Club, one of the Atlantic Yacht Club and the third of the Larchmont Yacht Club, is to supervise the starting of the race. No member of the committee is to be a member of more than one of the three clubs.

Handicaps Not Feasible.

The fact that the race is to be sailed without handicap is due to the fact that it is for the championship of the seas. While the America's Cup contests have been conducted on handicaps, they are the only so-called championship events in any branch of sport that are conducted on a handicap basis. Wind and weather conditions at sea are so variable that it is impossible to establish any system of handicapping that would be fair to all. In the race for the cup offered by King Albert the contestants must avail themselves to the best of their ability of such conditions as nature may afford.

As regards the type and size of yachts suitable for such a contest, past performances show that innumerable sorts have made transatlantic voyages, from the little 25-foot yawl Seabird to the mammoth ship-rigged yacht Valhalla. All have made the voyage in safety, though not always in absolute comfort to those aboard, particularly in the case of the smaller craft. Furthermore, the time required to cross has been far less than one might expect, considering the fact that merely sails and breezes were depended on.

There are many yachts well suited to compete in the race. On the list are not only American but British yachts and in addition there are a few French, Spanish and Canadian craft.

Among the American yachts equal to such competition are the following: The Alcyone, owned by Henry W. Putnam; the Aloha, Arthur Curtiss James; the Astra, G. Bullock and C. K. Beekman; the Atlantic, winner of the 1905 race, and now owned by James C. and Nicholas F. Brady; the Constance, W. Amory Gardner; the Constellation, Herbert M. Sears; the Corona, Cleveland H. Dodge; the Elena, Cornelius Vanderbilt, El Fay, formerly the Katoura, Russell A. Alger; the Enchantress, William E. Iselin; the Genesee, J. S. Watson, and the Grace H., Charles Morgan.

Others are the Guinevere, owned by Edgar Palmer; the Hildegarde, also one of the contenders in the race of 1905, E. R. Coleman; the Ingomar, H. W. Howe; the Intrepid, originally owned by Lloyd Phoenix, later by Alexander Smith Cochran, and now by Willis Sharpe Kilmer; the Invader, J. Barneson; the Iris, H. S. Borden; the Meritn, R. E. Forbes; the Kirin, Max Agassis; the Sanwan, Robert Mason; the Sonnica, H. S. Shonnard; the Sunshine, George

Father and Daughters Elope Same Day and Keep Secret

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 29.—A triple elopement involving three members of one household, none of whom knew of the other's intentions, was disclosed today with the announcement that William M. Chase, retired New York manufacturer, and his daughters, Edith and Evelyn, had all been married within twenty-four hours.

Miss Edith Chase started the matrimonial race yesterday by slipping away from home, ostensibly for a shopping trip. She married Robert Crofts. Mr. Chase quietly left home to meet Mrs. Elizabeth Oberzfell and they were married. On returning home they were greeted by Mr. Chase's other daughter, Evelyn, who had become the bride yesterday at Greenwich, Conn., of Donald Riddle, eldest son of former Mayor William Riddle.

YANKEES PICK SITE FOR NEW BALL PARK

Decide to Purchase Hebrew Orphan Asylum Plot, 136th Street, Near Broadway.

GREAT STADIUM IS PLANNED

Will Surpass All Baseball Stands in Seating Capacity and Will Cost $2,000,000.

The New York Yankees, who have been living with their stepbrothers, the Giants, for so long a time that the hospitality of the latter appeared slightly frayed in spots a year or so ago, are to erect a home of their own in the near future. That is to say, they will begin work upon it in the near future—next June, to be exact. But it will take nearly two years to build it.

The site is now occupied by the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, extending between Hamilton Place, just off Broadway, and Amsterdam Avenue, and being bounded on the north and south by 138th and 136th Streets. The Yankees' owners have had the option on this property for somewhat over a year, but the transaction was delayed pending the finding of new quarters for the asylum. This has acquired a new site on Gun Hill Road in the Bronx.

The cost of the new ball park will be heavy. The initial expenditure will be the turning over in the course of the current week of $750,000 for the land, the option on which will be exercised on or before Feb. 5.

The stadium to be erected will cost, it is asserted, in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. It may run a bit under this sum, but not much. The plan of the structure is not dissimilar to that of the Brush Stadium at the Polo Grounds, comprising upper and lower stands with a long horseshoe sweep around two sides of the diamond.

The information regarding the plans was disclosed in a final report made by the F. W. Dodge Company, construction experts of this city, to the Osborne Engineering Company of Cleveland, which is to erect the structure.

The report states that if work is begun on the great arena in the coming June, according to the present design, there is no reason, barring strikes, why the Yankees should not be able to march triumphantly into gleaming new grounds in April, 1923.

The setting of the stadium will be larger than that of the Brush Stadium, for the grounds are of somewhat greater extent than the Polo Grounds. Steel and concrete are the materials to be used in the structure, which will surpass in seating capacity any stands ever erected for a baseball park. In fact, it is said, only the Yale Bowl will surpass the new stadium in this respect among all stands built for purposes of sporting spectacles.

One distinct advantage of this park, in the eyes of the owners of the Yankees, and also, it may be deemed certain, in the eyes of the fans, is that it is only twenty minutes' ride from Times Square. It is readily accessible by the Broadway subway to 137th Street and by trolley cars running on Broadway and Amsterdam Avenues. It is about five minutes' walk from the 135th Street station of the Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated railroads. It runs 450 feet on Amsterdam Avenue, 650 feet on 138th Street and 500 feet on 136th Street.

The construction contract between the Osborne Company and the Yankees has been signed, and most of the drawings are completed.

The Yankees will breathe more freely when they are once settled in a home of their home. They have passed eight years as the paying guests of the Giants, and there have been times, notably within the last year, when a break between hosts and guests appeared imminent. The owners of the Giants, Messrs. Stoneham and McGraw, were unwilling to arrange for a long-term lease, but an extension until 1923 was finally agreed upon. By that time the Yankees will have their own home.

MYSTERY SHROUDS PLUNGE OF BIG AUTO INTO NEW YORK BAY

Police Grapple Machine After Boy Discovers It, but Can't Learn If It Is Occupied.

LICENSE NUMBER REVEALED

But When Detectives Try to Identify "M-102-N. Y." They Find No Record of It.

LETTER FOUND IN RAINCOAT

Signed by "Will Johnson" of Philadelphia, It Tells of Forthcoming Marriage "If Nothing Happens."

A seven-passenger touring car, with the storm covering closely drawn on both sides, plunged into New York Bay from Sixty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, Friday night, and although relays of policemen from the Fort Hamilton Station and the police boat John F. Hylan succeeded in dragging the vehicle a few feet toward the surface at 10 o'clock last night they were unable to learn whether it contained any passengers.

The automobile first was discovered in the water about 7 A. M. yesterday by Ray Ballard, a youth who lives at 302 Seventy-second Street, Bay Ridge. He was walking along the newly constructed seawall at the edge of the new parkway running east of the Shore Road from Sixty-second Street to Fort Hamilton, when he noticed the tracks of automobile wheels in the soft ground.

Following the tracks to the sea wall, which is on a level with the road, he saw that the steel rims of automobile wheels had made fresh grooves in the granite surface of the sea wall, and peering through the water he saw what appeared to be the top of the hood of an automobile three feet under the surface of the bay and about fifteen feet out from the sea wall.

Policeman Gets Grappling Irons.

The youth notified Policeman Healy of the Fort Hamilton Station, and they got grappling irons from the Naval Barracks at the foot of Sixty-second Street, recently ordered abandoned by Secretary Daniels, and began to grapple for the machine.

The tide was low when young Ballard made his discovery, but before he and the policeman returned with the grappling irons the car had disappeared from sight.

Healey then notified Lieutenant Fitzgerald at the Fort Hamilton Station to send police reserves and detectives to help him search for the car, and they remained at work all day until last evening when Healy hooked the rear axle. With several policemen and detectives in a rowboat he dragged the car off the rocky bottom on which it lay, and while the policemen drew the rear of the car up so that the license plate could be seen another detective copied the number "M. 102, N. Y."

The detective immediately telephoned this to the Information Bureau at Police Headquarters, but learned that no such number was on the records. He explained that he was unable to learn whether the license was issued in 1919 or 1920.

Dark Object Near Machine.

Inspector Byron Sackett then ordered the policemen to allow the car to slip back to the rocks, but to keep the grappling hook taut as an anchor.

As the car slid back one of the detectives noticed a dark object about three feet below the surface at a point above the front of the machine.

The detectives and policemen in the rowboat immediately grappled for the object and pulled out a gray cravenette. In a pocket they found a letter signed by Will Johnson of 1,614 Victoria Street, Philadelphia, and which, in part, read as follows:

"Am up in New York. I guess I will be married in a few days, if nothing happens to me on the matter. When did you hear from her last? Give my love to her and the children and let me know soon how you and the wife are. Be good. With much love from your brother."

The police said the letter was in the inner pocket of the cravenette, but it was so watersoaked that the ink had run, and the rest was illegible. Examination of the coat revealed it was made by Strauss & Brother, clothing manufacturers of Baltimore, Md., and evidently had been worn for some time.

When the police boat drew near the automobile about nightfall Acting Inspector Halleck decided it would be in-

R-34, Dirigible That Crossed Atlantic, Left Only a Scrap Heap by Heavy Wind

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The R-34, which crossed the Atlantic, lies a total wreck outside her aerodrome and her flying days are over. Yesterday she was worth about a quarter million pounds sterling. Today she is not much better than a scrap heap.

The wind which completed the dirigible's destruction while she lay out in the open all night at Hamden almost cut her in two. Her nose is buried beneath the wrecked forward portion and her tail is reared up over 200 feet in the air. Experts say the R-34 would have been saved had there been a mooring-mast for her use.

The R-34 will be remembered as the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, having started from the East Fortune Aerodrome, Edinburgh, on July 1, 1919, and landed at Roosevelt Field, Mineola, L. I., on the morning of July 6. The distance covered by the flight was 3,200 miles and the time consumed was 108 hours.

Before departing on her return trip, just before midnight on July 9, the R-34 made a trip from Roosevelt Field to Manhattan, where the giant dirigible for a few moments hovered over THE TIMES Building, from which a searchlight was played upon her, revealing her outlines to thousands of persons in the streets.

The R-34 was under command of Major G. H. Scott, who also was one of her pilots. On her trip to this country she brought one of the first aerial stowaways, William Ballantyne, one of the original members of her crew, whom it was considered expedient to drop from the list just before the dirigible started to this country.

Death of Two In Auto In Witherell Case Increases Mystery of the Kidnapped Wife

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—While being trailed early today by private detectives in the employ of O. S. Witherell, whose missing wife is supposed to be in the hands of kidnappers, Charles Beverly, Witherell's former partner, and Mrs. Leda W. Tenney, head stenographer in Witherell's loan and investment office, were killed in an automobile accident. Beverly and his companion were crushed to death when he drove his automobile into a street car.

Two other women, Mrs. Glasier and Miss Worthenberg, were in Beverly's car. The private detectives were trailing Beverly in another car and were only a few feet behind when the collision occurred.

Beverly had been examined by officers several times since the disappearance of Mrs. Witherell. He was not, however, actually under suspicion. In an official statement given out late this afternoon, Detective Harris said:

"With regard to Mr. Beverly, I can state that death has sealed his lips concerning two points that we believe he had knowledge of in this case and which, perhaps, he could easily have explained had he been inclined to talk to us at our last conference.

"In justice to the families of Mrs. Tenney, Mrs. Glasier and Miss Worthenberg, all of whom were with Beverly at the time of the accident, I wish to state that their association last night with Mr. Beverly has, in my opinion, absolutely no connection with the kidnapping of Mrs. Witherell."

A large part of today was spent by the investigating officers in checking up the relations between the various principals in the mysterious case. According to their assertions, several facts were ascertained which may have a serious bearing on the kidnapping, but they refused to give out any information.

The supposed abductor is described as 50 years old, 5 feet 7 inches in height and inclined to light build. Gray, fluffy hair, parted in the middle, and a light mustache, a pleasant voice and a gentlemanly manner are also described as identifying him.

Although pinning their hopes for the speedy recovery of Mrs. Witherell on expected communications from her abductors, detectives and deputy sheriffs today continued to run down every available clue and rumor. According to Detective Harris the final scenes will probably be staged within a few hours.

LEGISLATORS SHY ON TRACTION ISSUE

Republican Members From New York County Defer Action on Miller Program.

LOCAL OPPOSITION GROWS

Four Republican Senators in Brooklyn Refuse to Follow Livingston's Lead.

The Republican members of the Legislature from New York county conferred on the traction situation yesterday at the Republican County Committee headquarters, 105 West Fortieth Street, and decided to defer action upon Governor Nathan L. Miller's recommendations for the reorganization of the Public Service Commission and to give the matter "careful consideration."

The New York County Republican legislators, in other words, decided to play "safe," or as safe as possible, and to defer until later action which would put them in opposition to the Republican Governor or the probable program of the Republican Party or would hazard their re-election by supporting recommendations which, in the popular opinion at least, have been taken to mean an increased fare.

Another meeting will be held next Saturday, at which a decision may be reached. It was said to be more probable, however, that the New York County Republican Senators and Assemblymen would be more likely to await the introduction of the bills to carry out the Governor's program before reaching a decision.

Every member of the New York County legislative delegation was present except Assemblyman Frederick H. Nichols of the Eleventh District. Those present included State Senators Schuyler M. Meyer, William Duggan and Ward V. Tolbert and Assemblymen Sol Ullman, Noel Bisecker Fox, Morris D. Reiss, Edward R. Rayher, Bernard Aronson, Robert B. Wallace, Joseph Steinberg, Nathan Lieberman, Miss Marguerite L. Smith, Mario G. Dipirro, John C. Hawkins and George N. Jesse.

Party Leaders Present.

Others present were Samuel S. Koenig, County Chairman; ex-Senator Albert Ottinger, Chairman of the Committee on State Affairs of the County Committee; ex-Senator Courtlandt Nicoll, Chairman of the City Affairs Committee of the National Republican Club, and most of the Assembly district leaders having Republican Assemblymen.

Exact information of the details of the conference could not be obtained, further than the following statement issued by Senators Duggan and Meyer and Assemblymen Jesse and Smith, who were appointed a committee to make public the result:

"The Republican members of the Senate and Assembly from New York County met at the Republican County Committee headquarters to discuss various matters pending before the Legislature, including the transit situation in New York City. The meeting was the regular weekly meeting which has been held since the convening of the Legislature.

"It was the unanimous opinion of those present that the most careful consideration and study should be given to those matters particularly affecting the City of New York. The members will meet again next Saturday afternoon."

See a Lesson in Last Election.

Assemblyman Jesse, who represents the Twenty-third District, on Washington Heights, was said to be one of those opposed to any fare increase. Mr. Jesse, who voted against the Jenks traction bills, was re-elected last Fall by 3,500 plurality. Oscar J. Smith, Republican candidate in the Twenty-second District, which is of the same character as the Twenty-third, was defeated for re-election by Michael E. Reiburn, Democrat, by 1,000 plurality. Mr. Smith voted for the Jenks bills, and the apparent lesson of his defeat in a normally Republican district was said to have made a strong impression upon the other Republican Assemblymen.

The New York County Republican leaders were said to be admittedly afraid of the raising of the 5-cent fare issue in the city campaign, whether it was real or fictitious, and to have no intention of committing themselves to any definite policy on traction premature ly.

There were indications yesterday that Jacob A. Livingston, the Brooklyn Re-

HOLD SUPPLY TO MINIMUM

Druggists to Be Permitted Only Five Cases on Any Single Permit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A last ditch fight against illicit traffic in liquor in the so-called Eastern "wet belt," which includes Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island, was begun tonight, when orders were issued to the prohibition directors of the seven States to withhold all permits for withdrawal of liquor from warehouses, with these exceptions:

1. Users of industrial alcohol.
2. Users of sacramental wines.
3. Five cases of whisky on each permit for each druggist licensed to sell liquor for medicinal purposes.

The orders were issued after consultation between Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams and John F. Kramer, Prohibition Enforcement Officer. It is their belief that the enforcement organizations have now been tipped into shape, so that the imposition of drastic regulations of this kind, the illicit trade in liquor obtained from Government bonded warehouses can be practically wiped out.

The decision to put the orders into effect supplements the efforts which the prohibition enforcement officers have made during the last few weeks to put an end to the graft in withdrawal permits. As a result of the steps taken to reorganize the department's forces, following the permit scandals in New York, it is believed that the issuance of forged permits has been stopped.

The allowance of five cases of whisky to each licensed retail druggist on a single permit, the Internal Revenue Department believes, represents the minimum on which the druggists will be able to take care of the legitimate business in liquor for medicinal purposes. It will bring about a great reduction at any one time in the amount of liquor released to druggists from the warehouses.

Means Heavy Cut in Supplies.

The order will cut down very materially the volume of whisky released to various sources in New York City. It will cut off the supply which ostensibly went to the manufacturers of certain tonics for stomach and head, and practically stop all supply of whisky now in Government bonded warehouses for "internal use," with the exception of what is believed to be the minimum supply needed for legitimate medicinal purposes.

Internal revenue officers have come to the conclusion that the amount of liquor which has been withdrawn from bond in the Eastern "wet belt" was so large that it could mean only one thing—its use on a large scale for illicit purposes. Complaints about alleged violations of the law have been frequent enough to give substance to such a conviction.

The permit scandals in New York City and elsewhere in the Eastern "wet belt" were the straw that broke the camel's back. The investigations made by the agents of the department as a result of these scandals brought out evidence of an unquestionable nature pointing to illicit traffic on a large scale.

The first step was to bring about a reorganization of the enforcement bureaus to put an end, so far as possible, to graft. The next was to prepare orders which would supply legitimate needs but cut off the supply the moment these were filled.

To Watch Druggists Closely.

Agents of the prohibition enforcement bureaus have been instructed to keep a close watch on all druggists who have come under suspicion as a result of the investigations attendant upon the permit scandals, and it is the intention of the officials to cancel licenses to sell even for medicinal purposes where the slightest suspicion arises.

The abuses which have been practiced in some of the States in the wet belt, according to enforcement officers, have been so flagrant that the agents have in many instances had little trouble in obtaining evidence.

It is admitted that the present orders are drastic, but it is held that they are not more far-reaching than the condition demands, if any effort to enforce the law is to be successful.

TEN DIE AS FIRE IN HOBOKEN SWEEPS HOTEL AT MIDNIGHT

Men and Women Trapped in Palace-Colonial as Flames Lap the Fire Escapes.

BODIES ARE NOT IDENTIFIED

Five Men and Three Women Are Severely Burned—Many Suffer Minor Injuries.

DARING RESCUES ARE MADE

Crowd Joins Firemen With Improvised Scaling Ladders and Saves Several Lives.

Ten men and women lost their lives and five men and three women were severely burned in a fire which swept through the Palace-Colonial, a family and commercial hotel, at 59 Newark Street, Hoboken, N. J., soon after last midnight. None of the bodies had been identified up to 2 o'clock.

The bodies were discovered by firemen an hour after they got the blaze under control. Forty other guests on the three upper floors of the five-story building had been trapped by the flames.

The fire, said to have started in the linen room on the second floor, had gained such headway before the arrival of the firemen that hundreds of citizens aided policemen in effecting daring rescues from the fire escapes and windows.

The firemen confined their efforts to rescuing the occupants of the 100 rooms before they began to fight the fire, which was put out in about half an hour. The most difficult task that confronted the firemen was to get the occupants of the upper floors to the street. More than thirty men and women were rescued by extension ladders thrown against the windows by firemen, safety by way of the fire escapes having been shut off by flames.

Three Rescued Unconscious.

Among those rescued by means of the fire ladders were the two men and three women who were badly burned. One man and two of the women were unconscious on window ledges when the firemen reached them. They were taken to St. Mary's Hospital in ambulances summoned on the first alarm.

Few of the guests had time to throw on any wearing apparel before they got out of the burning hotel. All were huddled into taxicabs and automobiles and taken to other hotels in the vicinity.

More than thirty guests were reported to have suffered slight burns and cuts. They were attended by physicians called to the other hotels.

The bodies of one man and one woman were found in one room on the top floor. A few minutes later the firemen found the body of another woman in a room across the hall. The flames illuminated the sky for more than twenty minutes, drawing thousands of persons to the scene in automobiles and on foot.

Most of the guests, it was said, arrived in Hoboken from trains on the Lackawanna Railroad late last night. Many were expecting to visit friends in this city.

How the fire started was a mystery. Employes of the hotel told the police that when a maid traced smoke to the linen room she opened the door and was met with a burst of flames. She was severely burned about the arms and was forced to flee without slamming shut the door.

Flames Leap to Third Floor.

Before her cries were heard by other employes the flames leaped through the stairwell and shot to the third floor, and then spread the length of the hall in both directions.

Most of the guests were asleep in their rooms at the time, and it was not until policemen and volunteer rescuers climbed the fire escapes and set up a din that they were awakened. Taxicab chauffeurs standing in front of the Lackawanna Terminal two blocks away hastened to the scene and set their Klaxon horns going. The noise from the sirens, added to the clanging of the gongs of passing street cars, aroused most of the guests, but when they ran to the halls they were confronted with suffocating billows of smoke.

Then they ran to the windows along the entire front of the building, and appealed to the crowds to rescue them. Many volunteers rescuers and policemen reached across from the edges of the fire escape landings to windows and in that manner saved possibly six men and women on the third floor, but as the last of these was hauled to the fire escape the flames shot into most of the rooms, revealing the guests standing in the windows in their night garments.

Improvised Ladders Used.

Engineers and firemen from the Lackawanna train sheds aided in the rescue by improvising scaling ladders of boards. Many persons were taken from the first and second floors in this manner.

On the arrival of the first truck company three groups of firemen ascended the front of the building with scaling ladders, and passed down fifteen or twenty women from the three upper floors in that manner.

Families in tenements on each side of the burning hotel were driven to the street by the police during the work of rescue, as it was feared the fire would extend to those buildings. Many women in the tenements ran back to their apartments, however, and grabbing up quilts and blankets returned to the street and threw them over the shoul-

Senator Thomas Doubts He Will Get Into Heaven

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—In the course of the debate on the Emergency Tariff bill, today, Senator Thomas of Colorado informed the Senate that he did not consider his chances of getting into heaven very good. Senator Thomas was discussing economy in government.

"The only measure looking to economy introduced during the present session of Congress," said Senator Thomas, "is the Borah resolution looking to naval and military disarmament, and I want to say to the Senator from Idaho that his resolution has as much chance of getting through this Congress as I have of getting into heaven."

"Well, I would say under those circumstances it has a pretty good chance," replied Senator Borah.

"No, not a chance in the world," retorted the Senator from Colorado.

ONE SLAIN, ONE SHOT, BANDITS MISS $4,258

Robbers Invade Flat in Ukrainian Quarter, to Which Victims Had Been Invited.

DRUGGIST KILLED, ROBBED

Describes Assailant While Dying —Two Shots Fired—Wife Denies Hearing Them.

Jacob Mazura, a gravedigger, of 80 Willett Street, was shot and instantly killed yesterday afternoon, and Waysel Henakoch, a porter, of 238 Seventh Street, was shot through the right arm by two robbers in the flat of Julius Rothman, on the third floor of 128 Stanton Street, near Essex Street. The robbers fled without obtaining $4,258 their victims carried in their pockets.

Mazura and Henakoch, accompanied by Andre Servich of 268 East Houston Street, all Ukrainians, called upon Rothman, whom they had met the evening before. They were going on a visit to their native country and at Rothman's invitation were to learn of conditions in Russia from his sister, who had recently arrived from Ukrainia. Mazura had $2,240 and Henakoch $2,018, their savings of seven years. Servich had left his money at home.

The revolver shots and the cries of the three Ukrainians alarmed the occupants of the tenement house as well as persons in the street, and in the excitement the robbers fled without searching their victims.

Servich escaped from the flat before the two bandits did and, following the shooting, Rothman, his wife Cecilia and their infant boy, Herman, left the flat. They were being sought by the detectives late last night.

Mazura, Henakoch and Servich were planning to sail for the old country early this week, and discussed their plans widely in the neighborhood of the shooting, the centre of a large Ukrainian colony. They withdrew their savings from their banks last Friday and the bandits are believed to have known the three men had the money on their persons.

Servich Tells of Meeting.

Soon after the shooting, Detectives Stetter, Kee and Quinn of the East Fifth Street Station began a search for the Rothmans as well as for Servich. They found Servich at a restaurant in East Fifth Street and learned that the Ukrainians had met Rothman at dinner the preceding evening, telling him of their proposed journey and receiving his invitation to call at his flat.

Mazura Henakoch and Servich arrived there a little after 2 o'clock. They found Mrs. Rothman nursing her baby. She explained, according to the story told the detectives, that her husband was out, and then offered to go for him.

Mrs. Rothman left the three visitors in the flat, after asking them to take good care of the baby. She was gone only a few minutes, returning with her husband. Two young men about 18 years old followed them into the room.

The two strangers and Mrs. Rothman seated themselves on some tubs, while Rothman paced the floor. Mazura and Henakoch took seats while Servich remained standing near the door.

Before the conversation was hardly opened the strangers suddenly drew revolvers and commanded the three Ukrainians to throw up their hands. Servich ran from the room.

Mazura Shot as He Flees.

Mazura, disregarding the order, made a dash for the door. As he was about to pass through there was a report and his body toppled into the hall.

Henakoch threw up his hands, but apparently the bandits were doubtful of his intentions. One of them approached him and fired a shot at close range. The bullet penetrated his right arm.

The shots and the cries attracted the attention of Policeman Wittenberg of the East Fifth Street Station, who was passing. He ran up the stairs to Rothman's apartment, where he found the body of Mazura lying in the hallway. Henakoch was nursing his arm. The Rothmans were gone.

Henakoch, unable to speak English, could not talk to Wittenberg, who called an ambulance from Gouverneur Hospital. Dr. Borovich dressed Henakoch's injury and he was taken to the East Fifth Street Station. Before the detectives were able to get his version of the hold-up they had to call in four interpreters.

Inquiries among the occupants of the tenement, according to the detectives, resulted in the discovery that Rothman was also known as Yiddie Rosenwasser. The detectives found the birth certificate of the child, showing it as born in Lincoln Hospital on Nov. 20 last. The

PREMIERS APPROVE INDEMNITY PLAN AND AID AUSTRIA

Germans to Confer on 42-Year Payment Scheme in London on Feb. 28.

FISCAL CONTROL A PENALTY

Customs to Be Seized and Taxes Levied in Rhineland if Conditions Are Not Met.

FINAL DISARMAMENT FIXED

Part of Austria's Debts to Be Forgiven — 200,000,000-Franc Corporation to Assist Her Industries.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The allied Premiers approved today the reparations plan drafted by experts last night and which provides:

First—In forty-two years Germany shall pay to the Allies the sum of 226,000,000,000 marks in gold, or its equivalent, on this scale—2,000,000,000 marks annually in 1921 and 1922, 3,000,000,000 marks annually in 1923, 1924 and 1925, 4,000,000,000 marks annually in 1926, 1927 and 1928, 5,000,000,000 marks annually in 1929, 1930 and 1931, and 6,000,000,000 marks annually from 1932 to 1963.

Second—Germany shall pay to the Allies for forty-two years an annual tax of 12 per cent. upon the total of her exports.

Third—Germany shall revise her interior fiscal system, balancing her budget and curtailing the issue of paper money, increase her taxes generally, raise the imposts upon alcohol and tobacco, and increase railroad fares and postal rates.

Fourth—In case Germany does not fulfill these conditions the Allies have the right to seize the German customs, impose direct taxes in the Rhineland and otherwise exercise financial control upon Germany. In addition military penalties will be provided.

To Discuss It With Germans.

It was also decided by the Premiers that the conversations at Brussels between the allied and German experts would be resumed Feb. 27, the discussions to proceed on the basis of today's agreement. Following that the German Ministers will be invited to come to London to meet the allied Ministers on Feb. 28. Today's plan will be at once communicated to the German Government.

The feature of the new plan which draws the greatest attention is that it requires the consent of the Germans before it is valid. This is because the Treaty of Versailles provides that Germany shall pay her indemnity in thirty years, whereas the latest scheme lays down the basis of payments at forty-two years. It was this feature which prevented decision today on the military penalties, it being realized that the Allies have no right to threaten Germany with military reprisals if she does not accept the forty-two years, inasmuch as no provision for this period is contained in the treaty. It is only after Germany agrees and signs the new covenant that the military coercion can be arranged for.

Because Germany's consent is required today's plan represented a move which is not worth its face value. Who expects Germany to agree passively and placidly? The Allies went to Spa to exact that Germany deliver 2,000,000 tons of coal monthly, and the negotiations ended by the Allies handing over the current price for this coal in the form of a loan. Naturally when the Germans are asked to agree to pay 12 per cent. on exports, which evidently represents a heavy tax, they will want good reasons why they should pay for forty-two years instead of thirty.

Boulogne Agreement Recalled.

The fact that German consent to the plan must be gained raises the question how far the Allies have advanced since the agreement of Boulogne last Summer. This accord was for the payment of 226,000,000,000 marks by Germany in forty-two years. The Allies took it to Spa, but found the Germans so stubborn that no progress was made. Today, seven months later, the Allies have a new plan which must again be submitted to the Germans.

Naturally, the Allies can say to Germany, if she balks, that she will be held responsible for the Reparations Commission total of 400,000,000,000 and the Allies will use military force. However, inasmuch as the success of that method would be very doubtful, it is necessary to envisage a series of difficult debates with the Germans.

Anyhow, it is plain that today's plan does not settle the reparations question. And because it does not the situation of interior French politics is important. The new plan is already causing adverse comment in the French press and around the Chamber of Deputies. It represents a strong recession from the French claims, and if it is necessary to make a further recession to secure German adhesion, the position of the French Government will become difficult, if not untenable.

In connection with the new plan it is worth while to note that it means that all German goods purchased by the United States or any other country will cost 12 per cent. more, since naturally this tax will be added to the selling price. It was pointed out by the English experts, when the French suggested a higher tax, that it might produce difficulties with America.

This tax, the allied experts argued, would also mean a protective tariff for allied industries. But that process is by arguing in a circle, for if the tax cuts down German imports it will in the ...ponently is the ability of France to borrow on this reparation agreement. This discussion cannot proceed far until the new American Administration can be consulted.

The attitude of America toward a probable loan has been privately discussed at Paris this week when allied Premiers had the advice of Mr. Auchinland Geddes, the British Ambassador to Washington, but these discussions have been only in a vague form. Sir Auckland Geddes has pointed out that it was impossible to tell now what the Harding Administration will do.

From the French point of view this question is fundamental. If Germany pays 11,000,000,000 in annuities in the next five years, and if there is realized another 3,000,000,000 on the export tax, or a total of 14,000,000,000 gold marks, France's share will be less than 8,000,000,000 or 10,000,000,000 gold francs, or 20,000,000,000 paper francs. France already has expended 36,000,000,000 paper francs without receipts, and thus without borrowing, she would have nothing for reconstruction work in the next five years, since it is with the greatest difficulty that she is now raising enough taxes to meet her current budget, some 27,000,000,000 francs.

How the Export Tax Would Work.

In justification of the present plan it must be said the scheme for collection of the exports tax offers the most feasible machinery yet suggested for realising money payments from Germany.

To maintain credit during the war the German Government forced exporters to turn over to Berlin the credits realized from exports to neutral countries, which Berlin paid for in German money, using those credits to maintain the Government's financial standing abroad. The allied experts now propose to Berlin to adopt the same method of paying German exporters in paper marks and turning over to the Reparations Commission indemnity account foreign credits accruing from exports to the extent of 12 per cent.

This system necessarily depends upon the co-operation of the Germans and also upon an amount of German good faith, which up to the present has not been manifested by the Berlin chiefs with regard to payments to the Allies. It is interesting to note that the wires brought from Berlin this afternoon comments from the German press which may be summarized as saying that the Allies are building castles in the air.

The Temps tonight voices a warning to the allied chiefs.

"And now what is going to be the attitude of Germany?" it asks. "Judging by past experience, we must expect the Germans to try to bargain, to ask for compensations, or even to repulse the allied plan. Is not that how she acted when the allied experts asked her to pay three billion yearly for the first five years? Well, at London Germany must answer. We should see that any stubbornness costs her dearly."

The Journal des Débats says tonight that the new plan, even if Germany can be got to agree to it, does not help France out of her financial hole unless she can borrow money somewhere on the prospects of German payments. Until this is arranged, the plan means that France faces bankruptcy.

Disarmament Order to Germany.

The Premiers also agreed today on the disarmament problem. The agreement, which is in the form of a note to Germany, calls on her to fulfill her Spa promises by July 1. They were to have been fulfilled by Jan. 1. The chief question is the disbandment of the civic guards in East Prussia and Silesia. Also Germany has until March 15 to pass legislation abolishing conscription in accord with the treaty. She is given until April 15 to turn over certain heavy armaments not yet delivered.

The Allies agreed that as a penalty for non-compliance they could occupy the Ruhr or retard evacuation of the Rhineland, or both, or exclude Germany from the League of Nations. However, this penalty is not mentioned in the note to Berlin, because Mr. Lloyd George views the matter of penalties for both disarmament and reparations, and this matter, he believes, can be finally settled at the conference with the Germans in London next month.

Plans to Aid Austria.

At a meeting late this afternoon the Premiers considered the problem of Austria. The proposal of the French for an advance of £250,000,000 to Austria was abandoned on the initiative of Mr. Lloyd George, who said the Governments were burdened enough now and that a better way to help Austria would be to make advances by private bankers and industrials more attractive.

To this end he proposed that the Allies surrender certain financial claims against Austria under the Treaty of St. Germain—for instance, the cost of the armies of occupation and part of the reparations claims. This principle was adopted.

It was also voted to establish an allied commission to act as an advisory commission to the Austrian Government in bettering its financial situation and to call in the near future "at a place near Vienna" a conference of the nations made out of the old Austro-Hungarian monarchy for the purpose of improving the economic, political and financial relations of those States. The big Allies will act in an advisory capacity for this conference.

The question of deliveries of coal by Germany to the Allies was adjourned, probably until the London conference next month. The agreement of Spa, under which Germany delivered 2,000,000 tons monthly and got loans therefrom, expires next Monday. The Reparations Commission has notified Germany that she must in future deliver 2,360,000 tons monthly without advances by the Allies.

The conference closed with amicable speeches by Briand, Sforza and Lloyd George. Briand and Lloyd George threw bouquets at each other after having spent the week throwing political brickbats. Lloyd George, who sulked in the Cr...n yesterday like Achilles in his tent until Briand became "reasonable," said:

"It has been my painful duty to criticise some things M. Briand has said this week, but I did it for his good, and because of my great affection for him, and with what good results we now see."

Both Premiers agreed that the Entente was again on a good working basis.

Mr. Lloyd George and his entourage will depart for London tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The Belgians will leave at noon, and the Italians in the evening. They meet again in London on Dec. 11 to rewrite the Turkish treaty, and on the 28th will hold a conference with the German Ministers to try and settle finally the reparations problems.

Proclaims United Front.

PARIS, Jan. 29 (Associated Press).—In an attempt to aid Austria it was agreed by the Supreme Council today that the Allies should forego reparations, the cost of the army of occupation and certain other Austrian debts to the Allies in order to enable Austria the more easily to obtain outside aid. It was also decided to convene in the neighborhood of Trieste a conference of Austria and adjoining countries for the purpose of endeavoring to improve economic, commercial, financial and political relations between the Central European States.

Approval was given to a proposal by M. Loucheur, French Minister for the Devastated Regions, for a 200,000,000-franc corporation to assist Austrian industries, in which the different Governments may participate.

A commission will be appointed to inquire into the conduct of the Austrian administration, with a view to suggesting economies and improving the various services.

The Council adopted the following resolution:

"The Allies, convinced that close union is as necessary in the present peace as it was in the war, are resolved to allow nothing to impair it. They consider unless as the surest guarantee of the peace of the world, the execution of the treaties and fidelity to international engagements and penalties agreed to."

Favorable View in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Fixing of the amount of Germany's reparations at...mitted from Paris, Treasury officials said tonight, should go far toward re-...Europe indirectly, however, officials said, the fixing of the amount of reparations should be without effect upon the liquidation of the $10,000,000,000 war loan to the Allies by this country. The moral effect of the agreement of the Premiers, they contended, might to some extent result in accelerating payment by the Allies of their debts to this country.

The United States, the officials said, had consistently taken the position that payment or liquidation of the allied debts would be acceptable which made payment to this country contingent upon Germany fulfilling her reparations obligations. The allied debt to the United States, they said, was a separate and distinct matter from any indemnity to be exacted from Germany.

LLOYD GEORGE SAYS GERMANY MUST ACCEPT

Nothing Otherwise to Do Than Apply the Treaty of Peace Literally.

PARIS, Jan. 29 (Associated Press).—The British Prime Minister received the French newspapermen this evening. They asked him about the interallied debts. Mr. Lloyd George assured them that Great Britain would show the utmost good-will in the settlement, as evidenced by the engagement made at the Hythe conference not to capitalize its share of the German indemnities for five years, in order not to compete with loans France might make based on her share.

"But it is impossible to consider a special agreement between two countries with regard to the question," he continued. "There must be a general arrangement. We owe to America; France owes us; other nations owe France. No solution is possible while America remains outside the discussion.

"Meanwhile, let us act as if debts did not exist. If the creditor does not worry me, I do not worry the debtor."

When the interview began Mr. Lloyd George smilingly expressed his belief that the Germans would not like the terms greatly, but he expected no difficulty in collecting the export tax. Control would be made by a German official, he said, but the Reparations Commission would have to accept the nominee and would have power to demand his supersession. German exports could be checked by returns from the importing countries.

Such control, said the Prime Minister, must not be confounded with seizure of the customs, which might be resorted to as a penalty. "The word 'seizure' has been avoided, as has generally anything which might wound the Germans' feelings," he added.

Mr. Lloyd George concluded:

"The Reparations Commission will continue to function because France wishes that Germany's total debt to the Allies shall be calculated in accordance with the Treaty. Furthermore, the possibility of Germany's refusing our arrangement must be foreseen, in which case there is nothing for us to do but to apply the treaty literally."

SATISFACTION IN LONDON.

Reparation Decision Welcomed as Showing Allied Unity.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The decision of the Supreme Council on the reparations question is welcomed here, if only because it puts an end to the long period of indecision which threatened more than once to result in an impasse.

The Evening Standard says it gives all the Allies cause for gratification, and The Sunday Times says: "A sigh of relief goes up from the world."

"Failure to find in the give-and-take of discussion a practicable adjustment of conflicting views," says The Observer, "would have been a confession that the foundations of the Entente had disappeared. The happier event is eloquent of the energy, courage and power of conciliation displayed by M. Briand as of Mr. Lloyd George's coolness and patience. No one will underrate the difficulty of Briand's position in relation to the political currents running in France, or the weight of responsibility he carried in committing his country to a definite policy on reparations. The conclusion reached yesterday pays its own tribute both to the French and British Prime Ministers."

There is much discussion of the effect the Allies' decision will have in Germany. The Sunday Times thinks there may be "a season of German chicanery and evasion," and that Germany will stand aghast at the bill of costs; but it adds: "She will realise that she must abandon every dream of a revanche, of again seeking that will o' the wisp, world domination."

The Evening Standard says: "Germany will twist, of course, as she has twisted in the past, and the proof that the two chief Allies are united will be the best way of insuring that her evasions shall be ineffective."

The Pall Mall Gazette urges the negotiators in Paris to keep clearly before their eyes the intention of the strongest political factors in Germany to take their stand ultimately on flat repudiation." And it adds: "Stinnes's newspapers are preaching this gospel already, and it will pass into national policy as soon as a convenient formula is found."

As regards the terms agreed upon by the Supreme Council, The Observer says:

"We read of periods of thirty or forty years during which Germany is to pay her just tribute with as little opposition as ever. The two years since the armistice have already produced remarkable changes of mind and outlook. France, no less certainly than Britain, will soon awake to the innumerable influences which are working all the time to re-fashion her interests, purposes and prejudices. There are limits to the powers of one generation to legislate for the next.

"Frankly, then, we are more disposed to be amused than impressed when the events of 1963 are not merely forecasted, but prescribed. If anything is probable it is that 1963 will be much more unlike our present world than 1879 was.

"On the other hand, there is a certain danger in framing meticulous long-term obligations to be actually operative from year to year, from budget to budget, over a long period of change. Public opinion will not long regard it as sacred and unalterable. It will be a constant occasion of irritation, intrigue and mistrust."

GERMAN PRESS PROTESTS.

Allied Reparations Plan Derided and Called Insane.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—The mode of exacting reparation from Germany proposed by the committee of experts at Paris arouses the anger of the Berliner Tageblatt, which says the conference is more like a "madhouse than an assembly of reasonable men."

It declares it is not in the least surprised at Lloyd George's "yielding to the French extortionists," but that it finds itself compelled to ask why this that is not worth while dealing seriously with this structure of figures. All Germany can do is, with a shrug of her shoulders, to refuse to pay such ridicular sums and leave it to the Allies to save themselves and take their booty when they want it."

Commenting in a similar strain, the Local Anzeiger says:

"We know well enough that Mr. Lloyd George can at the last moment give way to the French claims when it appears to him to be in the interests of Great Britain to do so."

It declares the Paris reparations proposals are absolutely impossible of acceptance.

The Vossische Zeitung sees in the proposals a victory for Mr. Lloyd George over M. Seydoux (who has represented France in the reparations discussion). It says:

The proposal of forty-two yearly instalments with a total of 226,000,000,000 gold marks is just as insane as M. Doumer's suggestion for instalments of 12,000,000,000 gold marks. They cannot be paid. They constitute, however, an effective means for placing Germany's financial and economic life for forty-two years in England's hands. This disaster perhaps, is still another best one if Germany proceeds with France's help in returning to the path marked out by M. Seydoux's program."

PASS CUBAN ELECTION BILL.

Senators Adopt Crowder Measure, Which Now Goes to President.

HAVANA, Jan. 29.—The Senate tonight passed the bill amending the Crowder electoral law so as to empower the Central Electoral Board to call for the holding simultaneously of elections in all colleges where new elections must be held, either because of their failure to open the polls on Nov. 1, or as a result of Supreme Court decisions. The measure passed the House last night and will now go to the President for his signature. It has the sanction of both President Menocal and General Crowder and was put through as part of the General's plans for clearing up the election situation.

The bill also gives the Central Board power to lay down rules which may be necessary to insure results of the partial elections being made known in time for successful candidates to take office on the days fixed by law.

With the passage of this amendment, coming closely on the adoption of the measure providing for gradual liquidation of banking and commercial obligations, which becomes effective Feb. 1, the work of General Crowder apparently has taken a long stride to a successful conclusion. It is generally believed, however, he may remain for an indefinite period, possibly until after the partial elections have taken place.

Some hesitancy on the part of certain legislators in responding to the wishes of General Crowder in the framing of necessary legislation developed during the last few days and there was talk of resignations in protest against what was called "foreign interference." No such action, however, has been taken.

NORFOLK IDEA' PLANT FAILS

Iron Works Over Which Union Got Part Control Forced Into Bankruptcy

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 29.—The Crescent Iron Works, known under its recent operation as the pattern for the "Norfolk Idea" of organized labor, to shape policies of industrial concerns by acquiring a measure of financial control of companies, was thrown into involuntary bankruptcy today by three creditors. The claims involved total $1,040.

The experiment began with the purchase during a strike last July of outstanding obligations of the company by the International Association of Machinists. The funds were furnished though a Washington bank, said to be controlled by the union. Affiliated branches of organized labor supported the plan by extending credit.

No statement could be obtained tonight from union leaders or company officials as to what course would be taken to meet the emergency.

Garvin Expects Great Things of a New Ministry for Imperial Affairs.

MEANS STRONG SEA POWER

Editor Says Japan Should Know Attack on Any English-Speaking People Means War With All.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—J. L. Garvin devotes a three-column article in The Sunday Observer to Winston Churchill and the great chance which will be his when he goes to the Colonial Office which, under some new title like "Ministry of Imperial Affairs," will give unexampled range for his powers. Garvin says it is admitted, even by those who criticise him strongly in other connections, that Churchill has no living superior in organizing vigor and executive dispatch. He is terrible in competition and tireless in sustained driving power, has inexhaustible ardor and inexhaustible sources.

"He holds," says Garvin, "that the economic resources of the British system can and must be developed to relieve every difficulty of debts and exchanges. He holds that the Empire can and must be maintained. He holds that without any immediate rivalry with America, sea-power which is the very basis of the Empire, can and must be secured at any cost, and that the trident shall not slip from a nerveless hand."

In urging that one of Churchill's chief tasks will be the development of the Empire's resources, Garvin writes:

"The United States so far has not wished to join in the policy of cancelling war debts all around which would do the most for the commercial recovery of the world in general and for the trade interests of the United States themselves. Therefore, we have to pay America for borrowings practically made through us by our European Allies for their own needs. They will repay us only partially or not at all and in view of the present insistence of Washington upon the letter of the bond we are heavily mortgaged to the United States for what in reality are other people's debts.

"We have to pay twice for this situation, never foreseen when we burdened ourselves to the limit of our resources in order to furnish our friends. First, we pay in taxation for the unique and one-sided liability, such as never was placed on any other country before, and secondly, the consequent adverse course of exchange make us pay dearer for every single thing we import from America. In addition we have to reckon with the rise of American shipping taking away a proportion of our former earnings in transatlantic carrying trade.

"These are facts and they mean we are heavily handicapped every way in our commercial intercourse with the United States. We cannot solve this financial problem by home taxation alone, we must develop every source of agricultural and mineral supply within the empire itself. We cannot do otherwise. No alternative is left to us. Mr. Churchill, with his vivid sense of the concrete, is about the last man likely to overlook these necessities."

But behind this, says Garvin, there is another issue and by far the greatest.

"It concerns," he says, "the foundations of the empire and the effective existence of the empire. It involves the whole question of the future connection between the mother country and the principal self-governing dominions, for it embraces sea power, the Japanese treaty and Anglo-American relations . . . The Dominions bordering on the Pacific dread two things—they fear the Japanese treaty may involve a fundamental divergence of policy of the mother country from the views and interests common to the white dominions and the United States.

"Next, in the face of the naval expansion of the United States, they cannot see their way through the problem of sea power. The British Government ought to lose no time in showing, through the new Minister for Imperial Affairs, that the misapprehension with regard to the Japanese treaty is absolutely baseless; that the treaty was safeguarded against Asiatic dangers which do not now exist. It never had a point levelled against the United States. Every sane human being ought to know that the faintest suggestion of British action with Japan against America would range Australia, New Zealand and Canada with the United States even against the mother country, if need be, and would disrupt and destroy the empire.

Attack by Japan Madness.

"Japan, for her swarming population, is entitled to an adequate scope on the Asiatic shores nearest to her own. On that sufficient basis of sense and justice London and Washington alike ought to be friendly to the Mikado's people. Japan disclaims all thoughts of aggression against any English-speaking community. We have believed her. She is entitled to belief if only because if she were not sincere, she would be suicidally mad. Nothing under the sun is more absolutely certain than that if Japan were to attack any English-speaking people whatever she would have to meet the combined force of the whole English-speaking race. If that has not been sufficiently understood by the Dominions and the United States, let it be made clear once for all. The declaration cannot be too frank. At the same time Japan, like other nations, is entitled to her rights in Asia just as are the English-speaking communities to their elsewhere, and in any more anti-Japanese mania we can take no part.

"In the question of the Pacific all the English-speaking communities should guarantee each other from aggression and equally they should guarantee Japan against aggression. That is the only policy of a fair and just peace without another sinister and fatal competition in armaments. It would be in Japan's best interests to check her huge building program and seek agreement instead.

"The answer to the dominions on the more general question of the future of British sea power is equally plain and unmistakable. That sea power is the sole basis of the empire, without it there could be no empire, but only measureless anarchy in Europe, Asia and Africa, which the dissolution of the present British system would bring about. Nothing but an Anglo-American war could insure the sort of lurid Japanese triumph in the Pacific which is a nightmare to mere anti-Japanese fanatics. As long as Great Britain and the United States hold reasonably together there will not be a faintest shadow of chance for any yellow peril to mature. Any one on either side of the Atlantic or any side of the Pacific who does not see that must be a political lunatic.

Navies as a Joint Affair.

"We have built in the past two to one against every European danger. Because we absolutely refuse to regard the United States as an irrational enemy working for mere aggression without a shadow of sane cause, we limit our aims to naval equality with America. Let it be a joint affair with security for both and aggressive dominations for neither. More we do not seek, less we cannot do with. It is the minimum, that minimum degree of sea power essential to our peaceful freedom, but also the additional guarantee for the same peaceful freedom of the whole English-speaking race, the United States must be provided at any cost, this above and before all other purposes whatever, since without the minimum we cannot exist with a reasonable assurance of decency and hope.

"This is the spirit, sound and temperate and staunch, sweeping away sick misgivings, whether at home or overseas, which will maintain the empire and bring about in the end the best relations of mutual respect and commonsense understanding between Britain and America. Because we believe that Mr. Churchill, as half-American, is singularly fitted to interpret with courage and good-will that spirit to the United States while upholding it at home with the steady and undaunted heart of a great Englishman, we wish him well in his approaching great chance as Minister for the Empire."

TEN DIE IN FIRE IN HOBOKEN HOTEL

...dors of the women rescued from the burning hotel.

Guests in the dining room of Gonzalez's Hotel at 90 River Street, which just back the rear of the Palace-Colonial, heard the cries of their imperiled neighbors and ran to the roof of the burning building, rescuing several guests from the tops of fire escapes in front and rear.

It was reported that four soldiers attached to the Port of Embarkation base leaned over the ledges of the roof, and with civilians sitting on their legs, drew six men and three women to safety.

All of those rescued in this manner were carried to the dining room of Gonzalez's Hotel, where they were attended by Gonzalez and his wife. A few were burned about the hands and face and all were faint from the smoke.

Physicians from near-by residences were called in after the fire was subdued and the injured were put to bed in Gonzalez's Hotel.

The police reported that clothing and jewelry of the guests of the Palace-Colonial Hotel valued at between $25,000 and $50,000 were lost. The interior of the hotel from the second floor to the roof was destroyed.

TRANSIT MEASURES

Legislators Expect Up-State Support to Defeat New York City Foes.

AWAIT TWO MORE MESSAGES

Part Development Plan Here and Direct Primary Program Still to Be Outlined.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 29.—Bills to carry out the recommendations embodied in Governor Miller's special message to the Legislature on the traction situation in New York City are already in course of preparation at the Capitol.

Of two measures which are now being drafted, one is a supplement to the Rapid Transit act, which paved the way for the building of the first subway in New York City. The other provides for amendments to the Public Service Commissions act and will deal with the proposed reorganization of the State agencies now engaged in the supervision of rapid transit construction and the regulation of public utility operations in New York City, as well as with changes in the regulatory power of the Public Service Commission, which were suggested in the special message.

It was said today that the proposed legislation is giving the bill drafters more trouble than any measure that has been prepared in recent years and that at least ten days, probably more, would be required to get the bills ready for introduction. They will be presented in the upper house by Senator John Knight of Wyoming, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Service, and in the lower house probably by Assemblyman Frank L. Seaker of St. Lawrence, head of the Assembly Committee on Railroads.

Developments during the next two or three weeks should determine to what extent the Governor's plan will encounter opposition in the lawmaking body. That an onslaught will be made on it by the Democratic members is certain, and it appears certain, also, that the influence of every outside agency that can be roused into action by the present New York City administration and its friends will be brought to bear on New York City lawmakers, irrespective of party affiliation, in an effort to effect a combination in the Legislature to fight the Governor's traction and public service program. But the combined effort of all the Democratic legislators, reinforced by the Republicans representing New York City districts, would still leave a margin large enough to insure victory, provided the up-State Republicans in the Senate and Assembly give their solid backing to the plan.

Despite the fact that the legislative leaders of the Governor's own party believe that the Republican organization in New York City will be compelled, as a matter of political precaution, to take a firm stand in support of the Governor, and that such an attitude would be reflected in the attitude of the Republican legislators from New York City who, up to the present time, either have failed to take a stand or voiced opposition, they are preparing for a stiff battle when the bills are presented in the Legislature.

Message on Port Development.

Another topic of vital interest to the City of New York which the Governor expects to deal with in a special message to the Legislature is port development. He has already indicated that, with the plan proposed last year wrecked as a result of the obstinate obstructive policy of the present City Administration, he believes the time has come for the State to step in with its police powers and rescue that project from the destructive propensities of Mayor Hylan and like-minded members of the Board of Estimate.

It is not known whether Governor Miller's next communication to the Legislature will deal with this subject or with the repeal or modification of the Direct Primary law, another topic which, according to every indication, will prove controversial. The Governor, it is felt, may recommend the outright repeal of the present statute and the substitution of nomination by convention for all elective offices. Many of the Republican leaders, however, feel that it would be politically inexpedient to go that far and in the end their view may prevail and the changes be confined to the nomination of elective State officials and Judges, leaving candidates for the United States Senate, the House of Representatives, State Senate, Assembly and local offices to be nominated as at present by vote at the primaries.

That the next State conventions will be official conventions may be taken for granted. There is a possibility that provision may be made for an appeal from a State convention to a primary where the convention nominees fail to meet with the approval of groups within the party substantial enough in numbers to justify a measuring of strength between their candidates and the convention candidates through the referendum to the enrolled party voters which the subsequent primary would afford.

Up-State sentiment of the sort that will count most with the lawmakers is practically solid for the repeal of the Direct Primary law. The Democrats will oppose a repeal bill solidly, but they are not numerous enough to make themselves seriously felt in the present Legislature. In past years when efforts have been made to modify the Direct Primary law opposition has been encountered from New York City Republicans as well. There is less prospect of united opposition on their part this year, for, with a municipal election coming, a city convention would be a much more reliable agency than would direct primaries to bring about a solidification of all elements opposed to Tammany Hall behind one candidate.

Miller Undisturbed by Opposition.

The legislative leaders are looking forward to many busy and anxious weeks after the Governor's program is before the Legislature in its entirety. They realize that it is more ambitious than any mapped out by a recent Governor. Some even suggest that the Governor has bitten off a bigger mouthful than he can swallow. They express apprehension that the widely varied opposition that he has invited through his passion for truth—even when unpleasant—reflected in his public utterances and the stand he has taken in his State papers, heedless of how his attitude will appeal to the multitude on questions of public moment, may find some rallying point and be brought to bear disastrously through its united force before the session is over.

The Governor seems little disturbed over the opposition that has materialized so far. He depends on the working out of the policies he has recommended for their justification. The main strength of his position lies in the fact that he is not looking for future political favors. If he did, naturally, he might trim. The fact is that Governor Miller was not in any sense a candidate for the Governorship at the time of the Saratoga convention, and that it was only after a great deal of non-political as well as political persuasion had been brought to bear upon him that he was persuaded to give two years of his busy life to the service of the State. The Governor's friends believe that when people realize that he has no political ambitions beyond recognition, when his term is ended, of a job well and conscientiously done, he will receive the same measure of public support that Governor Hughes received when he occupied the Governor's chair.

MILLER ROUTING COLD.

Governor Expects to Return to His Desk Early This Week.

ALBANY, Jan. 29.—Improvement in the condition of Governor Miller, who is confined to the Executive Mansion by a bronchial cold, was reported today.

It was expected that the Governor would be at his desk in the Capitol early next week.

Awards Pensions to Widows and Children of Six Shot as Deserters.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—In the Supreme Court of France today six men who were shot for cowardice in 1914 were declared innocent. To their wives the court ordered that the State should pay a life pension of 2,000 francs a year each and to each of their children a pension of 1,000 francs until they come of age. The judgment cannot give the men back to their families, but their names are freed from stain.

As told yesterday, the story of how the men came to be executed belongs to the early period of the war, when discipline was ultra stringent. Without warning the company in which the men were was attacked and some one cried, "Clear out, quick!" A panic ensued and most of the men bolted for the support trench. The six who were executed stood for a time and then got lost. When order was re-established they were found behind the lines. A drum-head court-martial was ordered and, though witnesses were called who stated that the Lieutenant in charge gave the order to retire, the Lieutenant denied it. He, however, protested against the execution and later wrote the brother of one of the men, declaring injustice had been done. The evidence taken later turned against him. A fellow-officer stated that he was one of the first to rush into the support trench, and the court found that the evidence was that the order to retire had been given.

In view of that fact, the men could not be found guilty of desertion in the face of the enemy, and the court therefore had no other course than to rehabilitate their memory.

PASTOR'S GIRL OF 5 DROWNS IN BRONX

Brother, 6, Also Breaks Through Ice Trying to Save Her—Father Gets Body.

Eleanor Agnew, five-year-old daughter of the Rev. David S. Agnew, pastor of St. George's Episcopal Church, at 219th Street and Willett Avenue, the Bronx, was drowned yesterday, when she broke through the ice in the Bronx River while playing with other children. Her brother Dayid, 6, jumped in and tried to rescue her and was only saved from a similar fate by two other boys.

The Agnew home is at 661 East 219th Street, about 200 feet from the river. The children with their playmates went down yesterday afternoon to slide on the ice, and Eleanor was about 20 feet from the shore when the ice gave way. The current caught her and pulled her under, carrying her body down stream some distance from the hole.

David heard her cry, saw her disappear and ran out on the ice to help her. When he got near the edge of the hole the ice broke again and let him into the water. Two boys, Alfred Kalnin of 2,701 Olinville Avenue and John Zeh of 650 East 219th Street, felt their way out on the ice and pulled David ashore.

Mr. Agnew had heard the cries of the children and ran crashing through the ice until he had forced himself near where his little girl could be seen under the ice. The water was up to his shoulders as he smashed through the last few feet and lifted her in his arms.

He ran with her to the home of Dr. George Crump of 672 East 219th Street, and in a few minutes Dr. Arthur Rose of Fordham Hospital arrived with a pulmotor. He worked over the little girl for an hour before he gave up the attempt to revive her.

FIRE RUINS CANFIELD MAHOGANY ROOM

Place That Cost Gambler $100,000 to Fit Up Destroyed by Early Morning Blaze.

Fire early yesterday did $50,000 damage to the four-story brown stone building at 5 East Forty-fourth Street, next door to Delmonico's, where for years Richard Canfield ran his famous gambling house. The flames destroyed the renowned mahogany room, which, according to report, cost Canfield more than $100,000. The building is being renovated for commercial purposes.

The fire was discovered at 4:45 o'clock by policemen. The way of the firemen into the house was blocked by the bronze and mahogany doors which, some years ago, successfully barred the entry of William Travers Jerome, then District Attorney, and his raiders. The firemen, however, rammed the doors from their hinges and ran their hose up the white marble stairs.

They found the flames blazing in the rooms being made over for occupancy by Charles E. Brickley & Co., stock brokers now located in Delmonico's. Brickley, the former Harvard football star, took lease of the former Canfield premises two weeks ago, and picked to be his private office the gambler's old mahogany room. This room was paneled in Spanish mahogany, of rare, rich color, with here and there mother-of-pearl inlay. The fire ate its way up to the two upper stories, in process of renovation for studio apartments, and also entered the house next door, 7 East Forty-fourth Street, where it did $10,000 damage to a tailoring firm.

Canfield's establishment in Forty-fourth Street contained his collection of Whistlers, the second greatest in America, and valued at $250,000. The "clientele" at the Forty-fourth Street house fitted Canfield's description of it as "aristocratic." Winnings and losses of $100,000 were common in those nights of roulette, faro and other games.

VIENNA, Jan. 29 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The Rumanian Government has declared the right bank of the Dniester to be in a state of siege and has prohibited all traffic in that region, according to a Bucharest dispatch received here today. (Russian Bolshevist troops are encamped on the left bank of the river).

FROM A POLICEMAN

Victim Dragged Into Bowery Hallway and Robbed—Two Captured After Chase.

INTRUDER CAUGHT IN STORE

Searched by Police, His Pockets Are Found Stuffed With Candy—Stolen Silks Recovered.

Within 200 feet of a policeman two hold-up men early yesterday dragged Otto Meyers of 26 Communipaw Avenue, Jersey City, into the hallway of a lodging house on the Bowery, near Bayard Street, and robbed him of $50 and his watch.

Policeman Abt of the Elizabeth Street Station heard Meyers's cries and saw the robbers running toward the elevated station at Chatham Square, where, after a brief struggle, he arrested Joseph Franco, 21, and John Garcio, 28, Porto Ricans, who said they lived in a Bowery lodging house. When he searched them at the Elizabeth Street Station the policeman said he found Meyers's watch on Franco.

Magistrate Marah, in the Yorkville Court, held Michael Brannigan, 28, of 409 East Seventy-fourth Street, in $5,000 bail for the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of burglary made by Policeman Krahn of the East Sixty-Seventh Street Station.

The policeman testified that Joseph Poller, proprietor of a stationery store at 118 Second Avenue, was awakened in his apartment above the store by heavy footsteps below. He crept downstairs, he said, and saw Brannigan rifling the drawer behind the counter.

Poller summoned the policeman, who entered the store with his pistol in his hand. He said he saw Brannigan crouching behind a pile of boxes.

"Put that gun away, or you'll hurt yourself," Krahn testified the intruder advised, advancing toward him with an iron bar. Krahn felled the man with his night stick. When Brannigan was taken to the station, the policeman said, he found his pockets stuffed with candy and cigars taken from showcases in Poller's store.

Detectives Griffiths and Sheedy arrested David Halpern, 38, of 76 Seventh Street, after they found $5,000 worth of silk in Halpern's factory at 42 East Ninth Street, which, they alleged, was part of $20,000 worth of silk stolen from a wagon in front of 36 East Nineteenth Street on Jan. 25. Halpern was charged with criminally receiving stolen goods. He denied the charge. He said a stranger placed the silk in his factory on Friday while he was absent.

Nicholas Iorio and Milton Smith were held in $5,000 bail each when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock on a charge of having in their possession 1,500 watches, valued at $15,000, which were stolen from the Brooklyn Navy Yard on Aug. 3 last.

GERMAN OFFERED US NEW SUBMARINE PLANS

Inventor Says He Received No Reply and That Now Britain and Japan Seek World Rights.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—The German inventor who built the first fighting submarines during the war and whose pupils built the commercial submarine Deutschland, which reached America, told me today that he offered the American Government a set of plans on the newest type of submersibles. The offer was made to Rear Admiral Taylor in Washington through the American Mission in Berlin.

Receiving no reply from Rear Admiral Taylor the German offered the submarine to the British Government. The British responded immediately. In the correspondence which followed one of the major points under discussion was the question of world's rights, which the British ship building firm wanted.

Meanwhile Japanese interests to whom no offer was made somehow learned of the invention and approached the inventor. No offer has yet been accepted, and there is still a chance for the American Navy to obtain the rights. The British offer expires in forty days.

The plans are for submarines carrying 15-centimetre guns in the turrets and a deck torpedo firing apparatus which enables the submarine to fire without manoeuvring into position. The inventor claims to have solved the vexing problem of armament, giving the craft protection against depth charges, and direct hits from small guns such as are carried on merchantmen. He claims the submarine will not overturn, which has been the fate of all armored models heretofore.

The inventor lived in America for some years, and asserts that his friendship for the United States prompted his offering the United States the first option.

TO INCREASE MOTOR OUTPUT

Many Detroit Factories to Resume Production Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—Announcements today by several of Detroit's largest automobile and parts manufacturers indicated that Monday would mark a resumption in part of production.

As already stated the Ford Motor Highland Park plant will reopen on that day. The Dodge Manufacturing Company will resume activities at the same time with 1,250 men, and the Kelsey Wheel Company will resume with 25 per cent. of normal production. Employment will be furnished for 30,000 men who have been idle for from six weeks to two months.

The Burroughs Adding Machine Company is re-employing 4,400 out of a former total of 6,500; the working forces of the Hudson Motor Car Company, Standard Motors Truck Company, Cadillac Motor Car Company and Fisher Body Company will reach a 50 per cent. basis. In some plants, including the Cadillac, operations will be begun on a three-day-a-week schedule.

Officials of the Columbia Motor Company stated that if orders continued to increase, production and employment would rise to 35 or 40 per cent. of normal the first week of February. Thirty-five per cent. of the Hupp Motor Company's employes are at work, as are approximately 35 per cent. of those of the Liberty Motor Company.

LEGISLATORS SHY ON TRACTION ISSUE

publican leader, would have great difficulty if he should seek to line up the Republican Senators and Assemblymen from Kings County in support of the Governor's program. Mr. Livingston said on Friday that he saw no reason at present why he should not use his at present why he should not use his offices to persuade Brooklyn legislators to support the Governor's plan. Mr. Livingston said that the question was not primarily one of fare, but of adequate service at not more than an adequate price.

Six of the eight State Senators from Brooklyn are Republicans. Senator Alva W. Burlingame Jr. has already expressed himself as opposed to a higher fare. Three of his colleagues, Senators Maxwell S. Harris, Abraham L. Katlin and William T. Simpson, said yesterday that they did not favor the Governor's plan.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, issued a call yesterday for a meeting of the Kings County Democratic Executive Committee on Monday to consider the traction situation. Senator Simpson, when informed of this call, said there probably would be a Republican meeting also.

The Governing Board of the City Parliament of the Community Councils will begin a campaign against the Governor's proposal to transfer control over the local traction situation from the Board of Estimate to a State commission with a meeting Tuesday night in the Aldermanic Chamber at City Hall. F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen; Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan, and Alderman Edward J. Neary of Queens will speak.

The Council is planning meetings throughout the city and a parade of protest in which other civic organizations will be asked to join.

Henry W. Taft announced yesterday that a meeting to discuss the transit problem would be held at the Town Hall 113 West Forty-third Street, Wednesday evening. Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, and Oliver C. Semple will speak in support of Governor Miller's program. Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan, and another speaker, yet to be selected, will speak in opposition. The announcement of the meeting stated that it would be "open to all who ride in the subway, on the elevated trains or in surface cars."

Travis H. Whitney, former Public Service Commissioner, will speak on the traction situation at a meeting of the Seventh Assembly District Republican Club tomorrow night. A general discussion will follow.

The report that Governor Miller had Herbert Hoover in mind for Chairman of the proposed commission to solve New York City's transit problems was current last night. Mr. Hoover was out of the city, but friends said that they doubted the truth of the report or that Mr. Hoover was in a position to accept the post if it should be offered him.

Youths Reveal Stolen Articles on Shelf in Manhole, According to Detectives.

In the arrest of two boys yesterday afternoon the police believe they have cleared up a series of robberies of fashionable homes in the Kew Gardens district in Queens. Warren Pitt, 13 years old, of 11,023 Jamaica Avenue and Edward Carroll, 14, of 4,892 Garden Street, both of Richmond Hill, were arrested by Detectives Krumel of the Richmond Hill precinct. The lads were taken into custody on suspicion of breaking into the tool house of John Claussen, a carpenter on Myrtle Avenue, Richmond Hill. The police had believed the Kew Gardens robberies were the work of professional burglars, and merely as a joke they asked the lads if they knew anything about these crimes.

"Sure, we did all those jobs," one of the boys told the police, they say, "and we will show you where we hid the stuff."

The lads then took the detectives to the Richmond Hill Library, on Hillside Avenue, the police say, and, lifting up a manhole cover in front of the building, showed a shelf arrangement about two feet down on which was resting some of the property stolen from Kew Gardens homes. Included in the loot, the police say, were a mandolin and a typewriter taken from the home of Frank Hopkins-Hadley, 9 Mowbray Place. Other homes visited were those of William Vitt, 8,409 120th Street, where a diamond ring, two suits of clothes and a traveling bag were taken; Mrs. Margaret Croker, 12,318 Eighty-fifth Avenue, where a rug and $2 in cash were taken, and Joseph Toures, 226 Abingdon Road, where the thieves were scared away without taking any loot. The police also arrested Joseph Hosreiter, 4,710 Jamaica Avenue, Richmond Hill, a second-hand dealer, who is accused of buying some of the stolen property.

The boys will be arraigned in the Children's Court, Jamaica, on Tuesday, and Hosreiter tomorrow.

FIRE TRUCK RUNS WILD.

Man on Rear Guides Vehicle Till Chauffeur Boards and Stops It.

Delancey Street throngs, made up of peddlers and shoppers, were thrown into excitement yesterday afternoon when a driverless hook and ladder motor truck lumbered through the thoroughfare. On the tiller seat at the rear was Fireman Charles Scudlar of Hook and Ladder Company 18, coolly guiding the huge fire apparatus through the maze of traffic. At Orchard Street, Scudlar shouted to an automobile driver, who had cleared a path for him: "Say, speed up and hop on this runaway and stop the gas."

The chauffeur increased his speed, and, stopping his car after a run of half a block, jumped to the running board of the hook and ladder truck, cut off the gas and put on the brake. Had the truck gone another hundred feet it is probable many persons would have been injured.

Half an hour before Scudlar, with Fireman-Chauffeur Frank McGow of the same company, started with the machine from the Hook and Ladder Company 26, at 54 East 114th Street, to their company garage, at Delancey and Attorney Streets. As the truck was moving through Delancey Street the front wheels caught in a rut at Allen Street, and McGow was thrown to the pavement.

He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital suffering from contusions of the scalp and bruises of the body.

CONFRONT POLICE

Grand Jury Expected to Act Tomorrow on Further Evidence of Auto Grafting.

STATE INQUIRY IS FORECAST

Republicans Seek Means to Offset Hylan Power Gained by Miller Program on Traction.

Further indictments of members of the Police Automobile Squad on the charge of taking illegal fees for recovering automobiles probably will be found tomorrow when Charles S. Whitman resumes the presentation of evidence to the Grand Jury. It was reported that five more policemen would be indicted then, but Mr. Whitman said that this was an exaggeration.

A legislative inquiry will be necessary, according to Mr. Whitman, to throw light on the development of the system of demanding rewards and fees and "expense," for ordinary police duties.

"Grafting of this kind has been going on in the last year on a scale which surpasses anything in my previous experience," said Mr. Whitman. "The sums involved are much greater than those which a grafting policeman could hope for some years ago."

certificate also showed that the Rothman home at that time was at 329 West 138th Street. The detectives say the Rothmans recently moved from 91 Sheriff Street to their present address.

Several witnesses were taken to the East Fifth Street police station last night, among them a woman and a boy, whose name the detectives refused to disclose.

The detectives found two $500 bills on Mazura's body and $1,800 bound up in two packages sewn into the lining of his coat. There was nothing to indicate that the two bandits had made any attempt to search him. Hosakoch, according to the detectives, said the hold-up men did not try to get his money, but fled immediately after shooting Mazura and himself.

DRUGGIST IS MURDERED AND ROBBED OF $1,000

Describes Assailant in East Broadway Apartment Before Dying of Wound in Abdomen.

Israel Turk, 32 years old, a druggist, died at 3 o'clock yesterday morning of a pistol wound in the abdomen, received under mysterious circumstances an hour before in his home on the second floor of the apartment house at 271 East Broadway. Detectives under Captain George Busby of the Madison Street station worked on theories of robbery and revenge in connection with the shooting, but have obtained no clue to the slayer.

Turk, who kept a store at 259 East Broadway, lived in the apartment with his wife, Clara, and their children, Jean, 5 years old; Hilda, 3 years old, and Celia, 15 months old. Although neighbors heard the shooting, Mrs. Turk and her niece, Adele Turk, 13 years old, who were asleep in the apartment, declared they did not hear the two shots believed to have been fired at Turk.

That the shooting may have been the work of a burglar was evidenced by the fact that when Mrs. Turk was aroused by the cries of her husband, she found him standing in the kitchen, clad in his undergarments, and clutching his trousers, which a day before, Mrs. Turk said, contained $1,000 in bills. This money was missing.

While the physician was questioning the wounded man, Policeman O'Brien of the Madison Street station appeared and asked, "Why did he shoot you?"

"Oh, go away; don't bother me," he replied, the policeman later told Captain Busby.

The druggist's empty wallet was found on the floor of the bathroom, and it was believed the shooting took palce when Turk confronted the intruder in the room. Neighbors told detectives that following the shooting they heard footsteps of a man in the hallway on the ground floor of the tenement at 257 Henry Street in the rear of the East Broadway apartment house. The detectives believe that the slayer fled through the bathroom window to the fire escape and made his way to the yard by means of the ladder.

JAPANESE COMPACT

Formally Denounces Proposed Arrangement as Insuring Increased Immigration.

SENATOR ERRS, COLBY SAYS

Reminds Him That His Own Committee Must Pass on the Treaty He Objects To.

NEW LIGHT ON AGREEMENT

Treaty Amendment Involves Japan's Assent to Alien Land Law Applicable to All Foreigners.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, stern upholder of California's anti-Japanese laws, gave out a statement today in which he expressed strong dissatisfaction with the gentlemen's agreement and treaty revision arranged between the American and Japanese Governments for an adjustment of the alien land ownership and immigration questions and other matters that have caused friction between the two nations. Tonight Bainbridge Colby, the Secretary of State, made a sharp rejoinder to Senator Johnson, who was told in effect that he did not know what he was talking about.

Mr. Colby told Mr. Johnson that the latter had an erroneous idea of what had been taking place in the negotiations of the new agreement and treaty revision. He expressed surprise over the "defensive posture" of the California Senator, for the reason, according to Mr. Colby, that Mr. Johnson had been informed that the dangers he described in his statement did not present themselves.

Realizing that Mr. Johnson has a deep interest in the negotiations, the State Department has informed him of certain aspects of their progress. It has also given assurances to him and his Democratic colleague, Senator Phelan, that before either the agreement or the treaty revision is formally agreed to by this Government they will be submitted to the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, of which Mr. Johnson is a member. The State Department feels that it has shown every consideration for the California Senator and the Senate itself, and, while Secretary Colby's statement tonight is couched in very polite terms, it is apparent that he is resentful of the attitude of Mr. Johnson.

Text of Johnson's Statement.

The statement of Senator Johnson reads as follows:

"From authoritative sources it is stated that the agreement between Ambassadors Shidehara and Morris embraces (1) an exchange of diplomatic notes defining passport regulations, &c., which would 'tighten up' the present gentlemen's agreement relating to exclusion of Japanese from this country, and (2) a treaty defining the rights of the nationals of each country, which will in effect abrogate and destroy the alien land laws of the State of California. Stripped of diplomatic camouflage, this means that our representative and Japan's have agreed upon the repeal of the land laws passed by the State of California and prohibit the passage of those contemplated by many other Western States. Japan has ever insisted upon the control of her own people, and, therefore, will not agree to an exclusion treaty, but will enter into a so-called gentlemen's agreement which does not exclude. The new gentlemen's agreement, notwithstanding its additional phases, can be just as loosely administered as the present one, and, just as in the case of the present gentlemen's agreement, it will be honored more in the breach than in the observance. The result will be, under the suggested arrangement, if adopted, a continuance of Japanese immigration and increased Japanese population in the West.

"Upon the meagre facts now before us the situation appears to be this: Japan does not like an American law, and Japan protests that law. Resort is had not to American courts, but to American diplomats. The protest is deemed of sufficient gravity for American diplomats to agree to a treaty exactly as desired by Japan. This by a short cut, without participation by those most interested, repeals laws passed after due deliberation—laws admittedly within the jurisdiction of the State passing them, which cannot justly give offense, and upon a subject of paramount importance to the present well-being and future existence of the State. Of course, a situation of this sort is intolerable, and I think I voice the sentiments of California when I say that in every legitimate and legal fashion the consummation of such a plan will be resisted."

Colby's Reply to Johnson.

This was Secretary Colby's answer:

"My attention has been called this afternoon to a statement issued by Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, to the press, which proceeds upon a quite erroneous assumption as to the trend and purport of the conversations which have been going on for some weeks between Ambassador Morris and the Japanese Ambassador relative to the so-called California-Japanese situation. The Senator is not uninformed as to the course these conversations have taken, and I am therefore surprised that he should feel called upon to throw himself into defensive postures against dangers which he describes, but which, I am informed, he has been assured do not present themselves.

"The State Department is charged with the duty of pursuing these important discussions with sober regard to the facts, and this it has sought to do with a proper consideration for every interested point of view. I am not speaking in any spirit of criticism of Senator Johnson, with whom I have long had the most agreeable and friendly relations; but he must know, as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, that, even if the fear to which he gives expression that the State Department is moving too rapidly in the direction of a treaty, that a treaty can have no effect without its submission in due course to the Senate, and, under the latter's practice, its minute examination by the Senators' committee.

"It is evident to officials that Senator Johnson's course means that the agreement and the treaty amendment will have a hard sledding in the Senate, to which the treaty change, at least, must be submitted for ratification. Considerable disappointment was expressed over the critical temper of Mr. Johnson, in view of the assurance that no formal step would be taken to put either compact into effect until the Senate, through the Committee on Foreign Relations, had the opportunity of examining them and making suggestions to the State Department.

Extension of 'Picture Bride' Prohibition.

Additional facts as to the provisions of the two agreements are becoming known. For one thing, the Root-Takahira gentlemen's agreement, which was merely a promise of Japan that she would not give permission to Japanese coolies to come to continental territory of the United States, is to be put into a binding form, which, it is asserted, will pledge the Japanese Government to do what it has heretofore engaged to do only in an informal way. The new agreement will exclude "picture brides" and all relatives of Japanese in this country from entering either the United States proper or Hawaii, which the prior agreement did not.

So far as the anti-Japanese land law ment before the Senate can ratify the treaty revision. The United States found it necessary to make this concession to Japan, as it seemed to be clear that the acceptance of the treaty by the Japanese Government and people would have been impossible if the treaty had sought to confirm California's application of the alien land law to Asiatics exclusively. The treaty amendment would enable Japanese now holding land in California to retain possession of it, but hereafter no Japanese would be permitted to acquire land in that State or in any other State that had enacted legislation similar to that on the California statute books.

Administration officials and Senators take the position that oral statements were made by President Wilson on several occasions in the sittings of the Council of the Great Powers in Paris to the effect that the United States took exception to granting Japan a mandate over Yap, and that these statements were known to the Japanese representatives in Paris, and that to ignore them on technical grounds was not a procedure in accord with the good faith and fair dealing that should prevail between nations.

Japan to Insist on Racial Equality.

TOKIO, Jan. 28.—That Japan had not abandoned her racial equality proposal was made clear by Viscount Uchida, Minister of Foreign Affairs, who in answering inquiries in the Diet today, said it would be introduced in the Council of the League of Nations if a suitable opportunity presented itself; otherwise it would be withheld. The matter, he said, was most important and must be presented at the right moment. At all events, the Minister declared, Japan had no intention of ceasing her efforts, even if years were required. He was confident of final victory, he said.

Ryutaro Nagai, a youthful representative, who won considerable political fame in the Diet last year, attacked the Foreign Office for neglecting to secure the insertion of a general land ownership clause when the Japanese-American treaty was negotiated, and thus prevent anti-Japanese legislation.

Viscount Uchida explained that the omission was inevitable. Such a provision would require reciprocity, he said, and Japan did not permit foreigners to own land.

LAWRENCE ART SALE YIELDS $451,057

Fragment of a Famous Gothic Tapestry, 'Story of Salvation,' Brings $9,000 as Sale Ends.

Interest in Gothic and other ancient art was so great yesterday, following the record-breaking sales of the Lawrence collection of the day before, at the American Art Galleries, that crowds flocked to see the concluding numbers sold and found it impossible to get in. Even big purchasers, anxious to buy, were unable to reach the salesrooms. Excellent prices prevailed throughout the afternoon.

A French Gothic oak Court cupboard of the fifteenth century, No. 560, brought the first of the higher prices, going to W. R. Hearst for $3,000. An interesting feature of this was a carving in high relief between the carved and paneled doors of the figure of the Virgin holding the Child Christ. To the same buyer went another French Court cupboard, No. 562, of the same period, for $3,500, and a fine old French oak chest of the sixteenth century, No. 565, for $2,000.

No. 569, a Gothic tapestry fragment with twelve portraits, sold to Seaman, agent, for $3,000, and No. 570, a Gothic-Renaissance transition tapestry, went to F. J. Armstrong for $2,200. No. 571, a late Gothic tapestry fragment from the "Banquet and Supper" set, woven at Tournai, sold to Seaman, agent, for $4,300, and Nos. 572, 573, 574, 575, 577 and 579 were all purchased by French & Co.

These were all tapestries and brought respectively $6,000 for a Swiss Gothic, $9,000 for a long narrow tapestry strip, late Gothic mille-fleur with animals; $3,200 for two early mille-fleur tapestries, one with a lion and the other with a leopard for the central feature; $3,500 for an Enghien large leaf verdure tapestry, sixteenth century; $7,600 for a late Flemish Gothic, a scene from the life of Christ, and $7,100 for a large Gothic shepherd and hunting tapestry.

Very interesting was a fragment of a late Gothic tapestry, four feet five inches high by ten feet nine, No. 578, which went to Seaman, agent, for $9,000. This was the upper left corner of one of the famous "Story of Salvation" tapestries, of which Henry VIII had a set, one of which is still in Hampton Court, and the Louvre acquired a set several years ago.

A Flemish Renaissance tapestry, No. 581, faded, but with the original wide rich compartment borders, the central figure of the tapestry showing a bearded King at the head of a triumphal procession, was bought by F. Colby for $2,600.

The returns of the day were $102,185, making a grand total for the 581 numbers of the sale of $451,057.

SAYS NO 'OLIGARCHY' WILL RUN HARDING

Willis, His Successor in Senate, Declares No Faction or Clique Will Control Him.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 29.—Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio, speaking at the Tippecanoe Club's McKinley Day dinner tonight, declared that President-elect Harding would make his decisions independent of the "Senatorial oligarchy."

Senator Willis, who succeeded Harding as Senator, said that the incoming President intended to be his own sponsor in the President's chair, and that the "bogey of the Senate oligarchy was the non-existent figment of a fevered political brain." He went on:

"Warren G. Harding will be President himself. I assure you of that. No individual or clique or faction will control him. His countrymen need not fear that he will be overpowered by that misty, evanescent thing, the so-called 'Senatorial oligarchy.'

"As befits the Chief Executive of this great republic, never intended to be dominated by a one-man power, Warren G. Harding will hear evidence, he will consult, he will welcome helpful information from every source, whether from the blacksmith or the banker. But, having heard all and considered all, the decision will be his."

Referring to American business conditions, Senator Willis said:

"We shall not be upon a sound basis until we rewrite a tariff law upon the principles of protection. The protective tariff ideas of William McKinley, that brought prosperity to the country in the late 90's, if sanely applied, will prevent industrial disaster in the months ahead."

BISHOP IN TRINITY TODAY.

Visiting Clergyman to Preach, but Dr. Manning May Address Congregation.

Dr. William T. Manning, Bishop-elect of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, will make his first public appearance this morning since his election in the pulpit of Trinity Church. He will not preach, as arrangements were made some time ago for Dr. Cyril Bickerstaeh of Mirfield, England, to deliver the sermon. But it was said that he "may say a few words" about his elevation. Dr. Manning will remain rector of Trinity until his consecration, which, it is expected, will take place shortly after Easter.

Congratulations continue to come. One telegram from the Most Rev. Alexander, Archbishop of North America and the Aleutian Islands for the Russian Orthodox Church, said special prayers would be offered for him today. Both of the regiments of which Dr. Manning was Chaplain at Camp Upton have sent messages.

FREED OF CHARGES

Court Orders the Indictment Dropped Because It Was Not Shown He Marked Cards.

SWANN WILL REOPEN CASE

Norma Talmadge Said to Have Exposed Man Many Credited With "Clairvoyant" Power.

Louis Krohnberg, famous as "Last Card Louie," indicted for cheating at cards, was relieved of the indictment yesterday by Judge John F. McIntyre in General Sessions, who held that it had not been shown to the Grand Jury that Krohnberg supplied the marked cards or that he knew that they were marked.

Judge McIntyre authorized resubmission of the case to the Grand Jury. There are a large number of complaints and a mass of evidence against Krohnberg. It was said at the District Attorney's office that the charges would be resubmitted.

Krohnberg became known as "Last Card Louie" because of an almost clairvoyant power of identifying the face-down card in stud poker. This was not a term of reproach, but one of admiration.

The scandal which chagrined the poker world developed last January. Norma Talmadge, screen star, was said to have caused the sensation. She was the hostess on New Year's night a year ago at the home of her husband, Joseph M. Schenck, a film producer, and became suspicious when she saw Krohnberg take a small package from his overcoat. It was alleged afterward that Krohnberg slipped a marked deck of cards into the game and made large winnings. The alleged cheat was unmasked and "Last Card Louie," protesting his innocence, hustled into the street.

The cards were said to have been marked by various shadings of the fleur-de-lis design at each of the four corners. In some of the many hearings in the case the cards have been read as easily by the backs as the faces. Assistant District Attorney Thomas A. McGrath surprised the defense by telling off the fifty-two cards, glancing at the backs.

"Last Card Louie" was supposed to be a wealthy shirtwaist manufacturer, but he appeared somewhat lacking in information about his business when questioned in the Supreme Court.

Among the men who testified in the John Doe proceedings were Hyman Karp, an auctioneer of 782 West End Avenue, who said that he had seen Krohnberg win $22,000 at one sitting by what his victims regarded as highly developed intuition; Henry Silberfield, a diamond merchant of 780 West End Avenue, who used to think that there was something supernatural about his friend "Louie"; and John M. Mack of 270 Riverside Drive, who invented the respectful title of "Last Card Louie."

Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, recently started suit for five times the amount which Krohnberg won or lost in poker games, due to a statute which provides that a gambler shall forfeit to charity a multiplied amount of that which he is proved to have won or lost at gambling. Commissioner Coler sued for $331,500.

COLBY WITH PRESIDENT FOR LONG CONFERENCE

Statement From White House on European Situation Would Not Surprise Diplomats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, had a long conference with President Wilson at the White House today, in which he told of his visit to Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay, and is supposed to have discussed pending international matters of primary importance. While no formal statement concerning the conference was forthcoming, there are a number of pressing questions pertaining to the State Department that are under discussion between the President and the Secretary of State, among them the Japanese land-ownership and immigration issues, the Mexican problem and the controversy with Great Britain over oil control in Mesopotamia and other mandate territory.

Mr. Colby's stay at the White House was prolonged for the reason that while he was there the daily moving picture exhibition was announced and Mr. Colby went with the President to the big East Room to see it.

The political and economic situation in Europe has been engaging President Wilson's close attention and it is known that he regards it as being pregnant with danger to the peace of Europe. It would not be surprising to diplomats here if the President should prepare a statement on that subject, either in the form of a note to the allied powers, or for the public.

CECIL MAY VISIT US.

Reported That He Is Likely to Make a Lecture Tour Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The Evening Standard understands that Lord Robert Cecil is likely to visit the United States in the near future on a short lecturing tour.

Lord Robert Cecil is one of the most conspicuous British statesmen, just now a thorn in the side of the Lloyd George Coalition Government. He has the reputation of having written the covenant of the League of Nations with President Wilson, and, what is more authentic, at the League convention in November and December, of having drawn the teeth from Article X, which had figured so largely in the Republican objections to the League in the Presidential campaign last Autumn. At the convention he headed the delegation representing the Union of South Africa. The British Prime Minister declining to appoint him a member of the British delegation, Premier Smuts had taken advantage of the opportunity.

Lord Robert, the third son of the late Lord Salisbury, was born in 1864. He was educated for the law, and became a Bencher of the Inner Temple. When the great war began he went to the front, although in what capacity his biographers do not state. From 1915 till 1918 he was Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and then Joint Under Secretary at the Foreign Office until after the signing of the Versailles Treaty. From 1916 until 1918 he was also Minister of Blockade, which brought him into close relations with the Washington State Department on account of the British application of the rules of blockade and the right of search.

FALL KILLS AMERICAN GIRL

Telephone Operator With Peace Mission Dies In Paris.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Miss Darnaby Harlan, aged 25, of Versailles, Ky., who came to France with President Wilson's peace mission in 1918 as a telephone operator, died in the Latin Quarter as a result of a fall from a balcony during an attack of dizziness.

At the close of the Peace Conference Miss Henton obtained a position as a telephone operator at the American Embassy. She resigned last November to study at the Sorbonne.

Friends say that Miss Henton had suffered from nervous and dizzy spells as a result of overstudy.

$4,500,000 TO HOOVER

Seven Orders Consent to Use of War Fund for Europe—Ask More Aid for Austria.

The Knights of Columbus announced yesterday that the order had given its consent to the suggestion that the European Relief Council take over the remainder of the United War Fund, amounting to about $4,500,000, and that it had assurances the six other organizations participating in the drive during the war also would favor the proposal. The proposal now awaits the approval of President Wilson.

In making the announcement James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the order, said he had assurances from Herbert Hoover, Chairman of the Relief Council, that part of the $33,000,000 fund of the council would be spend in relief work in Ireland. Mr. Flaherty's statement follows:

"The Knights of Columbus, in leading the movement to give the United War Fund balance to the Hoover Relief Council, of, which the Knights are a component part, realize that there is need for relief work at home, with unemployment rife, but there is a vast degree of difference between the needs at home and those abroad, where millions of children actually face starvation.

"We have been assured by Mr. Hoover that starving children in Ireland will be cared for by his council, and we urge our members everywhere to support the newly formed American Committee for Irish Relief, so that maximum succor may be rendered the suffering of Ireland."

Mr. Hoover issued yesterday an urgent call for 100,000 additional rations for Austrian children. He made public this cablegram from a dietician sent to survey Austrian needs:

"I find the situation in Austria extremely deplorable. There is a great shortage of all kinds of food supplies and the prices are such as to render the purchase of what small quantities exist almost impossible to Austrians. The children, without whose development to healthy manhood the nation cannot survive, are hit the hardest by these conditions. It is extremely urgent that the American Relief Administration shall increase their feeding by 100,000 rations to meet these desperate conditions and enable us to feel that we are covering the ground. This is one of America's responsibilities to the world, and we must meet it."

Special morning matinees for children were held in moving picture theatres throughout the city yesterday for the benefit of the European Relief Council fund. It is estimated that the moving picture industry of the country has made up its quota of $2,500,000 for the fund.

DEMONSTRATES POWER OF 'CHEMICAL EYE'

Dr. Wood Amazes Baltimore Scientists With His Ultra-Violet Rays Light.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 29.—Dr. Robert Wood of Johns Hopkins University amazed members of the Maryland section of the American Chemical Society last evening with a demonstration of the ultra-violet rays light which he perfected for use in the army and navy before the World War ended, and which he calls the "chemical eye."

When Dr. Wood darkened the room and turned on the invisible light its properties caused the eyes, teeth and faces of the audience to glow with phosphorescence, while a seeming fog filled the room. As soon, however, as the eyes were turned away from the spot where the invisible light was this illusion was dispelled. The phenomenon was explained by Dr. Wood as due to the fact that the pupils of the eyes were very phosphorescent and produced a certain amount of the light from within themselves.

Dr. Wood said he was in London during the war and called at the office of the service engaged in visaing passports. These passports, he said, were put to many tests to determine if they had been altered. One particularly suspicious paper was under investigation, but with the apparatus used nothing of an unusual nature was evident.

"Let me use this piece of ultra-violet glass in the lens," said Dr. Wood to the operator in charge, as he flashed a disk from his pocket. The glass was placed in front of the rays, and the entire paper immediately blossomed with blue writing.

WALSH STILL SILENT ON BETHLEHEM AUDIT

Statement by Grace Says Company's Books Always Have Been Open to Shipping Board.

Perley Morse & Co., accountants, whose audit for the United States Shipping Board of the accounts of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation revealed the existence of a voucher for $269,543, representing the "special expenses" of Charles M. Schwab, former Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, received no reply yesterday from Chairman Joseph Walsh of the Congressional Shipping Board Committee to the offer of a joint audit of the Bethlehem accounts to clear up any doubt about the voucher.

The only development in connection with the offer was an explanation on behalf of Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Company, that the company's books always had been open to accountants of the Shipping Board.

PADEREWSKI GIVES UP POST.

Resigns From Peace Office, but Will Keep League Office.

MORGES, Switzerland, Jan. 29.—Former Premier Paderewski of Poland announced today that he had resigned as a member of the Polish peace delegation, but declared the report of his resignation as Polish delegate to the League of Nations was incorrect. Paderewski said he wished to be relieved of part of his work because of his indifferent health. His coming trip to America, he said, would be of a private nature and purely for rest, and he expected to return to Switzerland in September to resume his functions as Polish representative to the League of Nations organization.

Speaking of reports that he might resume his public appearances on the concert stage, the famous pianist declared he would never play in concert again, although he had received many excellent offers from America. His American trip would be undertaken about the end of February, he said, and he would first visit California, where he has many friends.

Ford's Net Gain Totals 2,846.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — Henry Ford's net gain over Truman H. Newberry in the Senate recount of the 1918 Michigan election was reported today at 2,846, with 2,005 out of 2,220 precincts in Michigan, including up to the Twelfth Ward in Detroit, tabulated. Senator Newberry's plurality was 7,569.

Navy Officials Challenge Gen. Mitchell's Assertions Based on Bombing of Indiana.

NO LIVE BOMBS WERE USED

Official Report on the Tests Is Issued—Mitchell Has Caused Navy Protests Before.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The bombing experiments conducted recently against the old battleship Indiana demonstrated the "improbability of a modern battleship being either destroyed or completely put out of action," according to a report made public by the Navy Department today. The report, which was from Captain W. D. Leahy, director of gunery exercises, was apparently issued to counteract statements made yesterday before the House Appropriations Committee by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, director of training operations of the Army Air Service, to the effect that the airplane had made the navy virtually useless. General Mitchell used the Indiana experiment as an example to illustrate his contention.

Naval officers were much exercised over the testimony of General Mitchell. It was said in answer that the Indiana data were referred to the War Department as confidential and were not intended for such use as General Mitchell made of them.

No Live Bombs Dropped.

The Leahy report stated in regard to the Indiana that no effort was made to drop live bombs on the vessel, but that bombs of different design and weights were placed about the decks to determine the amount of damage that might be expected from an aerial bomb. Dummy bombs were dropped from air craft to determine the percentage of hits.

Secretary Daniels said today that he knew of no development of the World War or experiment since that would justify any conclusion that battleships were practically rendered useless by aircraft development. It was indicated that the naval Secretary might formally challenge Mitchell's utterances in a communication to Secretary Baker.

Mr. Daniels disclosed that navy officials were examining Mitchell's testimony with care. Press accounts indicated, he said, that the army man was attempting to qualify as a "naval expert."

"The Navy Department is not seriously considering Admiral Mitchell's suggestion that former transports be converted into airplane ships," he added.

Previous Protest on Mitchell.

Naval officers pointed out tonight that on previous occasions the Navy Department had made representations to Secretary Baker regarding statements of General Mitchell before Congressional committees. In December, 1919, Daniels wrote to Baker in reference to statements made by General Mitchell: "The impropriety of submitting as evidence to our legislators statements which are not correct, or which are incomplete, is self evident. When such tend to discredit another department of the Government than that to which the individual making them belongs, it would seem particularly true that such should not pass unnoticed."

After an earlier and similar protest in October, 1919, Baker wrote Daniels, it was said tonight, that "General Mitchell was not justified in the conclusion which he reached." The reference, it was explained, was to testimony of General Mitchell before the Military Affairs Committee of the Senate.

AGREE ON ALAMEDA FOR PACIFIC BASE

Advocates of New Site for Fleet Headquarters Win in Joint Subcommittee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—An agreement definitely recommending Alameda, Cal., as site for the new Pacific Naval Base and for location of other subsidiary West Coast naval bases was reached late tonight by a subcommittee of the Joint Congressional Committee considering Pacific bases. Controversy over locating the general fleet at Alameda was settled and the subcommittee completed its report for presentation to the full committee next Monday.

The subcommittee also confirmed previous recommendations for location of an aviation base at Sand Point, Wash., a submarine base at San Pedro, Cal., and destroyer and aviation bases at San Diego, Cal.

MORE PLANTS CUT WAGES.

New York, Ontario & Western Closes Repair Shops at Middletown.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 29.—More than one hundred men will be laid off Feb. 4 with the closing for an indefinite period of the repair shops of the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad in this city, it was announced today.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Jan 29.—The Woonsocket Rubber Company, footwear division of the United States Rubber Company, announced today a downward wage revision, effective Feb. 7. The percentage was not given. The Alice mill here and the Millville mill at Millville, Mass., employing together 2,500, are affected by the cut. The Millville mill at present is shut down, while the Alice plant is running on short time.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 29.—Reed & Price Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of screw machine products, announced today a wage reduction ranging from 10 to 20 per cent. to go into effect Monday. The change affects about 1,100 employes.

HOQUIAM, Wash., Jan. 29.—The Wage Scale Board for the lumber-mills in this district has reduced wages of common labor from $4 to $3.60 a day, it was announced today. The price of board in company camps was cut from $1.50 to $1.30 a day. The scale board abrogated a reduction of one-third in the wages of woodmen and substituted a 16 per cent. cut. The new scale will go in effect in February.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 29.—Notices were posted in the Louisville & Nashville Railroad shops here today announcing a reduction of 10 per cent. in the number of men employed in the mechanical department, effective Feb. 8. This would affect about 2,500 men. A retrenchment policy will also be followed in all other departments by the system, it was said, at headquarters here. The railroad employs about 53,000 persons.

CONFIRMS 5,000 OFFICERS.

Senate Awards Commissions to Winners on French Battlefields.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Senate late today confirmed the nominations of 5,000 junior officers of the army. The confirmations were the first of the present session and were made in open session by unanimous consent. The nominations were presented by Senator Wadsworth of New York, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee. A majority of those affected won their commissions on the battlefields of France.

An accounting filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Equitable Trust Company as the committee of the estate of Alphonse J. Stephani, sentenced to life imprisonment thirty years ago for the murder of Clinton Reynolds, a lawyer, and now in Dannemora, shows that his estate is now $144,122. It has grown from $30,000 left him by his mother in 1902.

His committee spent $300 during the year for such luxuries as were permitted him at the prison for the criminal insane, and $490 for Federal and State income taxes and for interest on bonds bought. The committee invested $19,490 during the year in Liberty bonds. The income for the year was $8,672.

Accuse Negro of Race Discrimination

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 29.—Charges of race discrimination by negroes against a negro were made today with the filing of four suits for $400 each against John Hall, proprietor of a barber shop. The plaintiffs alleged that Hall declined to serve them for the reason that he might injure his white trade.

Railroad Also Cuts Down Working Hours—Many Protests by Passengers.

The 20 per cent. increase in single and round-trip fares, permitted under the decision of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, was made effective yesterday by the Long Island Railroad and by the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company. Coincident with the establishment of the new fares, which brought protest from surprised passengers, the Long Island began the five-day week for some of its employes, the cut-down being necessary, according to officials, in the interest of economical operation.

By the action of the Long Island, local fares in Queens in the old five-cent zone became eight-cent fares, and in the ten-cent zone the increase was to 14 cents. Manager McGee, at Jamaica, reported notices as having been posted in all stations.

About 200 men in the Maintenance of Way and Signal Departments of the Long Island Railroad also went on the five-day week basis. The passengers found this out when they tried to buy tickets, although Traffic and Signal Departments of the three lines put in effect the new fares. On the lines from St. George to Mariner's Harbor and South Beach the fare was raised from six cents to eight cents and on the longer runs from St. George to Tottenville, about thirteen miles, the fare was raised from fifty-nine cents to seventy-nine cents.

The decision of the court did not affect commutation rates. It was said, and A. J. Murray, General Passenger Agent for the Staten Island Transit Company, said a petition probably would be made to the Public Service Commission for an increase of these rates. The new fares on Staten Island apply, it was estimated, to about 20,000 persons.

NEGRESS SEEKS OFFICE.

Wants to Be Alderman From Sullivan's Old Ward in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The first negro woman to be a candidate for Alderman in the City Council of Chicago is Mrs. Lulu Sims, whose petition was one of the last to be filed before the time limit expired yesterday.

Mrs. Sims is a candidate for the office representing the Fourteenth Ward on the west side, the old stronghold of the late Roger C. Sullivan, noted Democratic leader.

King Gives Notice of Senate Bill for the Benefit of German Owners.

PROTEST BY UNDERWOOD

Declares United States Senate Is Not "Unanimous to Surrender" Citizens' Rights.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senator Underwood, the Democratic leader, today proclaimed his determination to oppose a bill, soon to be offered by Senator King of Utah, calling for the restoration to German owners of hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of property seized as a war measure by the Alien Property Custodian. Senator Underwood declared this afternoon that "the time has not come, out of a desire to please American citizens who had relatives in Germany, out of a matter of politics, for us (the Senate) to start out now to surrender the rights of our own citizens."

Senator Underwood's declaration came after an announcement in the Senate by Senator King of Utah that he would soon ask the Senate to take up the consideration of a bill "to return to German nationals the property which the Government sequestrated."

The difference of opinion developed in the course of the debate on the Emergency Tariff bill, when Senator Penrose agreed to a unanimous consent request by Senator Knox for the temporary displacement of the tariff bill for the consideration of an amendment to the Trading with the Enemy act, to permit the return of property of American women born abroad, who prior to the entrance of this country into the war had married subjects of enemy countries. The original law contained the words "American women born in the United States" and the Knox amendment adds "or born of American citizens abroad."

"I might state," said Senator Knox, "what a remarkably ridiculous situation this law puts these American women in. The wife of von Bernstorff was an American woman and under the law as it exists today her property is to be returned, and perhaps has been already returned; but the daughter of Henry White, an American Ambassador abroad, who was serving his country at the time of the birth of that daughter cannot have her property returned because she was born outside of the United States."

"I agree with the Senator," said Senator King, "and it seems to me that this would be a very good time to consider the passage of an act restoring to German nationals the property which we sequestrated, and which is in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian. In the bill, which I have, and which I shall ask consideration of soon, this matter is taken care of."

As soon as Senator King resumed his seat Senator Underwood was recognized.

"I do not care to let this occasion go by," said Senator Underwood, "without entering my protest. So far as the bill presented by the Senator from Pennsylvania is concerned, I have no objection to it, for I realize that American women who married Germans had their property here placed in a very unfortunate position. It was not a condition to which the Government of the United States desired to chain them.

"As I have stated, I do not object to the passage of the Knox amendment, but I do seriously object to the statement that we should return to German nationals property taken by the Alien Property Custodian during the war. It was done by other Governments, but, more than that, I think that every Government should hold its first allegiance to its own people, and not to a foreign people. The property of American citizens was ruthlessly destroyed, taken and confiscated during the war by the German Government.

The Knox amendment was passed without division.

G. W. JESSUP KILLED IN RAILWAY YARD

Friends Say Boston Manufacturer Had Been Greatly Worked Up Over Irish Questions.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—The body of George W. Jessup, President of the Jessup Chemical Company of this city, was found on the railroad tracks beside a freight house in the Northern Avenue waterfront district early today. It was apparent that he had been hit by a train, but the police were uncertain whether it was a case of accident or suicide. They said they could learn of no reason for his presence in that district.

Mr. Jessup was deeply interested in the Irish question and friends said his concern over the subject had caused him to become nervous and excitable recently. He had worked out what he thought was a plan for peaceful settlement that he made the subject of a communication to President-elect Harding. He had also made a trip to Washington within a few days and is understood to have seen Senator Walsh of Massachusetts and other Senators regarding his plan.

CUTS DOWN ARMY EXPENSES

Secretary Baker Orders Drastic Economy at Posts and Camps.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Drastic economy at army posts and camps was ordered by Secretary Baker today, due to an impending deficiency of $94,000,000 under appropriations for the Quartermaster Corps.

Among retrenchments ordered were:

A 40 per cent. cut in the Quartermaster General's civilian payroll by Feb. 15.

Reduction of water transportation activities to a minimum harbor craft not absolutely required to be laid up and the employes discharged.

Expenses for transportation as a convenience to employes to be cut off.

A 50 per cent. curtailment in gasoline and lubricants issued to motorized artillery and the air service.

More economical routing of shipments absolutely necessary.

Curtailment of telegraph and cable expenses.

In addition to these, Mr. Baker ordered economies in fuel, clothing, general supplies and subsistence issues, practically identical orders being sent to the Philippine, Panama and Hawaiian departments and all independent posts and stations. Monthly reports, beginning March 15, are required showing the action taken and the estimated saving.

HELPED MISS SPELLMAN.

Travelers' Aid Recommended Lodgings for Her in Montreal.

Blanche Adele Spellman, who was brought back by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Spellman of 7 West Ninety-second Street, Friday night from Montreal, where she went to study art, spent a good part of yesterday motoring with her father.

Mr. Spellman said that his daughter had not stopped at the Windsor Hotel, as reported. When she arrived in Montreal Tuesday morning she went to the Travelers' Aid, officers of which recommended the Young Women's Christian Association, where she stayed Tuesday and Wednesday, and where she met her parents Thursday afternoon. They had dinner at the Windsor and stayed at another hotel that night, returning to New York on Friday.

Mr. Spellman said that he and his daughter were so grateful to the Travelers' Aid that Miss Spellman would take part in the Travelers' Aid fund campaign, soon to begin.

guest was ordered today at the home of Frank Mudra, a miner, near here, into the death of his wife, whom he said his 15-year-old daughter killed. According to Mudra, the girl confessed to him last night that she killed her mother three weeks ago because the latter objected to her receiving the attentions of a ranch hand.

The body was found buried in the rear of a stable. Mudra had been working in Oak Creek, his wife and children remaining on the isolated ranch, fifteen miles from here.

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Col., Jan. 29.—The story that the 15-year-old daughter of Frank Mudra killed her mother because the latter objected to her accepting the attentions of a ranch hand, and kept her act secret for three weeks, was brought from Oak Creek to the Coroner's office here today. Officials will leave tomorrow to take charge of the body.

The girl walked into Oak Creek yesterday from the ranch, after hours of toiling through the almost impassable mountain roads, saying her mother was sick. Her father accompanied her to the farm. Inquiry developed that Mrs. Mudra had not been seen for several weeks, and one of the smaller children finally told Mudra, it was said, that the body was buried back of a stable. The girl, acording to a neighbor, then confessed that she shot her mother.

Roger N. Sweetman, whose resignation from the Irish Republican Parliament was announced on Thursday, has also given up his seat in the British House of Commons, he has declared in answer to a question printed in the Freeman's Journal. The newspaper inquired if Mr. Sweetman's resignation applied to both parliamentary bodies, and he replied:

"Yes, of course, but I never belonged to the British Parliament and would not take my seat."

O'CALLAGHAN ORDERED TO LEAVE BY FEB. 11

Secretary Wilson Limits Time in Which Lord Mayor Must Ship as Seaman.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Denal J. O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, has been ordered by Secretary Wilson of the Labor Department to leave the United States by Feb. 11. He is now in the country as seaman awaiting an opportunity to ship.

The Irish official arrived in the United States as a stowaway without a passport. He was classified as a seaman, however, which permitted him to remain until he could find a ship.

Miss Reidy Says She Was Threatened by Irish Band and Suffered from Shock.

DUBLIN, Jan. 29.—An American woman, Miss Ellen J. Reidy, who was kidnapped four days ago near Fermoy by a band of masked men, has been released after a painful experience as a prisoner, according to a message from Fermoy. She arrived from America recently to claim her brother's estate, situated near Fermoy and, she says, she was motoring to the court to establish her claim when four armed, disguised men surrounded the car, overpowered her chauffeur and, leaving him bound by the roadside, carried her off.

Miss Reidy asserted she was kept blindfolded and with her hands bound for three days in a bedless room and that she suffered greatly from shock. She claims her life was threatened if she went to the court, but upon replying to this that she was under American protection, she finally was released.

FIRST COMPREHENSIVE SHOWINGS OF

SPRING APPAREL

FOR the first time since 1913, Easter comes in March—the 27th. We have therefore advanced the date of our first important showings. New things for innumerable Spring wardrobes are daily being sent, fresh from their tissue wrappings to our selling floors. From a colorful linen mouchoir to an alluring and complete trousseau, everything is marked at the lower price levels of 1921. We shall be glad to have you look at our collection.

The New Suits

A NEW WEAVE in the fabric world—Picotine—rivals our old friend—tricotine—for smart town wear. Homespun and tweed will be chosen for sports. Coats of finger-tip length prevail among suits for women—the Misses' department approves the short box coat. Sashes ornament many of the more elaborate models and self or contrasting embroidery with a thread of gold or silver is a favorite trimming.

WOMEN'S SUITS—THIRD FLOOR MISSES' SUITS—SECOND FLOOR

The New Wraps

THE loose, straight model with the set-in sleeve is slightly in the foreground this season—though capes and cape effects are well liked. The tuxedo collar is almost universal. The drop shoulder is a new and graceful note. The Directoire cape is borrowed from the days of 1830. Cire braid is a smart trimming—embroidery is much used. Caramel and the numerous new shades of brown will rival navy in popularity.

WOMEN'S WRAPS—THIRD FLOOR MISSES' WRAPS—SECOND FLOOR

The New Dresses

BE CREPE, and if you can't be crepe, be taffeta, is apparently the rule for afternoon frocks—the new picotine and tricotine will be best for street wear. The straight line, short sleeve mode of French ancestry is a favorite, but definite waist-lines and bouffant skirts are noted among the taffeta frocks. Every third dress is gray—what a lovely, Springy tone it is! Embroidery, braid, ribbon, contrasting piping and facings are among the 101 ways of trimming.

WOMEN'S DRESSES—THIRD FLOOR MISSES' DRESSES—SECOND FLOOR

The New Blouses

WHAT is smart for a dress is smart for a blouse—so the new blouses choose crepe de chine. As the 1921 mode calls for over-blouse and tie-on models, it is, of course, the perfect fabric. For tailored wear, the fine hand-made blouses are appropriate—hand hemstitching and real lace trim them effectively. The youthful round collar is in high favor.

FRENCH BLOUSES MAIN FLOOR SILK BLOUSES

The New Hats

THE new hats turn becomingly up from the face; the crowns are high and soft, and some of them are draped. The modistes have discovered new trimming uses for ribbon and feathers and use them in preference to flowers. Venetian Red, a new and glorious version of henna is much in evidence, and noisette, a soft grayish tan, conforms to this Spring's preference for tones of gray.

TAILORED HATS—MAIN FLOOR DRESS HATS—MEZZANINE

The KENSICO CEMETERY

America's Burial Park

City Office:
103 Park Avenue
New York

ONCE upon a time it was the burden of sorrowing widows or bereaved fathers to choose a burial place.

Today most people make this choice with the clear-eyed cheer of happiness and hope. They provide in advance.

And this, we believe, is why so many families today express a preference for Kensico—the permanent burial park.

THE HARDING PARTY

President-Elect Ends Houseboat Cruise, Plays Golf and Spends Night Ashore.

OFF TOMORROW FOR FISHING

He Expects to Spend Two or Three Days in Seclusion Among the Keys.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29.—Neither dredges, almost filling the channel, nor enthusiastic civic reception committees succeeded in diverting President-elect Harding from his intention of adhering to his vacation schedule and attending no public functions while on his cruise on board the houseboat Victoria, which reached here this afternoon.

Pleasure boats that crowded the bay, people on automobiles that lined the causeways and engineers of boiler plants with their hands on steam whistles had waited several hours for the appearance of the Victoria, and gave it a noisy welcome. Mayor Smith, with a reception committee on a yacht, met the President-elect at the North Channel and boarded the Victoria to urge Mr. Harding to visit Miami.

"Now, Mr. Harding," said the Mayor, "if you like fishing, go ahead and forget about your inaugural address, and when you return we will have one all made out for you. You know we have in Miami a citizen who three different times started to prepare an inaugural address, and every time some one spilled the ink."

"I think I know the citizen to whom you refer," the President-elect said, with a smile, catching the reference to William J. Bryan. "And I expect to call upon him while I am in Miami." Mr. Bryan, however, made the first call, visiting Mr. Harding at luncheon.

Mr. Harding landed at a hotel dock, and was met by Fred M. Upham, Treasurer of the National Committee. After luncheon the President-elect, with Senator Frelinghuysen, Henry P. Fletcher and Dr. A. A. Ely, played a foursome over the Miami Beach golf links.

Mr. Harding attended a dinner tonight in honor of Mr. Upham's sixtieth birthday, and returned for the night to Miami Beach.

After attending to some correspondence that was brought down today by a stenographer from St. Augustine, Mr. Harding will leave tomorrow afternoon for the Cocolobo Club at Caesar's Island, thirty miles from here, where he expects to fish two days. The club has fewer than a dozen members, so the President-elect will have complete seclusion. The only new member of the party will be Mr. Upham.

GROWS 2 VEGETABLES ON A SINGLE STEM

French Botanist Also Experiments With Producing Potatoes on Both Ends of Plant.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—It seems to be the aim of botanists to grow a whole salad on a single stem. Following experiments, which grafted tomatoes on a potato plant and grew tomatoes at one end and potatoes at the other, has come Professor Daniel of the Rennes Agricultural College.

The Professor wanted to grow potatoes at both ends of the same plant. He began by grafting potatoes on a tomato plant. In this way he secured what might be called an aerial potato. These he took and in turn grafted them on an ordinary terrestrial potato.

The result was curious. Below the earth he obtained good potatoes about which there is no question. On the stem he obtained an astonishing crop of potatoes also, but unfortunately they were not so edible as the more ordinary companion crop.

Not content with that M. Daniel has been experimenting with other vegetables. So far his most successful result has been to grow tomatoes and eggplant on the same stem. In this way he secured two crops for the same root space without diminishing either crop appreciably.

ELECTRIC MOTOR SHOW.

Trucks, Cars and Accessories in Edison Rooms Till Feb. 12.

An exhibition of electric vehicles was opened yesterday in the showrooms of the New York Edison Company, Irving Place and Fifteenth Street. It is open free to the public and will continue until Feb. 12, inclusive. The display this week will be trucks and passenger cars, and beginning Feb. 5 industrial trucks will be shown. Storage batteries, tires and accessories will also be on view.

The trucks range in size from the 1,000-pound wagons of the Commercial Truck Company and the Lansden Company to the five-ton Walker truck. There is also a one-ton Commercial.

An electric vehicle luncheon will be given on Wednesday at the Hotel Astor. Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, now the head of the city's largest trucking company, will speak, and other speakers will be James A. McGraw and Arthur Williams, general manager of the New York Edison Company.

ADMITS MURDER FOR MEAL.

Chicago Negro Confesses in Exchange for Fried Chicken.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—In exchange for a meal of fried chicken, Roscoe Thompson, a negro, confessed today to killing the Rev. G. L. Burrage, another negro. The prisoner's callousness amazed the city detectives, who stared in astonishment as Thompson, without show of remorse, detailed the crime between bites of the chicken.

"It was a joke on me," said Thompson. "I went to all the trouble of killing him and cut his head nearly off with a razor, and all I got out of it was $2 and a bum watch. Gee, this chicken is good."

Thompson said he thought the preacher, who was retired and aged, had several hundred dollars in a trunk.

HELD ON AVIATRIX'S PLEA.

Man Is Accused of Posing as Miss Herveaux's Fiance to Get Money.

Jane Herveaux, the French aviatrix, appeared in the Flatbush Court yesterday as complainant against Thomas McCarthy of 65 Third Avenue, who was accused of attempting to obtain money from her by means of a fraudulent telegram. McCarthy was held in $1,500 bail for the Court of Special Sessions.

Miss Herveaux said that on Friday she received at her home, 520 West 113th Street, Manhattan, a telegram signed with the name of her fiancé, asking her to send him money in care of the Western Union telegraph office at 345 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. Certain that the telegram was not from her fiancé, Miss Herveaux reported the matter to the police. Detective Martin Downes of the Bergen Street Station, Brooklyn, went to the telegraph office, where he arrested McCarthy.

Mother of Martha E. Crowell Fears She May Have Been Lured Away at Pier.

In the belief that his daughter, Miss Martha E. Crowell, 21 years old, met with foul play when she arrived in this city from Cuba in the latter part of December, William Crowell, manufacturer of welding machines, who lives at 14 Madison Street, Jersey City, has asked the police to search for her. Mr. Crowell said that his daughter accompanied his sister, Mrs. Benjamin Clark LeBlanc, and her husband to their home in Santiago, Cuba, two months ago, and that on Dec. 18 his wife received a letter from Mrs. LeBlanc stating that both she and her husband had been ill with malaria since her sister left for her home in Jersey City.

She cabled to Mr. LeBlanc to learn when Miss Crowell left Cuba, and in a cabled reply Mrs. LeBlanc stated she received a cable message from the missing young woman stating that she had arrived safely in this city. Mr. Crowell then questioned officers of the vessel on which the young woman returned to this city, and they informed her that she had become acquainted on the vessel with a young man listed under the name of Herbert Smith, who said he was returning to his home in Liverpool, Eng.

"My daughter was suffering from a nervous breakdown," said Mrs. Crowell yesterday, "and I fear she may have been lured away in a taxicab when she left the vessel on her arrival from Cuba. I am certain she would have communicated with me by this time if she had not met with foul play."

TARIFF BILL HOPES ARE FLICKERING OUT

Senate Republicans Admit That Passage of Emergency Measure Now Seems Unlikely.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Emergency Tariff bill had reached a critical point when the Senate adjourned tonight until Monday.

Republican leaders held a conference late today and agreed to try again next week to obtain an agreement for a vote and if unsuccessful, to attempt closure.

That both plans were virtually certain of defeat was stated privately by Republican managers, who said that in event of failure they would be compelled to lay aside the tariff measure in favor of other pressing business. Such a course, they conceded, would probably mean final defeat of the bill.

Under the plan of action decided upon, Senator Penrose will try Monday to gain unanimous consent for a final vote on the bill, say on Feb. 15. If, as expected, some Democrats object, then, it is said, Penrose will present a petition for closure. This is already in his possession and is said to have the signatures of all but six Republican Senators. A two-thirds vote is necessary to invoke closure, the Republican leaders admit that this can hardly be obtained.

The vote on adopting closure would come on Wednesday under the rules. If the closure position was voted down, Republican managers said, it would be shown that passage of the bill was impossible. They would then be prepared to charge its defeat to Democratic opponents and be ready to lay aside the measure.

Democratic leaders said tonight that the bill could be brought to a vote if there were a "real" Republican desire for such a course.

HINTON WON'T GO ON STAGE.

Wife Denies That He and Kloor Will Appear in Vaudeville.

A report that Lieutenants Walter Hinton and Louis A. Kloor Jr. would tell the story of the flight of the lost naval balloon in vaudeville theatres was denied yesterday by Mrs. Hinton at her home in Neponsit. The report was that they would make their try-out appearance at a theatre in Mount Vernon next month.

It was known that the officers had an offer from a vaudeville circuit, but friends believed that it had been declined. It would be difficult for the men to obtain permission while they still were officers on active service. Officers said that it would probably be necessary for Lieutenant Hinton, who belongs to the regular establishment, to resign before he could appear on the stage. Lieutenant Kloor, a Naval Reserve officer, could be retired from active service, but it would be necessary for him to obtain permission of the Navy Department to wear a uniform.

800 PAY TRIBUTE TO DEVOY.

Gaelic American's Editor Gets $5,000 at Dinner in the Biltmore.

About 800 members of the Clan-na-Gael and of the Friends of Irish Freedom gathered at dinner in the Hotel Biltmore last night to pay tribute to John Devoy, editor of The Gaelic American and for sixty years active in the cause of Irish freedom. The veteran editor was presented with a check for $5,000 and early this morning, while some of the twenty-four scheduled speakers were still talking, efforts were being made to run the total of the financial tribute up to $10,000.

Devoy made a plea for Irish unity in America as imperative to the success of the Sinn Fein movement. He declared that unless the breach between the adherents of "President" Eamon de Valera and the cohorts of Justice Daniel F. Cohalan were healed "disaster will come to the Irish movement." Apparently taking a slap at De Valera because of his objections to Justice Cohalan, Mr. Devoy said, "We insist, above all, on the right to select our own leaders."

BARS TEUTON CHESS PLAYER

State Department Refuses Admittance to Emmanuel Lasker.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Emmanuel Lasker, noted German chess player, has been denied permission to visit this country, en route to Havana for a world's championship match with Capablanca. It was said at the State Department today that Lasker's application for passport visé to permit him to visit this country had been refused under the ruling denying permission to enter the country to German nations unless a showing was made justifying waiving the restriction. Lasker's application merely stated that he desired to renew friendships here.

Officials said the German player would probably find little difficulty in reaching Havana by another route. He was said to be in Germany at present.

MAKES PLEA FOR RAILROADS.

Advance on Money Owed by Government Urged Before Senators.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Legislation to authorize partial payments to railroads on accounts owed by the Government was urged today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by Alfred P. Thom, counsel for the National Association of Railway Executives.

Howard Elliott, President of the Northern Pacific Railroad; Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, and Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio also appeared, but did not testify, having given statements to the House committee, which has reported the bill favorably.

PURSUERS BE FREED

Judge Advocate of Our Coblenz Forces Meets With Prompt Refusal.

WILL CARRY CASE TO BERLIN

Men Held Illegally, Says Major Rucker, as Their Work Is to Get Deserters.

EBERBACH, Baden, Jan. 29.—Major Kyle Rucker, Judge Advocate of the American Forces on the Rhine, called on the prosecuting attorney and the police authorities today and demanded the release of Carl Neuf and Frank Zimmer, who are being held here for attempting to kidnap Grover C. Bergdoll, the American draft evader, and his chauffeur, Eugene (Ike) Stecher.

The surrender of the men was refused by the German authorities, and Major Rucker then stated that the American authorities at Coblenz would make a formal demand on the Berlin Foreign Office for their release.

The Major informed the authorities here that Neuf and Zimmer were engaged in the legitimate pursuit of deserters and fugitives from justice and that their detention was illegal.

German citizenship papers for Bergdoll, for which he applied several days ago, have been made out and are ready to be issued as soon as the technical state of war between the United States and Germany has been ended. His chauffeur, Stecher, has already received citizenship papers.

Bergdoll has a cousin here, but he and Stecher have virtually been living in Bergdoll's automobile, spending but one night in each place visited. The authorities and all the citizens are friendly to Bergdoll and resentment is keen against the Americans who participated ment.

Carl Neuf and Frank Zimmer, alleged American detectives who took part in the attempt against Bergdoll, are being guarded carefully, and no one is permitted to see them. It is understood that the charge lodged against them of disturbing the peace now has been changed to attempted homicide.

The present whereabouts of Bergdoll is not known.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Carl Neuf and Frank Zimmer, who attempted to kidnap Bergdoll and Stecher, were taken to Mosbach today for a hearing before the State's attorney, who is conducting the prosecution. The two men, who said they were connected with the Bureau of Criminal Investigation in Washington, did not carry credentials for entering the unoccupied zone of Germany, as their passports had been signed by neither the German civil authorities nor the military pass bureau in Coblenz, says the Frankfort Gazette.

Officers in the intelligence department of the American forces at Coblenz denied yesterday that they had sent the men in pursuit of Bergdoll and Stecher, and an investigation has been begun.

They say they have no information regarding the incident except accounts printed in German newspapers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Department of Justice officials denied today that the alleged detectives, charged with having attempted to kidnap Bergdoll at Erlach, Baden, were agents of the Bureau of Investigation. At present, officials said, there were no agents of the department in foreign countries.

Discussing the possible extradition of Bergdoll legal officials said that there was no treaty under which the United States could demand his return. The only possible method, officials said, would be a request that Germany hand over a man who had refused to fight against that country, which would be embarrassing for this Government and hardly possible of acquiescence by Germany.

The State Department had given no consideration to the extradition question, it was said, but is inquiring as to the facts. It is the view of officials that the War Department is chiefly concerned about Bergdoll, and it is a question whether anything more can be done in the interest of the American prisoners than to see that they obtain a fair trial.

Cancel Chino-Japanese War Compact

PEKING, Jan. 28.—The Chinese Foreign Office and the Japanese Legation here exchanged notes today, canceling the Chino-Japanese military compact, entered into for mutual defense during the late war.

FOR BIG NAVAL CUT

Arthur Pollen, Arms Maker, Thinks Japan Also Would Accept Limited Disarmament.

CAN'T BUILD NEW SHIPS

Says Germany Is Unable to Pay Indemnity Asked and Doubts That She Will Sign.

Arthur Pollen, director of the foreign department of the Birmingham Small Arms Company of England and well known as a writer on naval subjects, arrived yesterday aboard the White Star liner Cedric on a business trip to this country and Canada. He expressed the opinion that neither Great Britain nor Japan would object to the disarmament plan proposed by Senator Borah.

"The supremacy of the seas today," said Mr. Pollen, "lies in the hands of the nation with the biggest purse. America is the richest country in the world and if the Government in Washington decides that it must have the biggest navy there is nothing to stop it.

"England held the supremacy of the seas for more than 100 years because she never abused that power and has shown the value of a big navy by blockading the German fleet and ports in the war. The value of battleships in naval warfare today is just as great as before 1914. The danger from mines and submarines has decreased by improvements in the construction of the latest superdreadnoughts, like the 30,000-ton Hood.

"We have narrowly escaped losing civilization in the war, and unless the English-speaking nations stand together there may be another big war and that will be the end of everything. The United States and Great Britain must bear the brunt of the burdens of the world, and if they do it together nothing else matters.

"So far as I can foresee, there is only Germany cannot pay the big indemnity the Allies are demanding because she hasn't got the money and will not be able to earn it in foreign trade. I do not think the German delegates will sign the agreement to pay the indemnity. The Government would have to tax the people so heavily that they would leave Germany and go to South America, South Africa and other countries."

"What are the financial conditions in England?" he was asked.

"If there is no trade revival by September it will be serious. But there are signs of a revival in South America, India and South Africa, which, it is hoped, will develop toward the Summer. Labor conditions are better in England because the workman is beginning to understand that manufacturers have been turning out goods at a loss during the last three months when trade fell away.

"France is worse off because she has no extensive manufactures to rely upon to build up her foreign trade."

With regard to the League of Nations, Mr. Pollen said that the plan was accepted by Lloyd George and Clemenceau chiefly because they thought that it would please President Wilson and enable them to get a treaty put through, but that it was hardly possible to believe they thought the Senate would accept the League after the President returned to Washington.

HIS LEAGUE IDEA

President of Uruguay Explains Proposal as an Enlarged Monroe Doctrine.

FOR PREFERENTIAL TARIFF

Believes, He Says, South American Republics Should Favor One Another in Levying Duties.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

Upon my arrival in Montevideo I made a request through Minister Jeffery for a personal interview with President Brum. Minister Jeffery informed me that the time of our visit was so limited and the days so full of entertainment of the Colby mission by the President and his Cabinet officers that he doubted the possibility of securing it. Two days passed with only negative results. About 12 o'clock of the third day Pedro Cosio, editor of El Siglo and a member of the Council of State, which closely corresponds to a Cabinet position in our country, rushed up to me and said:

"I have been looking for you for two hours. The President will see you at half-past twelve."

Without taking time to conform to the South American formal custom of wearing a silk hat and accessories when visiting the President, I hastily jumped into Mr. Cosio's waiting car and was whisked up to the Presidential mansion. I was much surprised at his modest mode of living. He, being a bachelor, does not live in the Government apartments corresponding to our White House, but has chambers on the second and third floors or one of the main business streets.

There was no evidence that we were nearing his home save two lone sentrymen seated on a bench in front of the steps leading up to his apartment. I had asked Mr. Cosio to stop somewhere so that I might buy a package of cigarettes and I thought that he had stopped for this purpose. I was much surprised when he informed me that this was where the President lived. Without any formality we walked up the carpeted steps into a waiting room, where I saw [illegible] President's private secretary came out, was introduced to me, and immediately ushered us into the President's room.

When I first entered the room he was signing some papers and I had an opportunity to study him at close range. He is a short, roly-poly kind of a man, but his lack of stature does not decrease his dignity. His head is round and thatched with a heavy suit of coal black hair which he allows to grow rather long. He has a high forehead, coal black eyes set wide apart, a thick neck set on a rather broad pair of shoulders. He is rather careless in his dress for a South American, but his clothes are of good material and fit him well. His is the carelessness of a thinker who does not bother about personal adornment. He has a most kindly smile that makes you his friend immediately.

While he speaks English fairly well, he used an interpreter, as is usual, so that he would be quoted correctly. This was generously done by Mr. Mays, the manager of the National City Bank. During our conversation he could hardly wait until Mr. Mays finished translating before he would begin his reply. He has an active mind that grasps things quickly, and a nervous temperament. He talks as most Latin Americans do, with his arms, eyes and shoulders as well as with his tongue. When he does speak, he speaks with a quick incisiveness.

I had met the President before at the reception given to the mission, but on former occasions he had been the stately and dignified President of a great republic; now he met me as a man and as a brother newspaper man. He began by telling me that he, too, was a member of the Fourth Estate, for he had been an editor and was still interested in a newspaper. He showed remarkable evidence of acquaintance with the American newspaper field. He asked personally concerning Mr. Ochs, Mr. Pulitzer and Mr. Munsey. He knew the politics of each of these editors and the character of their publications, and said that it would be the height of his ambition to be the editor of a great New York newspaper and to direct its policies.

After thus making me at home, he next inquired solicitously concerning the health of President Wilson, for whom he expressed the greatest admiration. In his personal office he also had a picture of the President, flanked on each side by a picture of President Roosevelt and of Elihu Root, and on another wall one of Admiral Caperton. He pointed to these pictures and said with a smile:

"You see now great an admirer I am of your country and your statesmen. President Wilson is my ideal. He has done more to cement the friendship between the Americas than any other man; nay, has done more to bring about amity and perpetual peace among the nations of the world. However, I know that you came to ask me some questions rather than to listen to my panegyric about President Wilson."

I had prepared certain questions to submit to him, which I immediately dug out of my pocket. The questions and answers follow:

"Mr. President, will you give to the [illegible] inaugurated last April?"

"What you are kind enough to call the 'Brum Doctrine' is just an enlarged Monroe Doctrine, for which we Uruguayans have the greatest respect. It is based on an equality of responsibility of all American republics for enforcing the Monroe Doctrine. That is, each American republic would agree to defend any of its members against foreign aggression and insure the territorial integrity of each American republic. It could best be carried out by the formation of a Pan-American League, to which every American republic would subscribe and which would place all of them on an equal and reciprocal basis in the matter of enforcement of the above principles of protection."

"Mr. President, do you think that the formation of such a league is feasible?"

"Most certainly I do. There are tendencies in some of the South American countries to form a purely Latin-American League. This is largely due to a misunderstanding and ignorance of the real policy of the United States Government concerning the Monroe Doctrine. Uruguay understands America, but some of our sister republics do not. And propaganda has been carried on to bring about a distrust of the real intentions of America concerning Central and South American republics. I am sure that for the success of the League it should include North America, and I believe that among the statesmen of South America this is generally believed to be true. I have received official manifestations of support for this Pan-American League from Bolivia and Peru, and unofficial approval from the leaders of several other South American governments. And no opposition to my plan has been expressed by any South American Government. I have a profound hope that some day such a league among the American republics will be formed."

"Dr. Brum, is your policy a recognition of the Pan American Union such as already exists?"

"Oh, no. I thoroughly approve of the Pan American Union and its aims. But I would make the League an affair between nations and not just propaganda to increase business relations between the various American republics. However, I do believe that the Pan-American League, such as I have suggested, would include economic as well as political agreements. For instance, I would have a preferential tariff for American republics. Let each nation have two tariff schedules, one which applies to America in its broad sense, and the other to the rest of the world. And I believe that no tariff law should be passed, that would militate against a sister American republic."

"Do you mean to refer to the recent tariff law passed by the House of Representatives of the United States, which virtually prohibits the importation of wool, hides, wheat and other products of South America?"

"No, I was making a general statement. I merely suggested that under such a league no such law should be passed. We Uruguayans have no right to suggest to any sovereign power as to what laws it should pass. However, [illegible] initiate against the friendly sentiment necessary to the formation of such a league as I have suggested. My theory is that the American nations should form a solidarity based on perfect understanding and friendship; that the league should assure against foreign aggression each member of the league, and that each member of the league should have equal responsibility in proportion to its strength to insure protection for every other member; and further, that in addition to this political association we should establish an economic one for the mutual benefit and protection of all the nations of America."

"Doctor Brum, I understand that your country has passed some very advanced laws, almost socialistic in their tendencies. Is this true, and how are they working?"

"It depends on how you apply the word 'socialist.' If you are using it liberally, meaning that we have advanced laws for the protection of the people's rights, it is true. If you mean that our people believe in abrogating a democracy, you are wrong. I believe that the best method of combating the agitator, the subverter of democratic government, is by the passage of just laws so that the agitator can have nothing to say. All of our laws are democratic. We are not afraid of them. They will not find congenial soil in which to work. Our labor is satisfied and contented. Our Government is strong. Our people firmly believe in democracy and democratic institutions."

"Will you kindly mention some of the laws which have brought about this millennium of peaceful labor conditions?"

"There has been passed by the House of Representatives, and is assured of passage by the Senate, a bill which I shall sign, which provides that country labor cannot be employed for less than $20 per month, with board and lodging. In the city the minimum is placed at $45 per month, with board and lodging. We have a law giving an obligatory day of rest each week. This law includes domestic service. We have an old-age pension law and a law which provides support in case of sickness. These are a few of the laws of which you spoke. They represent the tendency of our legislative enactments. Our object is to see that every man is cared for if he is sick or too old to work, and can secure a living if he is willing to work. We intend to have no aggressive abuse by capital of our labor, and still are not [illegible] Telephone Fitz Roy 2400

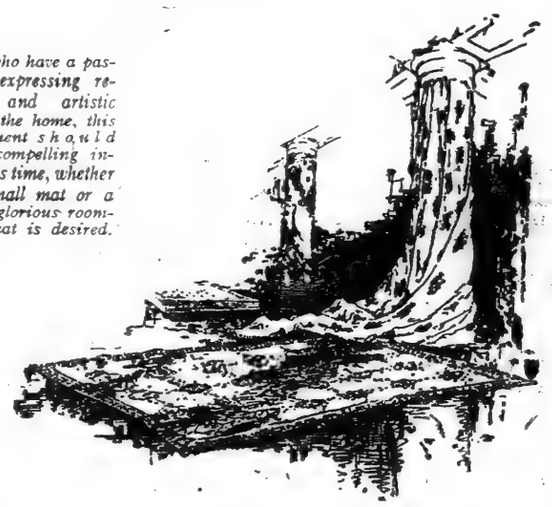
To all who have a passion for expressing refinement and artistic beauty in the home, this announcement should prove of compelling interest at this time, whether it be a small mat or a large and glorious room-size rug that is desired.



Entire Collection Oriental Rugs at Reduced Prices

The occasion for contemplating the ownership of an Oriental rug at some indefinite future period is ended, if the question of price be the only one to be considered. For a new standard of value seems to be firmly established at much lower price levels than have been prevailing.

What is more, still greater incentive for the perfecting of home-beautifying plans at this time is provided by the Bamberger Half-Yearly Sale, now in full progress, which offers pronounced margins of savings on the basis not only of the former standard of value, but on the new, as well.

The sale embraces every Persian, Turkish, Chinese and Indian rug in our entire collection, without any restriction. We list below but a few specimen values to be found.

IN ENEMIES HE MADE

Knowing Them, He Says, Abuse Has Not Spoiled His Appetite or Disposition.

HE REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS

Contends He Made Postal Service More Efficient and Put It on a Paying Basis.

Copyright, 1921, by The Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Albert S. Burleson, Postmaster General of the United States, sat in his office on the fifth floor of the Post Office Building and, for the first time in eight years, freely expressed his mind about things and people. All that he said cannot yet be printed, but enough can be set down here to shed a good deal of light upon this man about whose bald head have raged the wildest of the storms that marked the two Wilson Administrations.

Those who know the facts recognize that up to the time Mr. Wilson went to France it was the Burleson influence in Congress that, more than any other, helped to get through the Wilson program of legislation, and that in every fight "on the hill" he was a tremendously potent factor. He has held the office of Postmaster General longer than any other man who ever belonged to a President's Cabinet. In a few days he goes out—back to Texas, after twenty-two years of public life—still a virile, vigorous, fighting figure, a man of strong convictions and unshakable determination, loved by his friends with an ardor equaled only by the fervor of those who hate him.

"This is," he said to a reporter of The Sun, "the first interview I have given since I entered the Cabinet. I do not want to give one now. You wanted it and I have been persuaded. I have no swan song to sing. I have no apologies and no complaints to make. I do not want to eulogize myself nor criticise any one else. I do not even want to inveigh against a hostile press. Go ahead."

"All right, sir. What I want to ask is do you appreciate the extent of your unpopularity in the country? Do you realize that you are called more and harsher names by more people than any other man in the Cabinet and that you have many bitter enemies who rejoice that you are leaving?"

Knows of Unpopularity.

"Yes," said Mr. Burleson, "I appreciate all that. I believe it to be true that I have more enemies and have been more generally denounced than any of the others. It has not, however, robbed me of my serenity of mind, nor spoiled either my disposition or my appetite. You see I know who my enemies are, how I made them and why, and the reasons are satisfactory ones to me."

"Mr. Burleson," he was asked, "do you know that a great many people say the postal service under you is rotten?"

"It's easy to say things like that," he said; "easy to say, but not easy to establish. Yes, I know it has gotten to be a sort of habit to abuse the postal service and myself. A good deal of this is propaganda by people who know better and a good deal more of it is by people who do not know better, but have become infected. That sort of thing is infectious, you know. The postal service is the greatest corporation in the country—really in the world. It is far bigger than the United States Steel Corporation. It is not 100 per cent. perfect—nor is anything else that I know of in this world.

"If you want the truth about the efficiency of the service, don't ask me. Go out and ask the men who have been in the department for twenty and twenty-five years, all Republicans. Ask them for the truth, and your answer will be, I think, that the department is today more efficient than ever before in its history, that mail is being delivered to 4,000,000 more people in the country districts and 5,000,000 more in the cities than eight years ago, that there is less waste, less fraud and less politics now than ever before. That's the truth about the service, and the men who have the facts know it. It is also true that this is the one postal service in the world that did not literally break down during the war."

Says He Produced Surplus.

"A lot of your enemies say you have no business ability. What about that?"

"A man does not like to talk about himself this way, but I made $1,000,000 before I was 35 years old, and I did it legitimately and without cutting corners. Also I turned the deficit I found here when I entered into a surplus. It has always seemed to me that those two things did not indicate a complete lack of business ability."

"But it is charged that you secured that surplus by impairing the service and keeping down the pay of the employes."

"That's not true," Mr. Burleson said emphatically. "So far as the service is concerned, any fair-minded, intelligent man can get at the facts, and they will speak for themselves. So far as the pay of the postal employes is concerned, I was not at any time opposed to increasing the pay of the employes. I was and am in favor of paying Government employes from 15 to 20 per cent. more than they can make outside. I was not, and am not, however, in favor of making tremendous blanket increases, which mean that men who are not entitled to it get more money than they earn. I asked Congress to give me $1,500,000, and with that I could have met every pay situation in the service and adequately compensated every man who ought to have had an increase without giving to a lot of men whose duties required less than two hours a day a whole lot more than they ought to have. But Congress in the end yielded to pressure and added $35,000,000 to the pay-roll, thus making it impossible for the department ever again to show a surplus.

"Oh, I could have gone along the easiest way and avoided a lot of the unpopularity you say I possess. There was nothing in it for me personally in opposing this unjustifiable increase, but I did not think it right, and I still do not think it right."

In the host of his enemies Mr. Burleson placed the express companies, the railroads and the newspapers and magazines.

ARIETAS DISCLAIM PLANS TO REVOLT

Ask Obregon to Give Them Protection Against Durango State Authorities.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 29.—General Marines, commander of operations in the States of Durango and Chihuahua, reports to the War Department that the Arrieta brothers are not in revolt against the Federal Government. Andres Arrieta, one of the seven brothers, reported to Martinez this morning, stating that stories of a rebellion were untrue, and that the brothers, accompanied by forty men, went to the hills to avoid the persecution of the local authorities. Domingo Arrieta was Governor of the State during the regime of Carranza. The Arrietas are willing to return if the Federal Government guarantees protection against the local authorities.

Five bandits who attempted to rob a train between Mexico City and Puebla were executed this morning in the City of Puebla.

San Francisco and Oakland Dailies Announce Increases.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Newspapers of San Francisco and Oakland will increase their subscription rates beginning Feb. 1, according to an announcement published by them today. Increased cost of production is the reason assigned.

The morning dailies of San Francisco will be $1 a month instead of 90 cents. Two San Francisco evening papers will raise from 55 cents to 75 cents a month and from 3 cents to 5 cents a copy, while a third paper will sell at 60 cents per month instead of 55 and at 3 cents a copy instead of 2 cents. Approximately equal increases will be announced by two evening publications of Oakland.

NORTH DAKOTA BANK CLOSES

Other Closings Resulted in Withdrawals From Streeter Institution.

STREETER, N. D., Jan. 29.—The First National Bank here closed its doors today. Recent bank closings in this vicinity resulted in steady withdrawals from the First National Bank, creating a deficiency in reserves, according to W. E. Barringer, President.

"The closing is only temporary. Such action was decided as prudent at a meeting of the bank's officers," said Mr. Barringer.

The bank has capital and surplus of $30,000.

GOOD FURNITURE

last year's prices

LAST summer we anticipated, as did many other merchants, a drop in furniture prices and declined to place advance orders. Furniture prices did drop—late in November—when manufacturers became pressed for funds. We had cash and we used it to good advantage. We bought furniture—carloads of it—at prices from ¼ to ⅓ and, in a few instances, ½ less than last year.

The furniture is in. And fine, upstanding, companionable furniture it is. As we inspected it on its arrival and priced it (way below our regular lowest-in-the-city prices, of course) we realized that the 1921 Mid-Winter Sale was offering values unmatched in many years.

Included in the sale is about $115,000 worth of furniture from regular stock which has been reduced to conform with today's lowered replacement costs.

FOR LIQUOR FRAUD

Dry Agents Find Stolen Papers and Forged Permits on Men in Pittsburgh, Pa.

RAID WOMAN'S APARTMENT

Freight Load of "Sugar" and Cases of "Vinegar" on Pier Found to Be Beer and Whisky.

Two more men were arrested yesterday in Pittsburgh, Pa., in connection with the liquor frauds recently unearthed in New York by agents of Hugh McQuillan, head of the Special Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau. They were Benjamin L. Moses and Herman Satdler, who are said to have attended parties at the Hotel McAlpin, where many of the liquor schemes involving clerks in the office of Director O'Connor are alleged to have been planned.

Agents Murphy and Golding, who made the arrests in Pittsburgh, reported to Mr. McQuillan that they found on the men some stolen Government papers and a number of forged liquor withdrawal permits. The men were arrested on complaint made in Pittsburgh, and Mr. McQuillan did not know last night whether they would be tried in that city or brought here.

When revenue agents raided the apartment of Mrs. Mary A. Parkins, formerly a clerk in Director O'Connor's office, in the Hotel McAlpin some weeks ago they arrested, besides Mrs. Parkins, Edward Donegan, a Brooklyn contractor; Sigmund ("Beansy") Rosenfeld, and Miss Regina Sassone. Later they arrested William F. McCoy, formerly information clerk in Mr. O'Connor's office. All are under heavy bail. A few days ago Mrs. Volberg Castillio, also a former clerk, was arrested in Los Angeles, having disappeared from here soon after the arrests in the Hotel McAlpin.

Prohibition enforcement agents seized were 122 sugar barrels in the car, each containing 144 bottles of beer. Like the 40,000 bottles of beer confiscated on Friday, they were consigned to Sofia Brothers, 1,221 Intervale Avenue, the Bronx. No arrest was made yesterday.

SURPRISE FOR POLICE CHIEF.

Confiscated Liquor Stolen From His Office—Water Substituted.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 29.—What became of thirty gallons of grain alcohol which were stolen from the office of Chief of Police Frank Minnerley a short time ago threatens to cause scandal, with some prominent politicians implicated. Since the alcohol was stolen the Chief has learned that it has been sold in the town and some potent liquor made by combining it with prune juice and other soothing extracts. He says he will ask the Westchester Grand Jury to investigate. The cans, apparently containing alcohol, were taken to the Ossining hospital. When opened it was found they were filled with water and a little alcohol.

OFFERED HIS LIFE TO WIFE.

But Detroit Woman Says Husband Cut Her With Knife.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—Man could do no more for woman than Malcolm Smith, 304 Alfred Street, offered to do for his wife, according to the story he told when arraigned before Judge Heston today on the charge of assaulting his wife, Eva. He asserted he had offered to kill himself that she might have the man of her choice, and when she objected to this, fearing she might be charged with his murder, he volunteered to go to a distant State, remove all identification marks from his clothing, and there end his life.

According to Smith, a harmonious married life of four years was disrupted ten days ago when Mrs. Smith met and was attracted by another man. She was away several days, returning Thursday night to tell Smith she no longer loved him, he declared. He then offered his sacrifice, even sharpening a butcher's knife in preparation.

There was a dispute later in which Mrs. Smith was cut on the arm and leg, and the woman caused her husband's arrest.

—Alcohol to Five Concerns.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Ralph W. Stone, Prohibition Director for this district, announced today that henceforth alcohol deliveries will be refused to manufacturers of five well-known patent medicines. Numerous other proprietary medicines, the manufacturers of which are alleged to have done business on a grand scale since the advent of prohibition, will be added to the list soon, Mr. Stone said.

He estimated that in the last six months of 1920 his office issued 5,000 permits in Illinois alone to manufacturers of patent medicines to obtain alcohol.

The new ruling does not revoke permits now held, but no new withdrawal permits for the release of alcohol to manufacturers on the banned list will be approved, Mr. Stone said. Some of the products blacklisted today contain almost as high a percentage of alcohol as whisky, he added, and lately many cases of these particular brands have been discovered for sale in saloons by his agents.

IN BAFF MURDER

Joseph Cohen, Convicted as the Chief Conspirator, Alleges Perjury by Main Witness.

LIKE THE ROSENTHAL CASE

Ringleader Said to Have Sublet the Murder Contract, as Lieut. Becker Did.

The Baff case, one of the most complicated criminal cases or series of cases on record in New York, was complicated still further yesterday when John J. with Rose, Vallon and Schepps at the "Harlem conference" where the Rosenthal murder was planned. His testimony being that of a self-accomplice, Marshall became the keystone of the State's case against Becker.

Sorro's testimony, it is alleged, was practically identical in its effect to the Cohen confession as that of Marshall in the second Becker trial. Sorro was not an accomplice. He testified that he was present at the "Harlem conference" of the Baff case, which is alleged to have planned the Baff murder with the gunmen who executed it. The testimony of the alleged accomplices of Cohen would have been valueless without Sorro.

Milliners Sue Late Mrs. Hanan's Estate.

The estate of Mrs. Edith Evelyn Hanan, wife of the late John H. Hanan, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Bergdorf-Goodman Company, Fifth Avenue modistes, for $3,000 as the value of a baby lamb coat sold her Nov. 11, 1919. She died on Jan. 11, 1920, and her husband died a few months later.

Leaps After Old Man Who Fell on Tracks and Pulls Him to Safety.

Southbound express traffic on the Seventh Avenue subway was held up for more than ten minutes yesterday afternoon when an elderly man fell from the platform of the Pennsylvania station to the tracks.

A man, who declined to give his name, jumped after him and pulled him under the platform just as a train pulled in. The motorman saw the men on the track and applied the brakes. The train, however, did not stop until one car had passed them.

To Patrolman John Dempsey of the West Thirtieth Street station the man who had fallen said he was John C. Fish, 74 years old, of 45 Gunther Street, Corona, L. I., and that he had suf-

HIBBEN FOR CIGARETTES.

But Princeton President Urges Moderate Use of Them.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 29.—President Hibben of Princeton University takes issue with Chancellor James P. Day of Syracuse University in the latter's attack on cigarette smoking.

"Why should I object to cigarettes when I use them myself?" says Dr. Hibben. "Cigarette smoking should be in moderation, and that's as far as one can go with the Chancellor's rigid prohibition program."

Foss Predicts $1,000,000,000 Cut.

CANTON, Ohio, Jan. 29.—A cut of a billion dollars in the cost of government by the present Congress was predicted by Representative Foss of Ohio at the annual banquet of the McKinley Club today.

Paris Hats
Are Beguilingly Lovely

THEIR exotic colors—daringly gay or exquisitely delicate in tone. Their quaint turn of a brim, abruptly off the face, gently rolled in back or drooping gracefully over the eyes. Their fabrics of rare fineness, originality and charm, and their trimmings, as infinite in variety as the passing fancies of a woman.

All these you will find when you see the newest arrivals in the French Room—and much more besides. They are not, strictly speaking, Summer hats, yet by the same token they are not products of Winter. Rather do they possess an insinuation of each, which marks them as the golden mean—the entirely appropriate and satisfactory hat for present-moment wear.

YEAR'S SMUGGLING PUT AT $10,000,000

Collector Newton Finds Rapid Growth in Undeclared Goods Reaching City.

BORDER TRAFFIC INCREASES

Force Is Inadequate to Cope With Contraband Liquor and Drug Problem, He Says.

There has never been so much smuggling as at the present time, due to a general "moral influenza," according to Byron R. Newton, Collector of the Port, who estimated yesterday that at least $10,000,000 worth of smuggled goods were brought into New York last year through this port and from Canada.

Investigation has convinced Mr. Newton that there is an international drug ring with agents in Italy, Rotterdam and the Scandinavian ports which is engaged in smuggling rapidly increasing quantities of cocaine and heroin into New York, and that liquor smuggling has assumed such proportions that it is almost impossible to check it with the limited resources of the Customs Service.

In the last year more than $1,000,000 worth of goods was seized, and, although a large part of this was not smuggled, enough of it was to indicate the value of goods which slip past the customs guard. Mr. Newton believes that more than $300,000 worth of diamonds alone are smuggled into New York, and the situation is so serious that reputable merchants have complained to him that they are not able to compete with unprincipled dealers who bring gems in free of duty.

"The reputable dealers want the duty on precious stones removed or materially reduced, and I am inclined to believe that reduction of duties on small, easily smuggled articles of great value is the ultimate solution of the smuggling problem. There should be, in my opinion, a general revision of tariffs, with a view to reducing the duties to such a reasonable figure that it would not be profitable to run the risk of smuggling furs, jewels, laces and such articles.

"Our problem here is serious enough, however. Practically every cargo which comes into port is broached somewhere before it is landed, and large quantities of goods are taken out and smuggled in. Prohibition has had much to do with the growth of this kind of smuggling. Members of crews found that it was easy and profitable to smuggle liquor and they have extended their smuggling to other fields. They are rapidly becoming organized and have developed great skill in evading our inspectors. When you have only a few inspectors to cover 300 ships in the harbor, it is not hard to get liquor ashore without detection.

NEW PAPAL CALL FOR WORLD PEACE

Pontiff's Encyclical Is Especially Addressed to Third Order of St. Francis.

DEPLORES EVILS OF GREED

Links Them With Thirst for Pleasure as Principal Causes of Social and Moral Unrest.

ROME, Jan. 28.—Pope Benedict, on the occasion of the seventh centenary of the foundation of the Third Order of St. Francis of Assisi, addressed an encyclical today to all Bishops throughout the world, calling on all mankind to work for world peace and Christian reconciliation, invoking especially the assistance of all "children of Christian peace and those belonging to the Third Order."

"True peace," says the encyclical, "is impossible unless it is based on the tranquility of the soul. Therefore, Christian virtue is necessary. Tertiaries (the members of the Order) must diffuse Christian spirit and oppose the two worst contemporary evils, namely, the insatiable avidity to possess worldly goods and the unquenchable thirst for pleasure. These evils show themselves in perpetual contest between the proletariat and the rich, as well as in immodesty of women's dress and modern dancing.

"Let men follow St. Francis of Assisi, whose constant desire was to make himself Christlike in poverty, humility and self-sacrifice. Let women be convinced that they cannot better acquire merit toward the Church and their mother country than by working for the correction of corrupt customs."

His Holiness recapitulates the history of the foundation of the Third Order, emphasizing that St. Francis of Assisi especially wished that Tertiaries distinguish themselves by brotherly love. This evangelical precept, says the encyclical, which was so useful amid the civil discord of the Franciscan epoch, was a source of inspiration to Pope Benedict when the whole world was ravaged in the late war, and more so now, when very grave internal discords perturb so many countries.

The Pontiff concludes by urging the Bishops to increase as well as to revive associations of Tertiaries throughout the world, and calls attention to the fact that he himself is enrolled.

ACCEPTED BY HOUSE

Financier's House in London to Become Residence of American Ambassadors.

TO PURCHASE ONE IN PARIS

Opposition to New Budget System Delays Final Passage of Appropriation Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The House paved the way today for a new policy in reference to American diplomats when it agreed to amendments to the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill to accept the house in London offered by J. P. Morgan, its owner, as a residence for the American Ambassador and made provisions for buying an embassy building in Paris to cost $150,000.

Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, who has fought for more than ten years for appropriations for buying or building American diplomatic residences abroad, offered the amendment to appropriate $150,000 to purchase an embassy in Paris. He pleaded with the Democrats to accept the amendment, declaring that unless this Government owned embassies and legations it would be necessary to continue the policy of rent their own residences as undiplomatic and un-American and one which tended to keep the diplomatic service on a low plane, where only the rich received rewards for political contributions. The residences necessary for American Ambassadors at the capitals of Europe cost in rent more than their annual salaries, he said.

"The diplomatic and consular service offers no career," he declared, "because only the rich can afford to represent the United States. I, for one, want to see the efficient man in the service promoted, and the only way this will be possible is through making provisions for residences owned by the United States."

Mr. Morgan offered to the Government as a gift more than a year ago, the home of his father, at 13-15 Hyde Park. Nothing was done about it, and several weeks ago he notified the State Department that unless the gift was accepted by March 4 the offer would be withdrawn.

On a point of order the item of $250,000, known as post allowance, was stricken out of the appropriation bill and all attempts to provide higher salaries for American Consular agents in the countries with which we were at war failed. The post allowance was begun during the war, when the President was intrusted with a fund of $750,000 from which he could make special allowances to consular agents as additional compensation to make up for increased living costs. This was reduced to $250,000 in the pending measure.

The bill was reported to the House, but a group of members dissatisfied with the new budget system demanded a vote on all the amendments and the House adjourned before taking the vote.

As the session grows to a close the opposition to the budget system, which has relieved the Chairmen of important committees of any real prestige, increases. It became so active in raising points of order today that Representative Snell of New York, ranking Republican member of the Committee on Rules, and Representative Small of North Carolina declared that it was not in the interest of wise legislation and that the House should return to the old system.

COX VISITS THE CAPITOL.

Talks With Many Representatives—White to Remain Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio and Presidential candidate, who has been here five days consulting with Democratic leaders, called at the Capitol and spent more than an hour in the Democratic cloakroom of the House.

He chatted a long time with Representative Ashbrook, who was defeated in the last election after representing the Seventeenth Ohio District many years. "A tidal wave certainly hit you, too," said Mr. Cox to his old friend.

Some Democratic leaders expressed the hope that Mr. Cox would continue his activities and prevent the National Committee falling into the hands of the McAdoo forces. It became known today that efforts to change the Chairman had failed and that George White would continue in that capacity.

FERRI BEATEN BY STUDENTS.

Italian Editor Attacked for Defense of Imprisoned Socialists.

ROME, Jan. 29.—The Independent Socialist, Enrico Ferri, former editor of the Socialist newspaper Avanti, was attacked and beaten today by university students before whom he was lecturing because he had undertaken to defend Socialists imprisoned for violence against members of the Fascisti.

Signor Ferri finally escaped in an automobile, which was badly damaged.

LOBBY REVOLVES HIM

Says He Didn't "Hamstring" Lockwood Committee by Voting Against Inquiry.

TELLS OF CHANGE OF MIND

He Was "Advised" by Some One Against Banking and Insurance Investigation.

Assemblyman Thomas A. McWhinney, member of the Lockwood committee, who voted against the resolution which he introduced in the Assembly to extend the life and power of the Lockwood committee, yesterday issued a statement in which he denied that his vote had been influenced by any lobbyist or any other person.

"Such misrepresentations are unworthy of an honest press," he said. "I want to emphasize most emphatically three things:

"First, I never 'hamstrung' or turned on the Lockwood committee.

"Second, I did not 'reverse' or 'flip-flop.'

"Third—No lobbyist or any other person influenced or ever sought to influence my vote, nor do I believe they influenced any other affirmative vote on this resolution. I never talked to or had any conversation with any person representing any banking, insurance or trust company, or any other financial corporation on the subject.

"I vote according to my own conviction and my conscience. I am convinced I am right. I fight in the banking and insurance committee. He said "because it was necessary for our purpose."

This," he added, "I am now advised was not a correct view." After the clause giving the committee the power had been stricken out in committee, Mr. McWhinney said that he did not accept the amended resolution or decide to support it until I became convinced that this resolution as amended gave our committee adequate power to accomplish its purpose."

"I was advised, and still believe," continued the Assemblyman, "that this amended resolution gives our committee the broadest kind of powers to investigate banks, insurance companies, trust companies and all financial and other corporation, in so far as their actions in any way affect the housing or mortgage situation, the cost of loans, etc."

Mr. McWhinney expressed pride in "the work that our committee and its counsel has done," and added:

"I recognize also that a large number of legislators, as well as many serious-minded business men, believe that the time is inopportune to make any such investigation, even independently of any work before our committee.

"I do not resent legitimate criticism, but welcome it as an aid to a right point of view on my part. I wish to say, however, not in any threatening way, but in a very solemn way that if any individuals or newspaper libelously misrepresent my motives as a man or as a legislator they will be held by me to a strict accountability."

Obregon Appoints New War Minister

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The State Department has been informed from Mexico City that General Enrique Estrada has been appointed by President Obregon to be Secretary of War and Marine, succeeding General Hill, who died recently.

Charges of Forgery and Violation of Agreement Figure in Action.

LEGACY HAD BEEN PLEDGED

Verdict Upholds G. P. Smith in Tangle of Litigation Involving $500,000 Bequest.

A jury in the Supreme Court yesterday gave a verdict for George Pratt Smith, nephew of the late James Henry Smith, known as "Silent" Smith, in a suit brought against him by Samuel Barkin to recover $32,800 on notes made between 1917 and 1919, for which alleged assignments by Mr. Smith of his $500,000 legacy from his uncle were given as security. The case was on trial before Justice Giegerich for five days, and the verdict upheld the contention of the defendant that notes aggregating $19,000 were forged and that all were hypothecated with Barkin by S. Charles Sugarman and his brother, Joseph H. Sugarman, attorneys, without his consent and in violation of an agreement with them.

Barkin contended that the notes and the assignment of interest in the legacy were taken by him in good faith and that he advanced $36,800 in cash.

In his answer to the suit Mr. Smith alleged that shortly before he reached 30 years of age, on Dec. 22, 1919, and contended that he got them as a result of a conspiracy between the Sugarmans and Smith.

CALL A CONGRESS OF BALTIC STATES

Latvia and Esthonia Invite Poland and Lithuania to Discuss Economic Agreement.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The newly recognized Baltic States of Latvia and Esthonia have invited Poland and Lithuania to a congress at Riga. The meeting will take place as soon as the Russo-Polish peace treaty is definitely settled, which, it is hoped, will be not later than the middle of February. Its purpose is to reach an economic agreement which it is hoped will be the foundation for a political entente of the Baltic States and Poland, which hitherto it has been impossible to negotiate.

Poland and Lithuania have accepted the invitation, the former with the stipulation that her negotiations with Soviet Russia shall have been terminated when the congress convenes, the latter on the understanding that her neighbors will join her in advocating de jure recognition by France and England.

The two chief subjects of discussion will be tariffs—which includes importa-

Secondly, all four States have elaborate sets of tariffs, and no less elaborate lists of goods that may not be exported or imported. These vary constantly, with the result that interstate business is paralyzed.

Finally the centre of all real trade for Southeast Latvia, Lithuania and Northern Poland is Vilna, which is by far the most important junction north of Warsaw. But the Polish-Lithuanian dispute has completely barred Vilna from traffic.

If the Baltic States are to continue their separate existence the need for a rail and tariff agreement is urgent and vital.

Chinese Protest Loan.

The San Francisco headquarters of the Kuo Min Tang, the Chinese Nationalist Party, has authorized its 200 branches in the United States to advise American banks not to loan money to the Pekin Government, it was announced yesterday by T. V. Chu, Secretary in New York. It was alleged by him that to do so would mean that civil war in China would be prolonged.

Unions Order Referendum on Reduction of 10 to 20 Per Cent. to Revivify Industry.

60,000 TO 75,000 AFFECTED

Action Is Result of Negotiations With Bethlehem and Atlantic Coast Associations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Decision as to acceptance by between 60,000 and 75,000 skilled workers in American shipyards of a reduction of from 10 to 20 per cent. in wages as a means of revivifying the industry was put up to the men today by officials of labor organizations including most of the yard employes in their membership.

A general referendum was ordered on wage reduction proposals of the Atlantic Coast Shipbuilders' Association and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. Labor leaders here were unable to forecast the result, which, they said, would not be known before the middle of February at the earliest.

With decreased labor charges proposed as the initial move in the program to cut production costs in order that American yards might compete with foreign builders, it was suggested by some leaders here that a counter-proposal might be made to the workers that employers share in the "sacrifice."

The opinion was expressed that the workers would be more likely to acquiesce in a wage cut if assured that the employers would accept a smaller return on investment. It was not known, however, that any proposal along these lines had been presented formally at the conferences in New York and Philadelphia.

Proposals made to the union leaders at conferences held with the Bethlehem company in New York and with a committee from the Atlantic Coast yards in Philadelphia were identical, it was said today, except that the former indicated a desire to put the new scale into effect not later than Feb. 14, while the latter offered to wait until March 1.

The proposal of the shipbuilders was that the 10 per cent. bonus, added in 1917 by an arbitration board, headed by Charles Piez, of the Shipping Board as a temporary increase, and made an integral part of the regular wage schedules in 1919, be eliminated. This bonus brought the base pay of the skilled mechanics to 80 cents an hour.

Offers Premium for Efficiency.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 29.—The proposal submitted by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation to its employes calls for wage reductions averaging from 10 to 20 per cent., but provides for the payment of bonuses for efficiency and increased production. This was made known here today at the close of conferences between E. H. Ewertz, general manager of the Moore plant of the Bethlehem Corporation, and committees of employes.

The corporation's proposal, submitted with the idea of reducing production costs 25 per cent., is understood to be in the form of a plan whereby greater efficiency on the part of the individual workers will be rewarded in the pay envelope. The bonus for efficiency, it was stated, will amount to as much, and in some cases, more than the wage cut.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Immediate action in every community, to provide work for the unemployed, in order to avoid soup kitchens and bread lines, was urged today by Richard K. Conant, State Commissioner of Public Welfare. The demands for temporary relief now being made upon overseers of the poor in cities and towns showed that the situation was rapidly becoming worse, he said.

Mr. Conant advised the organization of a committee on unemployment in each community to obtain the co-operation of individuals, to act as a clearing house for the various charitable agencies giving relief, and to assist in providing work on public improvements.

Savings accumulated by wage earners during the last few years are now helping large numbers of the unemployed, according to Mr. Conant. Charges that workers squandered their money during the period of high wages he termed entirely unfounded.

EXTENDS BUILDING COURSES

City College Adds Mechanics and Plan Reading and Estimating.

To meet an urgent demand from architects, contractors and builders, the City College authorities have decided to add courses in mechanics and plan reading and estimating to the present series of evening building construction courses. The course in mechanics is designed particularly for those employed in the offices of architects, builders and contractors who have not had a thorough training in or who wish to review this important subject.

The course in plan reading and estimating is designed to help those who wish to become more expert in the reading of building plans and the estimation of quantities and costs therefrom. A novel feature of this course will be the study of plans of buildings now being constructed, together with inspection trips to the same buildings.

Information concerning these new courses and the other courses in building construction may be obtained by addressing Professor F. O. X. McLoughlin at the college. Registration for all courses opens Jan. 31.

Hat Workers Accept Cut to $8 a Day

ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 29.—A 20 per cent. decrease in wages was accepted today by Hat Finishers' Local 4 of the Orange district. According to the vote, which was unanimous, the men will go back to the "bill of prices" of November, 1919, which gave them $8 a day instead of the $10 allowed by the present bill.

SPRINGTIME IN BOSTON.

Marbles, Baseball, Robins and Blooming Wild Flowers in Evidence.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Spring was in the air today. Small boys played marbles, baseball games were seen on several sandlots, and robins chirruped overhead. In the woods of Plymouth the trailing arbutus, New England's May flower, was picked by automobile parties. Dandelions were plucked on the North Shore.

It was the January thaw, with little to loosen. Overshoes, which ordinarily are in big demand at this season, were a drug on the market. Weather Bureau reports of snowfall have yet to pass hundredths of an inch. Oldest inhabitants are conning their records to find precedents.

BLAMES JAPANESE SENTRY.

Preliminary Report to Vladivostok Court Against Langdon's Slayer.

TOKIO, Jan. 28.—The preliminary report of the Japanese gendarmes to the court-martial in the case of the sentry who recently shot and killed Lieutenant W. H. Langdon, of the United States cruiser Albany, has found the sentry's action contrary to the regulations and unjustifiable, according to a Vladivostok dispatch to the Jiji Shimpo.

SQUASH CHAMPION

Takes National Class B Title in Hard-Fought Struggle With Whitlock.

WINS THREE OF FOUR GAMES

Yale Man Superior in Versatility and Courtcraft, but Is Hard Pressed by Harvard Rival.

Thomas R. Coward of the Yale Club became the national Class B squash tennis champion yesterday afternoon, when he defeated F. H. Whitlock of the Harvard Club in the final round of the tournament at the Squash Club by three games to one, scoring 15—4, 10—15, 15—8, 15—8. Coward was expected to win, but there were few in yesterday's large gallery who anticipated a struggle so prolific of the finest sort of squash as that which actually came to pass.

Whitlock, defeated though he was, shared almost equally in the honors. After the first game, in which he had not yet struck his stride, the Harvard man played splendid squash and forced Coward to the limit of his ability to carry off the victory. Whitlock not only won the second game, but made the play in the third and fourth games far closer than is reflected in the point scores.

Coward's triumph, coming in his first season of tournament play, was the culmination of a long series of successes which bid fair to carry him high into the Class A ranks. In fact, apart from the opening game, both Coward and Whitlock played squash of Class A quality yesterday. There was evidence in Coward's performance that only a member of the first ten could have defeated him and some of the members of that select circle would have had their troubles in accomplishing the feat.

Coward Is More Versatile.

There was little lacking on the part of either man, once they had their games running smoothly. Both hit hard and close above the telltale. Both made wonderful gets. Each played consistently to the other's backhand, and both handled the shots with the greatest adroitness and dexterity of wrist movement. It was in the fact that he had a somewhat wider variety of shots and a greater ability to mix them up that Coward had his chief advantage. The Yale man, especially as the game progressed, was forced to depend almost entirely on his own placements. He had to put the ball where it could not be reached in order to gain the point, so steady was Whitlock's play and so few were his errors. In the last game, especially almost every ace that went to Coward's credit was an earned point. Some of Whitlock's gets were marvelous, one in particular in the third game eliciting gasps of admiration from the gallery.

But Coward's play was just as steady, and in the end his superiority of courtcraft carried the day. However hot the rally, he never lost his head and never overlooked a chance to put the ball away for keeps. His powers of anticipation were never more effectively demonstrated, and his execution of his placements was beautiful to behold. Both men applied plenty of steam to their shots, but Coward obtained most of the kills, and gained additional advantage by inserting a change of pace at exactly the right moment.

Only seven innings were needed for the Yale man to capture the first game. He had three runs of 4 each, and won at 15—4. Whitlock appeared to be a bit nervous and was considerably off form in this game. The second told a different story, however. This was a long-drawn-out affair, which Whitlock won at 15—10 after twenty-two innings. Both men had numerous scoreless hands. After Whitlock had worked the score up to 14—9, he missed the game ball four times before he could finally put it away with a placement along the side wall. The rallies were long and keen in this game and they kept getting more so right up to the end of the battle.

Holds Lead to Finish.

Coward took the lead in the third game with a run of 5 in his second hand and held it to the finish, the final point going to the Yale man on a telltale. The fourth and last game was a fitting climax to a brilliant demonstration, both men shooting like demons and both missing the return so rarely that every other point at least had to be earned. Coward was in the van practically all the way, but with Whitlock playing as brilliantly as he did, he was never secure from danger. The match point went to the Yale expert when Whitlock missed an around-the-court shot that had an especially vicious sting.

TILDEN TO PLAY IN FRANCE.

Champion Will Seek Tennis Honors There Next Summer.

Announcement was made yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association that William T. Tilden, 2d, national champion, and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, national women's champion, would be sent to France to compete in the championships of the French Association early next Summer. The association has sent word to that effect to France, together with an expression of the hope that France will reciprocate by sending Mlle. Lenglen and possibly other players to compete in American tournaments. Tilden and Mrs. Mallory will also visit England again next Summer.

KINSELLA CONQUERS REID.

Professional Champion Victor in Scintillating Squash Struggle.

Walter A. Kinsella, professional squash tennis champion, was the victor yesterday afternoon in a special match with James T. Reid, professional of the Crescent Athletic Club, played on the Crescent courts. Conceding Reid a handicap of five aces, Kinsella won in five games that were productive of the sort of squash that keeps a gallery gasping. One scintillating shot followed another, both men making almost miraculous gets and keeping the ball in play on the most desperate sort of chances. It was in his ability to change pace at critical stages that Kinsella maintained the edge over his adversary. The scores in Kinsella's favor were 15—17, 15—10, 16—17, 15—6, 15—10, and it required two and a quarter hours to play through the five games.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 29.—With the disclosure of plans for better accommodations and facilities, not alone for the midshipmen, but visiting athletes as well, came the announcement today of a gift of $200,000 to the Naval Academy for a new boathouse for the rowing crews. The American Bankers' Association is the donor, it was stated. Some 2,000 or more members of the association visited the academy last Fall as a side trip to their annual convention at Washington. They expressed astonishment, it is said, at the dingy building in which the world's champion crew had to store its shell, and the gift was the result.

NEW YORKERS WIN IN TENNIS SERIES

Make Clean Sweep Against Philadelphia in Concluding Match of Intercity Play.

For their defeat the preceding week in Philadelphia, New York racquet wielders obtained revenge yesterday afternoon in the concluding event of the intercity series in racquets and court tennis. Playing in court tennis at the Racquet and Tennis Club, the New Yorkers made a clean sweep of all four matches. In the previous event at Philadelphia the Quaker City representatives had won three matches to one at racquets. The court tennis series, like that in racquets the preceding week, consisted of doubles matches exclusively.

To gain this sweeping victory the local experts, in one of their matches, had to defeat a team which included the national open and amateur champion at court tennis, Jay Gould. Suydam and Fulton Cutting, playing for New York, defeated Gould and Russell Thayer of Philadelphia in the feature match of the day, a marathon of a struggle, which went the limit of five bitterly fought sets before a decision could be arrived at. The three other matches were won and lost in straight sets.

The match which was won by the Cutting brothers was the one genuine tussle of the day. The set scores tell the story to a large extent. They were 1—6, 6—3, 0—6, 6—5, 6—4. Gould and Thayer were handicapped by lack of teamwork. They had had little practice together and had not previously been paired in match play. The champion played practically the whole match himself, so far as his side was concerned. Thayer missed a good many shots he should have made, and the result was that Gould, endeavoring to take no chances, shouldered too great a burden and in the fifth and decisive set tired perceptibly. At that he was easily the strongest player on the court.

The Cuttings, on the other hand, played like a smooth-running machine. Suydam was the steadier of the brothers and the surer in his placements, while Fulton had the greater speed. Gould and Thayer directed the greater part of their shots toward Fulton Cutting, but the New Yorker stood up admirably under the hammering. Suydam Cutting seemed to have the range of the tambour more accurately than any other man on the court and this gave his side frequent advantage.

The summaries:

Payne Whitney and C. E. Sands, New York, defeated George Brooke and Schofield Andrews, Philadelphia, 6—3, 6—3, 6—0; Maurice Roche and J. H. Smith Jr., New York, defeated W. J. McGlynn and S. Roberts, Philadelphia, 6—1, 6—0, 6—2; C. Suydam and Fulton Cutting, New York, defeated Jay Gould and Russell Thayer, Philadelphia, 1—6, 6—3, 0—6, 6—5, 6—4; Hewitt Morgan and Edgar Leonard, New York, defeated J. Bell and Daniel Hutchinson 3d, Philadelphia, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1.

ANDERSON BEATS CRAGIN.

Surprises Gallery by Victory in 7th Regiment Tennis Tourney.

Fred C. Anderson was the outstanding figure in the continuation of the indoor tennis tournament for the championship of the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club yesterday afternoon at the armory at Sixty-fifth Street and Park Avenue. The tall Brooklyn star accomplished the unexpected in the third round of the singles by eliminating Arthur S. Cragin, many times club champion and veteran of a multitude of indoor tourneys since he was runner-up for the national doubles championship back in 1903. Anderson and Cragin have met many times previously on the Seventh Regiment courts, and yesterday's match marked the Brooklynite's first victory.

The summaries:

Class A Singles, Second Round—Jay Anderson defeated J. D. Ewing, 6—2, 6—4; A. S. Cragin defeated S. R. McAllister, 6—4, 2—6, 10—8.

Third Round—George Moore Jr. defeated Morris Clark, 6—1, 6—2; Merritt Cutler defeated R. K. Tomlin Jr., 6—0, 6—1; Fred C. Anderson defeated A. S. Cragin, 3—6, 6—1, 6—4.

Class A Doubles, Second Round—Merritt Cutler and S. R. McAllister defeated Morris Clark and Jay Anderson, 8—6, 6—4, 6—4; George Moore Jr. and James D. Ewing defeated R. K. Tomlin Jr. and A. E. Hart, 7—5, 1—6, 7—5.

VICTORY FOR FORDHAM.

Defeats Catholic University in Basketball by Score of 25 to 20.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29.—Crossed by its own strategy, Catholic University's basketball team for the second time this season met defeat on its home floor tonight. The Brooklanders' short-passing game bewildered Fordham in the first half of the encounter and at recess time the locals were leading, 11 to 8. In the second period, Fordham turned the tables. Employing the same style of attack that had proved so successful for the home five, the New Yorkers kept the play under the Catholic University's basket the greater part of the half and amassed points enough to emerge from the contest winners by a score of 25 to 20.

The line-up:

FORDHAM (25).		CATHOLIC U. (20).
Fallon	L. F.	Lynch
Healey	R. F.	Dunn
Gordon	C.	Donovan
Culleton	L. G.	Gleason
J. Kelley	R. G.	Fosce

Substitutions—Catholic U.: McNamara for Dunn, O'Brien for McNamara, W. Kelley for O'Brien.

Goals from Floor—Lynch (2), Dunn, W. Kelley, Fosce (2), Fallon (4), Healey (2), Gordon (3). Goals from Foul—Lynch (8), Gordon (7).

Referee—Schlosser, Georgetown. Umpire—Guyon, Carlisle. Time of Halves—Twenty minutes.

GOLF VICTORY FOR KNIGHT.

Florida Linksman Beats Clark in St. Augustine Final by 3 and 2.

Special to the New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 29.—Donald Clark of West Virginia, medal winner of the current golf tournament, after fighting his way clear to the final round, lost to William A. Knight, former Florida State champion, today by a score of 3 up and 2 to play. Knight played excellent golf.

DATES FOR GOLF FIXTURE.

Open Championship to Be Contested in Washington, July 19-22.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The dates of the open golf championship tournament of the United States, to be played over the course of the Columbia Country Club here, were announced tonight as July 19 to 22.

LEADS AMERICANS

Wheeler Wins Canadian Amateur Title, With Jewtraw of Lake Placid Second.

JOE MOORE IN POOR FORM

New Yorker Gets Only Two Third Places—Distance Races Go to United States Entrants.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Jan. 29.—Russell Wheeler, of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, won the Canadian amateur speed-skating championship here this afternoon at the M. A. A. open air rink, taking three firsts for a total of 90 points.

Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B., who with a total of 70 points had a chance to win the championship in the last race, the two-mile event, in case Wheeler did not place, fell on the last lap and lost his opportunity. Another mixup on the last turn also put Wheeler out of the race and allowed Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid to win the race and finish second in the championship contest with a total of 80 points. Mike Goodman of Winnipeg and Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B., tied for third with 70 points each.

The United States entries did their best work in the long distance events, their men taking all the places in the mile race and two out of three in the two-mile and half-mile competitions.

Moore Not Up to Expectations.

Joe Moore of New York, of whom much was expected, failed to get better than two third places, these in the half-mile and the mile, though he qualified in a number of the other events.

This was the first Canadian skating championship competition held in the East in several years. Entries from the United States and from Eastern and Western Canada, with the Montreal speeders, constituted the finest galaxy of speed skaters ever seen here. The weather conditions were ideal for the meet, the temperature not being cold enough to keep the attendance down and yet cold enough to maintain the ice in ideal condition.

Russell Wheeler won the 220-yard and the 440-yard events this afternoon after winning the half-mile backward race last night. In both days' contests Wheeler easily outskated his opposition in the last lap, when he took the lead with a great spurt and was never thereafter headed until the cord had been broken.

Declines to Set Pace.

In the earlier events of the day, outside entries seemed to be watching Wheeler closely, there being an evident desire on the part of the other skaters to let him do the pacing. This he invariably refused to do, with the result that he finished his events strongly. Toward the close of the afternoon, particularly in the long distance races, Wheeler showed signs of being wearied by the long and tiring program. He fell in the mile race and again in the two-mile event.

Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid was the star of the entries from the United States. Showing wonderful stamina, he led the way home in the mile and two-mile events. On both occasions, he showed a burst of speed at the finish, and was apparently fresh after crossing the line. Among the United States entries, Al Leitch of Lake Placid, Bobby Hearn of New York and Joe Moore also of New York, showed up fairly well.

The summaries:

220 Yards, Final Heat—Won by R. L. Wheeler, Montreal; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., second; William Murphy, New York, third. Time—21 seconds.

440 Yards, Final Heat—Won by R. L. Wheeler, Montreal; Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, second; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., third. Time—40 1-5 seconds.

Half Mile, Final Heat—Won by A. Leitch, Lake Placid; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., second; Joe Moore, New York, third. Time—1 minute 35 4-5 seconds.

220 Yards, Final Heat—Won by M. Goodman, Winnipeg; E. C. Stephenson, Toronto, second; Bobby Hearn, New York, third. Time—20 1-5 seconds.

One Mile, Final Heat—Won by Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., second; Joe Moore, New York, third. Time—3 minutes 12 seconds.

Two Miles, Final Heat—Won by Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid; M. Goodman, Winnipeg, second; A. Leitch, Lake Placid, third. Time—6 minutes 12 seconds.

Point Score.

R. L. Wheeler, Montreal, 90; Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, 80; Mike Goodman, Winnipeg, 70; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., 70; Al Leitch, Lake Placid, 40; E. C. Stephenson, Toronto, 20; Joe Moore, New York, 20; William Murphy, New York, 10; Bobby Hearn, New York, 10; Valentine Bialas, Saranac Lake, 10.

POSTPONE SKATING RACES.

New York-Chicago Schoolboys to Compete for Championship Feb. 26.

Because more time is needed to select a team, it has been found advisable to postpone the intercity skating championships between schoolboys of New York and Chicago, which was scheduled to be held at the Brooklyn Ice Palace Feb. 5. A telegram was received yesterday from Julian T. Fitzgerald, Chairman of Mayor Thompson's Ice Skating Committee, requesting the postponement, and the date has now been fixed for Feb. 26.

VAN HOUTEN WINS FINAL.

Defeats Colburn Handily in Tomoka Golf Sweepstakes.

Special to The New York Times.

HOTEL ORMOND, Ormond Beach, Fla., Jan. 29.—The Tomoka Sweepstakes tourney was finished here today in a flood of sunshine which made the competing golfers glad to be alive. Among those who had still more cause for gladness were E. E. Van Houten, Arcola; J. J. Gray, Nashville; Donn Byrne, Woodway, and E. M. Gatliff, Covington, Ky. These rejoiced doubly because they won in their respective classes.

Van Houten won the first division final, defeating Colburn, Asheville, 4 up and 3 to play. The winner had an easier time than was expected.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 29.—Dartmouth's student body has reached and passed the quota of $16,000 set for the undergraduates in the campaign to raise $300,000 for the building of a new athletic field as a memorial to Dartmouth's war heroes. The students have pledged $22,650, and this amount does not include pledges of more than 100 men who have not yet been heard from. The new field will comprise two new football gridirons, three baseball diamonds, three hockey rinks, eleven tennis courts and a new concrete grand stand. A new wing, corresponding to the one now enclosing the Spaulding Pool, will be added to the Alumni gymnasium after the other project has been completed.

TIGER HOCKEY TEAM EASY FOR HARVARD

Crimson Seven Takes First of Series With Princeton on Boston Rink by 7 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—The Harvard varsity hockey team easily won the opening game of its series with Princeton at the Arena tonight, 7,500 fans turning out for the first big intercollegiate game of the season here. The Crimson's victory was 7 to 0, made possible by most efficient team play, the wings and centre men combining beautifully.

Princeton made a good start and Ehret, Knox and Haight got in some good shots, but when the Crimson's attack was well in motion, three goals were ripped off in short order, before the intermission. Snelling made two of these on passes from Bigelow, and Owens and Bacon counted on a rebound.

In the second period, Dick Humphrey scored in 42 seconds from the face-off, and on a line shot from in front of the goal. Humphrey dribbled right up to the net and then fired away. When four goals in the lead, Harvard sent in its substitute string, but the Tigers still could not score. In the last period Harvard's regulars caged the puck three more times, while the Jerseymen were unable to save a shut-out. In this period Emmons, Bigelow and Bacon did the execution. Toward the end of the game the Tigers were badly disorganized.

The line-up:

HARVARD (7).		PRINCETON (0).
Holmes	G.	Maxwell
Humphrey	P.	Wonham
Owen	C. P.	Haight
Bacon	L. W.	Keyes
Snelling	C.	Knox
Bigelow	R.	Lincoln
Emmons	R. W.	Ehret

Goals—Snelling (2), Bacon (2), Bigelow, Emmons, Humphrey.

Substitutions—Harvard: Angier for Bacon, Baker for Emmons, C. Stillman for Holmes, Martin for Snelling, Gratwick for Humphrey, Larocque for Bigelow, Bacon for Angier, Emmons for Baker, Holmes for C. Stillman, Snelling for Martin, Humphrey for Gratwick, E. Stillman for Owen; Princeton: Merritt for Lincoln, Brown for Ehret, Lincoln for Merritt, Tallman for Lincoln, Corcoran for Keyes, Ehret for Brown.

Referees—Gaw and Rocque. Goal Umpires—Edwards and Larocca. Timers—Kanaly and Murphy. Time of Periods—Three of 15 minutes each.

FORDHAM STILL WINNING.

Maroon Hockey Team Makes Massachusetts Aggies a Victim, 8 to 3.

Fordham University's successful hockey team lived up to the advance predictions of its admirers last night when it defeated the Massachusetts Aggies team by the score of 8 to 3 in a speedy and well played game at the 181st Street Ice Palace.

It was the liveliest and best game the local team has taken part in so far this year. Duncan and McPherson were the stars of the local sextet while McCarthy had a shade over his mates on the Aggies.

The line-up:

FORDHAM (8).		MASS. AGGIES (3).
Duncan	R. W.	McCarthy
G. Noonan	C.	Lyons
McGurk	L. W.	Mansell
J. Noonan	C. P.	Poole

Powers	G.	Newell

Goals—First period—Duncan, 2:50; Collins, 4:02; McPherson, 9:45; Duncan, 10:20; McGurk, 16:00. Second period—Duncan, 6:01. Third period—McCarthy, 0:35; Mansell, 9:30; G. Noonan, 12:00; G. Noonan, 14:00.

Penalties—First period—G. Noonan, 2m., tripping; Lyons, 2m., holding; McPherson, 2m., roughing; Collins, 2m., roughing. Third period—J. Noonan, 2m., roughing; Poole, 2m., holding; Duncan, 1m., tripping; McCarthy, 2m., roughing.

Referees—Tom Howard and Tom Lynch. Timekeepers—E. Amy and R. Distler. Time—Three periods of fifteen minutes.

ARMY IN HOCKEY TIE.

Spirited Battle With Springfield Ends in 3 to 3 Deadlock.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Army and Springfield went to a 3—3 tie score after a spirited and hard played hockey game today. The contest on Lusk Reservoir was the opening of the Army's hockey season and was thrilling all the way. The teams went into a ten-minute extra period in an endeavor to settle the tie, but the effort was fruitless.

The line-up:

ARMY (3).		SPRINGFIELD (3).
Kastner	G.	Begg
Marinelli	P.	Talbot
Stout	C. P.	Starr
Woods	C.	Fink
O'Connell	R.	Leonard
Grant	L. W.	Noren

MACKMEN'S RANKS FILLING.

Only One of Athletics Has Thus Far Failed to Sign Contract.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American League baseball team, announced here tonight that every member of the club except one had signed a contract for the coming season. The player missing from the fold, whose name the manager refused to reveal, received his contract only a day or two ago, it was explained.

AT N. Y. A. C. TRAPS

Wins High Scratch Prize, With Card of 98—Bristol Takes Two Fixtures.

Seventy-five gunners, the largest field that has shot at Travers Island so far this Winter, took part in the weekly shoot of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. Not only was the field a record one, but the scores were decidedly better than the ones turned in each week. The high scratch gunner was E. D. Anderson, who had the excellent score of 98 out of a possible 100 targets. He also was the winner of a leg on the Buermeyer Cup with a full score of 50 targets.

Being the final Saturday of the month, the weekly fixtures all came to an end. The largest winner was J. I. D. Bristol, who took both the Haslin and the Monthly Cup shoots. The Club Cup went to C. A. Brown. Dr. G. H. Martin won the Distance Handicap.

BOSTON HOCKEY TEAM WINS.

St. Nicholas Loses U. S. Association Game in Philadelphia, 3-2.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—In a game marked by brilliant plays the Boston Shoe Trades defeated St. Nicholas of New York in three fifteen-minute periods in a United States Amateur Hockey Association game, 3 to 2, at the Ice Palace tonight. After both teams had twice been on even terms the Boston aggregation clinched the victory in the final three minutes.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 29.—Ohio State students are now learning the Wilce system of football in the classroom, Dr. Wilce, the varsity gridiron coach, having begun a course of instruction in the university. With his football duties out of the way for the present, Dr. Wilce is teaching the young idea the latest gridiron theories and tactics, including the various football systems of the country. Dr. Wilce's own system, which has gained marked success at Ohio State during the last eight years, is taken up in the course, which calls for one hour of classroom study each week. Many students have registered.

WINNING STREAK OF NAVY FIVE BROKEN

Midshipmen Are Defeated by Delaware, 21-19, After 11 Straight Victories.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 29.—The Naval Academy lost at basketball here this afternoon to Delaware College by 21 to 19. It was the Navy's first defeat of the season after eleven straight victories had been chalked up to its credit. During most of the game the Middies led, and the whole contest was marked by the finest and most spirited kind of playing.

Garden Is Transformed for Annual Sportsman's Show—Swimmers Delayed.

If any portion of the United States is missing, say part of the backwoods of Maine or the reaches along the Virginia or Carolina coast, where one goes to wing the airplaning wild duck, it need cause the geographers no worry—said portion has but been removed, temporarily, to Madison Square Garden, where the Sportsman's Show is proving to New Yorkers that their right little, not-so-tight-as-formerly little island is but a negligible speck on the map. "All outdoors under one roof" ought to be the slogan of the show. If it hasn't been adopted as such, Tex Rickard, who this year is, for the first time, promoting the sportsman's classic for the shut-in of the city, has overlooked a bet.

There was some delay in starting the swimming competitions which are to be a daily feature of the show. Water, which some consider essential to successful aquatic performance, was lacking in the tank at the time the doors of the Garden were swung open to the public. Before many hours had passed, however, lines of fire hose were purveying the desired liquid to the yawning tank at the rate of several thousand gallons per minute, and the various feminine stars with Olympic records, scheduled to appear on the opening day, were called over the telephone and ordered to cut short their afternoon tea and hop into their swimming togs. Not having much to get into, the command was speedily executed.

Among the mermaids of international fame who will disport themselves in the Croton fluid purchased by Rickard are Charlotte Boyle, Alice Lord, Helen Wainwright, Irene Guest and Helen Donahue. But these are only a few of the many water wizardettes who are down for the various swimming events held in connection with the show.

The squared circle for the amateur boxing contests, requiring nothing to fill it but the boxers, who did not have to be inducted through the narrow orifice of a fire hose, was ready on time, and the first of the bouts—there will be a tournament of them, with matches every day but today—was staged as billed. The shooting gallery likewise was ready for its battering, and the uninterrupted ping-ping of the bullets against the steel back-stop furnished a pleasurable orchestration for the show. The United States Volunteer Life Saving booth having been set up adjacent, the timid may calm all fears.

The exhibits on the floor of the great arena and in the booths along the sides display everything to allure the city visitor out into life in the wild. Sir Isaak Walton could find here every variety of fly he ever used and a hundred new ones he never dreamed of. Boats, safe punts for the amateur duck hunter, tease one to marshy shores. If it be camp life the spectator yearns after, tents are shown in abundance, or if one prefers, there is the portable house to be investigated. Even transportation into the deer and moose and fishing country has not been neglected, for there is the trailer for one's automobile, with its sleeping quarters set up, to show how easy it may be made not only to get out of doors, but to live there.

In the day's trapshooting for amateurs, fifty targets at 16 yards, J. B. Hampton, New York, was high gun with a 100 per cent. score. Mark Arie, Champagne, Ill., led the professionals with 49.

In the amateur boxing tournament, I. Bauer, Union Settlement, knocked out Ben Rosenthal, Pastime A. C., in two rounds. Weight, 125 pounds.

J. Recht, Educational Alliance, won the decision over J. Vedone, Union Settlement. Weight, 128 pounds.

The swimming results were as follows:

100-Yard Handicap Swim, Men—Won by Stephen Ruddy, N. Y. A. C. (8 seconds); J. Egge (12 seconds), unattached, second; G. V. Kersten (12 seconds), Central Y. M. C. A., third. Time—1:11 1-5.

100-Yard Handicap Swim, Women—Won by Jean Fitzsimmons, Women's Athletic Club, Brooklyn (19 seconds); Anna Surda (7 seconds), N. Y. W. S. A., second; Charlotte Boyle (scratch), N. Y. W. S. A., third. Time—0:58.

Fancy Dive, Women—Won by Alice Lord, N. Y. W. S. A., 81.61 points; Helen Meany, N. Y. W. S. A., second, with 75.85 points; Helen Wainwright, N. Y. W. S. A., third, with 73.93 points.

Basketball Teams Split Even.

Basketball teams of Poly Prep School and Kingsley School split even yesterday in a brace of games on the former's court in Brooklyn. Kingsley's first quintet was victorious by 20 to 13. The contest between the second teams resulted in a triumph for Poly Prep by 22 to 7.

McGraw Decides on Young Players Who Will Go to Training Camp.

Professor John J. McGraw, the eminent specialist, will conduct an extensive course in the therapeutics and practice of baseball for the benefit of twenty promising students at San Antonio, Texas, beginning just about a month from now. That many recruits, it has just been decided, will accompany the veterans of the Giants' squad to the training grounds and the veteran manager has an idea that a far greater proportion of them than usual are going to linger around in big league circles. He thinks there's a lot of cream in this batch of milk.

Included in the array of youngsters are seven pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders and, peculiarly enough, only two outfielders. Curtis Walker, who was purchased from the Augusta club of the South Atlantic League just before the close of the 1920 season, is the first specimen of ranger of the wide spaces included in the list. He played in one or two of those final games last Autumn, when the fans had to find out who it was every time a man came up to bat, and performed creditably. Curtis Walker, who was signed Friday, is the other outfielder.

The twirlers, upon whom alert and anxious eyes will be fixed down there under the Texas sun, are as follows: Claude E. Davenport, Patrick Shea, Otis Voigt, Robert L. Grody, William D. Ryan, Virgil Barnes and James C. Garton. Let this serve as a formal introduction and an assurance that these are their real names. If any of them survive the rays of the McGraw searchlight and enter the Polo Grounds box this year, they will be known only as Reddy or Fat.

Davenport is a right hand pitcher who was bought from San Antonio last Fall and worked out cleverly in his sole appearance on the mound here. He is cast of the most altitudinous human beings upon whom the incredulous eyes of the fans were ever fixed, boasting, or apologizing for, six feet seven inches of length. He weighed only about 170 pounds when seen in action here last year, but is said to have taken on 20 robust pounds since then. He will probably be affectionately dubbed "Derrick" if he makes good with McGraw's forces.

McGraw paid Toronto $12,000 for Shea last August, but he did not report to the local club, as the Leafs needed him in their futile effort to head off the Orioles. He was the crack pitcher of the New International League in 1920, although Bill Ryan, who was recalled from Toronto by the Giants late in the season, gave him a close rub for the honors. Each of these artists uses the starboard limb exclusively in assailing the foe.

Voigt, a left-hander, was purchased from the Rockford, Ill. team, and Grody, a right-hander, didn't fatten anybody's coffers by joining the New York clan, for he was a free agent. He is a local lad, and was one of the three survivors of McGraw's kindergarten last Fall. Virgil Barnes, a brother of Jess, was recalled from Rochester in time to pitch one game at the close of the last campaign. He uses his right wing. Garton, a port side twirler, was recalled from San Antonio by way of Shreveport.

Alexander Gaston, Leo Dixon and Walter B. Henline are the catchers who will report at San Antonio. All are from the American Association. Gaston is said to be a hummer, or, if one prefers the more complicated Greek term, a humdinger. He was taken over from Milwaukee and a stiff price was paid. Some very competent observers have paid him the highest possible compliment by rating him as a coming Ray Schalk. Dixon comes here from the Indianapolis team, which had him on option after the Giants had bought him from Rock Island. Henline was also taken over from Indianapolis. Experts disagree as to his promise, but Jack Hendricks, manager of the Indianapolis team, thinks he is a wonder.

The infielders are Roy Grimes, purchased from Bridgeport; Ewel Grant, San Antonio; John A. Monroe, Beaumont, Texas; Lance Richbourg, Toledo; Joseph Rapp, St. Paul; Leo V. Karr, Hartford, and Howard L. Burkett and Raymond C. Barcroft, survivors of the Polo Grounds training school of last Autumn, who were free agents. Gould, Rapp and Roy Grimes are the most highly tried of this group and supposed to be the most valuable, although another Eddie Collins may bob up from among the others. Rapp is likely to start the season at second base for McGraw.

KING OFFERS CUP FOR YACHT RACE

F. Brighton; the Undaunted, Francis R. Mayer; the Vagrant, Harold S. Vanderbilt, and the Karitta, owned by F. M. Singer.

Another yacht now in this country that might well enter the contest and race back across the Atlantic is Sir Thomas Lipton's 23-meter Shamrock, which served as trial horse to the Shamrock IV. prior to the America's cup races last year. This trim, Fife designed yacht is sturdily built and made excellent time on her trip over here last year under an abbreviated ketch rig. It is generally believed that she would make a most creditable showing were she to take part in the race that is scheduled to start next July.

Aside from the yachts already mentioned there are many others slightly smaller but at the same time large and sturdy enough to make the voyage from Sandy Hook to Ostend, some of them having made one or more trips to the West Indies and encountered heavy weather on these cruises. At the time selected for the transatlantic race weather is generally fair. A moderate and steady breeze prevails, and from a direction that would help the contending craft on their way.

First Race in 1866.

Transatlantic yacht racing was first introduced in 1866. On Dec. 11 of that year three starters got away in the initial contest—the Henrietta, the Fleetwing and the Vesta—all sturdy schooner-rigged craft. The race resulted from rivalry between Franklin Osgood and James Gordon Bennett following a match race over a course from Sandy Hook and back in which Mr. Osgood's Fleetwing defeated Mr. Bennett's Henrietta. Mr. Bennett offered to wager $10,000 that the Henrietta could show her heels all the way to the Fleetwing if they made it a race across the Atlantic. A match was arranged, and later Pierre Lorillard entered the Vesta. The stake was $10,000 a side.

The Vesta showed greater speed than the two others, but an error on the part of her skipper cost that yacht the race. The Henrietta won, arriving at the Needles, Isle of Wight, England, at 5:45 in the afternoon of Christmas Day. The Fleetwing finished eight hours later and the Vesta ended her voyage an hour and a half after the Fleetwing.

In the next race across the Atlantic James Gordon Bennett was the owner of one of the two competing yachts. This time it was the schooner yacht Dauntless that represented this country and her competitor was the British schooner yacht Cambria, owned by James Ashbury. The Cambria was bound for this country to compete for the America's Cup, and on July 4, 1870, they started from Cork, Ireland. The race attracted a great deal of interest at the time and Americans felt confident that Mr. Bennett's schooner would prove to be the winner. She had on board, aside from her owner, Captain "Bully" Samuels, formerly master of the packetship Dreadnought; Martin Lyons, a well-known Sandy Hook pilot, and Dick Brown—a notable array of talent. However, the British schooner proved to be the winner, defeating the Dauntless by the close margin of one hour and forty-three minutes, the time for the voyage having been twenty-three days.

The Dauntless, true to her name, took part in the third ocean race in 1887, but again she was defeated, this time by the Coronet. The start was from off Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, and the finish off Queenstown, Ireland. The race was for $10,000 a side. The Coronet was the winner, her time for the trip being 14 days 20 hours and 30 minutes.

The race for the cup offered by the German Kaiser was the next transatlantic contest and there were eleven starters—eight American, two British and one German. An American yacht, the Atlantic, a Gardner designed three-masted schooner yacht, then belonging to Wilson Marshall, was the winner. The Atlantic established a new record, as it took her but twelve days and four hours to make the voyage from Sandy Hook to the Lizard. Captain Charlie Barr was in command.

The start was scheduled to be on May 17, 1905, but was postponed until the next day as a result of fog. The schooner Hildegarde was first away, with the Ailsa, a yawl, second, and the Atlantic close up in third position. It was not long before the Atlantic assumed the lead. She arrived off the Lizard on May 29 at 9:15 P. M., the German entry, the schooner yacht Hamburg, being second, taking twenty-two hours longer to make the trip, while the Valhalla and six others finished the next day.

Contestants for Trophy.

The starters in that memorable ocean contest, their owners, dimensions, designers and skippers were as follows: The yawl Ailsa, Henry S. Redmond, 130 feet over all, designed by Fife and sailed by Captain Lem Miller; the bark Apache, owned by Edmund D. Randolph, 198 feet over all, designed by Reid and sailed by Captain J. H. McDonald; the schooner Atlantic, owned by Wilson Marshall, 185 feet over all, designed by Gardner and sailed by Captain Charley Barr; the schooner Endymion, owned by George Lauder, 137 feet over all, designed by Crane and sailed by Captain Jim Loesch; the schooner Fleur de Lys, owned by Dr. Lewis Stimson, 105 feet over all, designed by Burgess and sailed by Captain Tom Bohlin; the schooner Hamburg, owned by a German syndicate, 146 feet long, designed by Watson and sailed by Captain Edward Peters; the schooner yacht Hildegarde, owned by Edward R. Coleman, 135 feet over all, designed by Chesborough and sailed by Captain S. H. Marsters; the schooner Sunbeam, owned by Lord Brassey, 184 feet over all, designed by Byrne and sailed by Lord Brassey; the schooner Thistle, owned by Robert E. Tod, 150 feet over all, designed by Wintringham and sailed by Robert E. Tod; the schooner Utowana, owned by Allison V. Armour, 190 feet over all, designed by Webb and sailed by Captain J. H. Crawford, and the ship-rigged Valhalla, owned by the Earl of Crawford, 238 feet over all, designed by Storey and sailed by Captain Caws. Five of the competing craft were auxiliaries.

The race attracted world-wide interest. The most sanguine enthusiasts prophesied that it would take the winner fourteen days to cross the ocean. The Atlantic was generally picked as the winner and the German schooner, Hamburg, was considered dangerous. The best day's run made by the victorious three-masted schooner yacht Atlantic was 341 nautical miles.

While the foregoing are the only transatlantic yacht races, still there have been many other ocean races to say nothing of transatlantic voyages by numerous yachts. The America's Cup race has been responsible for many yachts crossing the Atlantic on their own bottoms. First there was the memorable voyage of the America to British waters in quest of honors and the cup, in 1851. It took her 21 days and 8 hours for her passage to Havre. After she won the cup that afterwards took her name she returned to this country, and since then every challenging yacht for that historic trophy has had to cross to these shores.

The first American yacht recorded as having crossed the Atlantic was the brig Cleopatra's Barge, which left Salem in March, 1817, touched at the Azores and proceeded to the Mediterranean, where she cruised until October, when she returned to Salem. Her owner and his friends on board were tendered a great welcome at every port they touched.

Other Ocean Travelers.

In 1855 the centreboard racing sloop Silvie, of 105 tons burden, sailed from this port for Havre, making the voyage in 16 days and 14 hours. In 1866 the 48-foot sloop Alice caused a decided sensation by making a passage from Nahant to the Needles in 19 days.

The Endymion made a notable voyage by crossing in 13 days and 20 hours. After the Dauntless-Coronet race in 1887 there was practically no deep sea racing until 1899, and from then until the Kaiser's Cup race ocean racing was chiefly confined to along shore contests. In 1899 the Katrina, the Coronet, the Ramona and the Sachem raced from Shelter Island to Sea Gate, outside of Long Island, and the four finished within five minutes of one another. Robert E. Tod's Katrina was the winner, finishing a single second ahead of the Coronet.

In 1901 Mr. Tod built the Thistle, and she, with the Hildegarde, the Endymion, the Fleur de Lys and several other schooner yachts, competed in four outside races in 1902. In 1904 the Endymion and the then new Atlantic competed for the Cape May and Breton Reef Cups, and the Atlantic won both. The Resolute and the Vergemere also competed.

Following the Kaiser's Cup race came several races for various sized sailing yachts, some decidedly small, from this city to Bermuda and to Cuba, and in none of these did any competing craft meet with any serious mishap. But in the line of deep sea voyages that made by Captain Thomas Fleming Day, known to the yachting fraternity as "the Skipper," aboard the diminutive yawl Seabird, is the most noteworthy. Captain Day left Providence with Fred Thurber and Theodore R. Goodwin as his crew and, encountering every sort of weather, made the voyage to Gibraltar in 20 days 8 hours and 30 minutes. The Seabird was 25 feet 6 inches long, 8 feet 4 inches in beam and drew 3 feet 6 inches. From Gibraltar the Seabird proceeded on to Rome by way of the Mediterranean and the River Tiber.

Several years ago Captain Slocum made a voyage around the world aboard the Spray, a small craft, and Jack London made more than one long voyage on the Pacific in small craft. Last year, William W. Nutting, one of the most courageous of present day Corinthians, started out from Baddeck, Cape Breton Island, in the Typhoon, measuring 45 feet on deck and 38 on the waterline, with a beam of 12 feet and a draught of 6½ feet. After encountering heavy gales he finally put in at Cowes, England, having taken twenty-two days to make the voyage. During considerable of that time the little vessel was hove-to in blows. After witnessing the international motorboat races at Cowes the Typhoon and her valiant crew proceeded to Roscoff on the Brittany coast, and then continued to Ferrol, Spain, then to Coruna, then to the Azores and then home, covering 3,200 miles in thirty-two days.

Clinton and Stuyvesant Tied at 29 in Annual Indoor Championship Meet.

ONE RECORD IS EXCELLED

Stuyvesant Team Shaves One-Fifth Second Off Quarter-Mile Relay Time—Negro Runners Star.

Possession of the high schools indoor track and field championship trophy will be divided between two schools for the coming year. In the annual titular board floor meet held yesterday afternoon at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, sturdy young athletes of De Witt Clinton and Stuyvesant High Schools, representing, respectively, the west and east sides of the city, deadlocked in the point battle for track and field supremacy, each scoring 29 points in a ten-event program. Following the meet it was announced that each school will be entitled to hold the championship trophy for a period of six months.

Though held on even terms with their rival school in the track and field events, the Scarlet and Blue clad athletes of Stuyvesant captured the relay championship title, winning two of the quartet of races. These successes, with other placements, gave the east side lads a total of 15 points. De Witt Clinton's aggregate, including one victory, amounted to 12 points.

Junior High School 62, Manhattan, monopolized the laurels in that part of the program set aside for the junior high schools, scoring 22 points. In the evening high schools championship battle Brooklyn Evening High School was triumphant, with 6 points, one in excess of the scores of Stuyvesant and New York Evening High Schools, which tied for runner-up position, each with 5 points.

For Stuyvesant Eric Dawkins, a compactly built little negro sprinter, was the principal point producer. Dawkins captured the 100-yard junior title with a convincing display of speed in the good time of 11 seconds, one-fifth of a second slower than the record. Later in the afternoon Dawkins returned to the track for the 220-yard junior dash, and duplicated his earlier performance. Dawkins took the furlong title by a comfortable margin in 24 4-5 seconds, and was again but one-fifth of a second slower than the record.

Leo Handy, De Witt Clinton's rangy negro sprinter, supplied the biggest individual contribution to the Red and Black point score and divided the day's individual honors with Dawkins. Handy, a senior, captured both the century and furlong titles in masterly fashion and in each race finished just one-fifth of a second back of the existing record.

While several records were dangerously approached, only one mark was fractured. The distinction for the only record of the meet went to Stuyvesant. The Scarlet and Blue's 100-pound relay quartet raced to victory in the quarter-mile relay in the remarkable time of 52½ seconds, shaving one-fifth of a second off the best previous record, made by Manual Training H. S.'s quartet in 1910.

The summaries:

Track Events.

100-Yard Dash, Junior—Won by E. Dawkins, Stuyvesant H. S.; J. Sacco, H. S. of Commerce, second; S. Cohen, De Witt Clinton H. S., third; Golloblin, De Witt Clinton H. S., fourth. Time—0:11.

100-Yard Dash, Senior—Won by L. Handy, De Witt Clinton H. S.; A. Van Allen, Curtis H. S., second; J. Lewis, Townsend Harris Hall H. S., third; J. Olenik, De Witt Clinton H. S., fourth. Time—0:10 3-5.

440-Yard Run—Won by A. Weg, De Witt Clinton H. S.; J. Gioscia, Commercial H. S., second; J. Sampson, De Witt Clinton H. S., third; S. Mare, Stuyvesant H. S., fourth. Time—0:55 1-5.

One-Mile Run—Won by L. Gentile, Stuyvesant H. S.; J. Marr, Erasmus Hall H. S., second; T. Dennis, Curtis H. S., third; H. Keer, Manual Training H. S., fourth. Time—4:52 3-5.

100-Yard High Hurdles Race—Won by J. Reinl, Stuyvesant H. S.; H. Meyers, Erasmus Hall H. S., second; L. Shapiro, Stuyvesant H. S., third. Time—0:15 4-5.

220-Yard Dash, Junior—Won by E. Dawkins, Stuyvesant H. S.; L. Cohen, Commercial H. S., second; L. Snider, Stuyvesant H. S., third; S. Cohen, De Witt Clinton H. S., fourth. Time—0:24 4-5.

880-Yard Run—Won by W. Peak, Commercial H. S.; T. Dennis, Curtis H. S., second; H. Weeks, Manual Training H. S., third; J. McDonough, Stuyvesant H. S., fourth. Time—2:10 4-5.

220-Yard Dash, Senior—Won by L. Handy, De Witt Clinton H. S.; A. Van Allen, Curtis H. S., second; Gilmore, De Witt Clinton H. S., third; Wibecan, Boys' H. S., fourth. Time—0:24 2-5.

Field Events.

Putting 12-Pound Shot—Won by R. Beattie, Manual Training H. S., with 44 feet ½ inch; H. A. Ruck, Erasmus Hall H. S., 39 feet 2¼ inches, second; V. Lamberti, Evander Childs H. S., 38 feet 11½ inches, third; A. McLaughlin, H. S. of Commerce, 38 feet 5½ inches, fourth.

Running High Jump — Won by William Thompson, De Witt Clinton H. S., with 5 feet 7 inches; T. Cullen, Stuyvesant H. S., 5 feet 7 inches, second; W. Ross, Bushwick H. S., 5 feet 4 inches, third; R. Wiggins, Boys' H. S., 5 feet 2 inches, fourth.

Point Score.

De Witt Clinton H. S., 29 points; Stuyvesant H. S., 29; Commercial H. S., 11; Curtis H. S., 11; Erasmus Hall H. S., 9; Manual Training H. S., 8; H. S. of Commerce, 4; Townsend Harris Hall H. S., 2; Evander Childs H. S., 2; Bushwick H. S., 2; Boys' H. S., 2.

Relay Races.

440-Yard Relay, 100-Pound Class—Won by Stuyvesant H. S. (H. Goldberg, J. White, J. Ferony and C. Traub); Commercial H. S. (J. Shapiro, E. Farrell, A. Carr and N. Tureff), second; Manual Training H. S. (R. Anderson, S. Briskie, M. Farullo and R. Appel), third; De Witt Clinton H. S. (Skolsky, Tuscano, Cohen and Shoshman), fourth. Time—0:52 1-5.

880-Yard Relay, Freshman Class—Won by Bushwick H. S. (R. Ott, W. Ross, R. Warwick and William Bowen); De Witt Clinton H. S. (Weissman, B. Levits, Tiering and Baum), second; Commercial H. S. (J. Levine, M. Danowitz, R. Hoffield and E. Lloyd), third; Manual Training H. S. (W. Mergenthaler, R. Cartier, C. Albrecht and J. Counsellor), fourth. Time—1:48.

880-Yard Relay, 120-Pound Class—Won by De Witt Clinton H. S. (Sokel, Gluick, Pasternack and Siegel); Commercial H. S. (J. Aripotch, A. Regosin, M. Berger and L. Holland), second; Stuyvesant H. S. (Bliss, Bashookin, White and Snow), third; Manual Training H. S. (E. Powers, A. Counsellor, H. Eulenstein and T. Murphy), fourth. Time—1:44 1-5. Manual Training was disqualified for passing the baton illegally.

One-Mile Relay, Unlimited Weight Class—Won by Stuyvesant H. S., first team (Gore, McDonough, Cullen and Low); Stuyvesant H. S., second team (Serventi, Giersheval, Schapiro and Oberweger), second; De Witt Clinton H. S., first team (Gilmore, Thompson, Sampson and Weg), third; De Witt Clinton H. S., second team (Cook, Bulliahsky, Levits and Schuloff), fourth. Time—4:06.

Point Score.

Stuyvesant H. S., 13 points; De Witt Clinton H. S., 12; Commercial H. S., 8; Bushwick H. S., 5; Manual Training H. S., 3.

Junior High School Events.

75-Yard Dash—Won by H. Masevitsky, Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan; D. Friedman, Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan, second; S. Levine, Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan, third. Time—0:09 3-5.

Running High Jump—Won by A. Helvits, Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan, with 5 ft.; N. Noroven, Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan, 4 ft. 8 in., second; P. Braunstein, Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan, 4 ft. 7 in., third; H. Shumansky, Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan, 4 ft. 4 in., fourth.

Point Score.

Junior H. S. 62, Manhattan, 22 points.

Brooklyn Evening H. S., 6 points; Stuyvesant Evening Trade School, 5; New York Evening H. S., 5; East Side Evening H. S., 3; Harlem Evening H. S., 2.

Run Only Twice in One Meet

CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—Before the assembled high school students of this city today John F. Moakley, Cornell coach, stated that at a recent meeting of the College Track Association, composed of coaches at forty of the largest universities in the country, it was recommended that colleges giving interscholastic track meets permit no high school boy to compete in more than two running events. It was recommended at the same time that the two-mile race be eliminated. Moakley said that to allow certain boys who show outstanding athletic ability to compete in three or four events in track or field meets or a swimming carnival was an injustice to the youths, as it exhausted their physical energy.

CUTBILL CAPTURES BROOKLYN THOUSAND

Takes Feature Event of Meet in 13th Regiment Armory—O'Brien Wins 440 Met. Title.

Flashing the form which brought him victory in the last running of the famous Baxter Mile, Harold C. Cutbill of the Boston A. C., crack New England middle-distance runner, last night raced to victory in the Brooklyn College Thousand, a special invitation race at 1,000 yards, which featured the program at the seventh annual indoor athletic meet of the Brooklyn College in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn. Cutbill, assuming the lead at the very start of the race, dashed over the board floor at a clip which sent a crowd of about 4,000 into a riot of enthusiasm, and he broke the worsted with a victorious margin of about twenty yards. The sturdy wearer of the Unicorn covered the distance in 2:16, two and three-fifths seconds slower than Joie Ray's record of 2:13 2-5.

In attaining his victory Cutbill towroped a field of nine rivals, which included some of the country's stars. Like a runner off on a quarter-mile journey, the rangy New Englander sped over the board floor, and many thought his pace could not be sustained. Cutbill, however, never faltered in his journey, but continued like a streak out there in front of a field which never really became dangerous in the face of the victor's terrific speed. At one stage of the race Cutbill's advantage amounted to about thirty yards. This was decreased by about ten yards on the final lap, when sturdy little Jimmy Connolly of Georgetown broke from the pack of pursuers and went off on an unsuccessful attempt at overhauling the flying Cutbill.

Jimmy O'Brien, sensational short-distance runner of the Loughlin Lyceum, captured the Metropolitan A. A. U. boardfloor quarter-mile title in a spectacular race against Billy Stevenson, Princeton runner. Walter Koppisch, Columbia runner, finished third and Vic Lally, St. Anselm's A. C., was fourth. O'Brien's margin was about a yard and his time was 52 4-5 seconds.

HANDICAP IN DRIVE

Clark's Racer Beats Crystal Ford a Neck in the Crescent City at New Orleans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 29.—C. W. Clark's Captain Mac, which has developed into one of the most formidable handicap performers in the South, scored his fourth straight victory this afternoon when he captured the Crescent City Handicap, which was the feature on the card at the Fair Grounds. Though having all the worst of the racing luck, this son of The Manager made a game finish and got up in time to gain a close decision over Crystal Ford, with General Haig third.

Captain Mac was one of the winning favorites. He was sent to the post a 3 to 5 choice, and deservedly so, for he had won his last three races handily against such horses as Tippity Witchet and others of the best here. Though he had also picked up weight with his string of successes until he had an impost of 127 pounds today, the burden did not seem to affect him. He might have won with a good deal more to spare had he been able to get over to the rail at any time during the early running of the mile and a sixteenth. As it was, he was forced to go wide throughout the entire trip and had to be put to a mild drive in the stretch.

Yung Ching, which but recently reached good form, repeated his recent good showing by taking the Mobile Purse at a mile and seventy yards, making quite a show of the field that opposed him. Rushing up in the stretch, he won by four lengths from Barry Shannon, Albert A. taking third. Yung Ching was slow to get under way and trailed the field for three furlongs, after which he gradually improved his position until he opened up with a rush at the head of the stretch. Troitus, the erstwhile pacemaker, tired in the stretch and the winner swept past him, to win as his rider pleased. Both Barry Shannon and Albert A. came from far back for the other places in the money.

Increases Value of Stakes

That there will be a tendency toward increased values in stakes under conditions more favorable to horsemen during the coming racing season is indicated by the revised stake list issued by the Queens County Jockey Club. Of the twenty events to be run during the Summer meeting in July, four have been changed from guaranteed to added money and the guaranteed stakes remaining have been increased in value.

The Brooklyn Handicap will top the list with a guarantee of $10,000, increased from $7,500. The Great American, a juvenile classic, will also carry a guarantee of $10,000, an increase from $6,000. The Carter Handicap, the Dwyer Stakes, the Hudson and the Clover, which were formerly guaranteed stakes, have been made added money events. In addition, there will be the Carlton Handicap for three-year-olds, which has not been run since 1910. It will have an added value of $3,500.

TIGER WATER POLO TEAM DOWNS NAVY

Midshipmen Overwhelmed by Fast Work of Princeton and Lose by 39 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 29.—The midshipmen looked like novices at water polo this afternoon against Princeton, the latter winning by 39 to 3. The great individual work of Botting figured most largely in the result, though the Navy swimmers were utterly unable to solve the fast passing and clever team play of the Tigers.

Botting made a total individual score of 34 points, consisting of six touch goals, a thrown goal and a foul goal. After making 28 points in the first half, the visitors slackened considerably. Higgins scored the only points for the Navy by a thrown goal early in the first half.

The summary:

NAVAL ACAD. (3).		PRINCETON (39).
Wilcox	R. F.	Smith
Higgins	C. F.	Botting
Hicks	L. F.	Buschner
Moses	R. B.	P. Harden
White	L. B.	Scharuff
Niemeyer	G.	Tait

Touch goals—Princeton: Botting (6), Smith. Thrown goals—Princeton, Botting; Naval Academy, Wilcox. Foul goal—Princeton, Botting.

Time of halves—8 minutes.

Something of the sting of the water polo defeat was removed when the Navy defeated the Tigers in a swimming match by 37 to 7.

The summaries:

40-Yard Dash—Won by Emory, Navy; Bolling, Navy, second; Schriver, Princeton, third. Time—0:19 2-5.

100-Yard Swim—Won by Emory, Navy; Gallagher, Navy, second; McDonald, Princeton, third. Time—0:56 3-5.

220-Yard Swim—Won by Fish, Navy; Winkler, Navy, second; Kelsey, Princeton, third. Time—2:40 4-5.

160-Yard Relay—Won by Naval Academy (Bolling, Winkler, Gallagher, Emory); Princeton (Murray, Schriver, McDonald, Stinson), second. Time—1:18 2-5.

Plunge—Won by McCandles, Navy; Tawles, Princeton, second; Driscoll, Princeton, third. Time for 60-Foot Plunge—0:03.

Exhibition 120-Yard Relay—Won by McIntosh and Rowe (back stroke); Quinby and Bearce (breast stroke), second. Time—1:27.

AND WINNER AT 18.2

New England Champion Bows to F. Appleby in Class A Tourney—Defeats Dr. Mial.

EASTERN 18.2 CLASS A BALKLINE TOURNAMENT STANDING.

Name.	G.	W.	L.	P.C.
F. Appleby	3	3	0	1.000
E. T. Appleby	1	1	0	1.000
Clarkson	3	2	1	.666
Gardner	3	1	2	.333
Mial	3	0	3	.000

Francis Appleby, much to the astonishment of the gallery, made a runaway affair of his match yesterday afternoon with T. Henry Clarkson in the Eastern Class A 18.2 balkline tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, at the domicile of the New York Athletic Club. A close game, with the score in the balance, and the winner in doubt to the end, had been predicted for Clarkson, who comes originally from Boston, although he is now a New Yorker, is the holder of the New England 18.2 championship, and he had won decisively in the opening tilt of the present round-robin. Appleby, however, sent him down to defeat by the score of 300 to 151.

In the evening match Clarkson was pitted against Dr. L. L. Mial, whom he eventually defeated by the close score of 300 to 287. The game went thirty-eight innings. Dr. Mial led all the way by a slight margin until the thirty-seventh session was reached, when Clarkson made the necessary seventeen to go out. The Hub billiardist had an average of 7 34-38, and his high run was 29. The average for the doctor was 7 28-37, while his largest cluster tallied thirty-seven points.

Clarkson's average in the afternoon innings was 6 7-24; Appleby ran an average of an even dozen for his twenty-five turns at the cue. There was no really high run during the entire joust, the winner scoring only 49 for his best cluster, 21 below his high against Gardner last Wednesday. Clarkson's best run was 38, 31 below his stellar accumulation in the opener.

The first inning was not indicative of anything, Appleby scoring 2 and Clarkson 1. The second inning gave the Bostonian a margin of 7, which he increased in the third session, the string of wampum recording 24 for Clarkson to Appleby's 13. But a collection of 36 for the local expert in the fourth, against a puny 3 for the Hub cueist, put Appleby into a long lead, which he bettered steadily as the game wore on. Appleby's cluster of 49 came in the sixth inning, and although he drew three blanks between then and the close, five clusters ranging from 21 to 32, while Clarkson was either fanning out or running close to his average for the match, left no question of the outcome. Clarkson's rally to 38 came in the eighteenth inning, but too late to help much toward lessening the gap that Appleby's steady work had created.

Clarkson was off form from the outset, playing a sharp, choppy stroke, which lost to him any control of the balls. He was especially nervous when confronted with the necessity of a massé shot.

The score of the afternoon match:

F. Appleby—2 10 1 36 8 49 3 9 27 9 29 0 2 18 23 1 21 0 0 13 10 8 2 4 32—300. Average, 12.

Horemans' Manager Accuses Champion of Evading Title Match.

A flat declaration that Willie Hoppe is afraid of losing his championship and accordingly is trying to dodge the issue was made yesterday by Shepard G. Barclay, manager of Edouard Horemans, the Belgian billiardist. Barclay's declaration was in answer to the statement of Hoppe's manager, R. B. Benjamin, that no match for the world's balkline championship could be arranged before next Fall.

"Horemans is ready to play Hoppe for the world's balkline title anywhere, any time and under any percentage or winner-take-all arrangement," said Barclay. "His every move since he arrived in this country has been part of his campaign to get Hoppe at the same table with him. Even his contest with Albert Cutler on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week is part of his definite plan to force a match with Hoppe."

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

LE CHEMINEAU, lyric drama in four acts, book in French from Jean Richepin's drama of like a me, acted in America as "The Harvester"; music by Xavier Leroux. At the Manhattan Opera House.

Toinette......Yvonne Gall
Aline......Margery Maxwell
Catherine......Marie Claessens
Le Chemineau......Hector Dufranne
François......George Baklanoff
Toinet......Albert Paillard
Maitre Pierre......Edward Cotreuil
Thomas......Constantin Nicolay
Martin......Desire Defrere
Conductor, Henri Morin.

Le Chemineau at the Manhattan.

"Le Chemineau," the opera made from Jean Richepin's play, for which the music was written by Xavier Leroux, was given yesterday by the Chicago Opera Company at the matinee performance in the Manhattan Opera House. There was no evidence of deep public interest in the performance, for the audience was far from filling the house.

The opera had only twice before been heard here. It was given and repeated by the same company on its New York visit in 1919. Nor is Leroux's music otherwise well known in New York; his opera, "La Reine Fiammette," which the Metropolitan Company produced in the same season and has since sent to oblivion, is the only other work of his known here.

"Le Chemineau," both play and opera, achieved success in Paris, and the play had been given here in an English translation before the opera was heard. The opera is effective from the dramatic point of view; the play is no doubt more effective. It is one of those cases in which it is difficult to see how the application of music to the drama has heightened or interpreted its meaning or strengthened its appeal, and especially the application of Xavier Leroux's music.

This music is lacking woefully in inspiration. It is decently and properly made. There is plenty of it; it accompanies the drama through four acts and provides preludes to several of them. The orchestration is skillfully devised in some if not all of it. But the music itself is generally not notable for individuality, for significance, for beauty, for dramatic characterization; and as a consequence it is deficient in interest almost from the beginning to the end.

So far as the performance was concerned, the opera was sufficiently honored. It was an admirable performance. The hero's part—if he is a hero—was taken by Hector Dufranne, who was the original Chemineau when the opera was produced in Paris, and he may easily be supposed to be the best one who has appeared in the opera. At any rate, his impersonation was superb, a masterly piece of dramatic delineation carried out with the skill, the elaboration of detail, the truthfulness of general effect that only an accomplished actor can compass.

He sang, moreover, in a voice that lacked little of the power, vibrancy and color of his best days, and that was in these respects even better than it has been at some of Mr. Dufranne's previous visits to New York.

Miss Yvonne Gall's Toinette, Mr. Baklanoff's François, Mr. Cotreuil's Maitre Pierre were all representations of which the opera company and its directrix might well be proud. They were admirable in their several ways, and all three artists sang well. Also to be commended was Margery Maxwell in the minor part of Aline.

Mr. Morin conducted with skill and authority. The scenic settings of the opera are unusually good. The audience expressed interest in the performance and summoned the singers repeatedly before the curtain.

Titta Ruffo in "Rigoletto."

Verdi's "Rigoletto," with Florence Macbeth, Tito Schipa and Titta Ruffo in rôles they had last sung at the Lexington, completed a seven-opera week at the Manhattan last night. Seven others meanwhile had been sung by Metropolitan stars on Broadway, the double opera situation in New York assumed the proportions of the proverbial "plague on both your houses." The Manhattan's night throng cheered its favorite, Mr. Ruffo, perhaps the more for the fact that it had paid, not "popular," but regular opera rates to hear him. Carmen Pascova and Mr. Lazzari sang in the fourth act quartet, and Marinuzzi conducted. The house forced a repetition of the "Vendetta" duet by Ruffo and Miss Macbeth after the third act curtain.

CONCERT FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, Pianists, Play With Damrosch's Men.

When Guy Maier and Lee Pattison finished Mozart's concerto in E flat for two pianos and orchestra at yesterday's crowded matinee of the Symphony Concerts for Young People in Carnegie Hall, their hearers, young and old, broke symphonic tradition by calling, like Oliver Twist, for more. An encore without accompaniment followed, while Conductor Damrosch and his hundred men waited. The two players, quite apart from their artistic merit, gave pleasure by "team work," the hand of one carrying a scale half up the keyboard, there to be relayed along by the other, as a racer seizing a flag or a hummingbird chasing rainbows.

Mr. Damrosch's familiar talk of Mendelssohn's "Italian" symphony, which the orchestra first played, was as inviting as the composer's own letters from Italy. It was of interest, too, that a program comprising both a full symphony and formal concerto, and ending in Wagner's "Tannhauser" overture for full measure, marked about as "grown-up" a concert as the Young People's three-and-twenty seasons have ever shown.

FLORENCE EASTON, ISOLDE.

Marion Telva a New Brangaene in "Tristan" at Metropolitan.

Florence Easton sang her first Isolde on Broadway, an Isolde beautiful to see as well as hear, on sudden notice at the Metropolitan last evening, when Mme. Matzenauer was unable to reappear in the English "Tristan" revival's fifth performance, and its first for a popular-price house. Marion Telva, the young St. Louis contralto, was a new Brangaene, her first rôle of such importance with Mr. Gatti-Casazza's stars. Sembach, Whitehill and others sang as before, and Bodanzky conducted.

In the afternoon Verdi's "Don Carlos" was repeated, with Jeanne Gordon in another of Matzenauer's parts as Princess Eboli, while Ponselle, Martinelli, De Luca and Didur reappeared, and Papi was at the baton. Eight thousand persons, it was said, attended the pair of operas, matinee and night.

Harold Bauer, Pianist, Plays Again.

Harold Bauer, the pianist, gave another recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, before an audience that waited after two hours of music for his last encores. Mr. Bauer was heard in Beethoven's sonata op. 53, a Mozart fantasy and Franck's prelude and fugue, as well as charming lesser pieces of Chopin, Schumann and Brahms.

Marguerite Volavy, a Bohemian pianist who has before appeared here, gave an Aeolian recital last evening, including with classics in her program two Czechoslovak composers, Dvorak and Josef Suk.

Luncheon for Miss Eleanor Flagg.

Mrs. C. Douglass Green gave a luncheon yesterday at her residence, 40 East Seventy-fifth Street, for her daughter, Miss Eleanor Lee Flagg. Miss Flagg will not make her début until next Winter, but the guests were this Winter's buds and included the Misses Cynthia Bigelow, Barbara Hooker, Rose Bullard, Mary Wistar Morris, Margaret Davison, Laura Mabon, Frances Drury, Virginia de Haven and Mary Stevens.

MUSICAL FANTASY

Give 'Jack Straws' Twice in Mrs. John Sanford's Ballroom and Net $2,000 for Charity.

Mrs. John Sanford of 9 East Seventy-second Street opened the large ballroom in her town house yesterday afternoon and evening for a musical fantasy played by débutantes for the benefit of the New York Hospital Nursery of which Mrs. Arthur Iselin is the President.

The two performances netted about $2,000 for the nursery. The one given in the afternoon was attended by the very young set and their mothers, and the evening performance by the young dancing set with a few older people.

The entertainment was named "Jack Straws," and the music was by Gerald Warburg and the lyrics by Frank Hatch. The players were coached by Peter Greig and George Hallet. The first act was entitled "One of Many Meetings," and the scene was "Three Days Before the Show." The second act was the same as the first, but a "Dress Rehearsal." The girls in the first act, in the order of their appearance, were the Misses Dorothy Sharp, Gertrude Sanford, Adele Ryan, Geraldine Thompson, Evelyn Loew, Jane Sanford, Florence Loew, Nancy Yuille, Burks Yuille, Margaret Flint, Wandine Mathews, Lela Emery, Frances Norton and Fanny Billings.

In the second act the Misses Dorothy Sharp and Wandine Mathews were the manager and assistant stage manager and Miss Adele Ryan led the opening chorus, composed of the Misses Gertrude and Jane Sanford, Fanny Billings and Nancy Yuille. The country girl was Miss Evelyn Loew. The Egyptian dancer was Miss Frances Norton, Miss Florence Loew was the Athletic Girl and the Barber Shop Chord was sung by the Misses Adele Ryan and Thompson. Miss Lela Emery was the Promenade Girl and Miss Burks Yuille the Débutante.

A ham-and-eggs clog was executed by the Misses Gertrude Sanford and Nancy Yuille. Miss Fanny Billings was a Fashion Plate and then came the songs, "I Found the Girl," "If I Knew" and "Every Time I Think of You," rendered by "Artist" Margaret Flint and "Models" Evelyn Loew and Jane Sanford.

Miss Gertrude Sanford then appeared as the Suffragette, followed by Miss Wandine Mathews in a jazz toe dance. The Patroness was done by Miss Evelyn Loew. The Misses Margaret Flint and Jane Sanford sang a "Pirate Song," composed by Miss Nina Ryan, and Miss Nancy Yuille did a solo dance and there was a chorus sung by the entire company. Informal dancing closed the evening.

WEDDINGS.

Miss Hester Noel Barrows the Bride of Evan Lloyd Sprague.

The wedding of Miss Hester Noel Barrows, daughter of the late Dr. Charles Clifford Barrows and Mrs. Barrows of 63 East Fifty-sixth Street, and Evan Lloyd Sprague, son of Evan Turner Sprague, of 1 West Sixty-seventh Street, took place at noon yesterday in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, the Rev. NIHILIST, DIES AT 79

Russian Geographer and Author's Last Days Spent in Moscow in Privation.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Prince Peter Alexeivich Kropotkin, Russian geographer, author and revolutionary leader, is dead in Moscow, says a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Prince Kropotkin was descended from the old Russian nobility, and was born at Moscow in 1842. It was his father's plan that he should enter the army, and at the age of 15 he entered the Corps of Pages at Petrograd. Here he remained until 1862, when he was assigned to a Siberian Cossack regiment in the Amur district.

Prince Kropotkin resigned from the army in 1867 and returned to Petrograd, where he entered the university and became secretary to the physical geography section of the Russian Geographical Society. He continued in this work until 1872, when he announced his Socialistic views, visiting Switzerland later in the same year and becoming a member of the International Workingmen's Association at Geneva. The tendencies of this body were not advanced enough for his views, and a short time later he definitely adopted the creed of anarchism, returning to Russia and taking an active part in spreading nihilist propaganda. In 1874 he was arrested and imprisoned, but escaped two years later and managed to flee from Russia to England. He later went to the Continent and was expelled from Switzerland by the Government of that country following the assassination of Emperor Alexander II. of Russia in 1881.

The remainder of his period of exile was spent for the most part in Germany and France, although he spent some time in England. He returned to Russia in 1917 and was invited to join the Kerensky Cabinet. Recent dispatches have reported him in straitened circumstances, and German Socialists recently made an appeal for assistance to be sent him.

Federal Board's Report Shows Total Reduction of $330,000,000 Since Dec. 23.

PAID-IN CAPITAL A RECORD

Ratio Makes a 5-Point Jump, but Decline Noted in Earning Assets, All Classes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Aggregate reductions of $29,500,000 in bill holdings, accompanied by a decrease of $29,800,000 in Federal Reserve note and Federal Reserve Bank note circulation, are indicated in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly bank statement issued at the close of business on Jan. 28, 1921. Gold reserves show an increase for the week of $10,400,000 and total cash reserves an increase of $18,700,000, while net deposits increased by $14,700,000.

As a consequence of these changes, the banks' reserve ratio rose from 48.5 to 49 per cent. All classes of earning assets show reductions for the week—paper secured by Government obligations, by $7,400,000; other discounts, by $19,000,000; acceptances, by $2,900,000, and Treasury certificates, by $3,200,000. Total earning assets accordingly were $32,700,000 smaller than the week before. Of the total holdings of $1,048,800,000 other United States bonds; $264,000,000 or 21.1 per cent., by Victory notes, and $157,700,000, or 16 per cent., by Treasury certificates, compared with $015,700,000, $282,000,000 and $158,800,000 reported the week before.

Discounted bills held by the Boston, Philadelphia and Cleveland banks are inclusive of $41,000,000 of paper discounted for the Atlanta, Dallas and Minneapolis Reserve Banks. Since the preceding Friday, the Richmond and Kansas City banks redeemed all paper rediscounted by them with other reserve banks, with the consequence that the total inter-reserve bank discounts have gone down to slightly over $41,000,000, as compared with a high of $247,100,000 on Oct. 29, and with $115,300,000 at the close of the last year.

Acceptance holdings of the Boston, Cleveland and San Francisco banks are given inclusive of $51,800,000 of bank acceptances acquired from the New York bank, compared with $11,700,000 of such paper held by the Boston and San Francisco banks on the previous Friday.

Government deposits are shown $19,500,000 larger than the week before, while Reserve deposits show a reduction of $33,400,000, and other deposits a reduction of $1,100,000. The "float," carried by the Reserve banks and treated as a deduction from immediately available deposits, is shown $29,700,000 less than the week before. As a consequence, calculated net deposits show an increase for the week of $14,700,000.

Federal Reserve note circulation shows a further reduction for the week of $24,600,000, as against an increase of $4,700,000 during the corresponding week in 1920. Since Dec. 23 of the past year the decrease in Federal Reserve note circulation has totaled $314,200,000, in addition to a decrease during the five weeks of $16,700,000 in Federal Reserve Bank note circulation.

In consequence of increases in capitalization of member banks largely in the Cleveland, Minneapolis, Dallas and San Francisco districts, the Reserve banks' paid-in capital shows an increase of $185,000 for the week, the total for the first time being in excess of $100,000,000.

Reserves Debits to Individual Account Show Decline of Billion from Last Week

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Aggregate debits to individual account, as reported for banks in 156 of the country's leading clearing house centres for the week ending Jan. 26, were $8,139,000,000, a reduction of $1,063,000,000, or 11 per cent. from the total of $9,142,000,000 reported for the preceding week.

Considerable reductions in the volume of debits are reported from all the leading centres, larger than average relative declines being shown for Boston, Detroit, St. Louis and San Francisco.

As compared with the corresponding week a year earlier, debits for the week under review were smaller by $844,000,000, or about 9 per cent., reduced totals being shown for all the leading centres, except Pittsburgh and Los Angeles.

This table enters somewhat into details:

A Central Bank and Credit.

Commenting on last year's advance of the Bank of England rate to 7 per cent., and discussing its effects, a London financial weekly states that "its precise effect is difficult to determine, but subsequent events seem to show that, although it may not have been a powerful factor per se, it at all events placed the banks in a better position for carrying on the policy of deflation."

$1,133,000,000 Issue of 1902 Taken From the List.

When the New York Stock Exchange announced last week the suspension of trading in an issue of Imperial Russian Government bonds, of which the listing amounted to 2,310,000,000 rubles, the sequel was written to one of the most interesting incidents in the history of the Exchange. These bonds were listed in 1902 at the request of the Minister of Finance, J. P. Morgan & Co., August Belmont & Co., Baring Magoun & Co. and the National City Bank, and interest was paid regularly until the overthrow of the Imperial Government in Russia.

The bonds were the first foreign Government issue to be listed on the Exchange. In 1901 the Exchange instituted a charge of $50 per $1,000,000 for listing, but in the case of the Russian issue this charge was suspended. In recognition the Czar decorated the Chairman of the Listing Committee, William H. Granbery, with the Order of St. Stanislaus. Late in 1902 the Stock Exchange received from the Czar as a token of appreciation a vase of green and brown Malachite, which, standing some eight feet high, is in the Governor's room.

The value of the bonds listed was about $1,133,000,000, and the listing charge, had it been enforced, would have amounted to some $56,000. No transaction in the bonds was ever put through on the Exchange, but there was considerable over-the-counter trading in the outside market.

ISLAND OIL DENIES REPORT.

No Interest in Metropolitan Petroleum Syndicate, Named in Stock Trade.

Lewis & Kolsey, attorneys for the Island Oil and Transport Corporation, have issued a statement denying any interest by Island Oil in a corporation called the Metropolitan Petroleum Syndicate, which it is said has asked Island Oil stockholders to exchange their stock for shares in the Metropolitan Petroleum Syndicate. The statement says in part:

"The Island Oil and Transport Corporation has no connection or interest in any manner with the Metropolitan Petroleum Syndicate. None of the officers or Directors or persons interested in the corporation has any connection or interest in any manner with the Metropolitan Petroleum Syndicate. This new corporation is not the successor of the old Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation. The properties of the old Metropolitan Petroleum Company are owned by the Island Oil and Transport Corporation through its various subsidiaries."

Commerce Commission Grants Requests of Three Railroads.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue first refunding and mortgage bonds amounting to 3,782,400 pounds sterling, to be converted into issues payable in American dollars at an exchange rate making a 200 pound sterling bond exchangeable for one payable at maturity at $1,006. The bonds were issued in 1911 and made payable in sterling, since they were to be placed on the British market.

The Union Pacific Railroad also was authorized to issue new first lien and refunding mortgage bonds to the amount of 771,600 pounds sterling, to be exchanged for bonds payable in dollars.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company was authorized to issue $2,784,000 refunding and general mortgage bonds, while its subsidiary lines were authorized to issue $1,860,000 in bonds. The bonds of the parent company are to be held in the treasury until authorized sold by the commission, and the issuance of the subsidiary bonds is in payment of certain additions made to the lines by the Baltimore & Ohio.

For new equipment costing $5,923,125 the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company applied today to the commission for a fifteen-year loan of $1,185,625, proposing to pay 20 per cent. of the equipment cost with the Government loan and finance the rest with equipment trust certificates.

Stand Back! This Sale of FURNITURE Claims Right of Way

Basing Its Prices

---NOT on Low Costs that Were
---NOT on Lower Costs that Are
---But on Lowest Costs That ARE TO BE

THIS Furniture Sale Is the Outcome of Three Definite Markdowns.

A. In December—Our Entire Million Dollar Stock Was Re-priced on the Basis of New Low 1921 Furniture Costs.

B. In January—Our Entire Million Dollar Stock Again Re-marked on the Lower Costs That Gimbels Believes Will Prevail by April 1921.

C. For the February Sale, Which Begins Tomorrow—the Price of Every Attraction Featured as a Special—Based Not on Low 1921 Costs—Nor on April 1921 Costs—But Reduced Even More Deeply Than These.

NEITHER harping upon the fabled glories of a pre-war past, nor trading upon the dangerous uncertainties of a post-war present, but optimistically anticipating the rock-bottom prices of a prosperous future—in this Furniture Sale of February, 1921—Gimbels deliberately and avowedly is out to break the Furniture Market. We do not dwell on other Gimbel Furniture Sales. Neither they nor Gimbel Furniture need word of ours. Grand Rapids that has ever hall-marked them, hall-marks them still. And you know what it means—that Grand Rapids hall-mark. The worth of it. The wonder of it. 80% of the Gimbel Furniture Stock is so hall-marked. It is here for you—sale-priced. This is your sale of it!

1920 PRICE	DESCRIPTION OF MERCHANDISE	1921 PRICE	SALE PRICE
$325000	Dining Room Furniture	$270000	$200000
$375000	Bedroom Furniture	$325000	$263000
$350000	Living Room Furniture	$275000	$180000
$75000	Bedding	$65000	$50000
$50000	Office Furniture	$45000	$40000
$25000	Wicker and Reed Goods	$20000	$17000

IT IS this furniture that in December we re-marked on the new low cost basis of 1921. It is this furniture that in January we reduced again. Ruthlessly reduced. We marked suites upholstered in rich tapestry at prices lower than they had sold for in their first covering of muslin. We systematically reckoned what we believed the rock-bottom prices of the spring would be. We marked our stocks accordingly. We anticipated every drop—allowed for every decline. And so—this sale—these prices. We can do these things. We must do these things. The merchandise is here to substantiate our claims—the price-tags are here to verify reductions. At last—rising above the tumult and the shouting—a REAL sale has arrived.

AND in Addition to Our Entire Furniture Stock $1,200,000 for $750,000

A. $25,000 Worth of Grand Rapids Furniture—just received from the Master-Maker of Grand Rapids—at Exactly 30% Off Regular Prices.

B. $50,000 Worth of Beds and Bedding Bought by Us at Substantial Saving; Offered to You on the Same Basis.

C. 500 Ostermoor Mattresses, the Refixed $35 Grade—Purchased by Us at a Saving—Sale-priced by Us $25.

Other Important Purchases That Are Now on the Way or in the Making Will be Announced from Day to Day.

$1,200,000 Worth of Furniture: Now $750,000

CRAIG CRITICISES BOARD OF EDUCATION

Deplores Politics in Schools and Opposes Giving Board Power to Levy Its Taxes.

HE BLAMES 'PROFESSIONALS'

Superintendent Ettinger Calls for Program to Assure Permanency of Teachers' Salaries.

ATTACKS HOLD-UP OF PAY

Hopes Some Man of Type of Andrew Carnegie Will Provide Playgrounds.

A sharp clash of opinion as to whether the Board of Education or the Board of Estimate should control the finances of the schools in this city developed yesterday between Controller Charles L. Craig and William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools, at the Citizens' Conference on Education, which was in session here for two days under the direction of Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education.

Speaking at the morning session of the conference in the Great Hall of the Chamber of Commerce, Controller Craig declared that politics and "professional educators" were largely responsible for the differences between his office and that of the Board of Education and asserted that the control of the school finances should reside in the Board of Estimate. He declared that there was more politics in the administration of the city's public schools in twenty-four hours than there was in any other place in the entire city in a year.

"Although the present situation is serious and both the Board of Education and the city are short of funds," said the Controller, "it would be even more unwise to empower the Board of Education to levy its own taxes for school purposes. Under such a plan there would be no money left to run the other city departments."

Controller Craig denied that he was seeking to control the educational system by virtue of his direction of the city's finances, and then he added the comment that it was probable that the Board of Education in this city might be displaced by a Commissioner of Education.

Blames "Professional Educators."

One point of friction between his office and that of the Board of Education, the Controller said, was that "professional educators" insist on expending money for other purposes than that for which they were appropriated, and he asserted that for years the educators have been trying to get away from restraint in making disbursements of school funds. Corruption would be a danger if the school funds were handed over in a lump sum without an itemized budget or other restraints provided by law, the Controller said.

"Put the Child Above the Dollar."

Using the phrase, "Put the schools above politics and the child above the dollar," Superintendent Ettinger replied to many of the Controller's assertions after the conference had moved to the luncheon at the Hotel Commodore.

"I will not be led from what I consider to be my path of duty by Controller Craig or any one else who roosts in the City Hall on the way from obscurity to oblivion," said Mr. Ettinger.

"We have never received a full budget; they have never attempted to give us all the houses we needed, and there has been money enough to carry out ideas on a city-wide scale."

He asserted that the Fearon bill, now before the State Legislature, was nothing more than an attack upon teachers' pay. Pointing to the provision of that bill which would hand over to the Board of Estimate the duty of fixing teachers' pay, he said that any one familiar with the history of the Board of Estimate knew that "the board will never consent to view teachers salaries from the right viewpoint."

Superintendent Ettinger then presented a program which, he said, he would like to see put into laws immediately. These would insure the permanency of teachers' salaries, make the Board of Education independent of control by providing for the appointment of about fifteen members by a permanent commission composed of the Mayor, the Controller, the city's members of the State Board of Regents and the presiding Justice of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. He pointed out that this proposal for the permanent commission was the idea of Frank D. Wilsey, a member of the present Board of Education.

"The board that controls the schools should be entirely divorced from the interference of the municipal authorities," said Mr. Ettinger. "It must also have complete financial independence."

Evil in Control by Mayor.

Speaking of the need of change in the method of appointing the board, he said that when the members were appointed by the Mayor, as at present, it was inevitable that at times there should be "a certain provincial loyalty to the appointing power that works to the detriment of the schools." He said that that sense of subordination to the Mayor might be laudable in some agencies, but not at all times in the Board of Education, because the "municipal authorities are there today and gone tomorrow."

"The finances of the city in respect to the educational system are in a woeful state," said Mr. Ettinger. "They would not be if the education laws were interpreted properly."

Speaking of the holding up of teachers' salaries, he said that the Board of Estimate in 1899 had held them up for three months and that some of the teachers had been evicted from their homes and that some nearly "starved," and he added that "that's the way they have always treated the teachers." He attributed recent delay of teachers' pay to quibbling over bookkeeping methods in the Controller's office, and added that "hold-ups seem to be more or less characteristic of the times."

Superintendent Ettinger declared it was "a shame" that a city of this size and of such favorable climate for the recreation of children lacked playgrounds, and he said he hoped that some man of the type of Andrew Carnegie would remove some of the "sore spots" of the city and provide in their places ample playgrounds for the children.

"There is no doubt that the correct idea of educational policy is the separation of school finances from those of the city," said Frank B. Gilbert, Acting Commissioner of Education. "We have threats now to transfer the duty of fixation of salaries from the Boards of Education to the Boards of Estimate, or local Town Boards. This is a direct effort to politicalize the schools, but I know the bill will never become a law."

Speaking at the morning session of the conference, Lawson Purdy, former President of the Department of Taxes and Assessments, said that "obtaining the necessary money for the ample support of the schools is no problem at all for 80 per cent. of the country if assessments are made as they should be." He would improve assessment conditions and laws, and assess all property at full value.

Son of President Plans To Fly Here From Peru

ANCON, Peru, Jan. 28.—Juan Leguia, son of President Leguia of Peru, announced here today he had completed arrangements for an airplane flight from Callao to New York City. He has been in Central America for some time, and says he will make stops at Guayaquil, Buenaventura, Panama, Havana and two United States ports. He is chief of the school of aviation which has been inaugurated here by the President.

BOY PUZZLE NEARLY SOLVED

Loses Himself After Ocean Trip, Only Mother Speaks His Language.

Aarne Sarmi, 11 years old, arrived from Finland by the way of Copenhagen several days ago, and starts tomorrow for Sault Ste. Marie, Canada. Aarne came alone and is to proceed by himself. At the end of his trip he is to meet his mother, who has been waiting for him ever since he was 5 years old.

When he debarked at Ellis Island the officials there had his ticket to Canada ready, and on Jan. 25, early in the morning, he was sent to the Grand Central Terminal with an attendant to see him on the right train.

The next twelve hours in his life will not be recorded in this history. At the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, where Aarne has been staying since Jan. 25, no one has been able to learn why he didn't take the train, where he spent the day, and how he arrived in Fulton Street, Brooklyn, instead of Buffalo. Aarne speaks a language that is like a mixture of Dutch, German, and another tongue. This unknown linguistic factor, like X in an algebraic problem, is the reason that neither in Dutch nor German has he been able to tell much about himself.

Anyway, at 8 o'clock on the night of the 25th, Policeman Kane found a fur-capped, leather-booted boy in Fulton Street, near Bedford Avenue, and took him to the police station.

In accordance with the traditions of policemen and children when they meet under such circumstances and cannot arrive at an understanding, the Lieutenant sent out for coffee and sandwiches. The entente cordiale thus established, Policeman Kane and Aarne Sarmi went to the Children's Society and tomorrow, with the Travelers' Aid as sponsor, Aarne starts for his new home.

CZECHS WISH TO BE AGENTS.

American Headquarters at Prague Proposed to Aid Russians.

Urging the establishment in Prague under American direction of headquarters for action in Russia and other countries in need, Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian Institution told members of the Rockefeller Foundation in this city last week of the future value of Czechoslovakia as a cultural centre and agent for Eastern Europe and the Balkans.

"The Czechs," he said, "are the only people who enjoy the universal confidence, respect and friendship of the Balkan peoples and of Russia. They are the only nation that has a surplus of men and women of higher education, and long before the war they were furnishing these by the score to Russia, Jugoslavia, Budgaria and other countries. They have four universities, one of which is the oldest in Europe, besides a number of other high seats of learning. These conditions may well be utilized by America. There is a great work ahead of us. Russia after Bolshevism gets through with it will be a prosterate nation. It will need medical, hygienic and child welfare help on an unprecedented scale.

"The United States, our Rockefeller Foundation, all our people will want to help for the same of humanity. Russia's past as well as future friendship to us and for the good qualities of her people. But to help we will need trained men and women, and these men and women must know Russian, must know also the Russian people and conditions. Such men and women will not be found in sufficient numbers in this country."

BROKER HELD FOR BIGAMY.

Man From Philadelphia Remarks "Wives Must Have Deserted Me."

G. Roy Salisbury, broker and alleged bigamist, was held without bail by Magistrate Charles M. Harris in Jefferson Market Court yesterday, pending extradition papers from Philadelphia, where Salisbury is wanted on a bigamy charge.

When Salisbury was arraigned last Wednesday, Miss Rita Zimmerman, formerly a manicure in the Hotel McAlpin, who said that she had married Salisbury in Philadelphia, was in court. Salisbury was then held as a fugitive from justice from Shreveport, La., where he is said to be wanted on a charge of grand larceny. Upon receipt of papers from Philadelphia yesterday, Assistant District Attorney Direnzo moved for dismissal of the charge under which Salisbury originally was held and asked that he be held on the bigamy complaint.

"Well, I don't see any of my wives in court," said Salisbury, as he was led away to a cell yesterday. "I suppose they have all deserted me."

DENIES FILMS INCITE CRIME.

Schoolman Says Pictures Have No Evil Influence on the Young.

Charges by reformers that motion pictures incite the young to crime are false, according to Henry E. Jenkins, District Superintendent of Schools, one of the speakers yesterday at the annual luncheon of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures in the Hotel McAlpin.

Colonel Arthur Woods, former Police Commissioner, asked his hearers to strive for the insertion in all motion pictures of some one element to further the American ideal that progress is made not in disorder and destruction, but in order. "In our efforts to make the immigrant a pleasant person to live with," Colonel Woods said, "we try too often to jam the Constitution down his throat and tell him that everything he does is wrong. It is good for us to teach him our ways, but too often our method antagonizes."

Other speakers were Charles Miller, President of the Motion Picture Directors' Association; Whitman Bennett, President and Managing Director of the Bennett Studios, and George Seitz, author and director of many serials.

DAY LAYS IDLENESS TO LABOR AGITATORS

Syracuse Chancellor Says "We Own the Factories" Slogan Is Revolution.

PUBLIC'S RIGHTS DEBATED

Chaplain Duffy and Hugh Frayne Defend Unions at National Republican Club.

Labor problems and the rights of the unorganized public therein were discussed yesterday at the regular luncheon of the National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street. The speakers included Dr. James R. Day, Chancellor of Syracuse University; the Rev. Francis P. Duffy, Hugh R. Frayne, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and the Rev. Dr. Charles Stelzle, founder of the Labor Temple.

"There is a great deal to be done," said Chancellor Day, "and it is you Republicans who have got to do it. It will not do merely to continue discussing who is to be chosen as the next Secretary of State or who is to be picked to become Secretary of the Interior. You have got to deal with the great mass of humanity. And you can't do it by sending them by the thousands into Madison Square Garden to say 'we own the factories.' That is revolution, and revolution you may have."

"Another thing," he continued, "do not criticise a decision of the United States Supreme Court just because that decision does not agree with your opinions. And do not attack the President because he signs a measure in which you are not in agreement. The great thing today is to be sober."

Dr. Day approached the question of labor from the viewpoint of one who could see, as he expressed it, labor's side and the side of capital, too. As he saw it, it all resolved down to questions affecting the Constitution, and, speaking of that document, he alluded to the amendments to it.

"As to woman suffrage," he said, "I leave that entirely to her. I believe in the Constitution and I look upon it with something akin to reverence. And I believe in all of its amendments. I do not favor an amendment to observe the Sabbath, nor do I favor an amendment against tobacco."

Defends Change in Constitution.

He declared that he regarded any one who tried to bring the Constitution "into contempt" as "an enemy to this country," evidently an allusion to those combating the prohibition clause. He said there were certain prescribed ways of amending the Constitution and criticised those who sought a change "through the soapbox in the gutter."

"I believe in capital," he said earnestly, "I believe in it fundamentally and thoroughly. Capital is one of the fundamental things. There are men out of employment today, and they are out of their jobs because the capitalist is disturbed by agitation, because he is out of his confidence. It is the capitalist who fills the workingman's dinner pail, and I can't appreciate myself the attack upon the capitalist. He should have the cooperation of the labor leaders. I believe that the labor union can be made a remarkable adjunct to labor, but I believe that will come only when the labor leaders co-operate. I believe that the present attitude of labor leaders is most mischievous and is working a great damage to labor."

Dr. Day condemned threats of a general strike and said that the "closed shop" was a closed shop only "because the union made it so."

Major Duffy took a different angle on the subject, although he said he agreed fundamentally with much that Dr. Day had said. The Chaplain of the Sixty-ninth Infantry said that the efforts of organized labor had raised living conditions throughout the country and "it has preserved us from Chinese conditions and the 'sweatshop.'"

Frayne Speaks for Unions.

Mr. Frayne made a vigorous defense of the American Federation of Labor and predicted that what he called attempts of the employers to destroy unions, as well as to reduce wages, would fail. He said that the nation faced today a great problem in the unemployment question, declaring that there were 4,000,000 workers ready for jobs, but who had been unable to find satisfactory positions.

As the Rev. Dr. Stelzle expressed it, there was much concern in some quarters with respect to the "uprising of the radicals," but he was "just as much concerned with the downsitting of the conservatives, the people who are quite content with things as they are, who don't want anything to happen in the industrial world, for fear that they may be compelled to change their method of living."

"It is generally assumed," he said, "that social unrest and radicalism are caused by labor agitators, but there is no labor union in Russia, and yet we have in that country to day the bloodiest revolution in history. Our public libraries are responsible for social unrest. There workingmen are reading books on democracy, on government, on history and kindred subjects showing them the great opportunity which lies ahead for the common people.

"Art galleries are making their contributions toward radicalism," he said, "for does anybody imagine that when the workingman looks at the wonderful pictures in the art galleries in this city he leaves the place the same man that he was when he went in? His ideals have been stimulated. He is a better man, and he is determined that his home shall be better; that his wife shall wear better clothes; that his children shall have a better education, and that he himself shall have more leisure.

"The church is responsible for radicalism. The early Disciples of Jesus were arrested for preaching a doctrine that was 'turning the world upside down.' The church has always been the greatest troublemaker in history, because it has stirred people to higher achievements."

The speaker urged closer co-operation between capital and labor, which would, he thought, ultimately result in the development of confidence.

RED CROSS AID IN 1920.

Organization Spent $780,000 for Relief in 57 Disasters in United States.

The American Red Cross spent $780,000 in fifty-seven large disasters in the United States in 1920, according to an official report issued at National Headquarters yesterday. In these disasters 425 lives were lost, 2,700 persons were injured and the property loss was $11,250,000.

Besides giving aid in domestic troubles the Red Cross assisted sufferers in earthquakes in Italy and Mexico, extended aid to famine sufferers in China and took part in relief work in Haiti during an epidemic.

The Wall Street explosion in which thirty-five persons were killed, was a good example of the quick relief afforded by the Red Cross. Nurses, medical supplies and ambulances were on the scene within an hour, and more than $6,000 was spent by the Red Cross Disaster Relief Committee.

Jamaica Bay, Foul With Sewage, Closed To Oyster Beds; 300,000 Bushels Gone

Jamaica Bay, which sends 300,000 bushels of oysters to the New York City market each year, will no longer be a source of supply. The waters have become so polluted as to constitute a menace to health, and the Health Department announced yesterday an order that will put a ban on the oyster beds. The oyster growers have until March 31 to "clean up" the beds and adjust their affairs.

The action of the Department of Health has the approval, it was said, of the State Department of Health, the United States Health Service and the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture. As the city has jurisdiction only within its limits, this cooperation was necessary to prevent Jamaica Bay oysters being shipped into this and other States.

Years ago Jamaica Bay was an ideal place for the culture of oysters. Now it has become the emptying place for forty trunk sewers, and the growing population along its shores has become an added source of pollution. The bay has narrow outlets and inlets through which the tides cannot circulate freely enough to freshen the waters.

Dr. Copeland said that an additional menace to the waters of the bay was the fact that there are several known typhoid carriers near the confines of the bay. As illustrating this danger he pointed to the case of "Typhoid" Mary, who is said to have been responsible for sixty cases of the disease and twenty deaths.

"Jamaica Bay produces between one-fourth and one-third of the entire supply of shell fish brought into the New York City market," said Dr. Copeland. "The stoppage of this supply may not only affect the price, but it may mean that a supply must be imported either from Canada or France to make up the deficiency. I have communicated with the health authorities of France for a report concerning the cultivation of oysters in France."

VARICK ST. TO HAVE BRANCH POST OFFICE

Government Leases Plot for 21 Years at Aggregate Rent of $6,100,000.

TO BE A 4-STORY BUILDING

Adjoins Old St. John's Chapel—It Is Third Branch Recently Established.

The Federal Government has contracted to lease for twenty-one years a five-story structure to be erected at 30 to 50 Varick Street, running through to St. John's Lane, at an aggregate rent of $6,100,000. To finance the building, which will be used as a branch Post Office, the American Bond and Mortgage Company of Chicago has contracted to make a first mortgage building and permanent loan of $1,600,000 to the 34-50 Varick Street Corporation, J. R. Armstrong, President, on its property 34 to 50 Varick Street.

Adjoining old St. John's Chapel, the property has a frontage of 239 feet 4 inches on Varick Street, a depth of 139 feet 11 inches to St. John's Lane, where the frontage is 240 feet. The plot contains 33,600 square feet, and has been appraised at $600,000. The building will have foundations sufficiently strong to add four stories.

Robert Beck, Vice President and resident manager of the Longacre Engineering and Construction Company of New York and Chicago has the general contract. Larremore V. V. Sweezy is the architect.

The new vehicular tunnel is within a few hundred feet of this property, and is one of the important factors considered in making the loan.

The Government will pay $400,000 for the first year and $300,000 for each succeeding year.

The reason given for making the first year's rent $400,000 is that the owners will equip the building with fixtures and partitions.

The American Bond and Mortgage Company will issue bonds for the first mortgage of $1,600,000 at 7½ per cent. interest per annum for ten years with amortizations, and have also agreed to make a second mortgage of $250,000, at 8 per cent. interest for five years with amortizations. The deal was negotiated by Lawrence, Blake & Jewell.

This is the third postal service building the Government has contracted to lease in Manhattan in recent months.

To relieve congestion in the Times Square post office station the Government last fall leased from the Landcourt Realty Company the building now going up at 223-241 West Thirty-eighth Street.

Early last year the Government leased from the Partos Realty Company a four-story post office building to be erected at 122 to 128 East Twenty-third Street, running through to 121 to 125 East Twenty-second Street, forming a plot 75 by 197 feet.

DANCE FOR WOMEN'S CLUBS.

State Federation to Hold Get-Together Meeting on Wednesday.

The New York State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will hold a dinner and dance on Wednesday evening in the Hotel Pennsylvania. The speakers will include Judge Jean H. Norris, President of the State Federation; Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke, who was a delegate to the International Council of Women and will speak on "Business and Professional Woman of Europe"; Martin Saxe, to speak on "Women and Governmental Administration," and Andre Tridon, writer and psychologist. Music will be furnished by the Columbia University Jazz Orchestra.

Mrs. Nina B. Price, National Vice President for New York State, is Chairman of the dinner committee, which includes Jane J. Martin, President of the League of Advertising Women; Mrs. Harriet C. Emmons, President, New York League of Business and Professional Women; Julia C. Doran, President, Wall Street Women's Club; Jeannie Hughes, Mary Stewart, Minnie Bruere, Edyth Charlick, Mrs. Ida Jane Dutton, Mrs. Nathalie Laimbeer, Jane Lee, Mrs. Carolyn T. Radnor-Lewis, Dorothy Strauss, Eugenia Wallace, Lucy Wicker, Mary Parker, Constance De Forest, Marguerite Greville, Helen Merrill Emery, Margaret Wheeler and Sylvia Van Rensselaer.

BROOKLYN APPROVES NEW TERMINAL PLAN

Waterfront Development Idea of Commerce Chamber Differs From Other Systems.

WANT A MARGINAL ROAD

Would Minimize Use of Floats for Cars and Enable Increase of Direct Shipments.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce made public yesterday a plan for the development of railroad connections and freight terminal facilities in Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond which has been endorsed by commercial organizations in the three boroughs. The plan was devised, after long study, by Major John F. Sullivan, a former employe of the Board of Estimate.

Just a week ago the New York, New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission submitted a report for a development of all waterfronts and railroad terminals in the city. The two plans differ in important respects.

Major Sullivan recommends a marginal railroad along the waterfront of Brooklyn and Queens and the Port and Harbor Commission recommends merely the extension of spurs leading from existing bridges.

The Sullivan report provides for a tunnel under the Narrows, a railroad across Staten Island and the use of the tunnel, for a time at least, to meet the needs of Staten Islanders for rapid transit. The Port and Harbor Development Commission recommends a five-mile tunnel across the lower New York Bay from Bay Ridge to the New Jersey mainland, and makes no reference to the appeal of Staten Island for an increased passenger service.

A statement by the Directors of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce points out that on the Western end of Long Island there is a population of more than 2,500,000, 600,000 homes, and 10,000 factories employing 200,000 persons.

"Brooklyn and Queens in so far as railroad facilities are concerned practically are isolated and have no connections with any of the main trunk lines to the West and South," says the report. "The two boroughs are inadequately supplied with freight facilities.

"Merchants and manufacturers in the two boroughs are compelled to handle goods by means of trucks, which makes transportation expensive.

"The present method of handling freight cars by car-float system is too expensive and results in too much delay.

"The float-bridge system of handling cars requires the railroads to ship empties back to New Jersey and then reship them to other sections of the waterfront. This defect alone results in shipping back to the Jersey shore of about 11,000 empty cars annually."

The statement says that the 10,000 factories on the western end of Long Island and the eastern shore of New York Bay, turn out annually manufactured products estimated at from $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000.

"Along the Brooklyn waterfront," the reports adds, "more than one-half the commerce of the Port of New York is handled, and more than forty steamship lines, with a combined fleet of more than 700 steamships, sail from its piers to the ports of the world. Brooklyn now ranks fourth, and Queens twelfth, in the country as industrial centres."

NEW DEVICES TO END FUMES

Relief for Riverside May Result From Test of Apparatus.

Apparatus designed to eliminate the fumes from New Jersey factories which have made residence of Riverside Drive unpleasant at times, will be ready in about two months for a test, Dr. Theodore Horton, engineer of the State Department of Health, reported to Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner, at a hearing yesterday in the Academy of Medicines.

Dr. Horten said that his observations indicated that the fumes had been less offensive recently. He said that he found linseed oil odors opposite the Spencer Kellogg plant, but that they were not so bad as formerly. Franklin Stone, counsel for the company, said that apparatus had been installed to prevent the odors and was proving satisfactory. The General Chemical Company, Dr. Horton said, is experimenting with conveyors to carry off the fumes, but changes in the system are necessary.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Russell Tarbox and William H. Page, representing the West End Association, praised the late Dr. William J. O'Sullivan for his investigation which ended in death.

TARIFF REVISION ISSUE IN CANADA

Liberal Opposition and Farmers' Party Unite in Demand for Reduction.

SUPPORT FOR PROTECTION

Its Adherents Spurred by Efforts to Pass Emergency Legislation in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Jan. 29.—When the Government meets Parliament on Feb. 14 it will be with the definite understanding that the issue to be thrashed out during the session will be revision of the tariff as promised in the budget speech last May. An inquiry nation wide in character has been carried on by three ministers under the chairmanship of Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, into the feeling of the country on the question. Representative men in agriculture and industry have been heard, so that the Cabinet has had the opportunity to decide what is the most expedient policy to follow regarding the products of Canadian factories and farms.

The emergency legislation which has been before Congress for the last two months at Washington has spurred the high tariff men and they are ready to make more urgent demands than if no such legislation had been proposed. The policy outlined by the Minister of Finance provides for a "thorough revision of the tariff with a view to the adoption of such reasonable measures as are necessary—(a) to assist in providing adequate revenues; (b) to stabilize legitimate industries, and to encourage the establishment of new industries essential to the proper economic development of the nation—to the end that a proper and ever increasing field of useful and remunerative employment be available for the nation's workers; (c) to develop to the fullest extent our natural resources; (d) to especially promote and increase trade with the mother country, the sister dominions and colonies and Crown dependencies; (e) to prevent the abuse of the tariff for the exploitation of the consumer." The Prime Minister, the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, and his Minister of Finance are in earnest.

Both the Liberal Opposition and the Farmers' Party, which is becoming a strong factor in Federal politics, are one in the demand for a reduction of the tariff and it is bound to be the chief issue in the coming general election. Custom revenues continue to be the principal source of receipts for the Treasury.

Tariff Comparisons.

By comparison with the United States the tariff is much higher in Canada. In 1917 $206,000,000 was collected from 105,000,000 people in the United States and $167,000,000 from 9,000,000 people in Canada, the average rate of duty being 7.09 per cent in the United States and 16.8 in Canada. In 1918 the United States collected $172,000,000, in round figures, at an average rate of 5.85 per cent., and Canada collected $154,000,000 at an average rate of 17 per cent. In 1919 the United States collected $249,000,000 at an average rate of 6.52, while $168,000,000 was collected in Canada at an average rate of 17.9. Returns for the first nine months of the current fiscal year show no abatement in custom revenues, the receipts being $145,442,224, an increase of $13,508,185 over the same period in the preceding year.

Trade returns continue to be amazingly good, but mounting imports give cause for apprehension in financial circles and material to advocates of higher protection. For the nine months ending Dec. 31, 1920, the total domestic exports amounted to $974,920,719, an increase of $33,075,344 over the same period of 1919, but the imports were $1,003,335,497, an increase of $272,392,808. The adverse balance of $28,415,778 is not formidable, but when added to the estimate of $200,000,000 for interest payments on foreign investments and shipping charges raises a problem not easy of solution.

Premier Meighen is paying special attention to economics and he is expected to be ready with a comprehensive survey of the entire issue for Parliament. Under the Canadian budget system the tariff and revenue policy is decided on by the Government and when submitted with the annual budget becomes the policy upon which it stands or falls. As between the free trade tariff of Great Britain and the protective tariff of the United States, Premier Meighen takes a decided stand with protection. He is not a high tariff man and is likely to make radical changes in the direction of lower rates, but all toward protection.

To Oppose Business Profits Tax.

Naturally the exchange situation enters into the argument. "We want a moderate tariff, and no more than a moderate tariff," Premier Meighen declares. "With the tariff as it is, we are buying from the United States now at the rate of 1,000,000,000. As a consequence, the Canadian dollar is worth only 88 cents across the line. That means that we pay the United States $100,000,000 of money." But this takes no account of the fact that Canadian exporters collect in premium on exchange very large sums which appears in the large dividends of paper manufacturers and other exporters of Canadian produce to that market.

T. A. Crerar, leader of the Farmers' group in the House, advocates radical changes in the fiscal policy, aiming at development of natural rather than artificial industries, mining, lumbering and agriculture, with an improvement of rural conditions in view. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, stands for a lower tariff on the implements of production in the industries based on the natural resources of Canada, and a revision downward of duties on necessaries of life, such as food products, and clothing and the raw material entering into the manufacture of such commodities. Hence on the main issues, the two groups in opposition are united against the Government. The Government lost the by-election in East Elgin, Ontario, recently in a three-cornered contest, and the by-election in West Peterboro on Feb. 7, is looked forward to with some anxiety by Government supporters who hope to repeat the result of the victory in Yale, British Columbia.

A strong attack will be made on the policy of the business profits tax, which takes from 20 to 60 per cent. of net profits from successful corporations. The financial strain of industry is dried up at its source, it is argued, and to quote Sir Henry Drayton's last budget speech:

"It is in the interest of the country that business concerns should be able to make some provision for shrinking price lists and decreased buying power of their customers."

It is hoped in business circles that the Government will see its way to abolish the tax, but if not, it will be urged to amend the measure so as to make the levy fall upon net profits, irrespective of the capital employed.

While Canada has decided for direct representation at the American capital, it is understood there have been some indications of movements in the same direction from Australia and the Union of South Africa, which led the British Government to suggest postponement of the appointment of the Canadian Minister until the situation has cleared. The imperial conference, at which constitutional relations within the Empire are to be considered, will not come until 1922, so time is to be taken on the entire problem. The Government is not going to make haste in any way that might embarrass London.

Natives Need Americanization, Says Massachusetts Governor

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Natives as well as immigrants need Americanization, said Governor Channing H. Cox at the first Americanism congress under the auspices of the American Legion at the State House today. Many whose families have lived in this country for generations need to be Americanized as much as recently arrived immigrants, he said, and added:

"Americanization is a broader term than is generally accepted. Many think that we speak only of those who are not citizens. But I believe there is need to bring to attention many of our citizens who have fallen out of sympathy with the principles that we call American."

FUSION ORGANIZING TO FIGHT TAMMANY

Committees Being Formed in All Boroughs to Contest City Offices and Mayoralty.

A plea for fusion between the Republican Party and all independent elements opposed to Tammany is made by Joseph M. Price in the current issue of The Metropolis, the new semi-monthly magazine devoted to city affairs. Mr. Price, who took a prominent part in the successful fusion movement in 1913, says that the present situation is much like that of 1897, following the election of President McKinley, when the nomination of General Benjamin F. Tracy by the Republicans and of Seth Low by the Citizens Union resulted in the election of Robert C. Van Wyck as the first Mayor of Greater New York.

Mr. Price says that this situation must not be permitted to arise again, and to prevent it a Citizens' Committee is being formed in every borough to bring about fusion. After charging that Mayor Hylan had kept none of his campaign promises and failed to solve any of the important problems facing the city, Mr. Price says:

"All of the forces of opposition to the present régime must get together, Republicans, independent Democrats and those not enrolled in either party, men and women, in order to elect a self-respecting Administration for the City of New York at the municipal election next November.

"A movement to effect this is under way, under a plan which has a broader popular basis than in previous years. There is in process of formation a Citizens' Committee in each of the five boroughs. These borough committees, when formed, will meet and elect a committee to represent the city. This city committee will consist approximately of the same number as the Board of Aldermen, each borough electing to the city committee the same number of representatives that it has on the Board of Aldermen. The borough committees will canvass the situation in their boroughs, so as to get the co-operation of all the various elements there, and will suggest nominees for their local borough offices. These committees will conduct the campaign in each borough of the greater city."

Mr. Price says that he does not expect the five-cent fare to be an issue in the campaign as all the candidates for Mayor will favor its retention.

"Something constructive can be done even with a five-cent fare as a maximum," he adds, "but not with a Mayor who simply keeps the five-cent fare issue alive for the coming election and with no constructive ideas on the subject."

NEW I. R. T. TRAIN SCHEDULE

Through Service East of Atlantic Av., Brooklyn, to Begin Wednesday.

New schedules for west side Interborough trains in Brooklyn will become effective next Wednesday morning. Shuttle trains, which now operate in non-rush hours east of Atlantic Avenue, will be eliminated and through service instituted.

West side express trains arriving at Atlantic Avenue on approximately four-minute headway will be divided. Each alternate train will turn and the others will go through to Institute Park, where there will be another division, some proceeding via the Nostrand Avenue branch and the others via the Livonia Avenue line. In the reverse direction the two parts will be coupled and proceed to Manhattan as a single unit.

It is explained that this will give a four-minute service to Atlantic Avenue, an eight-minute service from Atlantic Avenue to Institute Park, and an eight-minute service on each of the branches. The east side service will terminate at Atlantic Avenue, and passengers from or to stations beyond Atlantic Avenue must transfer at Nevins Street.

59TH ST. TRANSFERS CEASE.

Third Av. Line Explains That Court Holds 5-Cent Fare Confiscatory.

The giving of transfers between the Fifty-ninth Street crosstown railroad, part of the Third Avenue Railway system, with intersecting lines ceased at 5 o'clock this morning, under an order issued a few days ago by Federal Judge Mayer. A statement yesterday by the Third Avenue Company was to the effect that the transfer system was established under an order of the Public Service Commission on Oct. 29 1920, and that of the five cent fare collected the Fifty-ninth Street line received only two cents.

It is explained in the statement that the theory of the Federal Court in permitting the discontinuance of the transfers was the same as that in which the same court enjoined the enforcement of the statutory gas rates—that it was confiscatory.

APPEAL FOR NURSE SERVICE.

Brooklyn Association Last Year Cared for 25,000 Sick Persons.

The Visiting Nurse Association of Brooklyn cared for 25,000 sick persons, made 150,000 visits and the nurses helped bring 2,749 new citizens of the United States into the world, according to a report of the association for 1920.

During January and February, 1920, when the recurrence of influenza was serious, the number of patients under care of the nurses increased from less than 3,000 to more than 6,000 in a month. Two of the most important branches of the work are the maternity service and the work for crippled children.

A nurse can be added to the rolls of the association for $1,500 a year, and contributions may be sent to 90 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn.

Women to Discuss Mayoralty.

A women's forum for the discussion of the coming Mayoralty campaign will meet tomorrow afternoon at the National Republican Club upon call of Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Vice Chairman of the Republican County Committee. All women Republican selection captains and workers are invited. Samuel S. Koenig, County Chairman, will speak. Miss Mabel McKinley Baer will sing.

INVENTORS FACE BIG PATENT LOSSES

Hundreds of Millions in Royalties Imperilled by Treaty, Legal Expert Says.

WANTS CONGRESS TO ACT

Thousands of American Patents Not Filed Abroad Since 1914 in Danger.

NOLAN BILL IS FAVORED

Action by March 31 Is Imperative—Manufacturer Explains Situation.

American manufacturers and inventors will forfeit patent rights worth hundreds of millions of dollars unless legislation is enacted by the present Congress as a substitute for the patent agreement in the Peace Treaty, according to Albert E. Parker of Marks & Clerk, international patent lawyers, of 220 Broadway.

The rights at stake are those covering inventions by Americans during the period from 1914 to the present, during which thousands of valuable American patents were not filed abroad, because of the chaotic conditions in trade and manufacture due to the war. Other patents in danger are those filed before the war, but lapsed in the meantime, because of non-payment of annual taxes in countries where they were filed.

Unless legislation for the protection of these rights is enacted at the present session, according to Mr. Parker, citizens of European countries will be at liberty to manufacture products patented in America and sell them in any countries not covered by American patents.

"The patent rights involved are in every branch of industry and their value runs high into the millions," said Mr. Parker. "It has been estimated as high as a billion dollars, although I personally think that figure is excessive.

Nolan Bill Is Favored.

"If the Nolan bill becomes a law during the present session of Congress these rights will be saved to American inventors and business men. The bill is now in committee. There has been no opposition to it. But it is in danger of failing of passage because of the amount of business and the short time remaining to the present Congress."

The bill must be passed during the present session of Congress and American patents must be filed in the European and other countries which are parties to the Berne Convention before March 31, or these patent rights are lost anyway.

Many of the American inventions are being manufactured in Europe now with no payment of royalties to the patent owners here. The law prevailing in practically all important countries is that inventions become public property unless they are patented within one year after their first public use. Some of the American inventions involved are six years old. The European rights of the inventors or owners would have lapsed long since, except that war conditions have given rise to special legislation for the protection of inventors.

The nations represented in the Berne Convention agreed in June, 1920, to validate all patents for inventions during the war period, provided they were filed before Sept. 30, 1920. This date was later extended to March 31, 1921. The United States was not a party to the Berne Convention, and American inventors do not automatically acquire the right to recover the foreign rights to their inventions. The Berne agreement on the subject provided, however, that the benefit of the agreement would be extended to all nations which adopted reciprocal legislation before March 31 of this year.

Reciprocal Agreement Imperative.

The Nolan bill is intended to avail the United States of this privilege by extending the reciprocal rights to foreign inventors to validate in this country their inventions during the period described. The United States, according to Mr. Parker and other international patent lawyers who appeared before the House Committee on Patents during the month, will be a great gainer by this exchange of patent protection between nations, because the rights of Americans at stake are many times as great as those of foreigners.

The predicament of some of the individual owners of American patents, unfiled in other countries, was set forth as follows by Otto R. Barnett of Chicago:

"The Westlake Machine Company, at an expense of over $500,000, developed an automatic glassworking machine, which manufactures perhaps one-third of all the electric light bulbs that are used in this country.

"Each machine takes the place of thirty-three men. It works twenty-three hours a day. Under the contract with capitalists in England they have covered the entire civilized world with their patents, but at present several of their most important applications are held up by these conditions.

"The Vapor Heating Company developed what is a standard car-heating system on all Pullman cars and all crack trains of this country on a number of principal railways. They have had a representative over in Europe installing the apparatus there and seeing about contracts. Others have been negotiating with capitalists in England, but are seriously hampered by the question of patent contracts.

"The C. A. Dunham Company is one of the largest manufacturers of heating appliances, more particularly domestic heating appliances. Mr. Dunham, the President of the company, has made two trips to England and the Continent within the last year, extending his trade there, and, like all the rest, the first thing they say is, 'What patent protection can we get?'

"Wilson J. Vance of the Woolworth Building, representing the Aztec Yarn Spinning and Manufacturing Company, which has a process for the treatment of fibres which produces textile material and paper pulp for the manufacture of the finest writing paper, reports similar conditions affecting his company."

Mr. Parker issued a circular yesterday addressed "To the Patent Profession," urging the passage of the Nolan bill.

Nine Unlucky for Nine-Year-Old.

No. 9 is unlucky for Farrell Smith, who is 9 years old and lives at 9 West Ninth Street, Brooklyn. Yesterday, Jan. 29, he tried to steal a ride on a peddler's wagon at 9 o'clock, and caught his leg in the wheel. It was broken nine inches above the ankle, and he was taken to the Holy Family Hospital.

HONOR THROUGH WORK.

"It is not respectable not to work," in American opinion, as expressed by ROBERT W. DE FOREST in today's TIMES. He was discussing young Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S recently expressed regret that his inheritance deprived him of his father's opportunity to make his way in the world on his own initiative. It would be interesting to know the elder ROCKEFELLER'S estimate of the relative worth to him of his billion and of his satisfaction in having had the opportunity to work under stimulus of necessity, the lack of which his son regrets. The money which millionaires or billionaires can spend on themselves in satisfaction of material wants does not expand with the ability to spend. Any amount can be spent on a picture, or a statue, or books, or "stones," as dealers say, but the satisfaction received does not grow with the amount paid nor with the number or size of the possessions. The parting with the money gives no pleasure because it causes no sacrifice, and the acquirement of the coveted possession ends the pleasure of seeking it. It is safe to say that the elder ROCKEFELLER values his sort of son more than his billion.

The esteem of fellow-men is what makes life worth living, the priceless thing which money cannot command, and which is not always given when deserved. The Rockefeller billion was earned by cheapening and selling good oil. The same amount of money taken by extortion for dear or poor oil would have earned dislike. The fortune is measured by the service. The fruition of effort against early handicaps gives the personal satisfaction of winning a worth-while struggle which outweighs the possession of many houses and acres and dollars uncounted in any practical sense. The younger ROCKEFELLER can never have that pleasure. The multitude will never believe that he has had struggles greater than his father's. They were a stimulus. But wealth is demoralizing, enticing, a sedative against effort. Why struggle for what is possessed against the possibility of want?

Men want to be valued for themselves alone; that is, for their individual accomplishments, not for what fortune gives them. That is what inspires work by the men cited as examples by Mr. DE FOREST — HILL, ROOSEVELT, ROOT — a catalogue any one can extend. Mr. DE FOREST searches in vain for the secret of their success under difficult conditions. Education does not explain it, and there are cases in which it seems that education shares the handicap of wealth upon talent. Universities have been known to smother the search for culture, which also has been known to thrive outside all schools. The mystery of success seems as great as the mystery of vitality. How many have known of marvelous driving force in frail bodies? Who fails to appraise highly the smaller accomplishments of weaker capacities? Those who have struggled and done little, but who are allowed to know that they are valued by fellow-men for their struggle rather than for their accomplishment, command earth's highest reward. There is praise for the community as well as for self-made men in Mr. DE FOREST'S saying that it is respectable to work in America. That is the sort of humans Americans are. No man can qualify for the class of men named by Mr. DE FOREST who is satisfied to receive what he does not both earn and work for—a distinction with a difference which it is prudent not to amplify. One other point appears in Mr. DE FOREST'S suggestive remarks. America is changing in the matter under discussion. Decreasing respect is being paid to the self-made fortunes. Increasing respect is being paid to the uses made of the resources which give leisure for public service. Our "dollar-a-year" men have set high standards in the use of talents for public rather than private or individual benefit, and the salaries which many did not collect have given satisfactions beyond the power of money to command. The administration father's acquirement of the fortune. It would be easy to make a list of those with similar opportunity who have wasted their chance to rank as faithful servants of the common good.

THE REPARATION PAYMENTS.

But for the crass folly of imposing a 12½ per cent. tax on German exports in addition to the direct payments, the reparation terms agreed upon by the Allied Supreme Council would be considered reasonable. The exports tax is unsound, no matter from what point of view it may be regarded. We are told that it is to be paid "by Germany." If the German Government pays the impost, it must get money by taxing the German people. In order to pay the tax, German producers and exporters, so far as conditions in the world's markets permit, will raise the price of their commodities. Thus consumers in allied and other countries outside of Germany will pay more for German goods. The astonishing result is that foreigners, chiefly of the allied nations, will tax themselves to help pay Germany's reparation money! If the tax were levied on Germany's exports as a contribution to the reparation payments, it might have some justification. According to dispatches, that is not the case.

The conclusion is natural, almost inevitable, that this tax is a reversed protective tariff—the impost is intended to be a handicap upon Germany in her competition with the manufacturers of Great Britain, France and Italy. Possibly they may have an idea that this 12½ per cent. tax would find favor in the United States, where we are already considering an increase in import duties. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE in his conversation with Mr. JAMES, reported in our Paris dispatches yesterday, disclosed the underlying principle of this singular measure in an epigrammatic way when, in reply to the question, "What is the hardest problem of the reparation situation?" he replied: "It is this: All the allied nations are agreed that Germany must pay her indemnity by exports. All the allied nations are agreed that they do not want German exports." That discloses another element of unreason in the exports tax. The reparation money can be paid only if Germany is allowed to export her products, yet the Council proceeds to raise a barrier against exports from that country. Altogether, this tax is crazy in theory and in its application contrary to the general interest. It is worthy of DINGLEY or of SERENO PAYNE.

The amount and terms of the direct reparation payments are what had been generally expected. Germany is required to pay a grand total of about 222,000,000,000 marks, extended over a period of forty-two years. This is roughly around $20,000,000,000 at 3 per cent. and 1 per cent. sinking fund. It is not beyond Germany's capacity to pay, and, of course, is only a small part of what might be justly extorted from her were she able to meet the demand. As we showed yesterday morning, by the cutting out of expenditure for the army and navy and the cost of the imperial establishment, she will be able to save nearly $300,000,000 annually of her pre-war expenditure. The next step will be to secure the assent of Germany to these terms. Then the question of immediate interest will be whether the world's confidence in the certainty of payments will be sufficient to give a discountable value to her promise to pay, to the end that it may become the basis of credit for present advances to the beneficiaries of the reparation fund.

THE LEAGUE AS IT IS.

The series of five articles by "A Pro-League Republican," which THE TIMES has published during the past week, have attracted much attention. They will have much more attention as they are read and pondered. They are written in a spirit of entire candor, of fairness to all shades of opinion about the League. The author has sought to produce conviction rather by exposition than by argument. He has presented a picture of the actual League, the League as it stands today, more clearly than anybody else. He shows faithfully what it is, distinctly what it is not. His analysis of the work done at the Geneva meeting is of the greatest value. Under inquiry and discussion, frequently by disagreements that ended in full understanding, the meaning of the Covenant was clarified. It was settled that Article X. compelled no nation to go to war. A "moral obligation" may be "compelling," but, as President WILSON repeatedly pointed out, Congress must necessarily exercise its right to judge whether an obligation under Article X. is moral and compelling. Neither does Article XVI. "automatically" compel every nation member to join in the economic boycott.

All that was settled by the action of the nations at Geneva. It was settled, too, as "Pro-League Republican" points out, that membership in the League involves no diminution of sovereignty save that the nations agree not to go to war "until three months after the award by "the arbitrators of the report by the "Council." Moreover, the plan of the Permanent Court of International Justice has been drawn up; it was discussed at Geneva and is ready to be brought into being as soon as the League so decrees.

The special point of view of "Pro-League Republican" is that "the League is shaping itself" to conformity with the idea of the Republican platform adopted at Chicago. It is believed, therefore, the chief ground of opposition having been removed, that the declared principles of the party soon to come into power offer no obstacle to the entry of worlds:

Without us the League of Nations is a minority League, outweighed by the men and the resources of Germany, Russia and the rest. In any crucial question, even the reduction of armaments, our co-operation is necessary to success. With us the League will be a majority League, potent to advance the true interests of all nations, great and small—potent, also, in the fullness of time, to enlist Germany and Russia under the banner of fellowship and peace. To join hands once more with our old comrades is to give hope to the bankrupt, the starved millions of Europe—as we once gave them hope of victory. And though we do not acknowledge our economic and commercial interest as a dominant motive, we need not be unmindful of it. In the reconstruction of the world we have a vital stake, as we once had in preserving its liberties.

The question here presented remains the most serious that awaits the decision of the American people. It is not merely of the present time that we have to take thought, although the immediate issues are grave enough to compel attention. It is with our future, with our attitude toward other nations and their attitude toward us, with our position upon that question which transcends all others in importance, the question between peace and war in the world; it is with our commercial interest and advantage in near years and in distant years; it is with the nation's prosperity and the welfare of its people, that we have to concern ourselves. We know that these articles have not been heedlessly thrown aside by those who have for many years been striving to bring about the rule of right and of law, replacing the rule of force, and again we bespeak for the views of "Pro-League Republican" a candid and diligent examination.

DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH.

No feature of the socialistic propaganda is more familiar than the statement that the great mass of wealth is owned by a small minority of rich men. "Nine-tenths of the wealth of the na-"tion is controlled by one-tenth of the "people." As against this OTTO KAHN lately declared that, "of the total income "of the nation, 88 per cent. goes to those "with incomes of $5,000 or less, and "barely 12 per cent. to those with in-"comes of $5,000 or more." The statement is confirmed by the income tax returns for 1918, which have now been thoroughly analyzed. According to these, the relative percentages are even more striking, 89.17 and 10.83.

This does not, however, tell the whole story. From another table it appears that, of the net income reported, people with incomes of $5,000 or less received 59 per cent., while those with incomes of over $5,000 received 41 per cent. Thus, though only 10.83 per cent. of those reporting had incomes of over $5,000, their total incomes were, roughly, two-fifths of the total of net incomes reported. In other words, slightly more than one-tenth of those reporting received two-fifths of the income reported. But this figure is subject to a considerable discount. The total of net incomes reported is something less than sixteen billions, which is manifestly less than the normal income on the resources of the United States. It is well known that many, and especially those with the smaller incomes, not only escape payment of the income tax, but fail to make any report. In the total of the national wealth, moreover, are to be reckoned multitudes whose income falls below the minimum for taxation. Out of a population of above 100,000,000, only 4,425,114 paid an income tax, or about one in twenty-two. It is thus obvious that those who receive two-fifths of the total of incomes reported receive far less than two-fifths of the total incomes of all Americans.

CARUSOLESS OPERA.

During the last five weeks Mr. CARUSO'S regretted illness has prevented him from appearing at the Metropolitan Opera House. If this misfortune could have been foreseen, it would generally have been regarded—probably by even the directors of the Opera House—as sure to have a disastrous effect upon the attendance. In fact, however, all the reports are of audiences steadily at capacity. With no singer in the cast—unless it be GERALDINE FARRAR—whose repute has won a large personal following, the performances have gone on before houses crowded much as before CARUSO fell ill.

This fact has given great comfort to some opera lovers. They argue that it implies a marked and welcome change of attitude on the part of the public. Plenty of music lovers, they say, are now willing to patronize the opera even if they are not to hear some famous "star." They are sufficiently attracted by the music and by the satisfactory ensemble of the production. In this, assert these hopeful souls, there is promise of a sounder popular standard of taste. Operas will be valued for their own sake, and entire, and not simply because they contain a few moments of glorious and expensive song.

It is to be feared, however, that this satisfaction is premature. The facts, so far, do not surely warrant it. Subscriptions at the Metropolitan were made for the season, and when it was expected that CARUSO would appear, as usual, two or three times a week. The seats thus contracted for are, of course, filled irrespective of his disability. And to supply the rest of the audience the floating Winter population of New York could in any case be counted upon as before. Families from other cities, planning a few weeks' stay in this city, look forward to several nights at the opera. Thus it would seem that the experiment of Carusoless opera has not been carried on long enough, or under the requisite conditions, to justify the inference which has been eagerly drawn. It will readily be agreed that it would be a happy change if people would flock to adequate, all-round productions of opera, freed from the trials of the star system. But we are yet without proof that this revolution has come or is impending. Long use and wont have created a large army of operagoers of whom it may be said, as of the Wise Men from the East, that "they rejoiced exceedingly when they saw the star."

THE PICTURE AND THE BOOK.

Mr. JOHN COTTON DANA, who has much to do with books and knows a great deal about them, seems to feel that his occupation may not much outlast this generation. He fears, and a good many people agree with him, that moving pictures are developing a race which does not read, and which in the course of a few decades more may have forgotten how to read. The plausibility of this is not decreased by the argument that the movies reach a public which wouldn't read anyway; they doubtless attract some people who would not or could not read, but they draw in many more who might develop a certain taste for reading if looking at pictures did not involve so much less strain on the intellect.

Yet there is reason to hope that the danger is remote if real; and it is remote, curiously enough, because of the present defects of the movies. A considerable percentage of the several thousand feet of film which make up the average photoplay is devoted to the explanatory sub-titles. These, to be sure, are not quite so profound in content or elaborate in diction as the works, say, of SHAKESPEARE, PLATO or St. THOMAS AQUINAS; but people who read those worthies will probably continue to read them even if the multitude sinks into a joyous illiteracy. For the time, however, the need of being able to read sub-titles will preserve a sort of sub-calibre literacy in the great majority. When the makers of the movies bring their art to the point where the pictures are self-explanatory, there will be no further need for maintaining that acquaintance with the alphabet and its combinations which has brought to so many human beings a knowledge of unpleasant truths which otherwise they would never have suspected.

OVERHEAD AND INDEMNITY.

A cable dispatch from London last week gave a summary of the report made to the British Board of Trade by the Berlin Embassy on business conditions in Germany. It found that Germany's economic recovery, though difficult to estimate exactly because of the secretive methods of a Government determined to convince the world that Germany is bankrupt, has been remarkable. This might have been suspected from the reports of the profits of the great German corporations, which are gradually being combined in a few huge supertrusts such as Europe has never seen. The exception, according to the British report, was the Government services, which showed constantly increasing deficits that had to be met by new issues of paper money. Moreover, a semi-Socialist Government had overloaded the official payroll with unnecessary employés.

The same thing is true to a varying extent throughout Eastern and Southeastern Europe, the most striking example being, of course, Austria. Most of Vienna, it appears, is on the Government payroll, producing nothing in particular and very little of that, and getting paid in paper money whose value is rapidly approaching zero. In Vienna the apparently hopeless economic situation and the need of giving people some sort of employment to keep them from starving are chiefly responsible. In both Vienna and Berlin theories of State Socialism have helped things to run down hill. In both countries, moreover, something must be set down to the control of the Government by inexperienced theorists. At any rate, it is apparent that in both effort is being wasted which might be much more usefully employed. Needlessly heavy overhead is ruining the credit of the Governments and using up resources, financial and human, which could be put to productive work.

M. LOUCHEUR, whose business it is to see that France gets money from the Germans to repair her war losses, thinks that there is no need for the huge deficits of the German Government railroads and postal service. The rates, he says, could be raised, as they have been raised in France. There can hardly be any doubt that more efficient management would cut down these deficits, if not turn them into a surplus; there is very grave doubt as to the efficacy of LOUCHEUR'S suggested remedy, an allied receivership. But practical means may be found by which the Germans can be compelled to institute these reforms, and when they do so they will have more money to apply to reparation and also to their own economic recovery.

The Allies are not wholly without fault in this matter of overhead. There has been criticism in France of the excessive cost of the Reparation Commission, the Disarmament Commission and other allied bodies charged with the supervision of Germany. This work has been necessary, but it seems probable that it could have been conducted, and certain that it can be conducted in the future, at less expense. Every mark spent on the machinery for the execution of the Treaty is a mark less for the repayment of damage done in the war, and it should be the care of the allied Governments that this argument applies to the armies of occupation, which have eaten up a good deal of the indemnity already paid by Germany. Without them, it is safe to say, there would be no indemnity at all; but they must be maintained as economically as possible. Both our recent allies in Europe and Americans who are interested in the execution of the Treaty hope that some American troops will be left on the Rhine; but a single regiment would be sufficient for moral effect, and at the present rate of pay and maintenance in our army a whole French platoon would pretty nearly be kept for the cost of one American soldier. A show of force is necessary and probably will be necessary for years to come; but the more it costs, the less is available for the reconstruction of devastated districts in France.

THOREAU'S POND.

For some two years and three months THOREAU lived beside Walden Pond; and "Walden" is probably the best known and characteristic of his works. At what time did the era of snobbery in nomenclature begin in Massachusetts and turn so many good old ponds into "lakes"? Walden Pond was duly made "Lake" Walden. It is about a mile south of Concord, and must look as THOREAU used to see it:

> The scenery of Walden is on a humble scale, and, though very beautiful, does not approach to grandeur, nor can it much concern one who has not long frequented it or lived by its shore; yet this pond is so remarkable for its depth and purity as to merit a particular description. It is a clear and deep green well, half a mile long and a mile and three-quarters in circumference, and contains about sixty-one and a half acres; a perennial spring in the midst of pine and oak woods, without any visible inlet or outlet except by the clouds and evaporation. The surrounding hills rise abruptly from the water to the height of forty to eighty feet, though on the southeast and east they attain to about one hundred and fifty feet, respectively, within a quarter and a third of a mile. They are exclusively woodland.

A cairn of stones piled up by visitors marks the site of THOREAU'S house. It is on private land. The house was built on Mr. EMERSON'S land. HENRY had a delightful theory that the squatter contributes value to the place where he squats, a theory that would be a little inconvenient on Fifth Avenue. He found "it wholesome to be alone the greater part of the time." If his ghost can't keep away from Concord, it must be very unhappy at Walden, a place of public haunt and even infested with that engaging product of civilization, the rowdy and the rough. A petition and a bill have been introduced into the General Court to make "Lake" Walden a public reservation or State park. We don't know how many members in the Massachusetts Legislature ever heard of HENRY THOREAU, but his pond and its shores ought to be dedicated to public use. It is surprising that they are not now protected from hooligans.

As a literary figure, too long overshadowed by Saint RALPH the Optimist, he has steadily grown greater; but, all variations of vogue apart, he must always be great as one of the most original, independent, thrifty and self-supporting men in the world. He won for himself economic freedom and plenty of time to think and to enjoy. He discovered that six weeks' work with his own hands every year was enough to keep him. His free, hardy life, intimate with all wild things and every mood of outdoors, sociable with all down-at-the-heels, simple and interesting characters, with all that he wanted of Concord literates and a select company of books, was his noblest work. Everybody—and especially spendthrifts—venerates and celebrates BEN FRANKLIN. Why not say a good word for THOREAU the thrifty? Good old, dreary, priggish SAM SMILES maunders about "self-help." Who helped himself more than HENRY? Who since ROBINSON CRUSOE was so self-dependent? Doubtless he would have helped himself to BRONSON ALCOTT'S axe if the philosopher had refused to lend it to him. He did help himself to certain parts of Mr. EMERSON'S Walden land. Massachusetts ought to show some respect for the saving and self-reliant economist who built a house for $28.12½.

A REAL BUFFALO HERD.

Seven years ago Dr. WILLIAM T. HORNADAY, Director of the New York Zoological Park and the most indefatigable friend and protector of wild life in America, estimated that there were from three to four hundred head of bisons, or buffaloes, in Northern Athabasca, in or near the Fort Resolution district. In the United States today there is not a single bison at large, unless it be a stray from some reservation. And once, as late as the middle of the nineteenth century, immense herds of buffaloes made the prairies shake with their tread, and clouds of dust, shutting out the eternal hills, marked their passage. In the vast West there was no more impressive spectacle. Just before the nineteenth century came in the last buffalo was killed in Pennsylvania. Congress could have preserved the American bison in its natural state, but it didn't—the pot-hunters were too strong for Congress. In the day when conservation was practicable Americans were still squandering our resources like drunken sailors. As a matter of fact, those resources went to our heads, and we believed they would last forever. A committee reporting to the Ohio Senate in 1857 declared that the passenger pigeon needed no protection because it was so "wonderfully prolific," once did. In 1912 the last passenger pigeon known to be alive was an inmate of Ohio's Zoological Garden in Cincinnati. The bird was then supposed to be twenty years old, and an American who could look upon it without emotion had the soul of a buffalo pot-hunter.

From time to time there are stories of a passenger pigeon having been seen in densely wooded regions of the West; there is a thrill in such a report, but credulity has become atrophied. Still the buffalo lives in his lordly state in the wilds—but they are Canadian wilds. It appears that Dr. HORNADAY'S estimate of a maximum of four hundred would have been too low for 1920. This on the assurance of F. H. KITTO of the Canadian Department of the Interior, who was engaged last Summer in the delightful pastime of trailing the bison in Canada—no "outlaw" he, but a monarch in his own right. Could any outdoors man have been happier than KITTO was in seeking a census of the great beasts as a lover of them? He describes the range of a herd he overtook as in the northern part of the Province of Alberta and the southern district of Mackenzie, between the Peace and Slave Rivers, in latitude 60 degrees north and longitude 112 degrees west. It is a country of black spruce and tamarack, with meadows broken by copses of poplar, birch and jackpine. He counted a thousand buffaloes in the herd he saw, and he was on the track of another company, reported to him by Indians, when the approach of Winter, which is inhospitable so far north, warned him to be gone.

The Canadian Government is now put upon notice that more than one herd of these animals, genuine American bisons, are nomadic in the solitudes of its great Northwest, and it will be the Government's duty to act promptly for their protection or preservation. Whether these buffaloes, in one or more herds, could be kept from extinction by game laws is a question not easily to be decided; but they could be preserved by gathering them into a reservation like the Rocky Mountain Park at Banff, but expanded to the area of our own Yellowstone. In his "Ten Thousand Miles Through Canada," JOSEPH ADAMS says of Bos americanus that "it is, un-"happily, an animal that in its wild "state survives only in history." KITTO refutes him, and he will be glad to be corrected.

DIVISION OF SUPER-INCOMES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Here is a succulent tidbit for radicals.

In 1918 there were 67 people in the United States, each of whom received an income of from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, their joint incomes amounting to a total of $144,500,000! The soap-box orator and the parlor Bolshevik will revel in these figures. Capitalism will receive a lively trouncing and denouncing for its iniquity.

Let us figure and reflect a moment. If this super-income of 67 people in 1918 had been equally divided among the 100,000,000 population of the United States, each person would have received $1.44 for his share. If it had been divided among the 40,000,000 workers, whom the radicals are so fond of calling the proletariat or the propertyless, each worker would have received $3.60 for his share. What a millennial figure! Even a shoeless hobo would scarcely smack his lips over this unearned increment to the vacuum of his vagabond purse.

If the total income from rent, interest and dividends, $10,000,000,000 (capital's share), in 1916 had been divided among the entire population of the United States, each person would have received $100; if it had been divided among the 40,000 000 workers, each worker would have received $250. This is not the champagne figure which the thirsty proletariat vision in their dreams. Of course, with that $10,000,000,000 equally distributed, there would have been no fund for the Government to tax for its revenues, and there would have been no fund for the replenishment of capital in the industrial world. The economic energy of concentrated capital would have been dissipated and the 40,000,000 workers would have been without jobs the coming year. But why not? Let us eat and drink and be merry, for with tomorrow comes Bolshevism! Happily the worker—and there are numbers of workers who possess property and have savings at interest—has more sense than the spouting radical and the simpering, manicured parlor Bolshevik who so ardently sympathizes with the toiling masses in the comfortable environment of the Persian-rugged drawing rooms of the simple-minded rich.

CONDE B. PALLEN.

New York, Jan. 27, 1921.

RESERVE OFFICERS NEGLECTED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been in the reserves since last Spring, and have not received even a circular, much less any orders or publications of the War Department, since my commission was issued. For one who has always prided himself on the keeping of a really good military library with regulations and manuals "posted" up to date, it is trying to live in such ignorance, due to lack of funds in the War Department, whereby reserve officers might be entitled to an occasional contact through a general order or a bulletin. I had looked forward to a period of training each year, and now and then some acknowledgment of existence as a reserve officer. To be so completely ignored for so long a period is indeed discouraging.

No one realizes more than I that the efficiency of a reserve force can hardly survive under such conditions.

A WAR MONUMENT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am sorry to see that your valuable paper seems to approve the action taken by Borough President Curran and Deputy Controller Henry Smith in the temporary "choking off" of Mayor Hylan's attempt to get the Board of Estimate to authorize the erection in Madison Square of an Altar of Liberty. Such action may lead to an indefinite postponement of any kind of monument commemorative of our soldier boys' heroic achievement in the great World War. Personally, I do not think that an altar would be the right thing, but we ought to encourage new competitions among artists—the best architects and sculptors are not too busy just now—until we get the right kind of monument and site determined. Simultaneously keep open offices for reception of subscriptions all over the town.

By all means keep a-moving while the enthusiasm is still alive. Real great monuments can only be born in the fire of enthusiasm, and great subscriptions be obtained likewise.

Demanding?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On last Saturday I attended a very interesting luncheon at the National Republican Club of New York, at which the taxation problem was elucidatingly and instructively discussed by four very brilliant and well-posted men, who gave their views on the tax problems, all practically on the same lines, but more or less differing in their deductions.

Dr. Thomas S. Adams, that brilliant orator who has made such a well-deserved place for himself in his sincere efforts to solve these problems, stated that he was against a sales tax, and then inferentially stated that he favored the many sales taxes that we now have on our statute books, and would even recommend adding to them and increasing their percentages. He also warned the business community that if it persisted in demanding a sales tax, that tax would only be added to the present numerous ones, and, above all, warned the financial community that if it added its plea to that of the business community for a sales tax, it would be subjected to concentrated attack.

All of which was very interesting, but relatively unimportant.

The business community is not going to desist from its incessant and growing demand by any threats, and the financial community is not going to be swerved from the straight line of clear and clean thinking, so admirably expressed by Otto H. Kahn in his address, by any threats of persecution. The financial community has always shown full courage and ability to do the right and obvious thing when it realized its duty.

Hugh Satterlee delivered a most instructive treatise on the tax problem as we find it today, and gave a most encouraging view of what he recommended in the shape of relief through the sales or turnover tax, which was logical and constructive. What he showed was most interesting, but equally of no relative importance.

Otto H. Kahn, in a very clarifying address, stated, among other things, that he had become convinced that the rank and file of business men, in a very large number, were making insistent demands for the adoption of a turnover tax, and, furthermore, was of the opinion that a crisis in the problem of raising sufficient revenue from taxes had arisen, which would warrant the departure, and that, as for him, he believed that an experiment in the shape of a turnover tax of one-third of 1 per cent. on commodities should be made.

This would seem, in effect, to give weight to Dr. Adams's threat that the tax would be added to about fifty other sales taxes now existing, and lead to the un-American and inequitable situation of the fifty different trades affected thereby paying each two taxes, one at one-third of 1 per cent. and one at from 3 per cent. to 15 per cent., while all others would pay only one—that at one-third of 1 per cent.—and thus imperil the experiment by adding the expense of collecting that tax to the other already heavy and admittedly inefficient expenses of collecting the present sales taxes. Instead of concentrating the expenses and thus reducing them. But Mr. Kahn did state that he believed that such of these now existing trades taxes as were irritating and vexatious in their application, or ineffective in aiding the problem by raising adequate returns, should be immediately dropped.

This was equally interesting, but relatively unimportant.

The Hon. Nicholas Longworth started the discussion with a most scholarly exposition of the practical situation in Washington, and gave most illuminating facts and figures.

He expressed his personal views, which are always sound, and then stated that an eight million majority had on Nov. 2 last issued a mandate to Congress for certain kinds of relief, but the inference to be drawn from his deductions was that it was unlikely that Congress could be induced to give that relief in the way that business men seemed to expect.

That was interesting and decidedly important.

In my opinion, we did not merely have an election last November. We had a revolution. The only kind of revolution that America will stand for—an orderly expression of opinion by law-abiding citizens, shown in the proper way, but none the less a revolution.

The American people, yes, the business man, the farmer, the laborer and the negligible financial community, exasperated by many evidences of autocracy, administrative and legislative, hurled from their offices the incumbents thereof, and sent to Washington a new set of executives and legislators in overwhelming majority, with a mandate for complete, effective and prompt relief.

Not a mandate to continue the old form of taxation and add new ones of the same nature. Not to continue the policy of expediency. But for a new policy based on equality, honest dealing and clear and clean thinking.

We are now informed that the new incumbents are unlikely to obey that mandate.

That is important.

It is not what Dr. Adams approves or recommends, what Mr. Kahn advocates and urges, nor what Mr. Satterlee or I may believe to be the panacea, that is important. It is what the business man wants that will settle the question.

Business may err in its judgment, it may be ill advised, it may not have studied the question as profoundly as Professor Adams and others, but it does, by a vast majority of its thinking members, and, above all, by a majority of the leaders of its thought, demand a turnover tax, and is going to get a tax.

We had a revolution last November. There will be another November two years hence.

I am too ardent a Republican to face this situation without some concern, and I hope that Congress will carefully consider the demands of business. They will not be denied.

Two million railroad men, properly organized, placed on the statute books a law which was subserviently voted by a Congress that thought it saw the light, and that against the judgment of every leader of thought in the country.

Twenty-five millions of business men—and by business men I am not restricting the appellation to merchants and bankers, but apply it to all those who are engaged in the commerce of the country—will hardly fail, when aroused, to get what they are insistently demanding, when, and if, they once make up their minds as to what they want.

JULES S. BACHE.

New York, Jan. 27, 1921.

FROM A SOMETIME CHAPLAIN.

Our soldier boys! I see them now—
Accoutred in their heavy packs,
With shining eyes and rosy skins,
Hellenic youths returned to earth,
All smiles and songs and eagerness,
Tumbling aboard a giant craft,
Adventurers for truth and right!
And Over There, I see them plain—
Gas-burned and bloody, torn and mired,
And lifted in these clumsy arms,
And fed with Corpus Domini!
Brave, cheerful boys, who can forget
Their childlike eyes, and talk of home;
Their wishfulness for chocolate,
And, most of all, their comradeship,
And gratitude, and lack of self?
And when the armistice had come,
Incredibly, and hospitals
Were crowded more and more with men
Like pilgrims at a Lourdian shrine,
They smiled through dreadful offices,
Because they saw the welcomers
Beside the pier, and mother-eyes. . . .

The bugles called, and multitudes
Cried "Bravo!" to the conquerors,
And mutilated heroes rode
Along the sunny avenue. . . .
But now where are those Grecian youths?
Some limp, distracted, through the rain,
And find no man to give them hire;
Some hobble to a bureaucrat,
And sign—and wait—and wait—and sign;
And others lie on dirty cots
Within a noisome tenement;
And others stare, but do not see;
And others, witless, huddle now
In lazarets with vicious ones
Whom lust and greed, not war, turned mad.

And why should such a story be?
Because we have so soon forgot!
Because we're fickle—and content!

IN STAND ON RUSSIA

Partition of European Russia Is Countenanced, How Will Siberia Fare?

A PRECEDENT FOR JAPAN

Keen Regret in Washington Over Recognition of Latvia and Esthonia When Leninism Is on the Wane.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The decision of the Allied Supreme Council in Paris this week to recognize Latvia and Esthonia as sovereign States has been noted in Washington with sincere disappointment and regret. The only interpretation placed upon this action here is that England and France are favorable to partition of European Russia and do not intend to heed President Wilson's latest appeal to the great powers "not to take advantage of Russia's stricken condition and not to violate the territorial integrity of Russia nor to undertake themselves any further invasions of Russia, nor to tolerate such invasions by others."

While there is nothing in the mere act of recognition of the sovereignty of Latvia and Esthonia that necessarily implies invasion of Russia by the Allies themselves, this countenancing of recent alienation of Russian national territory is recognized as paving the way for further attempts at partition and serving to increase the bitter distrust and fear of war that exists all along the Russian border. Thus, instead of contributing toward the pacification of Russia, the attitude of the powers furnishes Lenin with new weapons with which to appeal to the Russian masses.

Close students of the Russian problem consider this extremely unfortunate at this time when, in other respects, the trend of events has been so favorable to the collapse of the Bolshevist experiment by natural processes among the Russian people themselves. With the successive collapse of the armed movements led by Kolchak, Denekin, Yudenitch and Wrangel; the cessation, for the moment, of military operations along the Polish front, the Bolshevist Army is without an immediate opponent, and the cessation of military operations has focused the attention of the Russian masses upon the miserable economic failure of the Soviet system, which is more pronounced than ever. Transportation is in a chaotic state. Russia is in the grip of the severest coal famine in history. Industry is paralyzed and the mines are closed. The shortage of manufactured cloth, nails, pencils, grain, paper, medicines and machinery is unprecedented in any civilized country.

Dissension in the Soviet.

And at this particular time the régime at Moscow is split into three different factions of left, centre and right, engaged in serious dispute over the policy to be pursued in the immediate future and as to which element will dominate the Soviets. The latest confidential information to the State Department is that these factions are drifting wider apart. The Lenin faction still has the upper hand, but is holding on through military control, domination of the commissariats and because the facilities for issuing orders still rest in its hands.

Lenin, however, has publicly admitted in speeches that the great masses of the peasants have not accepted the political and economic theories of the Soviets and are difficult to convert. Outside of the particular regions controlled by the Red military forces, the power of the Soviets is centred chiefly in Moscow and Petrograd, where conditions of living are miserable in the extreme. The Bolshevist régime has so far been utterly unable to extend its administration into the rural regions, where its agents are disposed of by the thus no instant could be more favorable for united action by the Powers along the lines suggested by President Wilson for presenting a solid front which would leave the Soviet leaders facing the most difficult crisis of their régime.

Mr. Wilson's Proposals.

Three major propositions were submitted to the Allied Powers by President Wilson in the note of January 18 sent by Under-Secretary of State Davis to President Paul Hymans of the Assembly of the League of Nations, a communication which dovetails mosaically into the now famous Colby note of Aug. 10 to the Italian Ambassador on the Russo-Polish situation. These were: First, that the immediate cause of the trouble in Armenia and Turkey has been the Treaty of Sevres; second, that the dependence of Armenia on Soviet Russia constitutes a situation over which the President has no control and renders it impossible for him to take any action calculated to free Armenia without moral and diplomatic support of the principal Powers which would hold promise of bringing peace and accord to the contending parties; and last, his major proposition that the "cause of action must be a public and solemn engagement among the Great Powers not to take advantage of Russia's stricken condition and not to violate the territorial integrity of Russia, nor to undertake themselves any further invasions of Russia, nor to tolerate such invasions by others."

Mr. Wilson showed that he was aware of the difficulties of the problem with which the Allies had to contend in drafting and enforcing the Treaty of Sevres. He has emphasized the fact that certain factions have refused to accept this treaty and that the Allies have failed to enforce its terms. This was merely another way of saying diplomatically to the powers that the fundamental characteristics of the present situation in the entire Near East is that the reins have practically slipped from the control of the Western European powers. France and England are in control only of Constantinople, the Levantine and Black Sea littorals, and the Kemalist forces are triumphant and inaccessible in the interior of Anatolia and the rest of Asia Minor.

Near East Problems.

The Kemalists have been overrunning Armenia, stopping at the borders of Georgia and Azerbaijan, but meanwhile Armenia, through the pulling of strings by Moscow, is temporarily sovietized. Control of Armenia by Moscow has not only developed complications in the project for mediation between the Armenians and the Kemalists, but the situation has also jumped the Turks from the frying pan into the fire by bringing Bolshevism to the very door of the Kemalists. Instead of serving as a barrier State, the Republic of Georgia has now become the buffer, with Azerbaijan as the catspaw. Azerbaijan has the oil which Georgia desires, but Moscow has been putting the screws on Azerbaijan and compelled the withholding of petroleum from the Georgian Republic. Georgia has been defying Lenin, but Moscow has refrained, so far, from attack, through fear of possible flank attacks through Azerbaijan by the Kemalists whenever the latter, through allied support or otherwise, should feel strong enough to attempt breaking the shackles which have forced Mustapha Kemal to depend on the grace of the Soviet régime.

The Armenian question, in fact, is bound up in the solution of the general Russian problem, which continues to be the most important of all pending international issues, and President Wilson's note fully corroborates the contention that neither the Armenian question nor any phase of the problems around the fringe of Russia can be properly adjusted except through a solemn and binding agreement between the United States and the powers to protect Russian integrity pending Russia's recovery.

Playing Into Lenin's Hands.

Aside from the fact that Russia was an ally who contributed greatly toward the winning of the great war by bearing the brunt of the world conflict in the first three years, the feeling of the American Government, shared by close students of the Russian problem, is that nothing will contribute less to the overthrow of the present Soviet régime in Russia than the steady creation of new situations and problems that play into the hands of Moscow. The Polish débacle of last Summer is cited as an example of what trouble may be developed through disregard of Russian territorial integrity.

The only parts of the former Russian Empire which the United States Government has been in favor of setting up as free and independent States have been ethnographic Finland, ethnographic Poland, and ethnographic Armenia. The Russians themselves have countenanced partition of Russia only to that extent. The allied powers at Paris (Continued on page 2, column 1.)

Princess Matoika, Known to Many Soldiers, in Passenger Service.

Many soldiers who served overseas have perhaps noted from the marine records that the Steamship Princess Matoika, the transport which took so many of them to France and brought them home, has entered upon a new career in the American Merchant Marine. She has just sailed from this port flying the flag of the United States Mail Steamship Company. In the language of an official of that company the Princess is an American citizen.

No ship in the transport service, except perhaps the Leviathan or the George Washington, did better service during the war and after the armistice than the Princess Matoika. As she lay in the roadstead at Brest showing her high superstructure and two funnels, with their red, white and blue bands, she was a promise of home and friends to many a war-weary veteran.

The former transport began her seagoing days under the flag of the North German Lloyd. She was the Princess Alice, built in Stettin and launched in 1900. She had no war record under the German flag, for when the conflict came she sought shelter in the Philippine Islands and was interned there. When the United States entered the war the famous Dewey drydock in Subig Bay. Temporary repairs were made and under the name of the Filipino Princess she sailed for San Francisco.

Now she has been transformed into a high-class passenger carrier and when she sailed for Naples and Genoa carried a full passenger list.

ALL NEW YORK SKATES.

Cold Weather Sends 200,000 to Natural and Improvised Rinks.

The recent cold weather has sent all New York to the ice, at least all those who can skate or think they can. Henry F. Buts of the New York Community Service office said yesterday 200,000 skaters have used the city's parks within the last week. He estimated there were 100,000 in Bronx, Van Cortlandt, Crotona and Pelham Parks, 50,000 in the Brooklyn parks, and 10,000 on Central Park's five lakes and ponds.

Other thousands are using local facilities, extemporized rinks in tennis courts and vacant lots, as well as the big indoor and outdoor rinks.

The City Recreation Committee of New York Community Service has prepared a booklet on the subject of Winter sports in New York and vicinity with special information regarding places and permits for all forms of outdoor Winter recreation. The committee will mail copies of this booklet on request.

These Sale Reductions Mark the Climax of Dropping Prices

THERE is a Bedroom Suite in our showrooms which was priced in December at $1100.00, a very reasonable valuation at that time. At the beginning of this month, its REGULAR price, under our new policy of cost anticipation, became $785.00. For the February sale this suite has been still further reduced to $650.00.

A February Sale did not seem possible when we inaugurated our new and drastic price policy. But the anticipated drop in manufacturing costs, has come so quickly that we are able to offer still further reductions.

Every suite, every piece on our floors, is included in the sale. Not one but shows a value to compare favorably with the few we are listing here:

W. A. HATHAWAY COMPANY

62 West 45th Street, NEW YORK

ABOUT TO BE SOLD

Books, Tracts and Letters Dating From Colonial Period in Collection.

"SWANZEY VISION" IS IN IT

Official Proceedings of the Benedict Arnold Court-Martial Also Offered.

Rare literature relating to the Colonial period, French and Indian War, the Revolution and War of 1812, California and Western territories, including historical books, tracts, broadsides and letters from various owners, including P. K. Foley of Boston, Mass., will be sold at the American Art Galleries next Tuesday evening. An orderly book, kept at Ticonderoga and Mount Independence from Sept. 3 to Oct. 12, 1776, is an interesting item. It covers the period immediately preceding General Benedict Arnold's battle at Valcour Island On Oct. 11, 1776.

"The Strange and Remarkable Swanzey Vision: Or a dream that was dreamed about 40 years ago, which exactly foretells the dreadful judgments and calamities that are now come to pass in North America in this melancholy and distressing day," Boston, 1776, is possibly a unique copy. It is unrecorded by bibliographers and is hitherto undescribed.

An interesting manuscript orderly book is Captain Peter Horry's "Headquarters, Charleston, South Carolina, August 18, 1776, to May 20, 1777." Horry later served as Brigadier General under General Francis Marion. Under date of September 9, 1776, the following is written:

General Lee thinks it his duty, before his departure, to express the high sence he entertains of the conduct and behaviour of the colonels and officers of the several battalions of South Carolina, both as gentlemen and soldiers, and begs leave to assure them that he thinks himself obliged to report their merit to the Continental Congress."

An important historical document contains a list of prisoners from three Hessian regiments captured at Trenton by the American forces, and removed to Philadelphia. A rare book is the official "Proceedings of a General Court Martial of Benedict Arnold," printed at Philadelphia in 1780. Only fifty copies of this edition were printed.

One of the most important Revolutionary orderly books ever offered at public sale is that kept at the Brigade Major's quarters at Newburgh, N. Y. The greater part of it is in the handwriting of Adjutant General Edward Hand. It contains three genuine autograph signatures of George Washington as Commander in Chief of the Army. Another interesting item is the "Collection of Papers Relative to Half Pay and Commutation of Half Pay Granted by Congress to the Officers of the Army," Fish-Kill, 1783. This is the rare original edition of the celebrated "Newburgh Address." It was during the back pay agitation that the officers of the army, fearing for the stability of the republican government, considered the erection of an American monarchy and intimated to Washington that they would be pleased to have him assume the title of King.

There is a copy of the original elephant folio edition of John J. Audubon's reorganized or second Committee of Vigilantes of San Francisco, growing out of the murder of James King. A collection of autograph letters and documents by the signers of the Declaration of Independence consists of thirty-six pieces. Thomas Lynch, Jr., of South Carolina and Button Gwinnett of Georgia are among the missing names. "Songs in the Two Misers, as performed at the New Theater, Philadelphia," is rare. Kane O'Hara's opera "The Two Misers," had its premiere in Baltimore in 1783, and was revived at the New Theater in Philadelphia in the Spring of 1794. As far as known this is the earliest opera libretto printed in America.

An early American poetical broadside is entitled "A Mournful Lamentation on the Unlucky Death of Paper Money." It was written by Joseph Green and was printed in Boston in 1782. Cotton Mather's "Virgilius, or the Awakener," printed at Boston in 1719, is rare. Only two copies are recorded as sold at public sale, Brinley's in New York in 1879 and Stevens's in London in 1881. This scarce piece was printed by Benjamin Franklin while a boy, managing the business of his brother, James Franklin, while he was in difficulties. He was then in his fourteenth year. A mezzotint portrait in colors of Major Gen. James Wolfe leading the army at the siege of Quebec, is a rarity.

"Torpedo War and Submarine Explosions," by Robert Fulton, New York, 1810, is a large uncut copy of a rare and interesting book. The Libby Prison Play Bill, Dec. 24, 1863, is the rare original of a theatrical performance by the Northern officers, given in prison during their confinement there. "Honey Out of the Rock" is a rare Cotton Mather work, printed at Boston in 1715, and believed to be unique. As far as known it is the first printing of Isaac Watts's hymns in America. Hall J. Kelley's Geographical Sketch of Oregon, Boston, 1830, is an exceedingly rare book.

A powder horn of the French and Indian War period contains the names of New Hampshire men who served in the war. There are a number of Washington items, including a document signed by George Washington, relating to George W. Fairfax's accounts with him, and a sale by Martha Washington to Lawrence Lewis.

2,000,000 RUBLES A MONTH.

Expenses of a Chicago Tribune Man in the Crimea—But It Is Only $82.

From The Trib., issued for employes of The Chicago Tribune.

Larry Rue's dispatches in The Tribune during the last two years have been dated from innumerable spots in the north, south, east and west of Europe. Recently he has been watching affairs in the Near East. One of his expense accounts, a copy of which is shown herewith, was sent over by J. J. E. Hessey, European business manager. We imagine him traveling about the Crimea followed by a couple of trucks loaded with rubles; for his food alone cost 70,000 rubles a day and for the three weeks he was there, 1,470,000 of them. His tips and his sheets amounted to 210,000 rubles and his carriages averaged 15,000 a day. Two million a month. It looks like some expense account—until you gaze upon the value of a ruble. One dollar equals 25,000 of them. Before the war a ruble was worth 50 cents. Now his two million expenditures mean only about $82.

Here is the reckoning:

MONTHLY EXPENSE ACCOUNT.

To the Director.
The Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service,
420, Rue Saint-Honore, Paris.

Expense account of Correspondent Larry Rue, stationed at Constantinople, covering operations in Turkey and South Russia during month beginning Sept. 1, 1920, and ending Sept. 30, 1920:

	Rubles.
In Crimea from Sept. 1, Sept. 20—
Food (average 70,000 rubles daily, including tip.)	1,470,000
Room expenses, tips, sheets, 10,000 rubles daily	210,000
Carriages average 15,000 daily	315,000
Incidentals, laundry, &c.	60,000
	2,055,000

$1 equals 25,000 rubles; 2,055,000 equals $82.23.

FACTS FOR EVERY MAN CONCERNING THIS SALE OF OVERCOATS

$37.50 and $50.00

This sale started with 1,443 of the very finest overcoats tailored in America.

They were altogether new—just purchased from two supreme makers—one the far-famed Society Brand Tailors.

Every coat has the maker's label sewed in its collar. See the labels. They are significant.

And now the sale has grown in magnitude because every one of our best overcoats has been deeply reduced and included at these two sale prices. No coat has been withheld.

There are roomy ulsters, Chesterfields, form fitted models, town ulsters and double-breasted styles.
Every coat is silk lined—either full, half or quarter. Oxford grey, black, brown and heather mixtures predominate.

All sizes from 34 to 46 in regulars, stouts and longs. You can be fitted. More than that, you can be fitted in your style of coat.

The Aeolian Company Announces

New 1921 Models of

The VOCALION

At Approximately

Pre-War Prices

FOR more than six months The Aeolian Company has been preparing for this announcement. Early last summer, the necessity for a re-adjustment of phonograph values was foreseen and steps taken to make such an adjustment possible.

The task has been exceedingly difficult. Price revision in itself is a comparatively simple matter. Price revision without lowered quality or profits sunk below the danger line is one of the most difficult problems of the business world today.

To those who know the Aeolian Company—who are familiar with its high standards and ideals—this announcement will be of extreme significance. To such, the possibility of securing a genuine Vocalion at a price based on values existing before the war, constitutes an opportunity of exceptional importance.

The new 1921 Models of the Vocalion reflect the last word in scientific phonograph construction. In musical quality and in appearance they meet the highest Aeolian standards.

TONE AND TONE CONTROL

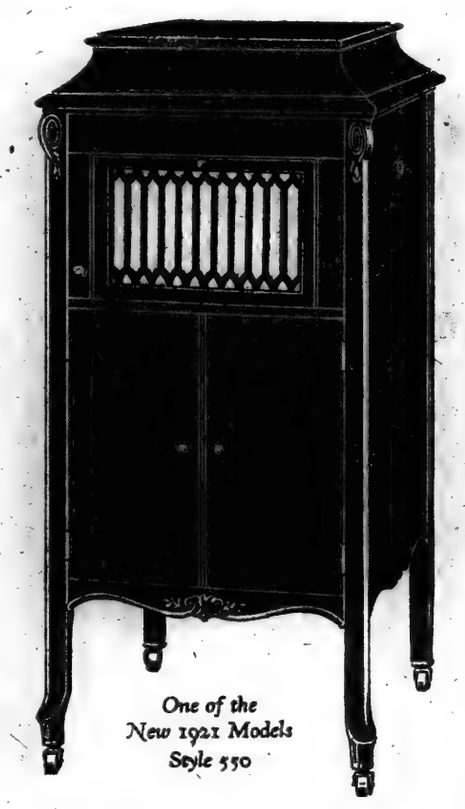
The Vocalion's Two Great Features

TONE—Scientific Reproduction

The Vocalion is the most perfect instrument ever made for the scientific and exact reproduction of tone. When a violin, a vocal or 'cello record is played on the Vocalion the musical tones are heard as originally created by voice or instruments—nothing of their distinctive character and beauty is missing.

People are frequently startled at hearing the Vocalion for the first time. They are unaccustomed to hearing different instruments and voices reproduced with such literal fidelity. This is one of the two principal reasons why the Vocalion has become, in so relatively a short time, the world's greatest phonograph, recognized as such by musicians, musical educators and critics all over the world.

To the lover of music, there is a pleasure in hearing the wistful beauty of the violin, the pallid purity of the flute, the sombre melancholy of the clarinet, the full, pealing and military tones of the trombone and the distinctive timbre of the human voice, as portrayed by the Vocalion, which is not duplicated by any other phonograph in existence today.



One of the New 1921 Models Style 550

TONE CONTROL—The Graduola

From the standpoint of tone "control," the Vocalion leaves the ranks of conventional phonographs altogether and becomes a real musical instrument of genuinely artistic capabilities.

All phonograph manufacturers have sought some method of controlling phonograph "tone." It is the fact, however, that until the invention of the "Graduola," no practical method capable of artistic tone control had been found.

With the controlling device of the Graduola, this great phonograph becomes a sensitive instrument for the expression of the operator's musical desires. Playing any record, vocal or instrumental, he can shade and tone the music to suit his wishes. He can swell a fortissimo passage to the full power of the instrument. He can diminish a soft one to the most delicate whisper. In a word, he can introduce all the subtle variations of color with which any artist himself will vary his different performances of the same selection.

To do all this makes the Vocalion infinitely more interesting, more personal and more satisfying than the ordinary phonograph, and is the other reason why the Vocalion has assumed pre-eminence in the phonograph field.

You are invited to visit Aeolian Hall or any of its Branches to hear and play the Vocalion

Firmness in Stocks, Recovery in Exchange, Reserve Bank Ratio Slightly Higher.

Interest in yesterday's financial news divided itself between the exchange market's response to the overnight shift in position at the Paris conference on German reparations, and the light, if any, which the week-end Federal Reserve Bank return would cast on the money market situation. Foreign exchange rates naturally recovered after the effective disposal of Friday morning's cabled reports of rupture of the Paris negotiations. Rates on Paris, Brussels, Rome and Amsterdam retraced all of Friday's losses, and sterling, though it did not get back to Thursday's high level, gained 1¼ cents and closed at the best.

On the whole, however, the exchange market's action seemed to indicate that, notwithstanding the renewed upward turn in rates, speculative excitement had been checked by the reaction of the day before. This week's market will show what the actual disposition is; perhaps more or less of hesitancy in buying of exchange was natural on a Saturday, when a day and a half, giving ample time for another possible turn in the European negotiations, would intervene before the market could reopen. The manner in which the export-tax compromise proposal would be received, not only by Germany, but by the French Parliament (both of whom must pass on it), remained to be determined.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank's showing was not altogether favorable; for that, however, the financial public had been prepared by the week's time money market. The bank's reserve ratio rose from 38.1 per cent. to 38.3, but the higher rate was still 2 1-3 per cent. below that of a fortnight ago. Furthermore, it was remarked that, whereas the percentage rose during January of 1920 from 38⅝ to 40, it has fallen this month from 40 to 38 1-3. A week ago the statement of the whole Federal Reserve system showed that the reserve ratio had risen substantially since December in all other districts except Kansas City, Dallas and Atlanta, and that those three Western or Southern reserve banks were borrowing heavily on endorsed rediscounts from two or three Eastern banks.

Yesterday's New York Reserve Bank statement showed no advances of that sort, but New York's holdings of gold decrease $27,300,000; and, since some $7,000,000 European gold had been received at New York within the week, that decrease must represent another transfer of gold to the central fund at Washington for the account of other districts. Rediscounts also rose $25,000,000 at New York last week, but note circulation was again reduced. It is now $23,000,000 less than a week ago and $93,000,000 under the maximum of Dec. 23. The decrease of the same period a year ago was $55,700,000.

Yesterday's stock market was firm, with fractional net advance the prevailing movement and a few gains of 1 or 2 points in the industrials. Railway shares, however, went fractionally lower. The December earnings are perplexing in that, notwithstanding substantial improvement of net results over 1919, the comparison with November indicates decreasing total traffic. This is probably an inevitable consequence of business reaction, and it explains the movement for revision of the railway payroll; a proposal whose result is rather likely to depend on what can be shown as to the actual lowering of retail cost of living.

Another emphatic decline in silver bullion did not escape notice. The London price declined one penny per ounce from Friday, reaching almost exactly the level at which it stood when the United States went to war.

MONEY.

SATURDAY, JAN. 29, 1921.

Call money nominal, no transactions reported. Seven per cent. was the rate for demand funds all week. For time money the range on mixed collateral fluctuated between 6@6½ per cent. for short maturities, on Monday, up to 7@7½ per cent., which was the highest, on Thursday. Six months' money started the week at 6¾@7 per cent., advancing up to a bid price of 7½ per cent. on Thursday. However, the week closed at an easier level of rates for both classes. The discount on commercial paper for the best part of the week obtained at 7¾ per cent., other names at 8 per cent. Prime bankers' acceptances were quoted unchanged all week.

London Market.

Money in the London market was unchanged at 5¼ per cent.; short bills unchanged at 6¾ per cent., and three months' bills unchanged at 6¾@6½ per cent.

Gold bullion on London market was unchanged at 105s 7d. per fine ounce. Mint parity, 85s.

Clearing House Exchanges.

Exchange of checks at the New York Clearing House, $609,969,105; balances, $58,643,688; Federal Reserve Bank's credit balance, $42,848,370; exchanges this day a year ago, $961,237,367.

Total exchange of checks for the week, for New York City, as reported by the Clearing House, was $3,790,173,770 compared with $4,399,473,888 the preceding week and $4,330,768,385 for the week ending Jan. 15. Following is the comparison with exchange for corresponding week in previous years:

1921	$3,790,173,770	1917	$3,189,635,725

LOANS OF ENGLISH CITIES.

Experience of London Market With Their New Issues.

It is remarked by a London financial weekly that the large increase in British municipal loans placed on the London market last year was largely due to the fact that the Government had left the solution of the housing problem almost completely to the discretion of local authorities, but that it was also in considerable measure the result of the growing invasion of private enterprise by public business. It is stated that most of these loans were in the shape of 6 per cent. redeemable securities, which were offered at par in the early part of 1920 and at a discount of about 4½ per cent. in the closing months. The Sheffield loan of March was the only one which was oversubscribed. Of the others the underwriters had to take care of a steadily increasing proportion, which, in the case of the Seven Towns loan in November, amounted to 90⅝ per cent. of the offer which came back onto underwriters' hands.

Protecting Money Metals

An illustration of the currency difficulties now confronting many nations is a recent decree of the Brazilian Government prohibiting the export either in bars or coin, not merely of gold and silver, but of nickel, bronze, copper and other metals used in coinage.

Divergent Opinion of the Money Outlook, in Reply to an Official Inquiry.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia has sent out to something more than a hundred banking institutions an inquiry comprising categorical questions as to banking opinion on the future of the money market from the point of view of each bank. The result, as published in the Reserve Bank's Monthly Bulletin for the close of January indicates a curiously interesting divergence of opinion. In particular, it shows that banking judgment is very far from unanimous as to whether we are past the period of maximum borrowing or whether easier money is in sight, even four or five months from now. Furthermore, the banks do not agree as to whether the recent restriction of credit has been wise or unwise.

To the question, "Do you think easier money and credit will be likely to obtain within the next six months?" 84 banks answered Yes and 24 No. To the question "Is the volume of frozen credits with you still too high?" 37 banks answered Yes and 66 No. That "the peak of heavy borrowing has been reached and possibly passed" was the opinion of 87 banks, but 20 answered that in their judgment it had not yet been reached.

Asked whether "In your judgment has the control over credit exercised by the banks during the past six months been unwise?" 95 banks replied that it had been wise, but 14 thought that it had not. It was asked whether the banks had noted any increase in the use of trade acceptances during the past year, to which question 72 banks replied Yes and 34 No. The final question, "Is much unemployment noticeable in your community?" elicited somewhat surprising answers. Out of 108 banks which replied, 37 answered No, the remaining 71 agreeing that unemployment was clearly perceptible.

A YEAR-END RECOVERY.

Movement on London's Stock Exchange Which Resembled Ours.

In London, as in New York, the Stock Exchange made a sudden change of front in the last week of December, taking almost all observers by surprise. One of the London reviews of the stock market in the last week of 1920 states that "to the astonishment of the stock market as a whole, the war loan rose nearly a point in one day, and the effect of that was felt through practically all the other markets.

"Various explanations," it continues, "are offered to account for the recovery. The most popular is that which declares the recent forced selling to have come to an end and its place to have been taken by a fair number of investment orders, mostly of the small variety, which were to be met by payment early in the new year." The prospect of cheaper money was also assigned as a cause, and the fact is emphasized that gilt-edged issues of all kinds participated in the recovery of the closing week of 1920.

Recovery in Most European Rates—Sterling 1¼ Cents Higher, France Up ⅜ Cent.

Exchange on most European markets recovered yesterday, in response to the overnight news from the Paris conference. Friday's losses were regained in French francs, which advanced ⅜ cent, in Belgian francs, which rose nearly ½ cent, in Dutch florins, which advanced from 33.87 cents to 34.04, and in Italian lire, which closed about ⅛ cent higher. Sterling advanced 1¼ cents as against its 4-cent decline of Friday.

There were smaller recoveries in German, Spanish, Swiss, Swedish and Finnish exchange, but the Danish and Norwegian rates declined 1-3 to ⅜ cent per crown. Brazilian exchange was ⅜ cent per milreis lower, Argentine unchanged. The rate on Montreal declined to 89.2 cents, as against 89.5 Friday and 90.1 Thursday.

EUROPE'S WHEAT CROPS.

Comparison of Last Year's Yield With Other Periods.

According to the estimates of the Department of Agriculture, the production of 230,404,000 bushels of wheat in France last year compared with an average of 317,254,000 in the same country during the period 1909 to 1913. Germany's production last year of 80,000,000 bushels compared with a similar pre-war average of 152,119,000. The United States, Canada, Argentina, Holland, Spain, Sweden and India all increased their output last year over the pre-war average.

On the other hand, Russia, whose average production between 1919 and 1913 was 522,794,000 bushels, is beyond the reach of any accurate estimate this year. With the confusion of her markets, depreciation of her currency and the breakdown of her transportation facilities, it is not supposed that actual production of wheat can last year have exceeded one-quarter to one-third of the pre-war average.

The Bank of England's Gold.

Out of the addition of £37,000,000 to the Bank of England's stock of gold during 1920, a large part, according to the London reviews, was contributed by the joint stock banks of Great Britain and Ireland, which "are believed now to have placed practically the whole of their gold holdings at the Bank of England's disposal."

In the stock market of yesterday changes of fractions, such as ruled in the majority of issues, could not be construed as carrying particular significance, though it was recognized that a firm undertone existed. Whatever upturn of moment took place was in issues which for the most part have been under the influence of pool operations. Among those to advance were Studebaker, Chandler Motors, Chicago Pneumatic Tool and American Linseed, the latter continuing a movement that has succeeded in eliminating all of the loss brought about in the heavy liquidation of last December. The course of the market was what Wall Street had been led to expect by the character of the trading on previous days. With no new short interest of consequence, any impetus for a rise on covering in anticipation of the week-end was absent, and no development during the course of the week was of a nature to invite any extensive participation on the long side.

As to Investment Buying.

In some quarters the opinion persists that considerable investment buying is going on in certain stocks, and to this is, in part, attributed the firming up of prices. It is admitted that this buying is not of sufficient proportions to make for a big advance on any one day, but the taking of securities out of the Street, hence out of the speculative supply, it is argued, is making for a strong technical position. By the very nature of the buying, it does not encompass the entire market, but rather is a selective process in which fine discriminations are being drawn. Some evidence of the situation is to be found in the expanding number of stockholders in the case of United States Steel. Brokerage holdings of this issue are lower than ever before in the history of the company. Pennsylvania stock is also gaining a wider distribution than ever before.

A Favorable Sign.

Action of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in vacating an injunction restraining the Long Island Railroad from increasing passenger fares in conformity with the recent ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission was considered as somewhat of a victory for the railroads. The lower court held that the Transportation act was unconstitutional in the Long Island case and the Appellate Division ruled that this was not a matter for State courts. The ruling was liked in railroad quarters in that it will probably stop a great loss of time in the presentation of similar actions to the United States Supreme Court for final decision.

The Pennsylvania Oversubscription.

Announcement that the subscriptions to the Pennsylvania fifteen-year $60,000,000 bond issue had been scaled to 5 per cent., after allowing original participants 80 per cent. of their subscriptions, indicates that the total amount applied for was close to $300,000,000. Allowing the first 80 per cent., or, say, $48,000,000, the remaining $12,000,000 must have been oversubscribed some twenty times, or $240,000,000. This, plus the $48,000,000, gives a total of $288,000,000 turned in for a single issue.

Copper Situation a Puzzle.

It is perhaps nothing new to describe the copper situation as puzzling. This term has applied for a long while, both as to the producers' viewpoint and that of the public in general. There is a belief, however, that movements underneath the surface are now going on which may have an important bearing on the future of the industry. What these may be in detail remains a secret, but some inkling comes now and then to show that the producers are taking more stern measure to correct conditions than have heretofore been applied. It is of common knowledge that the expected improvement has not developed, and perchance it is receding rather than approaching. Under such circumstances the copper men would naturally be looking for some plan which might prove equal to the emergency.

Piecework Efficiency.

Evidence submitted to the United States Labor Board in Chicago in connection with the question of keeping or abolishing National Agreements show that following the establishment of a full-time day and killing of piecework in the railroad shops efficiency of workmen employed dropped rapidly. On the Pennsylvania Railroad the decrease was as much as 26.7 per cent. On the Chesapeake & Ohio the decrease in the efficiency of piecework repairers dropped 41.4 per cent., while in a Union Pacific freight repair shop at Omaha the time required for certain work increased 26.4 per cent., and the output fell 20.9 per cent., while the average decrease in efficiency was considerably more than those figures. Recently, however, since outside industry ceased its bidding for skilled labor, there has been an increase in efficiency reported from many quarters due chiefly to a realization on the part of employes that the best workmen will be kept on the payroll when work becomes scarce and it is found necessary to lay off men.

Some Bank Records.

At least two of the items in yesterday's bank displays were of more than ordinary interest. Demand deposits in the actual bank statement, which were reported at $3,847,342,000, were the lowest to be recorded since the week of Feb. 21, 1919, when they were $3,931,656,000, and if allowance is made for the $160,000,000-odd demand deposits of the Equitable Trust Company, which only became a member of the Clearing House in September of last year, the demand deposits yesterday were the lowest since the end of August, 1918. The other low record for quite a period was in the item bills bought in the open market in the Federal Reserve Bank's weekly statement. The amount here was $28,436,399, the lowest since the total of March 21, 1919, when it was $27,157,673.

AUSTRIA'S MONEY MARKET.

Loans Which Home Investors Are Taking, Despite Financial Crisis.

The perplexity caused by the reports of financial breakdown in Austria is not diminished by the information conveyed in some of the financial correspondence from Vienna. A letter in the London Economist, sent from that city at the end of the year, remarks that "the subscription of the new 6 per cent. Treasury bonds is making good progress; in the last few weeks more than a milliard has been subscribed. A good deal of it has been taken over, not in the towns, but in the country, where the peasants have hoarded their banknotes. It would mean a great success if by means of these new bonds it should be possible to get these large sums, lying useless, for the purposes of the Government."

"In the last few weeks," this Vienna letter adds, "some new municipal loans have been issued with almost astonishing success. For an 80-million loan for 50 years at 99, bearing 5 per cent., by the city of Salzburg, more than 220 millions were subscribed, and a 120-million loan of the city of Graf on similar terms had a subscription of more than twice this sum. This seems to be a new example of the predilection of little capitalists in Austria for this kind of investment."

Last Month's Gold Imports.

Imports of gold into the United States during December exceeded those of any month in the past three years, except for last October when the total was greatly increased through transfer of gold belonging to the Federal Reserve from London to Washington.

SILVER IN 1921

Outlook for the Coming Year, as Seen by the London Bullion Trade.

The following discussion of the silver bullion market's outlook for 1921 by Samuel Montagu & Co., the London bullion house, is interesting in view of the past week's fall in the London price of silver to the lowest figure since May, 1917:

The inquiry for silver cannot be expected to be so keen. The Continent is a seller of coin, not a buyer for coinage. Economy is the cry of the day, and taxation is cutting at the root of luxury expenditure. Hence, plate and jewelry will be less in request.

The requirements of India are doubtful. A good monsoon would stimulate demand, especially after the poor imports of 1920; but the country is well stocked with precious metal, and coinage is out of the question. The prospect of Chinese demand is also uncertain. So much depends upon the power of China to export goods, and the ability of Europe to pay for them. It can be taken for granted, however, that the interior of China is unusually well stocked with silver, and that confidence is being restored in official issues of notes.

The world as a whole would have good reason to welcome the return of the price of silver to a pre-war level. The persistent advance in the price of this metal has much to do with the increase in the prices of commodities, the reason being that the Allies had to depend so largely upon the products of the East, chiefly from India, with whom the world balance of trade has always been—unless the monsoon proved a failure—heavily in her favor. Wheat, rice and beans, jute, cotton, hides and skins figure largely in the useful goods which come from India and China. It was the rise in the cost of such items as these which stimulated that of other commodities in the markets of the world.

The total output for 1920 is not expected to show much change, but the apportionment among the contributing countries will be different. The United States will record considerably less, and Canada will show a further shrinkage. These reduced contributions will be offset by an increase from Mexico and from Burma. The last named mines, worked under British auspices, used to be exploited by Chinese. In a similar fashion, Professor Sayce deduces from recent discoveries that Babylonian firms worked the silver mines of Asia Minor centuries before the days of Abraham.

A good deal of misconception outside India as to the rupee problem arises from overlooking the fact that the natives of India regard the question as one of bullion rather than of currency, and choose to set their own ratio between currency composed of gold and of silver. In other words, the two precious metals are looked upon as commodities, the imprints of a die being but an official certificate as to the contents. The Indian Government during the year clearly endorsed the native point of view by removing the prohibition against using gold and silver coin otherwise than as currency—thus conferring a privilege not enjoyed in the United Kingdom. Gold and silver coins do not change hands in India to anything like the extent that they do in Western countries. They are obviously more treasured than current.

Public Bank May Increase Capital.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Public National Bank has been called to act upon a proposal of the directors that the capital be increased from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. If the proposal is ratified by the shareholders the latter will be given the right to subscribe, at par, to new stock up to 50 per cent. of their holdings. The new stock will be issued April 1 to stockholders of record March 10.

How and Why the Industrial Concerns Borrowed During 1920.

Discussing the issues of new industrial securities in London during 1920, the London Statist thus describes the situation: "Funds of the companies had been locked up in plant and stocks in anticipation of ready markets, but the continual rise in the cost of living diminished the purchasing power of the consumer and foreign markets failed even more signally to come up to expectations, mainly on account of the erratic tendencies of the exchanges. Consequently, the Autumn witnessed a revival in new issues; though these were mostly fixed-interest stocks yielding from 7½ to 9 per cent. per annum, and under high-class guarantee, underwriters were left with increasingly large proportions of their commitments.

"As the replacement of bankers' loans by permanent charges on revenue was not an attractive prospect, the device of short-term notes became increasingly common. In all there were issued during the year £21,523,250 of this type of security, £15,853,500 being created during the last quarter. They were, on the whole, a pronounced failure, and met with a flood of criticism, much of it uninformed. Their lack of success may be chiefly ascribed to their novelty, their short currency, and the general weakness of the capital market."

217% EARNED BY RESERVE BANK

Local Institution's Net for Year $53,128,130, Compared to $27,959,619 in 1919.

EXCEEDED FIRST ESTIMATES

All Departments Showed Larger Profits Despite Increased Cost of 1920 Operations.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank had net earnings for 1920 before dividends but after all other charges, including reserves for taxes on note circulation, depreciation of reserve account, general reserve and appraised value of old buildings charged off, &c., of $53,128,130, equal to about 217¾ per cent. on the average capitalization of $24,400,000. In 1919 the earnings before dividends but after other charges amounted to $27,959,619, equal to 129½ per cent. on that year's average capital of $21,600,000. The earnings for last year were somewhat larger, according to the detailed statement issued yesterday, than the preliminary estimates indicated.

Last year's earnings, in detail, were derived in the following manner: Discount earned on bills discounted, $49,839,182; discount earned on acceptances, $8,323,050; interest on United States certificates, $1,975,648; all other earnings, $387,439; gross earnings, $60,525,321, against $35,278,006 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1919.

Expenses of operation, including cost of Federal Reserve notes and Federal Reserve Bank notes, amounted to $6,999,255, compared with $5,564,830 in 1919, leaving net earnings before extraordinary charges of $53,526,066, against $29,713,175 in 1919. Extraordinary charges last year amounted to $429,355, against $1,763,969 in the preceding year, leaving net earnings of $53,128,130, compared with $27,959,619 in 1919.

Dividends paid last year totalled $1,477,096, and $1,291,047 the year before, so that last year there was a balance for profit and loss account of $51,651,034, against $26,668,571 the previous year.

During 1920 $12,332,523 was transferred to surplus account, and $39,318,510 paid to the Government as franchise tax. The previous year $23,964,678 was transferred to surplus account and $2,703,893 paid to the Government.

Trade Problems

Problems disturbing men who head great enterprises or conduct modest business establishments are frequently solved through suggestions in the pages of The Annalist. All departments of finance, commerce and economics are authoritatively reviewed in every issue.

The Annalist gives reliable information on Stock Exchange transactions and movements in the steel, textile, shipping and other industries. Charts, tables and statistics are published. The Curve of the Food Cost of Living is of general interest and the Open Market is invaluable to investors.

Selected Dividend Payers

We have prepared a special booklet which analyses a well diversified list of 12 representative stocks of National leading industries, listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

These securities besides offering an exceptionally high yield, show unusual prospects for market appreciation.

The yield on this combination averages more than 10%

This booklet also contains our views on the present market situation and gives reasons why we believe the above-mentioned stocks are the outstanding features of the market today.

DANISH LOAN HERE

National City Company to Sell Consolidated Municipal 8 Per Cent. Gold Bonds.

GUARANTEED BY KINGDOM

Other Large Pieces of New Financing Are Expected Soon, Including Chilean Loan.

The National City Company tomorrow will offer $15,000,000 in twenty-five year 8 per cent. sinking fund external gold bonds of the Danish Consolidated Municipal Loan, unconditionally guaranteed by the Kingdom of Denmark. The bonds will be offered for public subscription at 98 and interest, to yield about 8.29 per cent. They will be dated Feb. 1, 1921, and will mature Feb. 1, 1946.

As a sinking fund for the retirement of the bonds, the contract for the loan provides for the payment of $400,000 annually for the first five years and $650,000 annually for the remaining twenty years. Sinking fund payments will be used to purchase bonds in the open market, if obtainable at not exceeding 107½, but if on Nov. 15, 1925, or on May 15 or Nov. 15 in any subsequent year, any sinking fund moneys remain not so applied, so far as is practicable, on the next succeeding interest date, to the redemption of bonds by lot at 107½ on sixty days published notice.

On Feb. 1, 1931, and on any interest date thereafter, the bonds may be called for redemption, in whole or in part, at the option of the municipalities, at the stated redemption price. No bonds can be called prior to Feb. 1, 1926.

The bonds will be in two series. Series A of $7,000,000 principal amount, will be the joint obligation of twenty-seven Danish municipalities, embracing nearly all of the chief cities of Denmark outside of Copenhagen and Frederiksberg. Series B of $8,000,000, will be the joint obligation of Copenhagen and Frederiksberg.

In addition to this offering, it is expected that some other very large pieces of new financing will be undertaken next week. It is believed that the much-discussed Chilean loan, probably of $20,000,000, will be announced, and several pieces of domestic industrial financing are understood to be nearing the stage where definite announcement may be made.

It is possible that an issue of $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 of Ford bonds, probably in the form of fifteen year 7 per cents, will be announced the latter part of the coming week. This matter still is receiving the attention of bankers, but no announcement is expected before the latter part of the week, at the earliest, and it is not improbable that the matter may go over into the following week.

Industries and From Battlefields.

A curious sequel of the European battles and one of the interesting movements in our import trade has been the receipts into this country of old copper in the last few months. The extent of this movement and its bearing on our own copper market has not been generally appreciated. These imports have consisted of old brass which by suitable additions of zinc can be remade into good brass; of old copper is shown by the following table, in pounds:

	Old Brass.	Old Composition Copper.	Metal
11 mo., 1920..	34,384,769	9,742,967	3,462,001
Cal. yr., 1919..	13,878,171	4,217,348	238,933
Cal. yr., 1913..	8,736,143	7,266,080	2,311,400

These data show that the increase has been marked in 1920, the expansion in old brass and in copper having been pronounced over 1919 and especially over pre-war figures. It is evident that both the battlefields and the war industries of Europe are giving up their old ma-

... than ever before; much of them in fact back to the source from which they originally came.

Where Sterling Is Above Par.

At the end of December, it was estimated in London that out of twenty important foreign markets, sterling was at a discount in seven of them, but at a premium in thirteen. The premium on sterling occurred mainly in markets of the previously belligerent countries, but there was a substantial premium also in Norway, in Denmark, in Paraguay, in Brazil and in Chile.

QUESTION OF RETAIL TRADE.

Experience of a Western Business District.

"On the whole," writes the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis in its review of business conditions in its district during January, "readjustment among retailers has not been as thorough as with the primary stages of merchandising. The public is quite as discriminating as heretofore, but is purchasing where prices seem to square with its ideas of cheapness.

"This is particularly true in clothing, boots and shoes, hardware and other goods for personal consumption. From scattered parts of the district come accounts of reductions in the price of bread, milk and groceries, but the 5-cent loaf and pre-war dairy prices have not appeared anywhere. In some entire sections of the district the average was disappointing, while in other sections certain stores did a satisfactory business and others complain of poor response to their efforts."

The Changing Price Trend

With possible slight reactions at intervals, it is likely that the broad trend of prices for investment securities during the present year will be upward.

Prices for standard income-bearing securities are now as low as they are likely to be for years, and believing that an exceptional investment opportunity is now present we have prepared a Special Bulletin, making specific buying suggestions that should be of value to anyone having funds immediately available for investment.

SHOWS BIG GAIN

December Net Earnings More Than 100 Per Cent. Higher Than a Year Ago.

COAL PRIORITY HELPED

Reports of Other Railroads Show Both Gain and Losses for Month.

The December earnings statement of the Virginian Railway Company submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which was received in Wall Street yesterday, stood out noticeably from the reports of other roads. It showed that net in December increased more than 100 per cent. as compared with the corresponding 1920 period. In addition the company's figures for the twelve months ended with December showed almost as great an increase. This was attributable chiefly to the fact that the road enjoyed a coal traffic greatly in excess of that which was carried over its lines in the preceding year. And a portion of this was traceable to the priority orders covering the movement of coal cars issued during the year by the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association at the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In the majority of instances the earnings of the coal roads in 1920 were benefited greatly by the priority movement of coal to both the New England district and the Northwest. This movement continued to be heavy compared with other years, even after the priority orders were withdrawn, as the producers were called upon to meet the requirements of other sections of the country which were not normally supplied during the emergency transportation to the two districts named. The best proof of this was to be found in the deferred car requisition statistics, which showed a shortage of coal carrying equipment long after there was a surplus of the other classes of freight cars.

The figures presented yesterday offered a somewhat confusing picture from which to estimate the December earnings of the roads as a whole, as some showed marked improvement and others the reverse. Without the detailed reports little could be done except in a general way to show what the causes for the differences were. Following are some of the reports received:

WHERE OUR COTTON WENT.

Shipments to Various Countries, Last Autumn and in 1919.

The detailed statement by the Department of Commerce for our exports of cotton during the four months of the cotton season ending with November shows that we sent to England 600,032 bales as against 1,033,000 in the same period of 1919, that Germany came next, taking 288,359 bales in the four months' period last year, as against 122,946 in 1919; that France took 285,411 against 207,513 the year before, Italy 124,196 against 119,093 and Spain 104,496 against 83,646. No other country took more than 52,000 bales from us in the four months ending last November.

There were two striking instances of decrease from the previous year. In that period of 1919 the Netherlands took 139,560 bales; in 1920, only 37,197. To Japan we sent 116,659 bales in the four months of 1919, but only 16,126 in 1920.

CHINA AND SILVER.

Reasons for Last Year's Oriental Buying.

Referring to the Chinese demand for silver, under which the price of silver bullion reached its high level last February, one of the London bullion houses remarks in its annual review that "the strength of the Chinese demand arose largely from the discredit into which paper money, hitherto freely current in Asia, had fallen. The trend of silver prices was almost persistently upward.

"Each week, until that ending Feb. 12, recorded an advance. The highest price of the year—indeed, the highest since statistics have been systematically recorded—was reached on Feb. 4; namely, 89½ pence for cash. This remarkable quotation is more than four times the low record figure of 21 11-16 pence reached in 1902."

Price of Gold in England.

In the London gold market it is stated that the premium paid in exchange on London for gold put on sale when received by England from other countries has not been the only valuation of gold. There has been a curious market for gold which could obtain no export license. Such metal, it is explained, consisted of broken up particles of gold manufacture, or of gold imported from countries which, under the law, did not entitle it to a British export license. In the early part of 1920, it is stated, the price of these sorts of gold ranged close to that of gold in the regular open London market; but toward the close of the year it fell as much as 20 shillings per ounce below the regular price.

Industrial Companies in England.

The aggregate net profits, as reported by 234 English industrial companies for the closing quarter of 1920, after payment of debenture interest and other charges, amount to £27,633,839, as compared with £21,726,731 in the same quarter of 1919.

Our Gold Exports.

Exports of gold from the United States in December were the smallest of any month since the middle of 1919, except for last May and June.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

W. Irvine Keyser has retired as manager of the Baltimore office of Whitehouse & Co. and Winfield A. Goss has been appointed as his successor, according to an announcement yesterday.

Managers' receipts for City of Zurich 8 per cent. twenty-five-year external bonds are being exchanged for temporary bonds at the office of Hallgarten & Co.

The Pure Oil Company announces that its dividend will be payable March 2 instead of March 1, as previously announced.

William G. Paton, formerly with Jenks, Gwynne & Co., has become associated with the Royal Securities Corporation as manager of their unlisted trading department.

Stewart Canfield & Bro. are offering $100,000 City of Miami, Fla., 6 per cent. bonds, due Dec. 1, 1921, at 99¾ and interest to yield about 6.50 per cent.

... BUT SOON DECLINES

Market Stimulated for a Time by Prospect of Settling German Reparations.

The cotton market had a strong opening, mainly on the foreign news, which made it appear that the troublesome question of German reparations would be settled very soon. First prices were up 7 to 13 points, and the near months added about 10 points more to these gains in the first half hour. Business was not on a large scale, however, and after the good start the market became dull and rather heavy when buying support failed to materialize.

In the second hour business was reduced very much, and what there was of it was largely liquidation in scattered lots. The selling never did become heavy, but buying was so limited that prices eased off without any rallying power developing. As evidence of the dull and heavy tone, some of the distant months showed lower closing bids than the low sales for the day.

The foreign news, though is likely to stimulate the market later, for if conditions in Europe pick up substantially there should be some quickening in the export movement, and this would be likely to find bullish reflection in the contract market. Exports to Europe this far this year have been considerably below what they were to the same time last year. The Continent has taken 233,000 bales more than it took in the corresponding period of 1920, but the exports to England are 890,000 bales below what they were a year ago.

The following shows the statistical position of cotton figured by The Financial Chronicle:

The British Floating Debt.

A statement by the British Exchequer of the Government floating debt outstanding at the end of 1920, and representing Treasury bills in the public hands, advances by the Bank of England and advances by other public departments, gives the total at the end of last December as £1,408,081,000, as against £1,312,205,000 at the end of last March, and £1,340,320,800 at the end of December, 1919.

GRAIN MARKET DECLINES AGAIN

Values of All Grains Affected by the General Financial Situation.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 29.—Sentiment in the grain markets was decidedly bearish today, and while there was considerable week-end evening up at the last the close was well toward the low point on wheat, with net losses of 2½ to 3 cents, while corn and oats sold at a new low on the crop and finished at the lowest figures so far in the season, corn losing 1¼ cents and oats ⅝ to ¾.

The trade is more impressed with economic and financial conditions than with statistics so far as the wheat market is concerned, and while there are many who regard the Department of Agriculture's estimate on farm reserves as bullish, they were not disposed to back their opinion to any great extent, regardless of the possibility of materially higher prices later in the season as the result of a very strong statistical position.

When it is considered that wheat is still nearly 100 per cent. above its prewar level, while corn is down to where it was before the war for the cash article, the bread grain is regarded as showing remarkable strength. The prospects of a falling off in export takings for the next month or so is having some effect on sentiment, which was already decidedly bearish.

Small bank failures in Argentina and Washington led to much comment, and while general business is regarded as gradually improving the gain is so slight as to cause it to be overlooked at times. Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered in all grains today and with a light outside trade the decline was easily attained. The selling today was general, with a lack of concentrated pressure from any one house.

Western railroads report a falling off in the demand for cars for grain loading and receivers anticipate a smaller run in the near future. It is expected that receipts of corn at Chicago Monday will be close to 1,000 cars, compared with 1,562 cars received a week ago. Primary arrivals this week of corn were 11,766,000 bushels, the largest on the crop, compared with 10,665,000 the previous week and 5,399,000 last year. Shipments were 5,037,000 bushels, against 5,071,000 the previous week and 2,733,000 last year. Wheat receipts were 7,147,000 bushels, against 7,787,000 the previous week and 4,703,000 last year. Shipments were 5,209,000 bushels, against 5,012,000 the previous week and 3,848,000 last year.

COMMODITY PRICES

Slight Price Changes Noted in Week-end Session—Grains Lower, Others Unchanged.

Prices were very little changed in yesterday's session of the wholesale markets. In the grains, wheat declined 3½ cents, corn was up ¼ of a cent, and oats dropped 1 cent per bushel. Flour was unchanged. Coffee receded ⅛ of a cent per pound, with sugar, butter and eggs unchanged.

Lard declined 15 cents per hundred pounds; beef, family, dropped $1 per barrel, but pork was unchanged.

There were no changes in the metals. In the textiles, spot cotton was unchanged over Friday, with printcloths at a recession of ⅛ of a cent per pound.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Saturday, a week before, and a year ago:

A NEW COMPANY WITH A NEW PLAN

The Investing and Manufacturing Company is interested in the development of small companies making metal products. It will purchase outright, but prefers to acquire an interest only retaining the original management of such companies.

It is also interested in controlling patents relating to staple metal products, and will develop and market such patents or patented articles on an equitable basis with the inventor.

Its staff is composed of experts in Executive Management, Production, Engineering and Sales. Thus it can give such companies the benefit of its practical experience in addition to its financial backing.

It is interested particularly in New England industries.

TO TAKE PLACE OF BEADS.

Claim That Artificial Pearl Necklaces Will Succeed Them.

There is going to start soon a real revolution in women's necklaces, says T. P. Howell, a New York man who has been handling things of this kind so long that he can tell an amber bead in the dark by the feeling, and almost scent a piece of real jade around the corner.

Women's beads and necklaces have been holding an important place in the commercial world for some years now. Never has there been a time in the history of the country when so many and such gay things have been worn. No woman has been too old and no child too young to wear them. The most brilliant colors, yellow, orange, purple, red and green have been worn singly and in combinations. Prices have soared and women have paid them joyously. Now the crest of this wave of brilliant decoration has been reached, Mr. Howell believes, and as it recedes it will leave something quite different in its place. It is so with all kinds of women's wear, fads and fancies. They reach a certain top notch and then there is a fall.

It is to be no stranger that is to step into the place of the women's strings of parti-colored beads, Mr. Howell predicts, but their old favorite the artificial pearl necklace which has always been a good standby. The prediction comes not alone from the general knowledge that height of a fad means its disruption, but from more tangible symptoms, the reports from retail stores in different parts of the country of the renewed demand for pearl necklaces. Some of them sold out their entire stock during the holidays, and others sent in rush orders for a new supply.

One big New York wholesale house handling general fancy goods, anticipating this demand, he says, is putting in a special department for pearls and is spending many thousand dollars on a charmingly arranged display room. Everything about it will be new, the woodwork done over, and the hangings of appropriate tones to show off the delicate jewels. The furnishings will be appropriate, and charming little wax ladies—brunettes and blondes and red-gold blondes, will wear pearl necklaces of various lengths and sizes of beads. Fine feather-covered boxes of special design and in delicate colors are being made to hold the pearls.

There will be a new pearl to go into the new department, and the modern women, who not only wear smart bathing suits, but go into the water and swim in them, can wear their pearls as an adjunct, it is said, for they will stand the supreme test—salt water. The test they used in trying out the new pearls was to throw a string of them out in a back yard and leave them there for a month. They were wet or dry as the sun shone or it rained, and at the end of the test period the cord on which they were strung was gone, but the pearls were as beautiful as ever. They even passed successfully through an alcohol test, though that was not considered a fair or necessary experiment. These pearls, while at the top notch of beauty, will be made to retail at a very moderate price for anything in a fine artificial pearl.

From the middle of January or the first of February to the middle of the latter month is the wholesale season for pearls. The Spring and Summer are the strong retail seasons, though pearls are year-around goods.

The Merchant's Point of View

HOW far from normal conditions are may be inferred from the numerous appeals which are being made to the public to "buy now." These are the recognition of the fact that this selfsame public has not yet begun to buy on the scale to which it has been accustomed. A few weeks ago producers and wholesalers were complaining that retailers were stopping the flow of goods to consumers by holding up prices. Since then prices in the primary markets have been further reduced on many articles with a view to forcing the hands of the retailers. The latter have recently been responding to the pressure with a little more alacrity, and in some instances have offered staples as a leader at prices below those obtaining at wholesale. Where this has been the case there has been a positive stimulation of buying, particularly in certain classes of fabrics and in such made-up articles as shirts, overcoats, coats and suits, furs, shoes, &c. A strong effort is being made to clean up shelves before the regular Spring trade sets in, and this has by no means been helped by the comparative mildness of the weather. The earliness of Easter this year may afford an opportunity to get a good Spring business before the time for a distinctive Summer one, and enable merchants to offset against any losses they may sustain on sacrifices of Winter goods.

***

Matter of Raising Prices.

There is still too much of a disposition manifested, both in the primary markets and elsewhere, simply to use lower prices as a means of trying out, as it were, and to increase them at the first sign of renewed buying. In this course there is danger under the present conditions. Most persons, for one reason or another, are not in a position to indulge in buying what they do not need, and quite a number are inclined to do without many things which they used to get. Reduction in the prices of commodities which large classes had to sell and lowering of the wage scales of many workers have made it necessary for thousands to watch every penny of expenditure. They are in no mood to buy anything unless it be at a bargain price, nor are they disposed to buy anything at all except it be urgently needed. Manifestly, under such circumstances, it will be impossible to push them very far, and they are apt to resent any attempt at raising prices which have been once reduced to a point to make them attractive. What may happen later in the year, when things get more settled and there has been a readjustment of all values instead of a few as at present, is another matter. But, for the Spring season, it would seem the part of good policy to keep prices down as low as possible. Buyers for the big department stores are acting on this theory, and shy quickly at intimations of price advances. They are also continuing to buy sparingly, not feeling quite confident of the inclination of the public to respond to offerings. But they are prepared to return to the market quickly if occasion warrants.

Features of the Tariff Hearings.

It must be depressing to ardent American patriots to read the statements being made daily before the Ways and Means Committee at Washington, where hearings are held on the subject of a new and higher set of tariffs. If the statements made are to be believed, it would appear that there is not a single industry in the country capable of self-support, or which will not wither up and blow away unless sheltered by a high rate of duty. This applies to everything from alfalfa to zinc. Even the packers of meat are asking for protection, presumably from the products of their foreign plants. The peanut and potato growers are asking for duties even higher than those granted in the Payne-Aldrich act, although they have never been able or willing to grow enough of each for the needs of this country. Among the latest beggars are the makers of collars and cuffs, who profess to fear some competition from German manufacturers in the dim and distant future. These persons are now protected by a 30 per cent. duty. The articles they turn out are made of a cotton fabric which they can obtain cheaper than can any foreign competitor. They showed their consideration for the American public not so long ago by raising prices inordinately, while at the same time putting inferior stock into their products. A great drawback to the value of the statements made before the Ways and Means Committee is that there is no penalty attaching to untruths in them. If, as was suggested in these columns, the speakers were put under oath and it were made a prison offense to make false statements with a view to influencing legislation, hearings on the tariff would be very much subdued.

What Foreign Trade Figures Show.

Only the preliminary figures are as yet available of the country's foreign commerce during the calendar year 1920. They make a new record for both imports and exports. Combined, they foot up the amazing total of $13,500,000,000 in value as against about $4,250,000,000 in pre-war years. The difference in values at the present, however, makes the disparity much less than the totals would indicate. The imports foot up $5,270,391,364. This big amount has led some to assume rather hastily that there is a constantly swelling tide of imported goods. But an examination of the figures, month by month, shows that the great bulk of the imports came in during the earlier part of the year, and that they kept on getting smaller. In the last four months, for example, the total of imports was only $1,284,602,431, as against about $4,000,000,000 in the eight months preceding. This would make it appear as though the imports had passed the peak and would now continue to show recessions. The exports have held up better. In value those for December were about the same as for the preceding January. They reached their highest point in March, when the total was $819,556,037, and their lowest in August, when it was $578,182,691. It is noteworthy that more than 51 per cent. of the exports now are of manufactured articles, and that only 34.55 per cent. are of crude materials for use in manufacturing, foodstuffs in crude condition and food animals. The country is doing something more than provide raw materials for foreign industries.

British Commerce in 1920.

Complete figures of British foreign commerce for the calendar year 1920 show a much more favorable condition than did those for the year preceding. The increase in exports over 1919 amounted to £536,930,665, while that in imports was only £310,585,908. The totals were, respectively, £1,335,569,027 of exports and £1,036,742,120 of imports. This still shows a preponderance of about £600,000,000 of imports, from which, however, must be deducted the so-called "invisible" exports that ought to more than restore the balance. In an analysis of the figures it is shown that the advance in imports included £158,868,445 of articles wholly or mainly manufactured; £104,717,078 of raw materials and articles mainly unmanufactured, and £48,254,261 of food, drink and tobacco. The principal increases in the first of these classes were oils, fats and resins; vehicles, including locomotives, ships and aircraft; iron and steel and manufactures thereof; paper and cardboard; woolen and worsted yarns and manufactures, and silk and silk manufactures. In the raw material list the principal increases were in cotton, papermaking materials and grain and flour, decreases being shown in wool, oil seeds, oils, fats, resins and meat. Advances in exports included £17,122,486 in food, drink and tobacco; £34,364,862 in raw materials, and £479,247,324 in manufactured articles. In this last-mentioned class each item showed an increase, the principal ones being in cotton yarns and manufactures; iron and steel and manufactures; vehicles; woolen and worsted yarns and manufactures; machinery, apparel, chemicals, cake and non-ferrous metals. In the raw material class an increase was shown in coal exports, while in the food, drink and tobacco class there was only one decrease, this being of £602,236 in grain and flour.

Quotations of Cotton and Fabrics.

As good an explanation as any of the ups and downs of cotton quotations during the week is to ascribe them to manipulation. A reason given for one day's advances was the improvement in sterling exchange, yet the condition of the British cotton industry leaves much to be desired at the present. But it seems to be recognized that the lull in manufacturing can be only temporary and that much cotton will be needed by the Lancashire mills before the season is over. Pretty much the same thing is true of the domestic mills, which have recently started in with a spurt of activity. The various projects for financing cotton shipments to foreign countries do not appear to be functioning as yet. When they do begin they should be a potent factor in aiding prices. The domestic mills are still rather chary of taking orders for forward delivery. This is especially the case regarding lines of bleached, printed and colored fabrics. Gray goods sales have been influenced greatly by the course of cotton prices, to which they are showing a sensitiveness that was alien a few months ago. Prices of these fabrics, which seemed to be on the rise a few days ago, appeared to soften as the week drew to a close. On the other hand, there was more doing in knit underwear and hosiery, although the business passing in either line is not large. Prices of both seem fairly well settled for the time being at lower levels.

***

Wool Supplies and Woolens.

Auction sales of wool in foreign countries made rather a better showing during the last week than for some time previously. There was no eager rush to secure supplies, but there was a fairly steady demand, which prevented prices from going below recent levels, and in some instances even led to advances. There are very many interests all over the world concerned in trying to stop any decided break such as might be warranted by the large amount of wool everywhere available. This is as true in this country as it is in the others where wool is grown or handled in a large way. Much of the domestic clip is pooled or held on consignment and is not being forced on the market. But, lately, there have been more sales of it to mills which need the material. Should the emergency tariff bill fail of passage, it is quite likely that holders will show more eagerness to sell in order to make ready for the new clip, shearing of which will begin in about a couple of months. There is not much to be said of the goods market. The revised prices of fabrics in stock are regarded as quite attractive under the conditions, and they have led to considerable business, especially on the part of the smaller operators. The larger cutters-up, particularly those in the local field, are not very zealous as yet, pending the outcome of their labor difficulties. But dress goods have been moving fairly well.

Dairy Products From Britain.

According to a cable from Consul General R. P. Skinner, London, Jan. 20, 1921, the British embargo on the exportation of eggs in the shell and dead poultry has been removed. Butter may also be exported.

A PRESENT NEED

Salesman's Work Under Existing Conditions Is More Than Disposal of Goods.

Not long ago a salesman for a well-known manufacturing concern got off a train in a certain Southern city for his usual Spring call on the leading retailer of the place. After the usual preliminaries regarding personal health, condition of business, &c., had been gone through, the salesman broached the all-important subject of an order.

"Nothing doing," came back the retailer, "I wouldn't buy your shoes now, or any one else's, if they were selling at $2 a pair. I'm loaded to the ears with shoes. I eat them for breakfast, dinner and supper, and I dream of them at night. Beat it before I call the dog."

With the confidence born of long acquaintance, the salesman merely grinned. "It's nearly dinner time," he said, "so bring on your dog and I'll eat him while you're eating shoes. I've been eating hotel stuff down here now for nearly three weeks, and a dog wouldn't go bad for a change."

"All jokes aside," replied the retailer, "I can't give you an order now. Maybe things will improve after awhile and then I'll send you one. I'm so overstocked, though, I won't see daylight for weeks, even with good business."

"Well," said the salesman, "I've got to make some kind of a report on you for the home office. Let's see your stock book for a minute. If you don't mind, I'll jot down some of the sizes on which you are loaded, just to snow the house that I've been on the job."

"That wouldn't do any good, for I haven't checked things up for some time. To tell you the truth, business has been so poor that I haven't had the nerve to find out just how badly I'm tied up."

"But," protested the salesman, "if you haven't kept your stock record up, how do you know you're so badly overstocked?"

"How do I know? Because I've seen the stuff come in in waves and go out in dribbles."

Then the salesman got down to business. "The best dinner in this town is waiting for you at my expense," he said. "If you are really as badly loaded up as you think you are. We won't eat dog and we won't eat shoes. I'll go further and add a hat to the dinner if ten minutes' rummaging around your shelves don't prove that you ought to give me an order now."

"Go ahead," said the retailer wearily, "if you haven't anything better to do with your time."

The salesman did, with the result that he proved his point. In a number of sizes and styles he found the stock so badly depleted that a call for them would have meant a lost sale. It took him a good deal more than ten minutes to discover this fact, but the retailer refused to accept the hat. After he had given an order, which the salesman advised him to make conservative, he thanked the latter for calling his attention to the badly-balanced condition of his stock.

"Guess I've been mooning too much about troubles that didn't exist," he said, then added: "Half a dozen other men had been in here before you came, but none of them had gumption enough to do what you did. I'll get busy now and even up my stock."

Relating the salesman's work, of which he had been informed in a highly commendatory letter from the retailer, the head of the concern in question asserted yesterday that the salesman had simply exemplified the gospel of service which he is preaching to all his road men.

"Now that the turn of the wheel has brought a buyers' market in practically every line of business, commercial success in the future is going to depend just as much on the service a concern and its men can render a buyer as on the merchandise and the price at which it is sold. This service may range all the way from delivering goods on the dot to the most technical information.

"There is no question about it, the man or the house that can give a buyer more than just goods will be the successful man or house of the future. If I were to go out on the road again, I would first make a careful study of the best modern methods of carrying on a retail shoe business. I would study the arrangement of the stock in the finest stores, the window displays, and the little tricks that legitimately serve to attract prospective customers and then make them real ones. I would learn the latest whys and wherefores about putting on special sales, and the hundred and one things that go to make up successful merchandising. Sooner or later, the chance to use this knowledge would come, and with it would come the friendship of the men I could help with it. No salesman has to be told of the value of the friendship of a buyer.

"It is my candid opinion that, while more and more wholesale concerns are coming to realize the value of service to their customers, altogether too few of them give any aid through the logical channel—the salesman. Many manufacturers are very scrupulous about the character of their goods, the observance of contracts, &c., yet they will permit their salesmen to load retailers up to the gunwales with goods and then complain if the bills are not promptly paid. That is far from giving service to their customers, and in the long run it can not help but do damage to both the salesman and the house.

"Salesmen, of course, are like the rest of us. They have wives and children to support, rent to pay, &c. If they travel on commission they know that the bigger the orders they turn in the bigger their commissions will be, but they do not realize that this is true only up to a certain point. The time will come, sooner or later, when they will have reached the maximum they can sell a given retailer, and the more they hamper him by tying up his capital in large stocks the quicker this maximum will be reached. This applies to any line of goods, be it cloaks and suits or dill pickles.

"The bigger retailers, or those whose buying is done by experienced men, realize the danger of too much stock, and when conditions are normal they are rarely caught 'long.' It is the little man and the beginner that the average salesman takes delight in loading up as much as the credit office will permit, and collecting a fat commission. If the retailer fails ultimately, the salesman attributes it to hard luck, and the house, probably, to poor credit granting.

"Some day some one will write a book about small businesses that have been wrecked by overselling by salesmen. The material will not be hard to get, nor will it be scanty. About the first thing a salesman can do in a campaign of service is not to oversell his customer, and to prevent, as far as he can by tactful suggestions or horrible examples, its being done by any one else. If he can do this, and can follow it up with other helpful suggestions as they may be needed, neither he nor his house will have to fret about future business from that account."

To Show Ready-to-Wear Lines.

Spring lines from more than 200 leading manufacturers of women's, misses', children's and infants' wear manufactures will be displayed in the Roof Garden of the Hotel Pennsylvania all this week from 1 to 11 P. M. The exhibit, which will be held under the auspices of the Women's Wear Exhibitors' Corporation, will be kept open evenings to enable out-of-town buyers to call upon the manufacturers they have formerly done business with and attend the display as well. The merchandise to be shown will cover a wide range of values. More than 35,000 invitations to attend the exhibit have been forwarded to buyers.

Use of Dehydrated Vegetables.

Recently lines of Victoria (Australia) canned and dehydrated vegetables have attained prominence on the local market, as well as abroad, where they have for some time met with success. The assortments include carrots, parsnips, turnips, onions, potatoes and a mixture of the root vegetables for soup. They are put up in four and eight ounce containers, and, particularly in the case of the soup vegetables, are meeting with a keen demand.

Method Adopted to Dispose of Surplus Accumulated There.

Large stocks of merchandise have accumulated at Constantinople and, in spite of them, retail prices rule high. To relieve the situation a company was recently organized to promote the liquidation of the surplus commodities through auctions and also by selling direct to the consumer. The value of the stocks held at the Turkish port are conservatively put at $70,000,000, and estimates run as high as $100,000,000. It is thought probable that a loss of from 45 to 80 per cent. will have to be taken in order to promote sales.

Auction sales are to be held weekly at a charge of five per cent. commission with reimbursement for warehousing, handling and insurance of goods. Holders of cargo have been requested to release, free of charge, to the company one or two cases from each consignment to be placed in the company's warehouses where they will be sold. Guarantee of sale will not be made, but unsold merchandise will be returned on demand in good condition on payment of actual expenses incurred by it, although not necessarily in unbroken bales or cases. The company will obtain the right to sell certain quantities of commodities and the owner will instruct his bank or agent to release goods up to the agreed quantities against payment as arranged. A minimum selling price set by the owner will be respected by the company unless permission be granted to sell at lower rates. However, the company desires to set prices at its own discretion.

BRAZILIAN CUSTOMS RULE.

How It Enabled an Importer to Outwit an American Shipper.

A novel scheme through which a Brazilian importer outwitted an American concern that had sold him goods, cash against documents, has been reported to the Department of Commerce by Consul General A. T. Haeberle, who is stationed at Rio de Janeiro.

"In order to facilitate the commercial activities of importers," Mr. Haeberle writes, "there is a ruling in the Brazilian Custom House that enables importers to take their goods out of it without presenting either the bill of lading or the consular invoice. It is necessary only to present the commercial invoice or some other document in order to prove that the person wishing to take out the goods is the legitimate consignee, and then sign a guarantee of documents. This guarantee obligates the consignee to present the documents within three months; however, this period can be renewed more than once, the limit of time being one year.

"Recently an importer here [Rio de Janeiro] ordered some goods from the United States from a firm that had always allowed him credit of at least ninety days. However, when the goods arrived he found they had been shipped cash against documents. He left the documents in the bank and took the goods out on a guarantee of documents, six months later paying the draft and receiving the documents from the bank. In this case, the firm in the United States eventually received its money, but after a much longer term of credit than formerly allowed. Had the exporting firm allowed the usual credit, the importer here would have accepted the draft, and thus have been obliged to pay at the end of the specified time—90 or 120 days."

Has Completed Publicity Plans.

The National Publicity Executive Committee of the National Association of Sweater and Knitted Textile Manufacturers has appointed J. W. Lindau Jr. as director of advertising, and has organized a seperate corporation to handle the appropriation for the campaign under the name of the Sweater and Knitted Textile Publicity Bureau, Inc. The bureau will be located in Suite 1518 of the Flatiron Building, Broadway and Twenty-third Street. The purpose of the campaign will be to boost generally the sale of knitted outer wear of wool, silk, artificial silk, &c., during the coming year. The approved plans include advertising in the metropolitan dailies, as well as in those of the smaller cities throughout the country, direct mail advertising to the trade, and publicity and merchandising ideas for the retail trade.

HOW TO RESTORE CONFIDENCE AGAIN

Getting Employes' Good-Will as a Step Toward Having That of the General Public.

Retail store owners frankly admit that the greatest task they face at present is that of regaining public confidence. Lower prices and proper treatment of customers are, of course, considered the most logical means of achieving the purpose described, but for immediate results Alfred Fantl, a leading resident buyer, has a suggestion to offer which he believes should go a long way toward restoring the merchant in the good-will of the consumer. This suggestion is that the stores begin their work at home, by retaining the trade of their own employes which amounts to no inconsiderable item. He also emphasized the care which must be taken from now on to miss no sales in view of the large volume of business which must be done if merchants are to maintain their previous merchandise records.

"The main problem of the retailer at present," said Mr. Fantl, "and every one in the business realizes it, is to regain public confidence. For the time being, the buyers' strike is over and people are showing a disposition to spend money. They are buying two or three articles where formerly they bought but one. At the least sign, however, of rising prices, the consumer is apt to shift back to his former mood and stay out of the market. This is the thing that must be guarded against, and all the pressure possible must be brought to bear against a runaway market.

"In the meantime, it becomes necessary for the store to use every effort to restore the good will of its customers. This is the only real insurance against another buyers' strike. Prices may advance slightly, but the store which has the confidence of its patrons will not feel such adverse effects. And the place to start the work of getting his confidence back is in the store itself. I wonder if the merchant who employs several thousand people realizes the buying power his employes represent, and how necessary it is for the good name of his establishment to have them make their purchases in their own store. I figure at least $200 for each employe and, with 2,000, a buying power of $400,000 a year exists, therefore, in the store itself. This computation takes in only the store employes, but we must figure that for every employe there are represented three relatives or close friends whose business may also be included. In many cases, there would be four or five prospects represented by every employe, but three is a good average. The employe trade, then, goes over the million mark, an amount certainly worth going after.

"It is not, however, so much from the standpoint of actual dollar and cents business that the purchases of store employes must be considered, but from the angle of the good will established. Probably the worst recommendation for a store is to know that its employes are buying their needs elsewhere. Surely, if the employe has no confidence in either the value or quality of the goods offered in his or her own place, it is not reasonable to expect that the general public is going out of its way to trade with the store. On the other hand, the employe who makes purchases in the store worked in is the best advertisement in the world. Relatives and friends follow the example of the store employe and spread the news about. Word of mouth advertising is the best there is, and it is especially needed now to overcome the effects of the period of indifference on the part of the buying public.

"There is another important reason why employe business should be especially sought just now. A survey of wages paid in the stores, together with a study of the service rendered, indicates that the present rate of pay exceeds the pre-war standard by 60 per cent. At the same time, there has been an efficiency loss of approximately 40 per cent, as near as we are able to say. That may look like an arbitrary percentage, but it is based on present experience and proceeds in many instances from a very natural cause, which is this. When $30 a week was paid to a department store worker, what work there was to be done was accomplished without complaint or any attempt to dodge details. Now that the twenty-dollar-a-week employe has been raised to $35 or $40, the wage becomes a salary, the employe becomes a minor executive, and the work frequently falls upon an understudy. That seems to be really at the base of the efficiency trouble, if the condition is considered along with the over-systematised state of the average large store.

"As I said, employe buying is important in its relation to the higher wages paid and the loss in work efficiency. If the employes are induced to make purchases in their own store, the additional wage and operation burden can be lifted from the organization. It is, in other words, a means of meeting higher expense. I have mentioned the over-systematising of the stores, and I think most executives will agree that, next to improving the relations of a store with its customer, that is the second matter which needs attention. When lots of money was being made, the merchants were prone to overdo the system arrangements, because the detail could be afforded. Rigid economy and operations on small profit margins now make necessary a general overhauling of departments and the elimination of some of the topheavy machinery which does not help business move smoothly, but actually retards it.

"In another particular, the problem of regaining public good will must be studied. It is in keeping a close watch on sales to see that not one opportunity is missed to sell an article which is called for. Just now, it would probably surprise most merchants to know how many sales are being missed for want of the proper merchandise. Stocks are frequently 'being starved' with the wrong idea that better purchases can be made later and better bargains therefore offered the public. It is my idea that one missed sale at present is the equivalent of three purchases, since, back of the whole department store business is the principle that a store must have what the customer wants when she wants it. A retailer should find it worth while to have his salespeople report every article asked for that cannot be supplied.

"To summarize my remarks, there is over $1,000,000 worth of business a year being lost by large stores which do not get the business of their employes, not to speak of the loss in good-will, which keeps other trade from the establishment. Wages have increased and efficiency has been reduced, thus creating an even more necessary demand for employe patronage to meet the heavier expense, and, thirdly, good-will is being lost through turning away customers for lack of goods. These three important details of retail operation could be attended to with profit by the stores and with good prospects of achieving immediate results in restoring public confidence."

MILLINERY FASHION SHOW.

Novel Features of the One to Be Held Wednesday Evening.

With the entire seating capacity of nearly 1,400 disposed of, and many applications for reservations unfilled, unprecedented success is predicted for the Spring Fashion Show, dinner and dance of the Retail Millinery Association of America, which will be held in the Grand Ballroom and adjoining rooms of the Hotel Astor on Wednesday night. The decorations for the event will be in keeping with its general character, and among them will be several ten-foot palm trees brought from California especially for the show.

The dinner will be served promptly at 7 P. M., and the fashion show program will begin an hour later. It will start with exhibitions of children's and juniors' hats by Mrs. P. Solomon and Kneale & Rohrs, respectively. A showing of French untrimmed hats will be the next event, following which will come six different treatments of one basic shape. In this number will be shown six hats in which the shape is identically the same, but the trimming will be done by six of the best-known retail millinery concerns in the country.

Exhibitors in the next number, which will be an exhibit of New York hats designed exclusively for the fashion show, will include Hickson, Ferle Heller, Thurn, L. P. Hollander, Frances, Inc., Francois, Inc., Stein & Blaine, Lichtenstein and Nicole. Next will come the showing of several Paris hats designed especially for the event by Reboux, Lanvin, Talbot, Maria Guy, Marie Louise and Lewis. These hats will be auctioned to the highest bidders by Pearl White of motion-picture fame.

The exhibition will be concluded with showings by Stein & Blaine, Buck-Weiss, Joseph and Hickson. Dancing will follow, during which several novel lighting effects will be introduced.

RAW SILK MARKETS.

Price Firmness Continues, With Marked Activity in China.

The Japanese raw silk market quieted down somewhat toward the close of last week, but prices remained firm and unchanged. The visible supply of silks at Yokohama is greatly reduced and now contains a lot of "raws" unfit for export.

Canton is still advancing, according to cables received by A. P. Villa & Bros., Inc., of this city, due to large buying. Most of it is coming from this country. Spot silks are practically exhausted, and reelers will accept business only for the forward shipments. Shanghai cables that the demand for steam filatures is keeping up. Tsatlees have also been bought in large quantities of late for American consumption. Lately, buyers have become interested in tussah silks.

At Milan the Italian raw silks are firm at unchanged prices. The demand from this country continues, and reelers there are now pretty well sold up to the latter part of March. Local buying activity continues, as more mills are starting up. Some silks, especially the coarser sizes, are scarce and hard to obtain.

BUSINESS NOTES.

P. C. Hopkins, who has been associated with the export end of the cotton goods and yarn trade here since 1904, will sever his connection with the Quaker City Corporation of Philadelphia on Feb. 1. On that date he will become interested with C. H. Pattengill of this city in the Associated Mills Export Company, Inc., 80 South Street, which was recently incorporated in New Jersey with a capital stock of $200,000. Branch offices will be opened in Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Santiago, de Chile, Melbourne and Havana. Mr. Hopkins is President of the corporation, Mr. Pattengill is Vice President and Treasurer, and E. V. Brooks is Secretary.

Richard J. Benesi, who for many years was head of the local office of the Alms & Doepke Company of Cincinnati, has been elected Vice President of that concern. Frederic R. Benson has become connected with the company as sales manager of the wholesale department, with headquarters in Cincinnati.

Plans for the work of the Associated Dress Industries of America will be discussed at the annual meeting of that organization, which will be held Wednesday evening in its headquarters in The Amer, Broadway and Thirty-second Street. The election of officers will take place at the meeting.

W. E. Clark, resident buyer, will remove tomorrow from 350 Broadway to 258 Church Street. He represents in this market the Dunlap Dry Goods Company, Mobile, Ala., and the H. D. Masters Company, Ocala, Fla.

Items From Foreign Trade Fields.

Starch in New South Wales.

A syndicate of Sydney business men has acquired a site on the south coast of New South Wales and erected a factory and plant for the extraction of starch from the burrawong plant (macrozamia). Ferns are to be cut on 31,000 acres and an expensive fresh-water pumping plant is to be installed. In this process of starch extraction by water sedimentation, the burrawong bulbs are dug up and skinned, passed through a powerful crusher, and washed in clear water. Then a drying process is applied and the starch thus evolved. It is stated that power alcohol and arrowroot are also to be produced by this syndicate.

Elevators for South Africa.

The Union of South Africa has perfected plans, and will soon be receiving bids for contracts, for building two port elevators at Cape Town and Durban of 20,000 tons and 42,000 tons capacity, respectively, and seventy-one up-country elevators possessing an aggregate capacity of 160,000 tons, at a cost of £1,709,000. In addition, cleaning plants, drying plants, hopper weighing machines, hydraullically operated tippers, and 1,000 railway trucks of box type and forty tons' capacity will be required for service as soon as the elevators are complete.

Australian Sugar Prospects.

The area under sugar cane in Queensland and in the northern districts of New South Wales is reported to be the largest on record. This is attributed to the good price being obtained by growers and the fact that for 1921 and 1922 they have been guaranteed by the Federal Government $146 a ton for raw sugar. If present anticipations are realized, Australia's recent shortage of sugar will be terminated, though it is not expected that the price will soon be reduced.

Cut Production of Indian Tea.

The agreement of the Indian Tea Association to curtail production by 10 per cent. has begun to show results. Though the crop of tea at the end of July, 1920, was about 25,000,000 pounds more than the previous year, it was estimated that at the end of October the total production of tea in India was about 5,000,000 pounds less than in 1919. It is hoped that a resumption of the large Russian demand for tea will diminish existing stocks and increase prices.

No Chance for Americans.

A telegram received from Commercial Attaché Jackson, Mexico City, states that Mexico is flooded with Americans, many of whom are without money. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, therefore, desires to emphasize the fact that the present is not a propitious time for Americans without business openings in Mexico or without the means to seek employment to visit that republic.

German Activity in Serbia.

It is reported that the German Consulate, which was recently established in Belgrade, is endeavoring to promote German trade in Serbia, and that many German agents are now in Belgrade making preparations for the Spring trade, especially in iron and metal products, including agricultural machinery.

Cuban Personal Property Law.

According to a statement furnished the Consul General at Havana, the Cuban law of leases is contained in the Civil Code, Articles 1542 to 1603, inclusive. The Cuban laws make no provision for chattel mortgages. Personal property may be mortgaged according to the Cuban laws only when permanently situated in buildings, and must then be mortgaged jointly with the buildings. Liens on chattels may be created by pledge, but the property pledged must be placed in the possession of the creditor or of a third person by common consent. The Cuban law of pledge is contained in the Civil Code, Articles 1857 to 1873, inclusive. There is no separate law in Cuba regulating conditional sales of personal property such as the uniform conditional sales act in the United States.

Chinese Eastern Railway.

Commercial Attaché Arnold writes that in a supplementary agreement to the contract for the construction and operation of the Chinese Eastern Railway the Government assumes, provisionally, control of the management, and arrangements are made for the repayment of 5,060,000 Kuping (or Treasury) taels advanced by the Chinese Government in 1896. The President and four Directors are to be Chinese, and additional administrative positions are to be filled by Chinese. The full text of the agreement is now available, upon request, in the Far Eastern Division.

Parcel Post in France.

Under an agreement made with the postal administration of France, effective Feb. 1, the maximum weight limit of parcel-post packages exchanged between the United States and France is increased from eleven pounds (five kilos) to 22 pounds (10 kilos). The foregoing is applicable to parcels for and from the United States and its island possessions on the one hand and continental France, Corsica, Algeria, Tunis, French Morocco and the principality of Monaco on the other hand.

School Construction in Foo-chow.

An American board of foreign missions is raising funds to erect a complete industrial school for boys in Foo-chow, according to a letter from Vice Consul Price. They will be in the market for woodworking and metal-working machinery, general construction work material, electrical equipment engineering supplies, school equipment, and textbooks covering the use of the above kinds of machinery, and are anxious to have American concerns submit plans for equipping such a school.

Tractor Test Planned for India.

The Agricultural Department of India proposes to hold a series of tractor tests on a large scale some time during 1921, which will be open to American manufacturers. Tests made on a small scale in February, 1920, demonstrated that tractors can be used to advantage in India, even under the difficulties of climate and soil.

What This Really Amounts To From the Retailers' Standpoint.

Buyers are seeking a readjustment of discounts to pre-war rates, just as they are requiring a scaling down of prices to the former basis of values. With the wholesalers, the matter of discounts is largely one of financing, and they desire to get terms from manufacturers which will enable them to extend the credits which their customers are given. In certain jobbing departments, discount revision is asked in order to provide a uniform rate on a variety of articles handled. This is a problem, for instance, in notions. It is in discounts given to the retail trade, however, that the demand is strongest for a revision to pre-war rates, and where sellers are not so convinced the desired changes are necessary. To the wholesale and manufacturing trade at large, the discount attitude of the retailers has always been something of a mystery. It has been explained, time and time again, that the retail buyer gains nothing through a larger discount, for the simple reason that the additional discount is added to the price. A little light may be shed on the retailers' point of view on discounts by the following remarks of a merchant:

"It will be granted," he said, "that a certain rate of interest has to be paid for money loaned from a bank. Now, this interest has to be paid through merchandise profits or through discounts. The merchant prefers to pay it from discounts, and for the reason that the discount is a sure earning and not so problematical as a merchandise profit. But, the question of interest aside, the discount furnishes an additional guarantee of profit. Department store earnings over a period of years do not amount to 6 per cent. on the volume of business done. Specialty stores yield a higher profit, about double, in fact.

"Now, it has been the experience of large stores that merchandise profits are hard to gauge. They will be even more difficult to figure, as margins become smaller in the drive for business, and the difference between a department's loss and profit will be less. So, is it any wonder that the stores want to have a guaranteed or surplus, such as the discount provides? The need of added protection seems quite apparent and explains why the discount is thought so necessary, even though it actually yields no price advantage to the purchaser."

Want Definite Opening Dates.

Thomas A. Fernley, Secretary of the National Wholesale Floor Covering Association, has sent to members of that organization a letter embodying a resolution passed recently by the Carpet and Upholstery Club of Chicago, asserting that "great benefit could be derived by manufacturers and dealers in floor coverings, upholstery goods and lace curtains if a definite date could be arranged for opening each season in the year." The passage of the resolution grew out of the custom of the selling agencies of opening their seasons on varying dates, a custom which has met the approval of only a very small part of the buyers. The National Association, according to Secretary Fernley, is entirely in favor of the resolution.

Better Tone to Gray Goods.

A better tone pervaded the local gray goods market yesterday, although the volume of business transacted was not large. Reports were current that business had been done in 38½-inch 64-60s at 8½ cents, but in spite of them it was possible to obtain nearby deliveries of this construction from first hands at a quarter of a cent a yard less. In fact, sales were made at the latter figure. Spot and February deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 9½ cents. Sheetings were quiet, but in the sateens there were further sales of the better makes at 14 cents for nearby shipments. Sales of 37½-inch 64-72 sateens also were made at 9¾ cents. In the fine-yarn cloths 40-inch flat-twist voiles sold at 10½ cents.

Underbid Americans in Agricultural Machinery in Italy.

American manufacturers of agricultural implements are meeting severe competition from German firms in Italy and under present conditions American prices are practically prohibitive, reports Commercial Attaché MacLean from Rome. While dollar exchange has steadily risen, the Germans have recently been able to reduce their prices to a level which considerably below that at which deliveries can be made from the United States.

In the case of farm tractors the recent increase in the Italian duties has raised American prices to a point where an Italian farmer can buy two tractors of a local make for the price of one American machine of a popular model. The outlook is not favorable for the sale of American implements, unless there is a far more radical improvement in the exchange than we are justified in anticipating. It seems probable that the lira will suffer a further depreciation.

As an indication that the Germans have by no means lost their former habits of thoroughness, a German manufacturer has circulated in Italy catalogues of about 600 pages, covering spare parts for American agricultural machines. This catalogue is entirely in Italian, lists all the parts of the principal machines with prices, and makes it easy for the Italians to make their purchases in Germany rather than in the United States.

ODD ECONOMIC SITUATION.

New Zealand, With Plenty of Money, Really Needs Credit.

American exporters to New Zealand are advised by Consul General Winslow at Auckland to meet in a generous way the economic situation which has developed there. He explains that there are plenty of good, conservative, reliable business houses to whom, it would seem, a reasonable amount of credit can be safely extended, and with profit. It is suggested, in view of the prohibition on the exportation of gold, that American business houses take in payment, or as security for payment of imports, bonds and Government debentures.

Money is plentiful in the dominion, the banks really holding more than can be put to good use, but there is difficulty in establishing credits in London and New York, because gold cannot be exported. The trade balance has steadily gone against the country since the beginning of 1920, and toward the end of the year the banks announced that they would discourage the importation of non-essentials, such as motor cars, high-priced millinery, jewelry, confectionery, &c., and would not finance such importations unless exceptionally good reasons existed for them at the time. Though this policy was exceedingly embarrassing for both bankers and importers, its adoption seemed essential, in view of the necessity of allaying possible panic as a result of the most trying period experienced in the dominion since the beginning of the war.

Machine for Raised Embroidery.

Consul Carrigan of Lyons, France, reports the invention of a machine at that place for the making of raised embroidery in gold and silver. It is stated that the stitch is a copy of an ancient form of embroidery and gives an impression of handwork, and is also the first machine that has been successful in using the metallic thread. Various machines have been employed in the making of raised embroidery in other threads. It is stated that the machine is the result of seven years of study, and that the results are very satisfactory.

HEALTH SUPERVISION BIG AID TO INDUSTRY

Workers Willingly Submit to Examinations When Their Value Is Shown.

EFFICIENCY IS INCREASED

Labor Turnover Reduced, Diseases Minimized and Accidents Cut in Plants.

Physical examinations of industrial workers have been found in a study of thirty-four plants by the National Industrial Conference Board, 10 East Thirty-ninth Street, to have increased efficiency, resulted in fewer accidents, reduction of absence from work, lower labor turnover, elimination of tuberculosis and other contagious diseases, better adaptation of workers to their jobs and a feeling among employes that their interests are being intelligently safeguarded.

In the thirty-four plants from which data were obtained fifteen industries were represented. The plants employ 410,106 workers, 327,183 men and 82,923 women. Physical examinations were introduced in this group in 1910. In only two plants were they in use prior to 1910, and in twenty-three of the thirty-four plants they were begun in 1914 or thereafter. In seven plants a woman physician was employed. In one other a woman physician was provided upon request of the women to be examined.

In practically all of the plants reporting it was stated that wherever possible defectives were accepted rather than denied employment. When employed, defectives were placed under the supervision of the medical department and permitted to continue in their occupation as long as they were unaffected by the work.

"The report soon to be issued," it was said at the offices of the Conference Board yesterday, "explains that the purpose of physical examinations in industry is to assist the management in placing the worker in occupations for which he is physically suited. Without the information that physical examinations supply, workers must needs be placed in jobs which they say and think they can perform best, regardless of the fact that such work may be attended by serious results to their physical well-being. By means of the examination many defects unknown to the worker will be brought to light.

"If the examinations are conducted with the proper motives, little or no objection on the part of the workers will be met with. In this investigation the number of workers who were reported as objecting to the examination was negligible. The largest number was 200 among 62,000 employes, where the system of examination had been in operation for two years. Ten plants, employing 150,010 workers, had had no refusals. A plant employing 15,000 reported 6 objections in three years; another, with 3,500 employes, had had 12 refusals in nine years; still another, with 7,000 employes, reported a few objections."

INFORMATION

YOU know Robert D. Blackman, and the reputation he has made with and for the Hotel Belleclaire—therefore, it will be pleasing to learn that he has taken over the control and management of the located on Central Park West from 74th to 75th St.

HOTEL SAN REMO

This splendid hotel, overlooking Central Park for an entire block, offers an opportunity for those seeking a home in quiet, pleasant surroundings with all the advantages of a down-town location—close to the theatres and shopping district.

Mr. Blackman's reputation for making his guests feel "at home" and not "in a hotel," plus his reputation for setting a table that is not "hotel" but homey, is further incentive for seekers of real comfort.

Needless to say that with such a reputation to maintain no effort will be spared.

Reservations for single rooms or en suite are now being made, and it would be well for those interested to get in touch with Mr. Blackman personally or the manager of

So That We All May Live Longer and Happier

For many years there has been an ever-growing movement for some central Institute or organization to help prolong human life and make it more livable—a fine, dignified, humanitarian type of organization approved by physicians of the highest ethical standing and irrevocably opposed to quacks and fads.

So, about seven years ago, a number of forward-looking physicians, scientists, publicists and men of affairs founded The Life Extension Institute.

Primarily, its purpose is to reduce the Nation's death rate and to raise the level of physical well-being by providing unbiased, standardized periodic health examinations and teaching the simple, every-day principles of personal hygiene that every man and woman ought to know to avoid disease.

These are the broad general principles that have led men like ex-President Taft, Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale, Robert W. de Forest, and one hundred other eminent authorities in this country and abroad to give their services to this work without compensation—other than the satisfaction of seeing its results.

The Life Extension Institute has nothing marvelous to offer except, perhaps, the most marvelous thing in the world—rational, common-sense employment of tested scientific knowledge.

The Life Extension Institute has no magic system of exercise, diet or hygiene. So far as science knows, there is no universal panacea for the ills of humanity. Yet human life in the United States is needlessly shortened on an average of at least 15 years, and it is the duty of every single one of us to avoid premature physical breakdown.

Every day more than 1,500 people die in the United States because they didn't know they were sick until disease had gotten such a start that it was impossible for the physician to check it after he had been called in. Figures show that there are hardly three people in a hundred who do not need some advice or suggestion regarding their physical condition or their manner of living.

More than 100,000 men and women between the ages of 40 and 60 die each year in the United States from diseases of the heart, circulation and kidneys—most of them preventable. These diseases do not develop over night. Detected in time, they can be checked or cured.

The Institute does not believe that physical training will do you any good so long as there is a focus of infection in your body that is responsible for your trouble.

In a word, the Institute does believe in exercise, diet, mental and physical hygiene all along the line, and it appeals to the intelligence and common sense of the public to follow the lead of science and reject the half-baked pseudo-scientific cults that appeal to the unwary.

The Life Extension Institute believes in the periodic examination, not only of the body, but of the whole life, and in this it has the co-operation and endorsement of the forward-looking members of the medical profession, who believe that the mission of medical science is to keep people healthy—nay, more—to increase their total health as well as to relieve suffering and cure disease

A provision has been made for the utilization of a substantial portion of the dividends in public health work, under the trusteeship of ex-President William Howard Taft and Professor Irving Fisher. Two-thirds of the common stock is held in trust by Mr. Taft and Professor Fisher for this purpose.

The Institute has a Hygiene Reference Board of one hundred leaders in scientific and public health work, both in this country and abroad. This Board was established in order that the Institute might have at its disposal, for the benefit of its members, the latest and most authoritative information on all matters relating to disease prevention and good health. Fundamental and borderline questions on personal hygiene and scientific procedure are submitted to this Board for advice and suggestion. They are, of course, not consulted on individual cases or on matters of routine detail. The members of the Board receive no compensation for their counsel to the Institute.

Guidance in individual hygiene is given by the Institute, but no medical or surgical treatment is furnished. Those in need of such treatment are counselled as to the proper form of treatment to be sought and are urged to seek relief through scientific, medical and surgical sources, and are warned against quacks, charlatans and self-treatment.

Things the Institute stands for:

Periodic physical examination yearly;
Early detection of bodily impairment or disease;
Early detection of sound health (some people are sound without knowing it);
Practice of personal hygiene, or how to live;
The utilization of tested scientific knowledge;
Better child hygiene;
Better adult hygiene;
Better public hygiene;
Longer life;
Better life;
Fearless life;
Happier life.

Things the Institute opposes:

Quackery;
The use of patent medicines or other ignorant forms of self-treatment;
Self-indulgent neglect of the body;
Waiting until disease is manifest before calling the doctor;
Fear of disease and self-coddling;
Premature breakdown;
Premature death.

The Institute believes in exercise for you—but the kind of exercise that you need.

The Institute believes in regulation of diet, but diet regulated according to your individual condition.

The Institute does not believe that you can "eat yourself out of rheumatism" when you have a septic tonsil or a root abscess in your jaw.

The Institute does not believe in regulating a misbehaving stomach when the cause is bad mental habit or a neglect of physical training.

The Institute's Health Service consists of an intensive physical examination of the whole body, together with quarterly chemic and microscopic examinations of the urine, review of the member's personal and family history, daily living habits and health problems, detailed reports, hygienic guidance and instructions, monthly health journals and other valuable privileges.

It makes no difference where you live. In addition to its staff of examining physicians in the Head Office here in New York, The Life Extension Institute has 7,000 examining physicians listed throughout the United States and Canada.

Examinations of subscribers who live in New York and vicinity are made at the Head Office of the Institute, 25 West Forty-fifth Street—on appointment by telephone or letter—between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

Convenient appointments can also be arranged with the Institute's examiners in the member's home district or city. There is a special department for women and children. Women physicians are available at the Head Office for the examination of women members who prefer them. Any one interested in public health, personal hygiene or preventive medicine is cordially invited to personally investigate the work the Institute is doing.

The reports of the Institute are strictly confidential and are not available to any insurance company or any other organization.

IMPORTANT

The Life Extension Institute was founded for the public good. It would not be fulfilling its highest obligations if it said to you selfishly that you cannot get a thorough physical examination anywhere else but at the Institute. That is not true.

There are thousands of physicians who are fitted by experience and training—and who have the time and inclination to do this work and do it well.

The Life Extension Institute is just a central organization to which one hundred of the leading medical men of the country have dedicated their advice that the value of periodic health examinations may be impressed upon thousands and hundreds of thousands of men and women instead of just a few.

Go to your physician or come to The Life Extension Institute—it makes no difference. But get that health examination before it is too late—that is the big thing.

FREE SPEECH, BOLSHEVIST STYLE

By MAUDE RADFORD WARREN

THE other day an ardent supporter of the Soviet theory was defending tensely his assertion that under the Bolshevist Government there is free speech. Later I found other Soviet adherents maintaining the same opinion. I am afraid it is an opinion, and not a fact. It may indeed be that when the Soviet Government is an accomplished achievement—if it ever is—so sure that it cannot be overturned, then free speech may prevail. But while the Soviet is winning its way the only speech that is free is the speech of approval and praise. Those who cannot acclaim had better be silent.

This, at least, was my observation during the eight weeks I spent under the Bolsheviki when I was interned by them last year at the time when they seized the contented republic of Azerbaijan and made it over into a Soviet republic. A day or two after I arrived in Baku, to find that the Bolsheviki had taken it a few hours before and would not let any travelers leave, I met an Englishman whom the Bolsheviki called "Jack," himself a convinced Bolshevik and a correspondent for some British newspaper. Jack was very much pleased at the expert way Azerbaijan had been annexed, with only three or four deaths, and at the prompt way in which the two controlling committees had got to work.

"And I've managed to get two wirelesses out," he said, his newspaper instinct struggling with his Soviet principles, "but of course they were fully censored first."

"Censored here, of course?" I asked him.

"Censored here and in Moscow both," he replied; "we can't take any chances, of course."

"What are the newspapers here saying?" I asked.

"There was only one here," he replied, "one that was not Bolshevist. This will show you how wonderfully the propaganda worked in this place before ever it was taken. You know, of course, that it has been the intention for two years to make this republic a Soviet. Well, two days before the armored train came down here and took Baku this one newspaper was absorbed, so to speak, by Bolsheviki. It was rather a joke, I am afraid, on the allied representatives who were here but who seemed to know nothing of what was going on. The newspaper came out with the heading, 'Freedom at Last,' and then followed editorials that should have informed any alert reader that the Bolsheviki were on the doorstep."

This was the first mention I had heard of the Tcheuvodchika, or Committee for the Suppression of Counter-Revolution. I believe it is also spelled "Cheevytchika." However it is spelled or pronounced, it is one of the most powerful organizations ever conceived and formed in any Government. There is the general Tcheuvodchika, with headquarters in Moscow, and then there is a local Tcheuvodchika sitting in the capital city or town of each new Soviet that the Bolsheviki form.

The Truth Shall Not Prevail.

"But the editor of the newspaper," I asked, "was he a Bolshevik? Did he want to be absorbed?"

Jack shrugged his shoulders. "Ask the propaganda bureau or the Tcheuvodchika," he returned; "this is war and we are convincing the world. Any printed material that is issued must be of the sort that would help to convince the population of Azerbaijan, give them one point of view only, not stir them up to unrest with the suggestion of contrary opinions."

The very fact of the formation of this Tcheuvodchika is in itself a denial of the possibility of a free press or of free speech. I am not saying that the Soviet Government could get on without this organization; I am merely saying that it and free speech and free press cannot coexist. This Tcheuvodchika, or rather propaganda explaining it, states, practically enough, that any new Government must defend its existence and defeat its adversaries; that the Russian proletariat must have a special agency for fighting the counter-revolution that would be sure to rise from the conquered classes; that masses of the people, through lack of light, are likely to side with their class-enemies, instead of with their comrades of the proletariat, and that these must be dealt with; that other and more intelligent obstructionists might block the work of the Soviet Government in every sphere of life—the army, the navy, the schools, industry, food supplies, transportation and distribution. Therefore, says the Bolshevist Government, the Tcheuvodchika is established as a necessary apparatus for fighting counter-revolution of every sort.

In Baku I very soon became aware of the power of our local Tcheuvodchika. Not that it was made up of local officials or members. It was headed by a man from Astrakhan, and was mostly made up of men and women from Astrakhan and the region of the Volga, and I believe, a few from Moscow who had experience with the administration of the committee. I was told that a few local men, Tartars, were put on, but they did not have the real power. This committee was supposed to work hand in hand with the Revolutionary Committee which took over the Republic Government and turned it into a Soviet Government, but it really went bowling ahead on its own.

It was the Tcheuvodchika that we dreaded. It was nothing to us that the Revolutionary Committee, under Hussein and then under Narimanoff, changed Ministers into Commissars, changed the Ministry of Education into the Department of Education. But it was everything to us that the Tcheuvodchika controlled our movements, arrested us or could arrest us, had courts-martial and decreed executions.

The Tcheuvodchika was supported by the Propaganda Bureau and by the Bolshevist press. This latter consisted of the newspaper that had been "absorbed," and by three others, one of the Red Army, one for [illegible] people, and one for [illegible] people. A friend and myself [illegible] to translate for him the [illegible] in the case for the people at large. It was mostly accounts of the defeats of the British. According to it, England had been taken by the Bolsheviki, to say nothing of all

Mrs. Atherton's Modern Cave Woman

A Review by
MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN.

HUSBANDS-IN-LAW, a Novel of Our Time. By Gertrude Atherton. New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company.

THE publicity agent of the Frederick A. Stokes Company in his announcement of this, the latest written of all Mrs. Atherton's novels, does the heroine, Alexina Greene, injustice when he says that the war was the only event great enough to enable the American woman of the finer type to break, through the bindings of inherited repression and be as sure of herself as the simple cave woman of fifty centuries ago. He really takes away from Heather with the Cave Woman; he is just scientific, and until Darwin's hypothesis of evolution becomes corroborated by certain missing links no publicity man has the right to assume that the Cave Woman was sure of anything. But that goes. Mrs. Atherton's heroine is a vivid personality, and if any one makes the mistake of turning to the last pages of this romantic drama to discover how the modern Cave Woman imitated her prehistoric sister, he will spoil his pleasure in this very human document.

The thinking novel reader, who has acquired a perspective, looks on novels worth reading as chronicles of the times, as interpretations of life. He must set aside his prejudices, his experiences, too, and feel that he is in safe hands and under the direction of a knowledge which is greater than his own. This is the only method of thoroughly enjoying the books of an author like Mrs. Atherton, who knows her world and paints it eloquently, and in this novel less self-consciously than usual, for the gripping quality of Mrs. Atherton's work is that essential quality of all literature, personality.

If the disciplined reader takes his privileges novels simply, he must come to the conclusion that the United States—we do not say "America" for fear of offending the susceptibilities of Mr. French—is the most aristocratic country in the world. In "The Age of Innocence"—which, by the way, should have been called "The Age of Ignorance," since its principal characters are by no means innocent—and even in "Main Street," we discover a consciousness of class consciousness which seems rather amusing after all the fighting we have done to make democracy safe. In "The Sisters-in-Law" aristocracy, in its thickest crust, falls on our neurils as if every page had been soaked in pure attar of roses.

If notorious in "Main Street" are definitely aristocratic, if "The Age of Innocence" and "The House of Mirth" are much more so, "The Sisters-in-Law" shows us that in San Francisco the aristocrat, whose position has been solidly fixing itself for over sixty years, is much more conscious of a position, which he does not hesitate to talk about constantly, than the quieter noblesse who carefully guard the portals of the Philadelphia Assembly or that equally exclusive circle of Saint Cecilia in Charleston.

To one who does not know California and who makes the acquaintance of Mrs. Atherton's stories of social life for the first time, this condition would seem impossible, if anybody else except a close student of society in that great State used it as a background for a serious work of fiction.

So far no such picture of the breaking out of the fire in San Francisco after the earthquake as Mrs. Atherton makes in the opening scenes has been done; and it is all the more effective because of the accompaniment of the commonplace human element which goes on, while buildings fall, fortunes are destroyed and the streets of the city become almost as terrible as on that day which saw the destruction of Pompeii.

The rather stupid conversation of Mrs. Groome and of young Dwight, who uses the earthquake as a ladder on which to climb socially, is used deftly as a contrast to the horror of the moment. The entrance of Gathbroke, the young Englishman, with his dead sister, is so carefully managed that one's interest is at once greatly aroused, and this is a fine point in a novel which in its first pages would have hardly held the attention of the reader through what seems to normal persons the conversation of a rather stupid group. But Mrs. Atherton knows her art and her public.

When Gora Dwight, the sister of the snob who becomes the first husband of the charming Alexina, enters, not as an accessory to Gathbroke but in her own proper person, we have an intensification of the interest. She has inherited "blood," her ancestors were of the first families of Utica, N. Y., and her ambitious brother proves this to the satisfaction of the aristocratic Mrs. Groome. She has character, and a touch of genius, and fire and temperament and vivacity, besides a downright honesty and courage, which make her the most important person in the novel, and she is well delineated. In fact, she lives. Outside of these qualities, she has a weakness. It is for a democratic social condition, which Mrs. Atherton describes:

> She was almost fanatically democratic and could see no reason for differences of degree in the aspirant classes. To her mind the only line of cleavage between the classes was that which divided people of education, refinement of mind, manners and habits, certain inherited traditions, and the mental effort, no matter how small, to win a place in this difficult world, from commonness, ignorance, indifference to dirt, coarse pleasures and habits, and manual labor. She respected labor as the solid foundation stones on which civilization upheld itself, and believed it to have been biologically chosen; if she had been born in its class she would have had the ambition to work her way out of it, but without resentment.
>
> There her recognition of class stopped. That wealth or family prominence, even in a great city or an old community, should create an exclusive and favored society seemed to her illogical and outrageous. A woman was a lady or she wasn't. A man was a gentleman or he wasn't. That should be the beginning and the end of the social code. When she had been younger she had lamented her mean position because it excluded her from the light-hearted and brilliant pleasures of youth; but as she grew older this natural craving had given place to a far deeper and more corrosive resentment.
>
> She had no patience with her brother's ingenuous snobbery. A good-natured friend had introduced him to one or two houses where there were young people and much dancing, and he had been "taken up." Nothing would have filled Gora with such murderous rage as to be taken up. She wanted her position conceded as a natural right.
>
> Had it been in her power, she would have forced her conception of democracy upon the entire United States. But as this was quite impossible, she longed passionately for some power, personal and irresistible, that would compel the attention of the elect in the city of her birth and ultimately bring them to her feet. And here she had a ray of hope.

She suffers! When James Kirkpatrick, the Socialist, comes in, one expects some broad dramatic action, and perhaps an illumination of the principles of consistent socialism as practiced in California, in contrast to the artificial conventions with which Alexina, whom he adores, is enchained. But Mrs. Atherton is too human, and she is forced to make Kirkpatrick too much of a man to use him as a mere interpreter of principles. When Alexina rejects him he says:

> When I think what I might have had if we'd all been born alike! had the same chances! If you hadn't been born at the top and I down at the bottom—common—not even educated except by myself after I was too old to get what a boy gets that goes to school long enough. I wouldn't mind being born ugly. There's plenty of men at the top that's ugly enough, God knows. But just one generation with money irons out the commonness. That's it! I'm common! Common! Common! Democracy! Oh, God!

If Gora Dwight, who has a will and a heart, longs rebelliously for the kind of democracy which would enable her to adopt the point of view of the aristocrats as a matter of course, James Kirkpatrick wants the kind of socialism which will either make him ultrarefined, as Alexina is, or perhaps drag her down to his level of commonness. If he had never met Alexina he would never have realized what "commonness" meant. It is all rather a muddle, but this does not make it in the least less real. Mrs. Humphry Ward would have made her characters act on a satisfactory thesis; but then they would not have been Mrs. Atherton's fiery human beings.

Whatever unreality Mrs. Atherton's background may seem to have for the uninitiated in the social conditions of San Francisco, nobody can fail to recognize that the persons who live in this atmosphere and emerge from it have all those human qualities which writers of greater technical power and of a style more cisèlé than Mrs. Atherton's labor in vain to acquire.

In the early days when Mrs. Atherton began to write, and she achieved that amazingly vivid scene in which the girl in pink is killed in a herd of buffalo—a scene which remains in the memory even after the name of the novel it contains is forgotten, a scene which has probably been translated into every modern language—she was called by certain indiscriminating critics "the American Ouida." It would be unjust to deny that great adventuress of the mid-Victorian time certain high qualities, and the best of these Mrs. Atherton possessed; but the comparison is very unjust, and those surface characteristics which made some of the high and mighty critics of literature accept it at the time have almost entirely gone.

The audacity which shocked the conservatism some years ago, and which seemed to be audacity for the sake of audacity, has either moderated or the standard of a more modern time makes it seem an accepted part of life. Her style is no longer so fervid, and, though the purist in words sometimes feels a slight shock, these shocks are fewer than they formerly were. The truth of this novelist's characters is not due so much to a careful study of individual psychology as to that impetuous and passionate interest in the qualities of human beings as human beings, and to a power of dramatic insight for which she has not always been given credit.

Gertrude Atherton.

You do not see the hand of Mrs. Atherton manipulating the soul of James Kirkpatrick. When we pass from the time of the earthquake to the beginning and the end of the war we find Kirkpatrick voicing the opinion of the class of Socialists he represents with a truth and precision which are neither toned down nor exaggerated. Alexina, for example, grows tired of a dull and stupidly conventional husband. She has been brought up to look on marriage as a respectable convention, as a lifelong contract because convention in her set demands that it should be lifelong. But she discovers that her scruples against getting rid of this husband have no warrant either in her religious opinions or discipline or in any article of her code of morality.

She distinctly asserts that in the marriage service she dropped out the words "to obey." In her view the arrangement was to last as long as her husband and she were ardently in love with each other; or, perhaps, to be kept for the sake of respectability if they should have children.

Like the heroine in "Main Street," she loves children, but refuses to bear them because—it was probably a Thrift Fest in San Francisco when she made this resolution—that it cost $50 a month to keep a baby alive under the conditions exacted by society in San Francisco.

In the cruel old mid-Victorian days babies, in the novels, came and went and such economic explanations were not in order at all. Ethel Newcomb's devoting herself to such an economic analysis or a similar passing consideration on the part of Mrs. Micawber would have been looked on as preposterous or comic; but in "Main Street" and "The Sisters-in-Law," two of the most typical of American novels that have yet appeared, it goes as a matter of course. Never for a moment is Alexina inconsistent; she is so superadvanced that she believes herself to be justified in choosing as a second husband, having divorced the first, the passionate Gathbroke to be the father of future children should their finances permit!

Mrs. Atherton is evidently no believer in poetic justice for the sake of rounding off her stories. She interests us so greatly in Gora, who has all the positive qualities which the exquisite Alexina lacks, that we are rather disappointed when Gathbroke throws her over. Gathbroke himself is rather vague. He is a stronger man than the conventional Mortimer Dwight, and by no means worthy of the violent, sincere and rather noble Gora; but, then, she wants him. She has all the qualities he lacks, and, though you may be doubtful as to whether Alexina may not grow tired of Gathbroke, you feel quite sure that the maternal quality in the very fine character which Mrs. Atherton has evoked in Gora would have kept her true to him, in spite of the belief of the emancipated society about her in the validity of "trial marriages."

Mrs. Atherton's view of war and the consequences of war, on the hearts of men and women will not please the optimist, but it is true even if put with the frankness which almost borders on coarseness. Her allusion to Renan's "Abbesse de Jouarre" is not as happy as some of her other allusions. "Alexina," she says, speaking of life near the front during the war, "had been horrified at first at the wanderings off after nightfall of women who had nursed like scientific angels by day, accompanied by men who were never more men than when any moment might turn them into carrion. But with her mental suppleness she had quickly readjusted her point of view. There is nothing as sensual as war."

Attributing, as she does, the renascence of the religious sentiment during the war in many souls to cowardice, she makes the mistake of an observer who has fixed her mind almost entirely on the merely human element and forgotten that there is a mystical quality in human souls which transcends all fear. Freud might explain this if he read Mrs. Atherton's unusually dramatic and exceedingly human novel. It is a pity, however, that so clever an author has not taken the opportunity of studying spiritual conditions of which she seems to be ignorant, because, in the urge of present social movements, they have not come to her attention.

It is time that, in the maturity of her talent which this book manifests, she should cease to accentuate the obvious. Americans are in soul a very spiritual people; but if she cares more for the exalted realms of aristocracy than for those bourgeoisie from whose class our American artistocrats strive in vain to escape, she can find, with her social opportunities, a real mysticism in the circles of the Faubourg de Saint Germain, perhaps not unknown in San Francisco. In spite of this criticism, there is no questioning the truth that "The Sisters-in-Law" is the most thought compelling and the most carefully constructed of all the novels yet written by an author who is nothing if not, at least in her own estimation, intensely American.

How Would You Introduce This Newcomer?

IF you were the hostess of a dinner party and your out-of-town guest arrived rather late, how would you present him? Would you introduce him to all at once? Would you introduce him to the person in whose honor the dinner is given? Would you take him to each guest individually? Which is correct?

The man who would be cultured, well-mannered, and the woman who would possess that coveted gift of charm, must cultivate the art of introduction. For he who can create a pleasant atmosphere between strangers, who can make conversation run smoothly and pleasantly, distinguishes himself as a person of breeding.

Every day, in both the business and social worlds, occasion arises for the introduction. Perhaps it is a business acquaintance who desires to meet your brother. Perhaps it is a friend who would like to meet another friend. The next time you introduce two people, notice whether the feeling you create is friendly and pleasant or whether it is uncomfortably strained.

Let us pretend that you are at the club with Mr. Jones, a young friend. There you meet elderly Mr. Blank. In introducing your two friends, would you say, "Mr. Blank, let me present Mr. Jones," or "Mr. Jones, let me present Mr. Blank"? If Mr. Blank is the cultured, well-bred gentleman he seems to be, would he say, "Pleased to meet you"? What would be the correct thing for him to say?

As he is an old friend of the family, you take Mr. Blank home for dinner. But your sister has never met him. Would you say, "Mr. Blank, this is my sister, Rose," or, "Rose this is Mr. Blank"? Is it correct for Mr. Blank and Rose to shake hands? If she is seated, shall Rose rise and acknowledge her brother's introduction?

Later in the evening you go with Mr. Blank to the theatre. In the lobby, Mr. Blank recognizes some friends of his wife, and he greets them. You have never met the ladies; never spoken to them. Should you lift your hat, or merely nod and smile?

In the box at the theatre is Mrs. Blank with several friends. Mr. Blank presents you—do you shake hands with the ladies? Do you bow to Mrs. Blank? Would you use any of these expressions: "How do you do?", "Pleased to know you," "Delighted"?

Ordinary, haphazard introductions are as ungraceful as they are ungratifying. If correctly rendered, the introduction becomes a graceful and becoming art. To be able to introduce correctly is to command the respect and honor of all with whom you come in contact.

How Do You Ask a Lady to Dance?

One breach of etiquette in the ballroom condemns you as a hopeless vulgarian! One little blunder and people begin to wonder whether you are such a tremendous success, after all!

If you are truly a gentleman your gallantry will distinguish you in the ballroom. If you are a cultured woman, your grace and delicacy will make you the envy of less charming women. The ballroom is, without doubt, the ideal place to impress by one's culture and refinement.

Let us pretend once again You have taken your fiancee to a dance. The first few dances were hers, of course. But for the fourth you decide to ask a young lady, who happens to be a wallflower, to share with you. How shall you excuse yourself to your fiancee? How do you ask the other young lady to dance? Which are the correct and which the incorrect forms? Can you make the young lady feel happy and at ease, or will she feel uncomfortable and embarrassed?

The music ceases and you must return to your fiancee. Do you find another partner for the young lady you have been dancing with? Do you escort her back to her seat? What is the proper thing to do; to say?

It is growing rather late, and you are warm and tired. Is it in accordance with etiquette's laws to wander out on the veranda? What is the correct thing to do if you cannot, for any reason, fulfill a promised dance?

And the woman at the dance. What shall she wear? May she under any condition ask for a dance? May she refuse to dance without reason? What are the usual forms of refusal? How many times is it correct for a girl to dance with the same partner? What shall the young girl who is not asked to dance do?

Both the man and woman must know the etiquette of the ballroom—must know just what to do and what to say. It is the badge of culture and refinement, and not even poverty can hide it.

What Shall I Wear To-Night?

You have asked yourself that question many times. "What shall I wear to-night?" Whether you are a man or a woman, it is utterly essential that you wear only what is perfect in taste and correct according to the etiquette of the occasion.

What does a man wear to an afternoon dance? What does a woman wear? What is worn to the evening entertainment? to the wedding? to the funeral? Do you know what a Tuxedo is? When is it worn? We will pretend, once again, that you are invited to an important afternoon function. What would you wear? Is the high silk hat correct? And if your sister accompanies you, what should she wear?

Are pearls worn in the afternoon? When are diamonds worn, and to what functions? What is the proper dress for the young lady's chaperon? Is it permissible to wear black to a wedding, even if one is in mourning?

The world is an extremely harsh judge. It judges you by what you wear even more severely than by what you do and say. If you would be respected, if you would be conceded a success, you must dress correctly and in full accordance with etiquette's laws.

ENCYCLOPEDIA of ETIQUETTE
In Two Comprehensive Volumes

The world demands culture. If you can hold yourself well in hand, if you can have the polish and poise that come with the knowledge that you are doing and saying only what is absolutely correct, you will be admitted to the highest society If you are refined, well-bred, you will command respect wherever you go.

The "Encyclopedia of Etiquette" makes it possible for every one to be polished, cultivated. It tells you just what is right to do and wear and write and say at all times. It corrects the blunders you have, perhaps unconsciously, been making. It dispels the lingering doubts that have cost you your self-confidence. It helps you, with its rich illustrations, to solve the problems that have been puzzling you. It comes to you, in fact, as a revelation toward perfect etiquette.

With the "Encyclopedia of Etiquette" to refer to, you will be without question cultured in your dinner etiquette. You will know what to do and say, without embarrassment, when you overturn a cup of coffee on your hostess's tablecover. You will know how to eat lettuce leaves, and how to use your knife correctly. You will know how to dispose of cherry and grape stones. You will know how to use the finger-bowl, and the napkin with the ease and grace that bespeaks culture of the highest degree.

The splendid two-volume set reveals to you the definite conventions that the world demands at the wedding and the funeral. It reveals the secret of correct introductions and acknowledgments. It tells you how to word your calling cards, your wedding invitations, your cards of thanks. It helps you to be cultivated and refined at all times.

Free Speech, Bolshevist Style

Persia, and the British were flying in despair. The anti-Bolshevist forces in Russia were also suffering complete collapse, while the Poles were rushing desperately into the streets of Warsaw. Further, everywhere under Soviet rule the people were contented; prices were being regulated, food was being distributed, and peace and plenty were in sight. We used to read all this sitting on the Boulevard, with the warships pointing their guns toward us and beggars coming up whining for money and bread.

I knew a girl who worked in one of the newspaper offices. She told me that every line that went into the newspapers was carefully censored. She heard one of the Commissars say that it was not necessary to study the psychology of the people; it was simpler than that; just give them the sort of news that would make them believe they were part of a great and successful Government, and that, if they had patience, they would all soon have plenty of food, clothes and money. Create an atmosphere of success and optimism, he had said, and all the rest will follow. The people will hold on till you can really give them all you have promised. I knew a Colonel whose orderly (or at least a soldier who did some services for him) used to bring him two Bolshevist newspapers every day. The Colonel never unfolded them; always threw them on the piano stool.

"Why don't you read them, Colonel," I asked, "and see which one you prefer?"

"They have the same sort of news," he replied, "and it's all lies."

If the press suppressed any news except the one sort, it was the Tchesvodchika that suppressed free speech. My first appreciation of this came through a story Mlle. Therèse told me. She was a little Frenchwoman who had been helping to manage the Hotel d'Europe. When the Bolsheviki took it over and interned the French proprietor, the little mademoiselle asked if she could not go on as manager. She was of great aid to the French prisoners, and, incidentally, she faithfully did her job for the Bolsheviki. She had more than one tale to tell of suppression by the Soviet of free speech, but this was the first one I heard.

"I am short-handed today," Mlle. Therèse said, "and must go back to the hotel and help out with the work. Two of my best Tartar servants are in jail. But yes; they were celebrating. You will have observed that, to please the Tartars, the curfew hour has been changed? But yes; they do not have to be off the streets now at 9 o'clock; they can stay out much later. That is a great convenience to these people, for like every one else in the Caucasus, they like to stay up all night. Twelve o'clock midnight to them is about what 8 o'clock would be to an American. So, to please the Tartars, who were angry at the massacre of the Tartars in Elisabetpol, the Soviet Government decreed that they could have a longer time for merrymaking in the evenings.

"My two Tartar boys, among others, held a big party. I think it was in some of the cafés, but if so they had a private room. In any case, they thought they were alone and they caroused freely and I suppose they spoke what was in their minds, sotto voce. But about midnight their minds must have gone off guard, for one of them (and he wasn't one of my boys, either) rose up and said he was going to give a toast. He said it was a toast that one of his friends had given at a wedding party and had suffered for, but he would give it because only friends were present. He would offer a toast to the class that had formerly given him employment, and to which he hoped some day to belong if the world changed again; he offered a toast to the bourgeoisie.

"Well," continued Mademoiselle, "the walls have ears, and he would have remembered that if his wits had not been befuddled with drink. The whole party was arrested. I do not know what punishment the toaster got, but my boys were given ten days each. The best boys I have, too."

I found myself wondering where the walls put their ears, so to speak, or how it happened that they were so plentifully supplied that people so inconsequential as Tartar servants could be so speedily arrested and punished. All Mademoiselle said was that it was through the Tchesvodchika that these men were arrested. A few days later I began to get the answers to my questions. I was in an apartment house where I had gone to meet Mme. L——, a friend who was teaching English to Bolsheviki who might be of the proletariat but who were looking for chances to advance themselves. On the staircase we were met by a stout, short-haired, vivid looking girl of about 20, whom Mme. L—— stopped and introduced to me as one of her pupils.

"I want you to meet her," she said beforehand, "because you said you'd like to see the sort of people who make up the Tchesvodchika; she's one of them—in a way."

The girl spoke very little, looked me over very sharply, and apparently asked some questions in Russian about me. Mme. L—— must have reassured her, for she smiled, shook hands again, said she would like to come to America, and would call on me some day in Baku to practice her English.

"What do you mean by saying she belongs to the Tchesvodchika 'in a way'?" I asked Mme. L——.

Mme. L—— had lived under the Bolsheviki for a year and a half, and she knew precisely how the Soviets work. She explained to me that everybody who is an earnest supporter of the Bolshevist Government is supposed to make of himself an unofficial member of the Tchesvodchika. She translated for me a couple of paragraphs of propaganda on the point which read something like this: "Every citizen should be the guard and helper of the Soviet rule. Every citizen should assist the Tchesvodchika." She said that people are told that if they find that soldiers are deserting they must give information; or if they find that commissars or other officials are cheating they must tell; or if there is speculation in the people's food, or if there is any movement toward revolt. In other words, the whole population is asked to become spies.

Mr. S——, the assistant in the American Near East Relief Fund, whenever I talked to him on the Boulevard, or in the lovely park that slopes down to the sea, was always hushing me.

"Don't say a thing against your detention here," he admonished me.

One day I was going to the house I lived in, which was on the same street as the Tchesvodchika prison. I noticed that there was a crowd before the prison doors which the gendarmes were scattering. I crossed to the other side and walked on. It was not the first time I had had to witness such a scene as I will now describe. An old weeping woman, assisted by two Bolshevist soldiers, both, I must say, very sympathetic so far as their grave faces and gentle treatment went, was getting a young, frantic girl into a drosky, or carriage. The girl was tearing at her hair and screaming—screaming terribly. Later a Jewish woman, who knew the girl, told me, with tears, her story.

"Only a few weeks ago she was married to a young Jew who was against the Bolshevist occupation of Azerbaijan. He used to say that we were getting on very well as we were. But when the Bolsheviki came in, naturally, he wanted to save his skin. He took some work under them in the railway administration. I believe they thought well of him.

"But, you see, before he was married to this poor child you saw today he was engaged to another girl. He jilted her to marry this one. I do not know any of the circumstances—how brutally he did it, whether he tried to save her pride, or how many people knew what had happened. At any rate, this girl he jilted denounced him before the Tchezvodchika, saying that he had spoken against communism. I suppose he had told her his views often enough before the Bolsheviki came in. For all I know, he may have tried to start some sort of counter-revolution here, and yet I think he is too cautious for that. If he said anything to a few friends against communism, it is all he did. At any rate, it is all he was accused of, and it was quite enough.

"A week ago he was arrested and put in prison. The girl brought him his dinner every day, as the women of prisoners are allowed to do. Today when she brought him his food she was told that he had been shot last night."

It's as easy as that. In the Doge of Venice days there used to be a stone lion with open mouth down whose throat accusers could post anonymous accusations against the enemies of the State—or their own enemies. It is almost like that among the Bolsheviki in the new Soviets. I do not mean that they do not make an attempt to try fairly the cases that come before them. They do have courts-martial, carried on in regular order, and the accused may speak for himself. But the judges are a lot of young people, or people in early middle age, not much practiced in administration, and maybe blunted by six years of a world that has valued too little human life. Moreover, it is thoroughly ground into them that they must suppress revolt, and speaking against the Soviet Government or against communism or for the bourgeoisie may be the first step that leads to revolt. Under Soviet rule, it is safe to say, one can speak freely on politics only if he speaks against socialism or manshevism or anarchism, or non-Soviet systems, and only if he speaks in praise of the Soviet. Any criticism of Bolshevist rule had better be uttered under the breath or not uttered at all.

Mr. Chesterton's Crusade for a New Jerusalem

Godfrey de Bouillon Storms the City of Jerusalem After a Siege of Five Weeks.

THE NEW JERUSALEM. By G. K. Chesterton. New York: Doran. $3.

THERE must be some admirers of Chesterton who wonder whether he approves the way he is advertised. "In his well-known vein," "the famous maker of paradox," "the humorist who leaves a thought behind," do not these sometimes jar him? His well-known vein, for instance; he has bored from the vein of iron pyrites to the Comstock Lode in twenty-odd years. He began as a rollicking youth and he is now a middle-aged philosopher. He was a philosopher when he rollicked, and he cannot forego a rollick or so in the midst of a philosophy. But he is as different from the Chesterton of "Varied Types" as the Mark Twain of "The Prince and the Pauper" was from the Twain of "Innocents Abroad," a book which raised the gooseflesh on Mark's great admirer, Howells. Yet, as with the believers in the dictum that "man changes entirely every seven years," the outward man remains the same, and so, with modifications, does the style. Stanton's "A man of fifty is responsible for his face" might include his style as well, as if he is an author.

Here we have the new Chesterton writing about the new Jerusalem. It is the old Jerusalem he writes about, but he makes it the new Jerusalem to us; it is the old Chesterton who writes, but you hear the new Chesterton in his words. Yet through all these years he has been the crusader, the man with one idea in a thousand forms. We have heard too much of the man who cannot see a joke; the man who can see nothing but a joke is much more common, and in the midst of Chesterton's terrible earnestness there were too many people who insisted that he was a humorist, and must therefore be joking. It is only within a few years that such people have discovered that Bernard Shaw was not trying merely to make them laugh.

It is the old Jerusalem that Chesterton visited, for the presence of European soldiers and railroads is so incidental in what he says that the reader forgets their presence. His "New Jerusalem" is the new Jerusalem sung by Christian millions before the great war was thought of. He sees it through the medium of these soldiers, engineers, politicians and what not who have come to the ancient city. Not through the financiers; through the book there runs an eloquent thread of protest against modernizing Jerusalem through syndicates and bonds. In a way he is a Zionist, but only on condition that the Jew should come back not as a ruler but as a working inhabitant. He would have a suzerainty; "The European can do justice to the Jew, but it must be the European who does it." He does not want the suzerainty to be that of England, but he says England must take it unless Christendom, or, at least, the Entente, takes it. What he wants is to have the principle of the Roman Empire, or, at least, of the Holy Roman Empire, to come back in dealing with the East. France and England would represent that principle enough to satisfy him.

"The New Jerusalem" purports to be only the notes of a tourist, and in form it is; but such a notebook and such a tourist! Like a picture painted on a rock by a storm—and the natural world has many such—there stands out, when he paints the Moslem, not the mere human being whose dress and manners are carefully described by other tourists, but that human being, and also all that he ever meant or stood for, the vision of Mohammed and the valor of Saladin, the contest of difference between Mohammedanism and Christianity, the influence of the desert upon the formation of religions. The same is true of everything he touches—the Crusader becomes more alive for us than in Gibbon or even in Villehardouin.

In what has become his usual fashion, now that he writes books instead of sketches, he rambles discursively from subject to subject, and it is only at the end that we realize the steady purpose that informs and unifies the whole work. As for the brilliancy of the writing, that has increased in the middle-aged Chesterton to a point far beyond the youthful thrower of sparks and flashes, though the purpose in that fantastic youth was the same, even in his wildest moments. He begins with the statement that at Christmas he set forth for the East and "began to walk backward through history to the place from which Christmas came," as a man walks backward to the place from which he came when he has lost his way; and adds, with his usual air of uttering a startling premise as if it were a truism, "That the world has lost its way few will now deny." Again, as usual, the moment he has stated his startling premise it seems self-evident. A moment before it was not even a truism.

He had been told he would be disappointed with Jerusalem; but he loved it. In a chapter on "The Philosophy of Sight-Seeing" he maintains that a man should not go forth in a critical mood, determined to find out what is different from home and therefore bad, but should think instead what an Arab would think of London. "A man cannot eat the Pyramids; he cannot buy or sell the Holy City; there can be no practical aspect either of his coming or going. If he has not come for a poetic mood he has come for nothing; if he has come for such a mood, he is not a fool to obey that mood. The way to be really a fool is to try to be practical about unpractical things."

Another truism that no one else ever saw is that "the tradition of Turkish rule is simply a joke. All the stories about it are jokes and often very good jokes." Other writers may have said that Turkish rule was anarchic, but Chesterton says that "at once the most curious and the most common touch of comedy is the perpetual social introduction to solid and smiling citizens who have been nearly hanged by the Turks. The fortunate gentleman seems still to be regarding his escape with a broad grin." If a man had so escaped in France or America you would want to hear what he had been so nearly hanged for. "But evidently, under Turkish rule, being hanged was like being knocked down by a cab—it might happen to anybody."

But it is when he comes to describe the religions of Jerusalem that he is most convincing and most dramatic, and, unfortunately, the limits of a review prevent anything like the length of quotation that would do him justice. But the main idea is that these men have kept their religion alive as Westerners have not. He denies that there is a perpetual war between the Christian sects; there is a perpetual armed truce. It is because these men, as well as the Moslems and the Jews, are true believers in a sense that has almost passed away from the Western world. He is savage against sending Sir Herbert Samuels to govern Palestine, because to the Jews of Jerusalem he appears not a Jew but an Englishman, while to Englishmen he appears a Jew. As the Jews of Palestine are not like the Jews of England, so the Roman Catholics of Palestine are not like the Roman Catholics of England. It is the Greek Catholic who resembles the Western Roman Catholic. The sentences in which the contrast is set forth are many and forcible, but perhaps this will serve best: "Mingling in the same crowd with these black-robed pontiffs (the Greek Catholics) can be seen shaven men in brown habits who seem in comparison to be both busy and obscure. These are the sons of St. Francis, who came to the East with a grand simplicity and thought to finish the Crusades with a smile." And this:

> But it is broadly true that Roman and Greek Catholicism are contrasted in this way in this country, and the contrast is the flat contrary to all our customary associations in the West. In the East it is Roman Catholicism that stands for much that we associate with Protestantism. It is Roman Catholicism that is by comparison plain and practical and scornful of superstition and concerned for social work. It is Greek Catholicism that is stiff with gold and gorgeous with ceremonial, with its hold on ancient history and its inheritance of imperial tradition. In the cant of our own society we may say it is the Roman who rationalizes and the Greek who Romanises.

Speaking of the common saying that the Turk kept the peace between the Christian sects, he says it would be nearer the truth to say "that the war is something not made by Turks but made up by infidels." It would be unfair, however, to attempt to summarize Mr. Chesterton's long and searching examination into the relations of the sects; one can only say that at the end the idea is drummed into the reader that this is a barrel of gunpowder which should not be gayly played with by people who do not understand its nature, such as Zionists from abroad or Zionists who are interested in anything less than Zion. "It would be a bad thing if a system military in form but representative in fact gave place to a system representative in form but financial in fact."

Nor has he any patience with those who assume that the differences between the Christian sects are small and to be disregarded. "The old joke that the Greek sects only differed about a single letter is about the largest and most illogical joke in the world. An atheist and a theist only differ by a single letter; yet theologians are so subtle as to distinguish definitely between the two."

Anyhow, the quarrels are fundamentally about patriotism, not about theology. In Jerusalem the nations meet and there are no frontiers. To imagine it, he says, we must imagine that we of the West are "left with all our local loves and family memories unchanged, but the places affected by them are intermingled and tumbled about by some almost inconceivable convulsion." "We must picture a new map made out of the broken fragments of the old map; and yet with every one remembering the old map and ignoring the new." We must imagine the Tomb of Napoleon at Stratford-on-Avon, Westminster Abbey on the Rhine, and so on through a brilliant list of historical horrors:
